BANKS MORE WARY

Lesson of Hocking Failure May End Old System of Loans to Brokers.

A further check to the already reduced activity of stock trading may result from the Supreme Court's regent decision that the Mechanics and Metals Bank and the National City Bank were put in the position of preferred creditors by the receipt of securities from Lathrop, Haskins & Co. and J. M. Fiske shortly before the failure of those Stock Exchange firms three years ago.

The court's decision apparently puts an end to a fiction devised many years ago to protect banks which advanced brokerage clients more credit than their deposits entitled them to, for part of a day. The banks believed that they were protected in allowing overdrafts by their agreement with the brokers that they were entitled to claim as collateral any securities which were in the bank's possession, or which came into their keeping. In accordance with this agreement, the banks, upon hearing that the brokerage houses were being pushed in connection with the collapse of the Hocking pool, sent over for collateral to deposit under the notes issued by the brokers. Shortly after the securities were delivered to the banks the brokerage houses failed, and the receiver brought suit to compel the banks to surrender the collateral.

The National City Bank, it is understood, will announce in a few days new rules under which it will make so-called day loans to brokers in future. It is expected that other national banks which have done a large business with Stock Exchange houses will adopt similar plans. Brokers who have discussed the matter say that they will not give up the existing system so long as any of the banks continue willing to operate under what has proved to be a convenient method of handling large transactions. Stock Exchange members think that if the national banks refuse to continue to make loans under the old system there is no reason why State banks should not receive the accounts.

Under the old system, which has now developed a serious weakness, a broker was able to handle transactions largely in excess of his available capital by making temporary use of credit extended to him by his bank. The procedure is as follows: Before 10 o'clock each day the broker estimates how much his checks drawn for the payment of stocks to be bought will total. It is, of course, true that he cannot make this estimate an accurate one, for he cannot foresee what new business may develop during the session, but he is usually able to arrive at approximately the amount needed. He then sends a note to the bank covering that amount. His checks are certified up to the sum asked for, and as stocks which he has sold are paid for he sends the checks received to the bank. Before 3 o'clock his over-certifications, which, technically, are not over-certifications, are thus made good. If not, the broker borrows by a call loan enough money to make good his account, depositing collateral to protect the bank. As it works out, the bank has not paid out any money on the certified checks before it has the money in hand, and it has been customary to make no charge for this service.

Brokers maintain that their notes are similar to those executed by merchants, and are as good or better than the best commercial paper through being secured by stocks susceptible to quick liquidation. Some of the bankers take the opposite view, on the ground that the brokers' business is largely speculative.

A few of the larger downtown banks have never taken this class of business, dealing with brokers only when ample security was deposited for any money or credit advanced. Most of the institutions, however, have done large business in clearances, or day-loans, which has been profitable.

One of the largest banks worked out a plan by which its broker clients would be allowed to have their checks certified only to the amount of their funds on deposit. To avoid cramping small houses which have not enough capital to swing large purchases, it proposed to clear transactions for the brokers when they request it, charging a small fee to cover the cost of clerk's time. Under this system, if a depositor executes an order for $5,000,000 worth of bonds which he cannot pay for, he will notify the bank, which will at once send a messenger with a check to receive the bonds from the seller. After being checked up by the bank, they will be delivered to the buyer for whom the broker has acted, and handed to him in return for his check. Under this system it will only be necessary for the broker to have on deposit with the bank enough money to provide a safe margin.

The plan for obviating faults of the existing system which is in most favor has not been thrashed out by the brokers, but has received the approval of some of the leading bankers, who will bring it to the attention of their customers on the Exchange. It calls for the creation of an indemnity company within the membership of the Exchange. The new company would get its capital through the sale of stock to members of the Exchange and would be in a position to guarantee the notes of any of its members.

Under this plan the officers of the company would be in constant touch with the activities of the brokers who are in the habit of executing clearance loans. If they found that one or more houses were engaged in a risky attempt at manipulation like that carried on by the Hocking crowd they would have the power to notify the brokers of their unwillingness to guarantee their notes further.

However, it is admitted by bankers that cases of this kind on the Stock Exchange loans are very infrequent. It is maintained that the indemnity company, having practically no expenses and probably no losses, would shortly be able to return in the form of dividends fees charged the brokers for standing back of their credit. This plan has met with more favor than the one proposing that banks clear transactions for the brokers.

"We have no wish to hamper any of our customers with any unnecessary safeguards," said the head of one of the Wall Street banks yesterday. "We are prepared, however, to lose their accounts rather than continue under the old system, which has broken down under the court's decision. In the Hocking crash it was perfectly plain to me that it made no difference whether the additional collateral was received by the banks before the failures or after. The point was that it was not obtained until after the credit had been extended. That made the banks preferred creditors in a common-sense interpretation of the transaction. The situation might never arise again, and if sufficient care were exercised in certifying checks it probably never would arise, but the potential danger is there just the same, and must be eliminated."

STEEL TRADE IS QUIET.

More Mills Are Closing Down in the Pittsburgh District.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 15.—The continued blowing out of merchant and steel works furnaces, together with the sentimental effect of the drop of 400,000 tons in the Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage as shown by the Nov. 10 report, gives pig iron a much softer tone than at any time this year. The blast-furnace industry in Pittsburgh and Valleys territory is not operating at better than 70 per cent. of the maximum capacity attained last April. It is notable, however, that the price range shows no positive declines from a week ago.

Two independent steel company interests are operating their blast-furnace properties at 50 per cent. of maximum. The Steel Corporation, while reducing output, holds to about 75 per cent. of maximum thus far, and probably will maintain this rate into December. There are few merchant furnaces in the Central West in blast, aside from those controlling their own ore and coke supplies. The check in the pig-iron industry is abnormal in its suddenness. The strong position of the merchant pig iron trade in this territory lies in the fact that practically all the merchant furnace interests now in operation control their own ore and coke supplies, and thus are not subject to iron-clad deliveries of raw material under running contracts.

There is a scattering demand for Bessemer iron at $14.15 Valley furnace, or $15.25 delivered Pittsburgh. A sale of 1,000 tons of forge iron, November-January delivery, was closed at $14.15 delivered Pittsburgh, which is $13.25 at Valley furnace. Basic iron seems definitely fixed at $13.25 Valley furnace, or practically on a parity with forge iron; No. 2 foundry is offered at $13.50 Valleys, and on liberal inquiry at a shade lower than $14.40 delivered Pittsburgh. There is slightly more activity in the West in pig iron, and it is believed the local market will go lower, unless Chicago shows an unexpected price slump.

Crude steel prices seem to have about touched bottom, with a range of $20.50 to $21.50 for Bessemer or open hearth billets. The lower figure named is within $1.50 of the low point of 1910. There is little demand for contracts on sheet and tin bars for the first quarter as yet, consumers seemingly being at a loss to estimate their requirements.

Plates are offered occasionally at a shade below 1.30c. mill. It is estimated that 1.25c can be done on plates, which is $4 a ton under the recent official price. Structural material ranges at 1.30c and 1.35c, with considerable new work showing. Steel bars, it is said, have not gone below 1.30c in Pittsburgh district, although the settlement on the sliding wage scale of the puddling mills for November and December shows bar iron on a 1.25c basis. Usually there is a matter of 2 to 5 points between steel and iron bar in the open market. Black sheets are acknowledgedly offered at 2c. mill, which is $7 a ton below the high point of last Winter and only $4 above the low point of the 1910 movement. Not much activity is reported thus far in tin plate, though the new season price of $3.40 has been in effect only two weeks, and producers affect not to expect lively contracting for first quarter of 1914 until toward the close of the month.

The slowing down in the blast-furnace industry is having its effect on coke. Quotations in this market during the week, for first-class Connellsville furnace coke, ranged from $1.90 to $1.85, Connellsville oven, for this year's shipment. Some sellers were offering furnace coke down to $1.70. Foundry coke has softened slightly, to a minimum of $2.50 at Connellsville oven.

ALLING DISPUTES TALBERT.

He Says Free Collection System Will Benefit Country Banks.

Newton D. Alling, Vice President of the National Nassau Bank, does not agree with the calculations of Joseph T. Talbert, Vice President of the National City Bank, as to the prohibitive expense of the plan of free clearings and check collection embraced in the Owen-Glass bill. In fact, Mr. Alling believes that the proposed system will be of the highest value to business and will eliminate the useless expense of the present system, with its exchange charges and fictitious balances.

"I cannot help but be interested," said Mr. Alling, "in the articles which a bank officer has been contributing on the subject of county check collections, as provided in the Federal Reserve act. Without taking up in detail the arguments and premises by which he reaches his conclusions, it is enough to say that he finally arrives at the amount of $6,300,000 as the net annual cost to the Federal reserve banks of assuming the collection of the out-of-town checks of their member banks.

"He arrives at this net cost by assuming that conditions are going to be much the same under the new system as they are now under the old. That is, that all of the expenses which are attached to the present archaic method of collecting will still have to be incurred under the new. He does not seem to grasp the fact that if the Federal reserve banks are organized and required, as it now stands in Section 17, 'to receive on deposit at par and without charge for exchange or collection checks and drafts drawn by any of its depositors * * * or drawn by any depositor in any other Federal reserve bank upon funds in said bank,' that all existing conditions and expenses are swept away.

"Still more is this so when Section 20, which requires the reserves of all member banks to be retained in the reserve bank in their own region, is considered. The only expense which would be left of the many which we have now would be the actual transfer of money from one section to another, and that would probably be only a fraction of what it is under the present system.

"Take, for instance, the shipping of currency which is necessary in the Fall for crop moving from New York to the West; that would be eliminated. New York would no longer hold the reserve for Western banks, but it would be held by Federal banks in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, and Denver, each close at hand in its own district. The collection of checks would be simplified to a greater extent.

"A check, for instance, drawn on a bank in Joliet, Ill., and deposited in a bank in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., would be sent by the Poughkeepsie bank for its credit in the Federal bank in New York, the Federal bank in New York would send it to the Federal bank in Chicago, which would credit the Federal bank of New York and charge the account of the bank in Joliet. The bank in Joliet will send all of the checks deposited with it outside its own city to the Federal bank of Chicago for credit to its account, thus naturally providing funds at all times to meet checks drawn on it and redeemed by its reserve bank.

"The checks drawn on a member bank would be offset by the checks which it sent to the Federal bank for collection, just as checks now sent to a local clearing house are offset by those received from the clearing house by any member bank. Thus would the member banks' reserve account always be kept in funds without the necessity of shipping a dollar's worth of currency except under some special condition. It would not be necessary for member banks to replenish constantly their reserve account at great expense by shipping currency, as has been erroneously stated by those who should know better.

"This clause in the bill will be the greatest boon to the country bankers that can, or ever will again, be granted to them. It will make their checks acceptable at par in any part of the country on an equal footing with that of the largest New York bank. It will open the door to the markets of the country for his local manufacturing and mercantile depositors. It will not be necessary for them to keep their accounts in Albany or Philadelphia, or New York, to comply with that little request on most every statement, 'Payable only in New York Exchange.'

"We are told that the country bankers would rather forego those benefits to their communities than lose the profits derived from their exchange account. I, for one, do not believe that; not when they have it put to them right and when they stop looking at this provision of the bill through smoked glasses. What are the exchange profits to the average bank outside of reserve cities, and not in some out-of-the-way place? I will wager that, considering the balances which they have to keep in other banks in order to divert checks to themselves, their net gain at the end of the year is inconsiderable.

"And what does this system result in? Banks in Syracuse have to keep more accounts in Albany, New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, and perhaps Chicago, than they need in order to attract as much collection business as possible, and this condition exists in every city of any size in the country.

"Checks are sent all around Robin's barn to fatten balances. In the last Controller's call the item 'due from national banks not reserve agents' was $439,021,200, and 'due from State banks and bankers' was $194,990,066, and the total of these represent largely balances given to attract collection business, as there is no reason for national banks to keep such accounts except as reciprocal balances. And the item 'due from approved reserve agents,' $762,176,994, doubtless represents to some extent the same tendency. This all means that a considerable amount of the balances of banks are to an extent offset and that a great deal of the business is unnecessary; and that causes an expense which is unnecessary, and which some one must bear.

"It is high time that the banks of the country went out of the balance swapping business and devoted their time to simple banking. The Federal Reserve act will eliminate all of this unnecessary expense, and will collect or exchange all of the checks of the country for one-twentieth or less of the cost of to-day, and the tariff on business will be removed entirely. President Wilson spoke truly when he said that this bill would 'strike the shackles off business.' When he signs this bill he will, with one stroke of his pen, remove all the vexing problems of the collection of country checks. And those who, in comparing the expense or possibilities of the Reserve act as far as its collection clause is concerned, with conditions holding to-day, must ignore all present calculations and start anew."

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION AND STOCK MARKETS

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Change Very Little in Dull Session—Banks Show Large Reserve Gain.

The week ended on the Stock Exchange with a very dull session, which here and there yielded substantial net changes in prices, but which left the list by and large little changed from the previous day. The market hardened somewhat toward the close and ended with sufficient firmness to give some encouragement to those who counted on favorable Mexican news over Sunday to give further impetus to the market. A whole week has gone by beyond the time when it was thought that our negotiations with the Mexican Government would come to a definite issue without the question of Gen. Huerta's retirement being definitely settled. It was felt, however, that events have taken such a course this week that another week can hardly pass without making much clearer just what the outcome of President Wilson's policy toward Mexico is to be. Incidentally, the view that this country's policy, backed up by the countries of Europe, would be successful has been growing. It was with a more or less cheerful view of the Mexican situation, therefore, that trading for the week came to an end.

The bank statement more than fulfilled the favorable expectations which had been entertained regarding it. The actual gain in cash reached the large figure of $12,300,000, and nearly two-thirds of this sum was added to the surplus reserve. The increase in loans was small when viewed in contrast with the inflow of cash. The slight deficit of two weeks ago has now been converted into a surplus in excess of $18,000,000. This is substantially above the average for this date in recent years and bears out the view that the bank position is steadily growing more comfortable. The cash movements of the last fortnight and the effect which they have had upon the Clearing House reserve position fully bear out the view recently entertained in some quarters of the financial district that there was no occasion at this time to seek gold from abroad so far as our banking position was concerned. The surplus, it is true, has been increased by about $2,000,000 on account of the gold arrivals from the other side, but even without this addition to our stock of cash the reserve position here would be strong above the average of the season.

At the moment there are no indications of the likelihood of further gold imports, although the course of trade has so favored this country that our credits in the European markets are increasing. It is still possible, however, to employ funds more profitably in bills than in the importation of gold, and so long as this is so the position of the money markets as a whole is likely to be benefited by our refraining from further imports at this time. It is true that the recent recovery in exchange carried rates to a figure which wiped out the profit on the basis of bankers' bills shown in gold import operations, but the exchange rate would doubtless be quickly depressed again to the import point if our bankers attempted to realize on their present holdings of long bills. The bank statement yesterday shows how unnecessary such a course would be at this time.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Time money rates were 5@5¼ per cent. for sixty days, 4¾@5¼ per cent. for ninety days, and 4¾@5 per cent. for four, five and six months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 5¾@6 per cent. for the best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $308,297,642; balances, $13,701,342; Sub-Treasury credit balances, $469,848.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 4⅞@4 15-16 per cent. for short and three months' bills; Berlin, 4½ per cent.; Paris, 3⅞ per cent. Money was 4@4¼ per cent. in London, and 2½ per cent. in Berlin.

The Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 50 pfennigs. The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 31 centimes.

Foreign exchange was quoted as follows:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Drug Issue in Demand.

Possibly by way of celebration of the company's anniversary week, the shares of the Riker-Hegeman Company enjoyed a violent spurt on the curb both Friday and Saturday. On Friday the stock sold up 15 points to 135, and closed at 130, with a net gain of 10 points for the day. Yesterday it opened up 5 points, jumped to 160, and closed at that figure, with a net gain of 30 points more, or 40 points for the two days' dealings. Brokers reported transactions in 95 shares. Inasmuch as half a dozen persons are known to hold about 90 per cent. of the Riker-Hegeman common and preferred stock, representatives of the United Cigar interests who are negotiating for control of the chain of drug stores were wondering yesterday where the shares sold on the curb were to be obtained.

Consolidated Trades in U. P.

Although the relative volume of trading on the two exchanges yesterday was divided about as usual, the Consolidated did a larger amount of the Union Pacific business than its pro rata share. Total transactions in this issue were 3,200 shares on the Little Board, as against 4,100 on the New York Stock Exchange. The Consolidated reported 900 shares changing hands at 151, the day's top price, against 100 shares, which sold on the other board at that figure.

Football Enthusiasts Missing.

There was very little discussion of the approaching football games to be heard in the financial district yesterday morning, for the reason that most of the game's supporters took the day off. After two successive Saturdays of rain the promising weather yesterday proved too strong a temptation for several hundred brokers to withstand. The result was a holiday market. The total transactions on the Stock Exchange were but 70,000 shares, and on the Consolidated, 11,920 shares. There had not been such a small Saturday's business before since Aug. 2, when the total was only 63,000.

An Unequal Division.

The stock market of the past week was fairly broad, considering only the number of issues dealt in, but extremely narrow if the distribution of business be taken into account. The week's total transactions numbered 1,466,288 shares, and there were 216 issues on the list. Considerably more than half the total was done in the four leaders: 292,606 shares in Steel common, 162,300 shares in Union Pacific, 143,850 shares in Amalgamated Copper, and 227,800 shares in Reading. That left only 629,642 shares to be divided by the other 212 issues. All of our leaders closed the week with good gains, Steel adding 2 points to its price at the close of the previous week, Union, 2⅞; Copper, 1¼, and Reading, 1¼. Some of the less active issues suffered heavy declines while the leaders were advancing. Assets Realization declined 14 points; Lake Erie & Western preferred, 5; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie preferred, 9½; New York Air Brake, 8¼, and M. Rumely preferred, 4½.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The amount of Union Pacific which changed hands on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was not far behind the amount of that stock dealt in on the New York Stock Exchange. The Consolidated total was 3,220 shares, as against 4,100 shares on the other board. Chesapeake & Ohio was dealt in on the 9:30 o'clock opening call at 56, and Tennessee Copper sold after the call at 28⅝, the only market for those two stocks in Wall Street during the day. In the early trading the railroad list as a whole inclined toward heaviness. At the lower levels, however, the market steadied, with rallying tendencies then developing. Commission houses handled a good volume of business in odd lots.

NEWS OF THE CORPORATIONS AND THE BANKS

BANK STATEMENT

Big Cash Gain Increases Surplus to $18,000,000—Loans and Deposits Increase.

The actual cash gain of the Clearing House institutions reported in yesterday's statement exceeded the largest of Friday's estimates based on the average figures of the week. Deposits and loans increased only moderately, with the result that the surplus reserve was enlarged by $7,800,000. It stands now at $18,400,000, which is double the surplus held at this time last year.

The bank statement figures compare as follows with the returns of earlier weeks and of corresponding dates in other years:

NEW TRAIN HELD UP

Southern Pacific Strike Delays Inauguration of De Luxe Service to Coast.

A new transcontinental passenger train, which was to have cut twenty hours from the running time between New York and Los Angeles, was to have left New Orleans to-day. Preparations for making the new train famous for its comforts and speed have been under way for months, and its initial trip has been advertised from coast to coast. It was to have been run via the Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, and Southern Pacific. Officers of the latter company were very dubious last night as to their ability to get the new train away from New Orleans, owing to the strike of engineers, firemen, conductors, and trainmen.

So far the trouble with the employes has been confined to the lines in Louisiana and Texas, on the division from New Orleans to El Paso, about 3,400 miles. On this division freight service has been tied up completely, but the New York office had word yesterday that two through passenger trains each way had been manned and sent out. No local trains have been operated since the calling of the strike on Thursday.

The Southern Pacific fought its previous strike, called by the shopmen and boilermakers, and carried it through, though at a very heavy cost. Chairman Kruttschnitt says that the present trouble is largely over a question as to whether the public's interests are to be safeguarded or not, and he appears willing to come to a test of strength with the unions again if necessary to uphold the management's right to manage. He says that the differences with the various classes of employes were gone over exhaustively, group by group, and settled in the early part of this year.

"On Oct. 17, 1913, a communication signed by the grand officers of the four organizations of our engineers, firemen, conductors, and trainmen submitted, a list of 67 alleged grievances, including all unsettled questions, also including some cases that had been previously settled with the General Chairman of the conductors' organization and some that had previously been presented by each of the organizations," says the Southern Pacific Chairman.

"The company's agreements with each of the organizations, still in effect, clearly and specifically provide the method of handling grievances and by whom they must be presented. Neither party to these agreements can arbitrarily change them except under methods prescribed in the agreements themselves.

"The list of grievances in letter of Oct. 17 includes requests for reinstatement of employes, in some instances demanding that they be paid for all lost time, who have been dismissed for insubordination, incompetency, gross carelessness, use of intoxicants, and responsibility for accidents. Four of the cases presented demand reversals of decisions previously accepted by the regularly constituted representatives of the organization.

"Protests follow against the company's practice with reference to various reports and examinations. Requests are made for privileges not heretofore enjoyed. Attempt is made to force back into the service men who have been dismissed for declining to make out reports rendered necessary by the Federal boiler inspection and safety appliance laws. The company is asked to discontinue the practice of periodical examinations of train and enginemen on time table and train rules, and re-examination of engineers as to knowledge of their locomotives. Protests are made against re-examinations of train and enginemen on color, perception, sight, and hearing, re-examinations that are most important and necessary; indeed, in cases where they have been found lacking on other railroads, as developed by investigation of previous train accidents, the duty of the railroad management regardless of demands of organizations has been very clearly defined by both Federal and State investigating bodies.

"Another practice listed as a grievance is the methods employed in making efficiency or surprise tests. These consist in checking employes in observance of danger signals, flagging, observance of speed limits, and all other rules the disregarding of which may at any moment cause loss of life. The character of these tests has been carefully prescribed so as to avoid any risk to the employe tested. Many hundreds of these tests made monthly on other parts of our system show that, with proper attention to the rules, the percentage of failures should be less than one-half of 1 per cent. For the year 1913 the percentage of failures by the men who have gone on strike was 5.2 per cent., or ten times what may be considered fairly satisfactory. It is of little use after disaster to plead that the observation of signals and rules is good; it must be substantially perfect. Accidents are always due to the very small number of cases where the signals are not observed.

"Under present conditions, many of the efforts made by the company toward compliance with Interstate Commerce and State Commission rulings and to effect a greater degree of safety in operation to fulfill in every way its obligation to the traveling public have met with the disapproval of Chairmen of Grievance Committees and of officers of the organizations, and the present move is but one of many.

"The position of the officers of the company in respect to the pending demands of its employes has been in performance of their duties as they are defined in the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission. If the employes have the same regard for the commission's report, and recognize the duties which railway employes as well as railway officials owe to the public, they will not persist in their demands. Certain it is that if the traveling public had a conclusive voice in the determination of the controversy, a due regard for its rights would lead to its approval of the stand taken by the officers of the railroad. The question in a nutshell is, shall the company buy its peace with employes at the price of the safety of the public?"

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—October's production of copper in the Lake Superior district amounted to approximately 6,000,000 pounds, against 7,000,000 in September, and of the 32,000,000 in the country's stock at the end of the month one-quarter was from the Lake. Producers are represented as not anxious to sell, and consumers are not anxious to buy; so the market waits.

Wolverine and Mohawk are to set imported miners at work at once. The former company began hoisting Wednesday, and the latter is unwatering its mine. Superior hoisted 650 tons on Wednesday.

Keweenaw, in enlarging the old Phoenix shaft, which has lain idle fifty years, has taken out rock which is said to resemble the Ahmeek rock, and to be equally rich. Mining men are very much interested in this development.

Greene-Cananea in October produced 3,164,000 pounds of copper, comparing with 3,148,000 in September, and with 4,248,000 in October a year ago.

Butte advices are that Anaconda has taken over the Robert Emmet claim, adjoining the West Stewart mine on the west, and believed to contain a continuation of the Stewart and Gagnon ore bodies.

THE BUSINESS WORLD FROM MANY ANGLES

CRITICISE PINKHAM PLAN FOR EMPLOYES

Interesting Points Are Brought Up in Connection with New Profit-Sharing Scheme.

When F. Colburn Pinkham, Secretary of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, recently made public his plan for letting employes of department stores share in the profits of their respective establishments, he told a TIMES reporter that he gave it out in its present form solely to get suggestions and criticisms from dry goods merchants in various parts of the country. Already the desired suggestions and criticisms have begun to come in, and when enough of them have been received to make it practicable Secretary Pinkham will formulate a permanent plan.

One of the most interesting criticisms received so far complains that the plan does not provide bonuses for departments as well as for the individual sales person. It is maintained by the merchant who made this point that unless such a bonus was provided there would be a lack of the team work which is so essential to the welfare of any department. It is also maintained that the lack of a department bonus will induce undue competition between the various sales persons, with the result that customers may be annoyed and their business lost.

Another objection to the bonus scheme rose from reference to the departments where the largest part of the year's business was done in three or four seasonable months; for example, the jewelry department. It was pointed out that while an employe in this department who was paid on a salary and commission basis might be able to earn a bonus of $250 in the month of December alone, it would be practically out of the question for this employe to sell enough of this merchandise in the other months of the year to earn a bonus commensurate with the time and energy he or she expended.

The bonus plan was also objected to on the ground that it might induce the clerks in general to become overzealous and attempt to force customers to buy things that they did not want, a kind of business, it was said, generally resulted in returned purchases or numerous complaints, not to speak of the possibilities of diverting trade. On the other hand it was said that no amount of bonus giving could tempt some clerks to be overzealous. This was said to be especially true of young women who looked on store employment as an intermediate stage between school and matrimony.

Still another objection to the Pinkham scheme was that it did not provide for the non-selling part of the store organization—office workers, window trimmers, delivery men and similar employes. Part 3 of the Pinkham plan, which provides for the clerks sharing in the working capital of the business employing them, is somewhat similar to the scheme formulated by George W. Perkins and embodied in the profit-sharing plan of the United States Steel Corporation several years ago.

Non-Inflammable Film Invented.

After ten years of experimenting a resident of Liverpool has developed a seaweed product which he calls "algin" and uses in the manufacture of non-inflammable cinematograph films. The American Consul at Liverpool reported recently that he had tested a sample of a film made by this process and had found that it would not burn. The inventor asserts that paper of any thickness may be treated by his process and made water, flame, and germ proof, as well as odorless. It is said that paper so treated is particularly adapted to wrapping perishable goods for transport and for lining refrigerators. It does not conduct heat.

APPRECIATE FAITHFUL WORK

Borden & Sons Eulogize Salesman Who Served Them for 30 Years.

An instance illustrating how close a man may get to his employers through many years of faithful service may be seen in the recent death of James R. Hazen. For more than thirty years Mr. Hazen had been connected with the selling staff of the American Printing Company. The local office of M. C. D. Borden & Sons was closed all day yesterday as a tribute to his memory. In a trade announcement telling of its appreciation of Mr. Hazen, the Borden firm said yesterday:

"It is with great regret that we announce the death of Mr. James R. Hazen, who for many years has so faithfully served the interests of those whom he represented. He has left a cherished memory among his host of friends, and by his death we have suffered an irreparable loss."

FANCY GOODS ARE ACTIVE.

Buyers Are Here After Holiday Goods and Taking Novelties Well.

Buying of fancy goods and notions is active here, with interest centred chiefly in holiday goods. More than the usual number of buyers are reported in the market at the moment. Sashes and girdles have been taken well.

The newest offerings in beaded necklaces have silk tassels. They are shown in a number of color combinations, with the tassels matching one of the colors. Colored glass, crystal, amber, jet, gilt and galalith beads are used mostly. Some of the newer fans in imitation ivory are decorated with hand-painted figures representing the new dances.

Hand-made and hand-decorated utility baskets for the Christmas season are also shown. Fruit and flower decorations are the principal ornamentations on these baskets. Boudoir slippers, made to match boudoir caps, are among the other novelties. They are made of lace or satin and are trimmed mostly with ribbons and white fur. Tiny rosebuds, placed in the centre of the bows at the front, are also used.

PRINTCLOTH TRADING LIGHT

Sales for the Week at Fall River Will Not Reach 100,000 Pieces.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 15.—There has been very light trading in the cotton goods markets this week and sales will not total 100,000 pieces. In fact, it is the quietest week in several months. For the moment the agitation for increased wages is causing some interest in labor circles. The Textile Council, the governing body of the labor unions, will meet next Wednesday night, when the desired advance will be discussed at greater length than heretofore.

There has been a moderate demand for sateens and twills this week, but narrow cloths have been little considered. Wide goods have sold at a discount for future delivery.

Fighting Special Tobacco Deals.

A campaign against excessive advertising in retail cigar stores is being conducted in the State of Washington. Meetings of retailers have been held in Seattle, Tacoma, North Yakima, and Spokane, and strong resolutions condemning the growing frequency of "free deals" and special sales have been adopted. The dealers back of the movement do not consider it good business policy to give up their windows to posters and banners which are intended to move goods by offering special premiums.

HARD TO DETERMINE EXPORT REFUNDS

New Tariff Presents Some Knotty Problems on Question of "Drawbacks."

One of the most important and intricate matters now pending before the Treasury Department as a result of the new tariff is the construction to be placed upon the drawback provisions of the law. The regulations covering this feature of the tariff are now being prepared under the direction of Charles S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

The provision in Section O of the new law which relates to the allowances to be made on by-products appears for the first time in an American tariff, and it is regarded by both Government officials and domestic manufacturers as difficult of interpretation and operation. It is also thought to be productive of almost endless litigation in the Federal courts. It reads:

> Where a principal product and a by-product result from the manipulation of imported material, and only the by-product is exported, the proportion of the drawback (to be) distributed to such by-product shall not exceed the duty assessable under this act on a similar by-product of foreign origin if imported into the United States. Where no duty is assessable upon the importation of a corresponding by-product no drawback shall be payable on such by-product produced from the imported material; if, however, the principal product is exported, then, on the exportation thereof, there shall be refunded as drawback the whole of the duty paid on the imported material used in the production of both the principal and the by-product, less 1 per cent., as hereinbefore provided.

It is contended that the quoted provision limits the drawback on by-products to an amount equal to the duty assessed on such by-products when imported, and when the principal product is exported, should the by-product be free of duty, the drawback on the product will equal the duty paid on the entire amount of imported material used in producing both the product and the by-product. This provision has given rise to much discussion and speculation among officials and manufacturers, and raises three principal questions. The Treasury Department, in its forthcoming regulations, hopes to settle these questions in some degree. Briefly they are:

1.—If a by-product is not dutiable under specific provision of the tariff law, will it be regarded as free and drawback refused thereon, or will it be treated as dutiable by similitude; or will it be treated as a manufactured article not specifically provided for? In the latter instance might not the drawback on the by-product exceed that on the product?

2.—What is a by-product? What definition can be adopted which will uniformly standardize this term in such a manner that all industries will be fairly treated? Is it possible to evolve such a definition, or will each industry have to be considered alone?

3.—What will be the result of paying on the principal product the whole drawback, and thus permitting the by-product to be free? Is this not in the nature of paying a bounty, in that the amount of duty on the imported material used is greater than that on the product exported?

Belief was expressed in well-informed circles that after the Treasury's regulations have been promulgated they would be attacked in the courts as prejudicial to many manufacturing interests. Such appeals are anticipated, especially in the case of sugar manufacturers, who also produce and export syrup, and by other interests, including linseed oil producers, whose export business in oil cake will be destroyed or largely reduced.

Importations of flaxseed for the manufacture of linseed oil have been quite large in the last few years. After the oil has been extracted from the seed by crushing and pressing, a residue, known as "oil cake," is left. This product is exported extensively to Europe, where it is used for feeding cattle. Heretofore, under proper conditions, a drawback has been allowed on these exports. Under the new law, however, oil cake is duty free, and it will doubtless require considerable time, expense, and trouble locally to obtain a ruling that will admit of a drawback allowance against the wishes of the Treasury Department. This, however, is only one phase of the problem.

There were fewer changes shown last week in Dun's list of wholesale commodity prices than for some time, and they were more equally divided between advances and declines than at any other time in the last two months. A total of fifty-three changes was recorded, of which thirty were downward. This represented an appreciable upturn in values when compared with the changes of the previous week, when, out of a total of sixty-four, fifty-two were declines. The bulk of the changes was again confined to three markets—foodstuffs, metals, and drugs, chemicals, and oils. Seventeen advances and twenty-five declines were shown in them alone.

Despite the fact that the general list showed a slight weakness, the trend in foodstuffs was distinctly upward. In the previous week the declines in this part of the list doubled the advances, but last week the balance laid the other way, and the advances more than tripled the declines. Sharp increases in prices marked the week's activities in dairy products, the advances in the better grades of butter and cheese ranging from one-half cent to 2 cents a pound. The price asked for the finest grades of near-by eggs was the highest on record—60 cents a dozen, or 5 cents more than at this time a year ago. Coffee was slightly higher at 10⅝ cents for No. 7 Rio, and the recent decline in a leading grade of raw sugar was made up. Spices were slightly easier. Vegetables and fruit showed no appreciable change. At Chicago there was a solid advance in the major provisions. The only decline in the list was shown in live sheep, which was still quoted comfortably higher than last year's figure. Flour was steady generally, but in the grains corn and oats were higher.

There was again an easier tone displayed in the metals markets. Moderate reductions were made in copper and spelter, but lead, antimony, and aluminium were unchanged. Concessions were again granted on pig iron, Bessemer billets, refined iron bars, and tank plates. Tin closed at a slightly higher level. Drugs, chemicals, and oils together showed fifteen changes, and of these twelve were downward. Burlaps and jute were easier under the effect of financial stress at primary points. Wool was steady at levels reached in the recent decline, but cotton eased off nearly half a cent. There were no notable changes on finished goods in either of these markets.

Minor declines were shown in hides and Shanghai silk, with similar advances in hides, hops, turpentine, and crude rubber. Merchants who recently predicted that an upturn of values was due, despite the uncertainty caused by tariff changes, are now even more optimistic. It is their belief that it will not be long before the advances recorded in the above list will outnumber the declines. In all but a few markets a healthier tone develops almost daily.

TELLS GROCERS HOW TO BOOST COFFEE

Ross W. Weir Outlines Suggestions for Better Business at Cincinnati Meeting.

One of the most interesting addresses made to the members of the National Coffee Roasters' Association at its annual convention in Cincinnati last week pointed out that the average retail grocer was oblivious of the fact that his coffee trade had of late been slipping gradually into other channels. This address was made by Ross W. Weir, President of the New York branch of the association.

"The grocer, as a rule, is a busy man," said Mr. Weir. "He has a multitude of articles to sell, many of which pay him little or no profit. But he has others, notably coffee and tea, which pay good profits. The average grocer, however, has neglected to note the slow but sure inroads that have been made into the profitable end of his business by the department stores and route men.

"Most grocers carry too many brands of coffee, with the result that they are able to push only a small part of them. This results in considerable 'dead stock' on their hands, to say nothing of the amount of money invested in that one commodity. Concentration is the key to success in handling tea and coffee, providing that the grocer concentrates his efforts on a good line. While a grocer may often think that he has to diversify the lines he carries to meet the demands of his customers, he loses sight of the fact that some of these customers order new brands simply for the sake of satisfying their curiosity. While diversified buying should not be discouraged entirely, the grocer should be shown the folly of dividing his coffee orders too freely.

"Quality should be the first essential in buying coffee, and it should be retailed at not too liberal a profit. It is liberal profits that is giving outside interests their chance to steal a part of the grocer's business from him, both in coffee and tea. Employes, especially clerks, telephone order takers, and outside solicitors, should be instructed to talk coffee at every opportunity. I believe that a big increase in this end of the business would follow an earnest campaign of that kind.

"There is no question but that the retail grocer can distribute coffee much cheaper than can any house-to-house canvasser. Grocery stores of sufficient size should have a well-organized coffee and tea department established in a prominent section of the store, with spices, extracts, and certain specialties—let that department do all the weighing of such goods, grinding coffee and offering each Saturday a cup of coffee to their trade who call. If they will talk 'quality coffee,' not low price, the grocer will surely come into his own.

"Under the present-day methods of packing, roasted coffees in what practically amounts to 'air-tight' packages, fresh from the roaster, it insures a longer period in which coffee can be kept fresh in its roasted state and thus reach the consumer in a fresh condition; for this reason it is always desirable for the grocer to buy his coffee in the packages in which roasters are now packing it."

Mr. Weir concluded his talk with several suggestions for the retail grocer who was not satisfied with the amount of coffee business he was doing. Some of them had been touched on in the course of the address, but at least two of them were important enough to record. They were:

"Have coffee demonstrations regularly at certain periods of the year.

"Have the roasters' salesmen work in harmony with the grocers in regard to their coffee trade. Let them make it their business to learn that the grocers are kept well informed of their opportunities of doing an excellent business in coffee, so that both may benefit and the roasters may benefit with them."

A fact not generally known about coffee was brought out at the convention by Edward S. Born of this city. Mr. Aborn cited a recent chemical analysis to show that when coffee is made from finely ground or pulverized beans it not only lessens the quantity required to make a satisfactory beverage, but it reduces the amount of tannin and caffeine in it to a minimum.

WESTERN FIRMS COME EAST

Chicago Company Has Already Bought Site in Hoboken.

The metropolitan business district is going to benefit materially from the opening of the Panama Canal. Already there is a disposition shown on the part of some of the Western industries to come East in order to obtain the lower freight rates the canal will afford.

The Elevator Supply & Repair Company of Chicago is one of these firms. Recently it bought an extensive factory site in Hoboken, through Ewing, Bacon & Henry, on which it will erect a $500,000 plant. This plant will be ready for occupancy about June 1, 1914. About 500 hands, most of them skilled, are employed by the company and of these about 200 are expected to come East with the works. Many of them will bring their families. A better labor market is also cited by the elevator company as a reason for coming here.

Negotiations with other large firms in Chicago, St. Louis and Detroit are under way, and it is thought that more enterprises will move East within the next year or so.

HARD COAL PICKS UP.

Storm Has Helped Demand Wonderfully—Soft Coal Trade Dull.

An unexpected storm of almost mid-winter severity has started a rush of small buyers into the hard-coal market and created a note of urgency in the situation. The improvement is apparent in both wholesale and retail. Concessions on the regular company circular are still to be obtained on certain grades, notably egg size.

Bituminous continues to show a weakening tendency, although firm in spots. The Atlantic coastwise business has fallen off heavily, and supplies are beginning to accumulate at the principal loading piers. The trade is conspicuous for the lack of interest in spot business, and indications are that there will be a light demand for several weeks.

HURT POTTERY BUSINESS.

5-and-10-Cent Stores Said to be Driving Paying Trade Abroad.

The five-and-ten cent stores are again getting "bumped," this time for the "deplorable" effect they are having on the domestic potteries and glass industries. The bulk of the business of these industries is said to come from this source and from the mail order houses, as the woman who spends very much money in decorating her table is apt to spend it for imported ware.

One of the large five-and-ten-cent corporations is credited with buying from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 worth of crockery and glassware a year. Because of its heavy buying it is enabled to get better prices than the independent storekeeper, and can, therefore, sell at better prices. With this trade, it is said, quality and artistic effect are made secondary to price. In this way, the claim is made, the domestic industry is being debased. The producer has to make his wares to fit the corporation buying figure and so disregards all else. Then when really fine ware is wanted, the foreign producer gets the business.

The "scheme" houses, which give a piece of "china" with a pound of tea, etc., are also blamed for the decline of the American industry.

CALL FOR LINENS UNEVEN.

High Prices Abroad Are Holding Back Buying in This Market.

The future position of the dress linen market, with the exception of novelty cloths, is a matter of considerable interest among local trade circles. Some good-sized orders have been placed by retailers and cutters, but many wholesalers consider the outlook for a big demand unpromising. Fair-sized initial orders were placed for Spring on colored dress linens, but the majority of buyers leaned toward such fabrics as crêpes, ratines, and brocades. Even these lines were curtailed somewhat by high prices.

Buyers from the larger cities have taken good quantities of housekeeping goods in the last week. Table damasks towels, and napkins have sold especially well for spot delivery. The Belfast market is reported steady. Good quantities of Irish flax have been offered recently, but Russian flax is coming forward slowly.

A Wireless Ruche Supporter.

What is called a "wireless ruche supporter," for use with ruffled, ruche, or Medici collars, will be placed on the market to-morrow by a local costumer. These supporters may be obtained in black or white, and in heights ranging between 2¼ and 3½ inches. The new supporter consists of several narrow upright composition supports, attached at the bottom to a bias band, which is sewn to the lower edge of the collar. It is said that the supporter is invisible, unbreakable, and washable.

PRICE OF LEATHER RAISES SHOE COSTS

Balkan War and Use of Modern Footwear in Orient Add to Our Living Expense.

A prominent shoe manufacturer, because of the continued high cost of all kinds of leather, has again advanced prices on a number of his lines. Indications point to still higher prices, he says, and the shoe jobbers, for the most part, appreciate his position.

Commenting on the high cost of leather yesterday, a leading jobber said:

"There are several reasons for the higher prices asked in this country. New uses for leather are arising continually; many Oriental nations who formerly used sandals, or went barefoot, are now getting in line with civilization and are wearing shoes the population of the country is increasing steadily, and the automobile industry is consuming a constantly increasing quantity of heavy leather.

"But there are other causes for the high prices asked this year. For instance, the large quantities of heavy sole leather used in shoes and harness during the Balkan war taxed the markets heavily. Sheep raising in that part of the world was abruptly terminated, as the shoes were needed for food and clothing for the armies. As a result, we cannot look to Balkan countries for supplies for some time to come.

"Also, Spain is not exporting as many sheepskins as formerly, this leather being needed at home. It was said recently at Madrid that exports of sheepskins this year would drop at least 25 per cent. below normal. Then, again, there is practically no surplus of sheepskins at Massemet, which city is in the centre of the sheepskin-producing district of France. No one seems able to say why there is a shortage in French leathers. A scarcity of skins suitable for leather is reported this year in Russia as well, and these skins are disposed of for home consumption as fast as they are offered.

"Some jobbers say that reports of leather scarcity come from those who are biased and interested in putting as much pessimism into the situation as pos ible. However, the domestic market is practically bare of desirable hides, and those that are available are bought up as fast as they are offered. It is possible that lower leather prices may not be seen here for years."

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Caution was in evidence in wheat purchases made yesterday, but corn went still higher. Oats were not active, but showed a stronger tone in sympathy with corn. The recent advances in cotton brought about realizing sales, effecting a moderate decline.

WHEAT.

Underlying sentiment in the wheat market was a little more in favor of holders, but buyers were not inclined to be over-enthusiastic, owing to the fact that prices recently have advanced about 2 cents a bushel, and during the day trading was only moderately active, prices closing near the top with net gains of ¼@⅜c. The Argentine news was again of a rather conflicting character, and, as the Buenos Aires market was unchanged, failed to attract active buying. One cable stated that too much rain was complained of in the North, where harvesting will soon be in progress, and that it is still dry and hot in the South; while another said that the damage already done would possibly reduce the exportable surplus to between 60,000,000 and 70,000,000 bushels. The export demand showed signs of improvement and sales were reported of fifteen loads of Manitoba wheat while, furthermore, three vessels were chartered for grain, possibly on old business. At 1 P. M. the New York market was quoted at 96⅝c for December and 95¾@95¾ for May. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at 97½c c. i. f. New York export basis, and 99c f. o. b.; No. 1 North Duluth, 95½c f. o. b. afloat.

CORN.

The corn market was again firm and higher, the December position closing at an advance of 1c, while other months were ½c to ¾c higher. Small stocks in the West led to further fears of congestion in December and the late months were influenced by heavy rains over a large part of the corn belt, which were expected to delay the movement. Cash markets were firm, but the markets abroad were again easy, owing to continued pressure from Argentina. In the local cash market export corn was quoted at 81½c f. o. b.

OATS.

The oats market lacked individual feature, but prices were firmer in sympathy with corn, closing at ½@½c net advance. Receipts at primary points were light and there appeared to be comparatively little pressure. The local cash market was dull; standard white quoted at 45½ to 46½c; No. 2, 46½ to 47c; No. 3, 45 to 45½c; No. 4, 44 to 44½c; ordinary clipped white, 44 to 46c; fancy clipped white, 46½ to 47½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products developed a reactionary tendency and prices lost part of Friday's advance owing to liberal receipts of hogs in the Western markets and lower prices. Furthermore, the cash demand was said to be slow, but it was thought that leading operators were still identified with the bull side. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 18,000; estimated for Monday, 48,000, and for next week, 165,000; Kansas City received 2,000, and Omaha 7,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A steadier tone developed in the cottonseed oil market and prices closed at a net advance of 3 to 6 points. Offerings were small and shorts seemed nervous and inclined to cover owing to light stocks on the spot and a hardening of the near positions. Crude oil was not being pressed for sale and there was consequently very small hedging operations but traders generally were not disposed to become aggressive on the buying side owing to prospective liberal supplies and owing to the recent easier tone in the cotton market.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COTTON.

There was a good deal of realizing in the cotton market yesterday, which some considered natural in view of the recent advance and the disposition to take profits for over Sunday. Offerings, however, were well absorbed on a moderate decline to give the market a pretty steady undertone, and the close was steady at a net loss of 23 points on November, but generally only 5 to 9 points under the closing figures of Friday. Rumors that preliminary returns to one of the bureaus which report on ginning figures showed a ginning of 1,432,000 bales between Nov. 1 and 9, 14 may have helped to steady the market late in the morning, as this showing would be slightly more favorable to prices than the one indicated by the private figures of the previous day. Closing prices, however, were only 2 or 3 points up from the lowest.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points in sympathy with somewhat disappointing cables, and after some irregularity sold 8 to 10 points net lower in the late trading. There was nothing fresh in the way of Southern primary receipts, the crop or spot situation, and the new movement of prices here probably reflected no material change in the general average of sentiment, which became rather more bullish toward the end of the week on the failure of Southern offerings to become oppressive and the revival of smaller crop estimates.

THE RAW SILK SUMMARY.

Ribbon Makers Buying Well Here—Prices Steady in Foreign Centres.

In their special report of conditions in the world's raw silk markets, A. P. Villa & Brothers say:

"The Yokohama market was quite active at the beginning of the week, but the movement of stock seems to be over to-day. Prices are still firm, however, at the recent advance. The Canton market is firm and unchanged. At Shanghai there has been no change, but the market is in such a condition that the slightest activity would force prices up. At Milan a better feeling is reported, with more inquiries about prices and deliveries.

"At New York there has been some good buying by the ribbon manufacturers, but the broad silk makers, who are now between seasons, are not active in the market."

COFFEE.

The volume of business in the coffee market was small, consisting of 32,500 bags. At the opening of the market prices were steady at an advance of 3 to 6 points on small offerings and moderate buying prompted by firmness in the French market. During the day the market developed a heavier tone and closed steady at 1 point decline to 4 points net advance. Underlying sentiment was divided, but buyers were very timid, and the trade was nervous regarding possible further pressure from Brazil, where monetary conditions are none too favorable, and, it is thought, might cause further selling.

The local spot market was quiet and unchanged, with Rio is quoted at 9¾c.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

Shipments of crude rubber from the Amazon Valley to the United States in September aggregated 2,868,807 pounds, against 2,737,281 pounds in the same month last year. For the first three months of the current fiscal year exports of rubber from that section totaled 14,323,718 pounds, compared with 17,107,880 pounds in the same period in 1912.

Persian customs receipts for the first six months of the present fiscal year show an increase of $350,000, or 19 per cent., over the corresponding period of last year.

The prospects of a good crop of honey in England this year are not promising, owing to the prevalence of bee diseases. The situation has become serious enough to prompt the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries to hold an investigation in order to determine the nature and causes of the diseases.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Imports of general merchandise at New York in the week ended Nov. 8 were valued at $12,936,473, a drop of $484,057 from the total of the week previous. Imports of dry goods in the same week aggregated $3,119,292, or a gain of $2,020 over the week before. Withdrawals from bonded warehouses totaled $[illegible],842.

The Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association will hold its sixth annual convention at Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 18 to 21. The delegates from this and nearby cities will leave by special train via the Pennsylvania and the Seaboard Air Line Railways.

CIGAR BONDING PRIVILEGE

Was Discussed at Key West Meeting of Manufacturers.

A meeting of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association was held late last week at Key West to discuss the bonded factory proposition provided for in the new tariff law. A number of puzzling questions concerning the plan were discussed, according to The Tobacco Leaf.

One manufacturer asked if the Inspector placed in each factory would make his hours conform with the regulations of the trade or insist on an eight-hour day. Another wanted to know if he could open his factory on Sundays to permit the preparation of material for the next day's work, as stock prepared on Saturday would not be in good condition. A third objected to the feature which forbid his night watchman to enter the building. A fourth suggested that, in view of the fact that many firms used a blend in making their cigars and employed stock from bales of various crops and vegas, it would be impossible to arrive at a just estimate of the duty. A fifth asked what was to become of the material in his building at the time of bonding.

WOMEN'S BAGS DIVERSIFIED.

Many Novelties in This Line Seen in Paris—Duvetyn Bags Sell.

There is much diversity in the women's handbags that are shown this season, according to a report from Paris in Women's Wear. Most of the popular bags are smaller than usual. There are fewer leather bags used than for several seasons, although the envelope type, made of antelope skin in biscuit and light gray shades, is quite liberally taken.

Moire silk bags are much used, and are more popular than either satin or velvet. Often these bags are embroidered with small bouquets of colored silk. One of the leading French specialty shops is offering bags of duvetyn in ruby, biscuit, emerald, and mordore brown, for it is fashion's latest whim that when a duvetyn costume is worn the bag must be of the same material. The demand for crystal and cut steel bags is on the wane, but metallic brocade and brocaded velvet bags are widely used. Nearly all of the bags are mounted on metal frames and have cord or ribbon handles. They are no longer fitted up elaborately with vanity cases and perfume bottles.

WHITE LACE WAISTS GOOD.

They Combine Style and Economy and Are Taken Freely.

White lace and net waists have proven good sellers all over the country, as they represent economy to the women who cannot indulge in several waists. Owing to this preference for white, says The Dry Goods Economist, buyers are taking an unusual amount of merchandise, considering the season of the year. White waists trimmed with pastel-colored ribbons and dainty lace edgings, make attractive gifts for the holiday season.

The best-selling numbers are made to retail at from $3 up to $8. The more expensive styles show allover lace with linings of palest pink chiffon, which imparts a delicate flesh tone. Other smart designs are made of white net over flesh-color lace. Still others are made of white and écru laces combined.

The lining usually takes the form of a lace or net corset cover, edged off at the top with a narrow lace, headed with lace-strung beading. A favored style shows the wide satin ribbons arranged on the lining from the underarm seam to the centre bust, where they end with tailored bows.

AGAINST CO-OPERATION.

Retailer Objects Strenuously to Corporations Which Aid Them.

A strong feeling has been aroused among local retailers against business corporations and insurance companies that are aiding their employes in the formation of co-operative organizations. In a recent letter to The Daily Trade Record a prominent retailer condemned the practice, in part, as follows:

All of the civic associations ought to be urged to aid in these protests and all trades papers called upon to support movements to stop the demoralizing influence that this practice has upon the consumer and his friends, as it clearly educates them to know the wholesale price of merchandise and spoils them as customers for the retail merchant.

If the support of the retail merchants everywhere is withdrawn from life insurance and other corporations who permit these co-operative associations in their midst New York City, it will quickly show them that they need the support of the public more than the retailers of New York need the trade of their employees.

No life insurance company can exist on the premiums it could get out of its own employes. The policy of "live and let live" must be strictly enforced or the public educated to discriminate against those concerns who do not believe in "one hand washing the other."

The attention of our Insurance Department should be called to the associations referred to.

A bill should be introduced in the Assembly to stop this practice.

The big merchants of New York who support our daily papers ought to see that publicity be given to this movement.

Why should the employe of any corporation buy his clothes or his food any cheaper than any one else? Does this practice not tend to increase the cost of living for those not so privileged?

From the way doctors take up the automobile it may be well concluded that as a business proposition passenger cars hold their own against any other mode of transportation. To prove this, a few instances may be quoted, in which physicians using automobiles have kept exact cost records, given below. In reading these it should be remembered that the care spent on the car and the tendency to economize influence maintenance cost figures materially, and that the wide fluctuation in the cost to the mile, for instance, is dependent as much on the quality of the driver as on that of the car. Of course, the more powerful a car is used the higher becomes the cost per mile of travel.

Physicians whose work is mostly done in the city are appreciating the advantages of electrics. A well-known Brooklyn doctor, for example, who used gasoline cars from 1900 to 1912 is now the user of his second electric brougham. In 1910, when he used a gas car, he covered 10,000 miles. His cost for this, including garage, fuel, tires, insurance, depreciation and interest, repairs and chauffeur's pay, was $3,800, making the cost for each running mile 38 cents. All this mileage was made in and around New York City, as he did not tour to any extent. After having about the same expense to the mile in 1911, the doctor decided to try an electric, which he bought early in 1912. During that year he not only saved the $1,200 of the chauffeur's pay, but also $700 in other ways, so that his total expense, with about the same mileage covered, fell to $1,900, which, however, is quite high for electrics. The doctor is now a convinced advocate of the electric for town work, and says that, except in heavy snowfall, it is as good a vehicle as he could wish for.

Another physician has used the same sort of electric for the last two and a half years, and for about 7,000 miles his expenses have been $1,900 all told. The cost of 27 cents per mile was due to the fact that the car was used less than it could have been. To give a clear idea of what makes up this cost of maintenance, it should be remembered that an electric may be bought for about $2,500, and its life may be rated, conservatively, at five years. Thus the annual depreciation would be figured at $460 —20 per cent.—the interest at 5 per cent., or $115, and the flat maintenance rate charged by New York City garages for current, washing and other care, at $45 a month, or $540 a year. This makes $1,115 a year, and adding $5 for insurance and extra expenses, including a small repair now and then, we find $1,200 a year a good average maintenance cost. If the car is used to its full running capacity on the current furnished by the garage at $45 a month, a mileage of 25,000 may be covered in a year, and the cost to the mile is 5 cents. If only half that mileage is made, or about 1,000 miles a month, the cost to the mile is 10 cents.

Doctors in the suburbs find the cost of automobiles even lower than this conservative estimate. The case of a Jamaica physician using an electric in a small garage of his own shows the following result. During three months 1,200 miles were covered and the sole expense was $35 for current, or less than 3 cents a mile. If the garage and rectifier cost, as well as depreciation and interest, are added, the real cost to the mile is brought to 5 or 6 cents. The same physician used another electric for two years ended April last, and his total expense for 6,000 miles was $250, or 8 cents a mile.

In a Jersey suburb, another car of this type is used by a physician. During four months of its use this car covered 1,600 miles, the total cash expenditures being $20 for current and $5 for small repairs, or 1 1-3 cents per mile. Including all other charges, the total cost to the mile was not more than 4 cents. However, the electric does not stand alone as the physician's vehicle. Among the many instances of economically operated gas cars, there is a thirty horse power car working in Queens County. In three years it has covered 17,000 miles, used about 1,450 gallons of gasoline, and cost its owner $1,200 (direct expense) during thirty-four months of operation. So he directly paid 7 cents a mile for the use of his car, but if depreciation and interest are considered, the cost a mile was 15 cents. During the last twelve months the direct mile cost was only 6.5 cents.

Another machine of the same make, operated in the city for eleven and one-half months, covered roughly 16,000 miles in that time. Using almost 1,800 gallons, the cost of operating the car was approximately $2,400, exclusive of depreciation and interest. Without these, the cost per mile was 15c.; with them, about 22c. One car, used in New York City for a little more than twenty months, covered 8,120 miles, at an expenditure of $1,460, approximately. In the year from July 1, 1912 to July 1, 1913, the direct expenses, including the purchase of new accessories, were about $960: after adding $500 for depreciation, the total cost of maintenance for that year was $1,460, and, as the car made 5,650 miles, 25c. for each mile.

In the case of still another gas car, used for two years, 24,000 miles were covered in the city, excepting one or two tours of about 800 miles each. Two thousand gallons of fuel were used during that period, and the total expenses were $990, exclusive of the chauffeur's pay, which amounted to $2,810. The physician owning this car prefers a chauffeur, but as many physicians would drive themselves, these figures may be considered from their standpoint. To the $990 should be added depreciation and interest, making the cost $1,990 for two years. The cost to the mile is then a little more than 9c. Including wages, the total cost for two years was $4,800 and the cost to the mile 20c.

Of course, a car may be maintained more expensively. One doctor runs about 12,000 miles a year; he figures that it costs him $6 a day or 18 cents a mile, without depreciation and interest charge. These included, the cost to the mile is 24 cents. In half a year the same physician also keeps another machine averaging 2,000 miles a month and costing $30 a day. To this the dead storage for half a year must be added. Everything considered, this car costs 21 cents for every mile of travel.

The example of a car which covered 30,000 miles in the last three years is interesting. The total cost of operating it during this period was $4,740, or a little less than 16 cents a mile. In the past year it covered 12,000 miles. The total expense was about $2,310, and the cost to the mile close to 20 cents. This car makes from ten to thirteen miles to the gallon.

DECRIES HARD TIMES TALK.

C. F. Redden Says Professional Pessimists Are in Trouble.

One of the automobile fraternity who does not believe in hard times is C. F. Redden, sales manager of a large motor company, who went to Minneapolis recently to see to the equitable distribution of a trainload of cars among the dealers of the Northwest. The trainload comprised 108 "25s" and thirty "35s."

"You'd think a trainload such as that would hold them for a while, wouldn't you?" said Mr. Redden, last week. "But it won't. Why, every dealer wanted twice as many as his quota, and, to a man, they asserted they had a customer waiting at home for every car. No; if there are any hard times, they are certainly not visible among the dealers of this territory. Which reminds me of an incident of last week:

"I was talking to my banker. He was doing his very best to pull a long face while telling me that interest rates had gone up.

"'What is the reason?' I asked. 'Crops are good everywhere—why, in Kansas, where the corn crop was ruined, they tell me they had the greatest alfalfa crop ever known, the wheat crop was great, prices of beef cattle are high, and the demand for automobiles eclipses anything in our previous experience. In fact, Kansas, despite the crop conditions, or because of the excellent crops in everything but corn, absorbed more than a million dollars' worth of automobiles a month during the last six months—more than ever before at the same season. What is the reason?'

"'Well, you see,' faltered the banker, at a loss for a real argument, for he knew I had just returned from visiting almost every State in the Union, 'you see, it somehow looks dark ahead. Money is very tight, rates are high, and—'

"'Yes, so you have just told me,' I replied. 'But I know a woman who has a savings account here. Did you also raise the interest on her deposit?'

"'Oh, no!' he said, 'but—well you see, there is really a panic on now; only the public does not realize it.'

"Well, what's the use of a panic you can't recognize?' I asked, innocently. 'What's the use of hard times that don't atop people buying automobiles? If it is a panicky sign when a bunch of dealers get together, as our dealers did in Minneapolis, and not only ask for, but actually demand, a trainload of cars—well, I hope your panic continues and that our competitors will continue to live in ignorance of its baneful existence.'

"Your optimistic farmer looks at a field of golden grain and really thinks it looks like money, and he can't see the panic for the elevators that obstruct his view. Poor, benighted farmer; he refuses to worry with the banker.

"Why, staid old New England, where they bite everything to see that it isn't lead, and even the children wear spectacles in the search for the counterfeit —Boston was the first city to get up in arms and demand 25s and 35s in trainload lots. I have been in the automobile business since its inception, and I have never known a demand so great at this season of the year. There seems to be a panic—but it is visible in the eagerness of buyers and dealers alike to get the car of their choice now, well knowing that later it will be almost impossible. Poor professional pessimists —they are having an awful time in the face of such conditions."

13 STATES ADOPT CONVICT ROAD WORK

Laws Passed During Year Leave Few Commonwealths That Do Not Use Prisoners.

Thirteen States have passed laws during the present year, allowing the use of convicts in the construction and repair of highways, according to a compilation by Dr. E. Stagg Whitin, assistant in social legislation in Columbia University, and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Committee on Prison Labor. They are Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, New Jersey, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. As many other States had previously passed similar legislation, but few of the forty-eight States have not adopted the policy of using prisoners to build and maintain public roads.

West Virginia and Iowa are the two States whose laws regarding the working of convicts on highways stand out most prominently. So anxious was the Governor of the former State to secure an effective law that he came to New York, and with the assistance of representatives of the National Committee on Prison Labor, of the Road Department of Columbia University, and of the Legislative Drafting Bureau, worked out bills making compulsory the employment of convicts on the roads. The West Virginia law authorizes the county courts to make appropriations out of road funds for convict work; it states that the court shall sentence any male person over 16 to road work instead of to the county jail; persons charged with misdemeanors unable to furnish bail shall work on the roads, and, if acquitted when tried, shall be paid 50 cents a day for each day's work they perform; Justices of the Peace shall sentence to work on the roads persons convicted of crime whom otherwise they would send to the county jail.

Another feature of the West Virginia law is the establishment of a State road bureau to supervise any plans proposed by a county for using prison labor in road building. The plans approved, the county shall apply to the Board of Control for the number of prisoners required, and shall state the length of time they shall be needed. The board shall, as far as possible, give equal service to each of the counties, and shall determine which prisoners may be assigned to such work. The Warden is to provide suitable and movable quarters, which shall be built, where possible, by convict labor. The convicts shall remain under direct control of the Warden, their work, however, being under the supervision of the road bureau.

In Iowa the Board of Control of the State Institutions, with the advice of the Warden of any penal institution, may permit able-bodied male prisoners to work on the roads. The law specifically states such labor shall not be leased to contractors. A prisoner opposed to such work, or whose character and disposition make it probable that he would attempt escape or be unruly, is not to be worked on the highways. Although the prisoners are under the jurisdiction of the Warden while building or repairing roads, their work is supervised by the State Highway Commissioner. Prisoners employed on the highways of Iowa receive such part of their earnings, above the cost of their keep, as the board deems equitable, the earnings either being funded or given to their dependent families. Before Iowa passed her present prison labor laws, George W. Cosson, Attorney General of the State, made a thorough investigation of the prisons of his own and other States, and strongly deprecated the contract system, under which the prisoners were employed up to that time. Mr. Cosson drew up the Road bill, and is of the opinion it will do much to drive the contract system out of the State.

CHANGES IN 1914 BODIES.

Coming Show Will Emphasize the Streamline Design, It Is Said.

With the approach of the national automobile show to be held in the Grand Central Palace during the week of Jan. 3-10, automobilists are again looking forward with interest to exhibits many of which will be entirely new to the public. Mechanical improvements of many sorts have been added to the 1914 cars, and these, together with the wide variety of bodies which car manufacturers are offering on their new types, undoubtedly will be the features which will attract the motorists' attention at the show.

Charles E. Duryea, a technical expert who has been identified with the automobile industry since its inception, has made a brief forecast of what the makers will offer in body improvements for next season. In this he says:

"Only a few years ago the automobile was a single shape and style vehicle. A car had to be red and have a rear door or it was not admitted in society circles. The gasoline or electric machine was then purely a vehicle for pleasure and display, and its use was confined principally to good roads in fair weather. As the motor car became more widely used it was fitted with bodies adapted to daily use, and the process has been going forward ever since.

"This year bodies are being given more attention than ever. Inside and out, fore and aft, top and bottom of the body is being studied and bettered. Perhaps it is only a line changed or a shade of color modified. Maybe a little of the width at the seats has been added to the dash or the curves have been made more graceful. The half top of last year has become the full top of this. The quick detachable, or folding curtains, form a noticeable contrast to the separate and detached ones of the past when one got wet trying to put up his curtains that he might keep dry.

"In general, bodies have been rounded out until there is hardly a corner or projection in sight on the outside, yet there is not the freakish boat or fish shape commonly supposed to represent stream lines. The dash has practically disappeared as far as the outside is concerned. There is, of course, a break at the junction of the hood with the cowl, but the tendency is to obliterate this and present a smooth surface to the air as the vehicle speeds on its way. The body sides and doors have been brought up till even the seats are not prominent and the sides of the body form an almost straight line the full length of the body. The hinges and locks are of the concealed variety, and even the vacuum once formed at the rear has been largely relieved by filling this space with an extended rear end in which tires and supplies are carried. No longer does the tire at the side suggest tire trouble, nor does it interfere with ingress and egress. It interfered with stream lines and is much better out of sight at the back. Pans underneath and tops overhead all fall into this general scheme of smooth, rounded beauty. Harmonizing with them is the finish. Quiet colors and beautifully smoothed surfaces brought out with just a touch of nickel seems to be the thing nowadays. No longer does the gaudy brass, prominent at every joint, offend both the eye and the sense of fitness."

VIRGINIA ROUTES FOR THE MOTORIST

Road Conditions There Are Not All That Might Be Desired.

BUT SCENERY COMPENSATES

Direct Course from Washington to Richmond Almost Impossible—How to Get Best Going.

The touring department of the Automobile Club of America has been investigating Virginia and speaks with up-to-the-minute authority on road conditions, available accommodations, and other necessary and desirable facts for tourists.

They take their own time and do things in their own way down in Virginia, and their time has not yet come for building good roads. The State has not even kept pace with her sister Southern commonwealths. Meanwhile, she is suffering the loss of what would be a large income to both local and State enterprises from the motor-touring public. But despite the handicap, Virginia attracts thousands of automobiles and offers a superb early Fall scenery for the travelers.

Washington, D. C., with its beautiful system of boulevards and magnificent public buildings is the vantage point from which a tour of Virginia would naturally start. The conditions of the roads, however, are such as to render an "On to Richmond" direct route almost impossible. Some of the roads are of a clay formation, others are just stretches of heavy sand, and still others remain with an old corduroy foundation. Now, for automobiling a corduroy road is about the worst imaginable, but an occasional jolting may be good for one's health and it must be remembered that all these highways were built in civil war days for the transportation of army wagons and cannon across a swampy country.

The road car of the club, sent out to investigate conditions, reports entirely feasible roads on the Shenandoah Valley route to Virginia Hot Springs, White Sulphur Springs and Charlottesville. This is also the best route from the North to Richmond and Old Point Comfort. The Shenandoah Valley Pike is a toll road extending from Winchester to Staunton. From Hagerstown, Md., routes to the South will be found mostly in good condition. Leaving Hagerstown, which is beautifully located in the Blue Ridge Mountains, the route follows a toll road, of fair condition, through an open farming country to Williamsport. The Potomac River is then crossed over a long toll bridge entering West Virginia. Excellent views are to be had up and down this historic stream.

Through Falling Water to Martinsburg the road runs on into the Shenandoah Valley, justly famous for its superb view of the Blue Ridge Mountains to the east. A number of toll gates, while detracting somewhat from the pleasure of those intent upon making time, will at least cause the motorist to pause long enough to realize what may be his for the looking. Mostly good stone road, part of which has been resurfaced with a dustless binder, will be encountered through the valley of the Shenandoah. This turnpike passes through Winchester to Strasburg, whence the country becomes more rolling and runs closer to the mountains, down through Tom's River and Edinburg to Newmarket.

A most attractive side trip to the caverns and grottoes of Luray, is well worth taking from this place. Leaving Newmarket, the route leads over a rather poor dirt and stony road with bad water-bars and gives a long, hard climb over Massanutten Mountain. Fine views of the valley are commanded from both sides of the mountain. These vistas and the beautiful caverns of Luray, however, will cause the motorist to feel that he has been more than repaid for the discomfort caused by the rough stretches. This trip takes one about fourteen miles from Newmarket, and the caverns are close to the main road. Picnic parties to this interesting place are popular and the grounds are well fitted for their accommodations. Many excursions are made by automobile tourists from surrounding towns to the interesting collection of stalagmite and stalactite formations in the caves. Although much smaller in area than the renowned Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, in grotesque formations and delicate colorings these caverns are declared to be superior to anything found in the larger and better known caves.

The return is over the same road to Newmarket, thence down the valley pike through farming towns with fertile plantations, in a good state of cultivation, lining the thoroughfare, which leads on to Staunton. This attractive and hustling little city forms the gateway for "touring Virginia." Fair conditions may be found leading to Hot Springs. The vistas from the mountain roads to Warm Springs, Virginia Hot Springs, and Healing Springs are wonderful.

FIVE NEW MODELS WHICH HAVE JUST ARRIVED ON BROADWAY

Experienced Auto Salesmen Wanted

Owing to constantly increasing output and the growing demand for our cars, we are increasing our force of road salesmen and have a few exceptionally good positions for road men of experience and proven ability.

Permanency of position assured those who can show results.

Apply in person Monday morning, or write, giving full details, experience, references, etc.

HAPPENINGS AND EVENTS IN MOTORDOM

GOOD TWO-DAY RUN TO ASHOKAN REGION

Much of the Construction Work for the New Reservoir Can Be Seen Now.

FINE ROADS IN THE MAIN

Historic Kingston with Its Old Houses a Point of Interest on 240-Mile Trip.

The Catskill Mountains with their fine scenery afford some alluring motor trips. This favorite resort of Metropolitan motorists is especially interesting at this time on account of the Ashokan Reservoir construction work which is now nearing completion. One of the road cars of the bureau of tours of the Automobile Club of America has recently investigated conditions in the Ashokan region, and a trip is suggested which will prove alluring. It is of approximately 225 miles and furnishes a leisurely journey for a two-day run.

It is advisable to go north on Broadway over the much traveled Albany Post Road through Yonkers, Dobbs Ferry, Tarrytown and Peekskill; thence, by way of Cold Spring and Storm King to Fishkill Landing, where the ferry is boarded for a sail across the Hudson to Newburg, located on the side of the cliffs leading up from the Hudson River. Leaving the ferry, more or less winding through village streets is required to reach the Kingston Road. Then, running north, Grand Avenue connects with a macadam road which is followed through Balmville, Marlboro and Milton to Highland.

After leaving Highland a stretch of about five miles of dirt road will be encountered. This section of roadway does not give very good going, but the balance of the road north to Sleightsburg is good. At Sleightsburg an old-fashioned chain ferry is crossed to Rondout, then good brick, up a long hill, leads to Kingston. This river road west of the Hudson runs through thousands of acres of vineyards, with now and then a fine view of the Hudson River, which more than compensates for the slightly rough surface encountered en route.

In Kingston is the old Senate House in which the first Senate of New York met in 1777, and in which it continued to meet until the town was burned by the British. Visitors should see the Van Steenburg house, which was the only house not burned. Tradition has it that Gen. Vaughn, in charge of the English troops, had met Miss Van Steenburg in New York, was fascinated by her, and had given instructions to his soldiers to spare that home. The monument of George Clinton may be seen in the First Reformed Dutch churchyard. Standing in front of this one can see the Court House steps where Clinton was inaugurated first Governor of New York State. The church is one of the oldest religious organizations in the country. The land upon which it and its parsonage stand has been in its possession ever since the grant was made by Peter Stuyvesant, 245 years ago. In its vestibule is an original letter of George Washington in which he replied to an address of welcome as he passed through Kingston. Scattered throughout the city are many old stone buildings dating back to the struggle of the American colonists for independence. A number of the descendants of the original Dutch settlers still reside in Kingston.

Leaving Kingston for a circuit of the Ashokan Reservoir, the route runs past the grave and monument of George Clinton, first Governor of New York and Vice President of the United States, from Broadway west on Albany Avenue. Then the following streets should be used. Turn to the right into Clinton Avenue, bear left into Main Street, turn right into Wall Street, left into North Front Street. At the end of the street turn right, cross the railroad and a bridge; then follow the main road through Stoney Hollow; now turn right under an overhead railroad crossing and pass Woodstock station. Two miles further on bear right, and at a church take a left fork into Ashton. The road then runs straight through Ashokan to a red barn, where a right fork is taken. Then, bearing left, the bridge is crossed over Esopus Creek. Go over the railroad, then cross three bridges. Follow a road bearing left, and a little over a mile further on take a left fork. The road then leads straight along the dam, passing a dividing weir, and then across a bridge. Bear right for three and one-half miles further, and then take a right fork. Just before reaching the railroad bear right and follow the main road through Stoney Hollow, then return to Kingston over North Front Street and Main Street to Broadway.

These directions will give the motorist a circuit of the Ashokan Reservoir. The road is part macadam and part dirt. Stretches which have been under construction have now been completed and a graded road with a stone foundation will give good going. Part of this road is somewhat rough to the village of Ashokan. The new village of Ashokan is now building up rapidly. The old village will be entirely flooded when the dam is finished. The scenery and the idea obtained of the construction going on is enough to more than counteract the slight inconvenience due to the short rough stretch of road. With a heavy car, or a car well loaded, one would hardly notice the roughness. The spillways and headworks of the Catskill aqueduct make the going picturesque and instructive.

An alternate route for the return trip from Kingston is by way of New Paltz. To take it run south through Eddyville, Esopus, Rifton Glen, and Pine Bridge to New Paltz. Near New Paltz is a beautiful, wild section which, however, is denied to the automobile tourist. The authorities at Lake Mohonk do not permit the entrance of automobiles within the boundaries of their restriction. However, the machine may be left in a garage at New Paltz, where vehicles may be obtained for the three-mile trip to Lake Mohonk. From New Paltz the route continues south through Modena, Plattekill, Cronomer Valley to Newburg. From Newburg the best road conditions will Newburgh the best road conditions will be found returning over the east of the Hudson roads through Peekskill and Tarrytown.

FAVORS GOOD LUBRICANT.

Speaker Before West Side Y. M. C. A. Says Day of Graphite Is Coming.

A. G. Thomson, a lubricating expert, delivered an address on the "Lubrication of the Automobile" on Thursday night at the opening of a new term of the automobile school of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association. Among other things Mr. Thomson said:

"Use the best lubricant that you can buy. It is the cheapest in the long run. The lack of proper lubrication sends more cars to the repair shop than any other reason. A single trip to the repair shop will cost more than all the best grade lubricants the car will ever use. I know an instance in which the owner of the car saved $2 when he bought a cheap grade of oil, but improper lubrication sent the car to the repair shop, and the bill was more than $200. If you can run your car eight miles on one gallon of gasoline with cheap lubricants you can run the same car ten miles on one gallon of gasoline with good lubricants. So at the present cost of gasoline the best oil is really the cheapest.

"Good oils are expensive to manufacture and it is utterly impossible to sell them at a cheap price. Cheap oils consume much more rapidly than the good oils. Study the lubricating problems at your own car. Different makes of cars require different lubricants, and different parts of the same car must have different lubricants.

"Ninety per cent. of the automobiles in use," Mr. Thomson continued, "will soon be using graphite, and the reason for it is very simple. To understand this problem of friction it is necessary to look at a piece of polished iron or steel through a powerful microscope, and then it will be found that instead of being absolutely smooth, the surface is covered with minute holes and pin points, so that it looks like a nutmeg grater. The object of lubrication is to keep two wearing surfaces apart. When simply oil is used the oil is squeezed out from between the wearing surfaces. Graphite works on a different principle. Graphite first fills up the minute rough places on the iron, and then forms a veneer between the two wearing surfaces. You must beware of the cheap graphite. Cheap graphite, instead of preserving the engine, will score and cut it."

BUY THEIR MOTORS EARLY.

Big Stores Have Learned Value of Trucks in Winter, Says One Maker.

According to Chester H. Spencer of one of the prominent motor car companies, the past month's accumulation of business has emphasized the high regard in which concerns in every line of business hold the motor delivery vehicle for Winter service. These concerns realize, he believes, that with the Winter's approach there will be attendant hardships in horse-drawn delivery vehicles and consequent interruption of business schedules. Snow storms and ice-coated pavements bring keenly to the realization of those who have motor trucks in their equipment the superiority of this method over horse-and wagon transportation.

"For humane reasons alone," said he the other day, "and aside from the delays in delivering goods, many concerns are adopting motor cars. The pathetic spectacle of disabled horses stretched on slippery streets is made vivid by contrast with rapidly moving motor trucks which proceed to their destination in city or suburb with practically no interruption. Experience has taught many business houses that the old adage is applicable to their case, 'An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.' They are taking precautionary measures and investing in delivery hardship's precaution by securing motor delivery vehicles sufficiently early to avoid the troubles incident to the season's inclemencies, and are overcoming the old difficulties contended with in horse-drawn deliveries.

"There is no question that the motor delivery vehicle has come justly into its own in the same way as the trolley car has sidetracked the old horse-drawn street car. The element of time enters into every niche of the up-to-date business enterprise, and while the existence of the motor delivery vehicle for business purposes dates back only a little over five years, it, nevertheless, stands to-day as one of the big essentials in modernized delivery equipment."

CALIFORNIA NEEDS TRUNK LINE ROADS

Conditions of the East Not Met With There — To Spend $18,000,000 Soon.

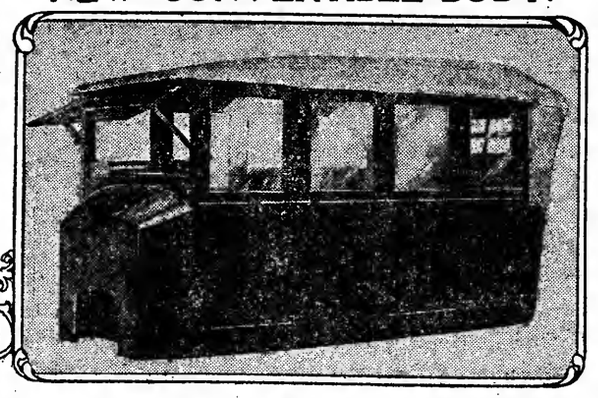
California wants and is to have two trunk roads, north and south, and its plan presents an object lesson to other States of great distances, and emphasizes the fact that the through road is a modern necessity in a general system, according to the American Automobile Association.

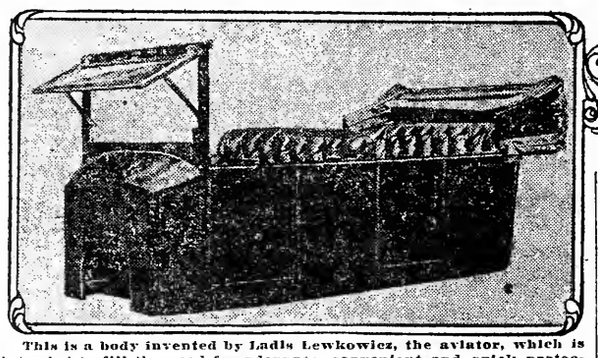
"The recent report of the Advisory Board of the California Highway Commission makes clear the difference in the conditions on the Pacific Coast and those of the eastern and central portions of the country," said P. J. Walker of San Francisco, President of the California State Automobile Association, the American Automobile Association body of Northern California, commenting on the State's plans last week. "The California law requires roads to be built the length of the State along the most direct and practicable routes; one along the coast and another traversing the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, with lateral roads to such county seats as may not be on the main lines. For constructing these roads $18,000,000 was voted two years ago. The automobilists naturally worked for this legislation.

"That the comparatively few people who travel the whole length of a road should go a few additional miles rather than compel a large number of short-distance travelers to go additional distances is self-evident. For every ten persons who travel across a State there are probably ninety-two who travel from one point to another within the State; so that as a matter of convenience to the great majority a route across a State should touch all of the important cities within reasonable reach. In California it is impossible to do this without excessive sacrifice of distance and grade. Along the coast and the valleys of the rivers fairly level roads can be constructed; laterals reaching county seats and important points off the line will usually go over mountain ranges and through regions where grades are heavy and construction difficult. To so build the main lines as to reach the outlying cities would be a subject all of the travel, except that focusing at those points, to the additional mileage and grade.

"With the amount of money provided the utmost economy must be practiced and shortest possible routes followed to comply with the law. To build roads that will stand the strain of much motor travel the State Highway Commission has adopted concrete for almost the entire system. In building the road the grade is prepared and drained so as to leave the subgrade dry, that it will not freeze and heave with frost. It is then thoroughly rolled. On this is placed four inches of rich concrete, which is surfaced with a coat of heavy asphaltic oil and sand about three-eighths of an inch thick. This surfacing, according to the commission, costs 5 cents per square yard, and can, if necessary, be renewed every year or two under the head of maintenance. This method of construction is likely to recommend itself in localities where a good road is required and funds are limited."

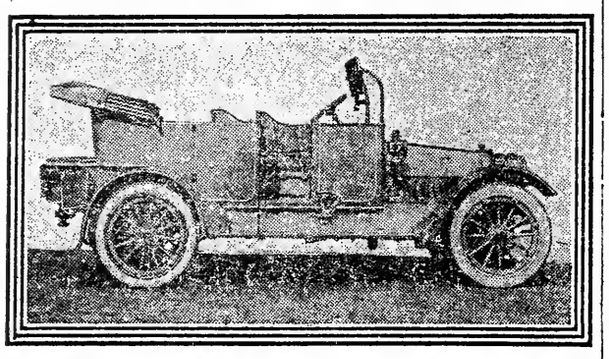
NEW CONVERTIBLE BODY.



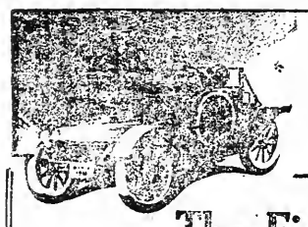


This is a body invented by Ladis Lewkowicz, the aviator, which is intended to fill the need for adequate, convenient and quick protection for any car, small or large. The body is shown open and closed. The change takes but a moment to effect. It will be noticed that the glass windows slide completely out of sight in the body panels. It is said that for several makes of small cars this body can be furnished at a cost not more than 10 per cent. above the present cost of body, top and windshield.

NOVEL BODY FEATURES.



This body has a movable driver's seat which can be pushed back into the tonneau, as shown, to allow easy ingress and egress. It also has a spare tire compartment in the rear, an icebox, and sent lights for reading road maps, &c. It is manufactured by the Manhattan Top and Body Company.



"APLCO" ELECTRIC LIGHTING SYSTEM

The First and Best

The APLCO system was the first electric lighting equipment for the automobile. The idea originated in the plant of The Apple Electric Company years before any other manufacturer had even considered it possible. From that day on the product has been steadily improved until today it represents the highest development of electric lighting equipment.

You must remember that any good electric system must be reliable; you must be able to depend on the batteries always; the system must recharge the batteries without fail.

This is what you get in the APLCO. Any well posted salesman in the automobile industry will tell you that no other system is the equal of the APLCO in any of the essential requirements.

On top of being a soundly made, soundly tested and soundly developed system the APLCO possesses all the high qualities required by the best cars and still is within the reach of the owner of the low-priced car.

The quality of the APLCO system has not suffered in making the price—the reasonable price has been made possible by eliminating all the unimportant parts and by simplifying the construction of the apparatus to the last detail.

ARGUMENT FOR AIR SELF-STARTER GIVEN

Battery Maker Predicts That It Will Be Ultimate Method of Cranking.

HOW THE SYSTEM WORKS

Speed and Great Force Are Put Forward in Support of Compressed Air Contention.

In a letter to the automobile department of THE NEW YORK TIMES, C. S. Cole, chief engineer of an electric storage battery company, advocates the compressed air self-starter. He says:

"There are two well-known sayings that apply with great force to present conditions in the field of self-starting with electric lighting; they refer to the tortoise and the hare and the fact that the people pay in the end. Elucidation of these statements lies in the practicability and upkeep cost of electric starting with electric light and air starting with electric light. Ultimate mechanical simplicity lies in reducing the number of parts to drive while reducing the strain necessary to drive these parts. We can now obtain machines which will electrically start and light the car, while recent developments in air starting has resulted in producing efficient units containing an air starting system with an electric generator, all within a common case, driving from only one shaft end. Since these high efficiency combination air starting and electric lighting units have also been rendered automatic with respect to maintaining a constant tank pressure without attention from the driver, they have removed the last objection in this system of starting.

"To start a motor car engine demands that it be revolved at such a sufficiently high rate that it will establish running conditions with respect to the suction in the carburetor. This is so in all cases except when the motor is in the pink of condition and is started before the last charge has condensed so that it will not start on the spark. The specific fact into which starting resolves itself is that the faster the motor is spun the more certain the starting and the shorter the time becomes which it is necessary to turn it. On cold days no amount of slow cranking will get an explosion, because the low suction in the carburetor and manifold is not enough to break the gasoline into spray and pull it into the motor.

"Compressed air starting systems, on the contrary, will spin a motor at about 250 revolutions with absolute certainty without respect to the size of the motor or the age of the system, and at this speed a very violent suction is established at the carburetor. The result is that an actual running condition is produced in this device which violently breaks the gasoline into spray and immediately carries it into the cylinders without a chance to denosit. This is accomplished in only three or four revolutions, and the start is as certain as throwing on the spark when engine is in and being driven by the car when coasting down a steep hill. The old argument that air systems will not crank a motor for twenty minutes or so does not hold water at all, as with the speed obtained this requirement is not necessary."

For Purchasers of Motor Cars Here is a Plain Statement of Certain Economic Facts of Vital Interest and Importance

It is quite generally known that the Paige Car is a car of extra value for the money.

Many men — thousands of them doubtless—who realize this is so, do not understand how it can be so.

Many who admit that the Paige seems to be the greatest car in the world at its price are skeptical because they don't see how the Paige Company can possibly have such advantages over competing manufacturers as to permit the production of so much better cars.

So here we propose to tell just how we can and do build the greatest automobiles ever produced at their prices, or anywhere near their prices.

What Our Small Capitalization Means

If our capitalization was five million or ten million or thirty million we would naturally and logically, as business men, have to try to earn dividends on such capitalization. Shouldn't we?

That's perfectly simple.

And where would such dividends, or profits, necessarily come from. The car, of course. Out of the price of the car.

The dividends on over-capitalization would be added to the natural price of the car, and you buyers would have to pay the dividends.

Now what are the facts about Paige capitalization?

Only $250,000.

Therefore, in order to earn—let us say—ten per cent, or $25,000, per year on our capitalization, how much do you buyers have to pay us? On our output of 13,500 cars for the coming season, just $10.85 per car.

Think that over. Then think this over. If our capitalization—no matter how much "water" there might be in it — was two-and-a-half million, we should have to add $108.50 per car for dividends.

And if it was five million, the amount would be $217 per car.

Do you see what low capitalization means toward extra value in the Paige car?

Stockholders Satisfied With Small Earnings

As a matter of fact our per car profit is larger than the $10.85 named above. But the stockholders and directors of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company are big business men, men of large interests, building here in this company a great substantial manufacturing concern and they are satisfied with moderate earnings on their stock. And every dollar earned above these dividend earnings on this small capitalization is put back into the car every season.

We can prove this. You can prove it yourself by comparing the 1914 Paige models with the 1913 models and the 1913 models with those of the year before.

No "Preferred" and No "Water"

Another thing, the Paige capitalization, as you would naturally suppose, is all genuine capital. It does not include good will, patents or "valuable trade names." Some manufacturers carry items like these as capitalization in amounts ranging from $5,000,000 to over $25,000,000. Read those figures over again.

Here's a point, too, that you business men will appreciate. The Paige company's stock is all common stock. No preferred, accumulating deferred dividends if it does not seem advisable to pay them.

Not a Dollar in Bonded Debts

There are no millstones of any sort to weaken and drag down Paige strength.

No bonded indebtedness, not a single dollar of it. Bonded indebtedness—and it's all too frequently found in almost every line of manufacturing, sometime to the extent of many millions in the case of a single company—bonded indebtedness simply adds another 5 per cent, or it may be 7 per cent, load that the buyer of the product must pay.

The purchaser of a Paige car pays for no watered stock and he pays for no bonds. He pays for no other form of obligation or indebtedness, for the Paige company has none, other than current expenses all of which are paid when due.

This brings us to another point.

PAIGE
Mechanically a Marvelous Motor Car

Lowest "Overhead" and How We Do It

So far as all investigations show, the Paige company operates at a smaller per car "overhead" expense than any other automobile manufacturer.

Is this important to you as a purchaser? It most certainly is.

And how have we kept down the "overhead?"

By simplicity and economy in management.

By restraining from that tempting luxury of branches. (The Paige company has never maintained a branch.)

By just common, old-fashioned hard work. (The same executive staff, identically, that managed the production of 800 cars four years ago is managing the production of 13,500 cars this year.)

By up-to-the-minute methods in the factory. There isn't a piece of old machinery in the Paige plant.

Our motor plant, for instance, (we build our own motors) is entirely equipped with 1913 machines. In some of the best competing plants you would find machinery eight years old in use today. Eight years is a long time in the business of building motor cars.

The manufacturing conditions are important in fixing the price of a car.

Paige Cars $300 to $400 Underpriced

Such favorable manufacturing conditions as ours, coupled with the small capitalization and freedom from bonded or other indebtedness, reduce the price of the Paige car three or four hundred dollars.

That is provable, too. You can prove it, if you will compare the Paige with cars that sell for three or four hundred more.

Quantity Output Lowers Costs

You must know, also—we would take this for granted—that so far as lowering costs by quantity production, is concerned, the Paige Company is in as advantageous a position as any manufacturer. Three or four others are building more cars but not enough more to lower costs.

Even a 5000-car output earns lowest prices on parts and materials—if the credit is A1—and Paige production is now more than double that amount.

Furthermore, enormous production does not reduce costs on machining, for the tools, dies and patterns (expensive necessities) that will last through a production of 5000 parts are few indeed. Many will not last through the production of 1000 parts.

Financial Strength an Important Factor

We spoke of credit. The financial strength of the Paige company permits it to command the work of the highest grade parts and material manufacturers at lowest prices, because the "credit risk" is minimized.

These then are incontrovertible reasons WHY the Paige Company CAN and DOES build—in the Paige car—the greatest automobile value ever produced.

Tear out this advertisement, and save it, to remind you to make comparisons of the conditions back of any automobile you may have in mind.

You Can See the Extra Value

Let it remind you, too, to go see the Paige at your dealer's. See for yourself just how much extra value is in the Paige. You'll find the extra value, all right, and you'll know why and how it comes to be there.

We build two models, completely equipped with electric starting and lighting systems. The famous Paige "36" touring car and roadster, $1275, also three closed body types, and the Paige "25" touring car and roadster $975.

TYSON & CO. UNABLE TO RELEASE TICKETS

Offer to Redeem Those for To-night's Performance, but Trust Company Refuses.

WHITMAN READY TO ACT

If Those Who Paid for To-night's Seats Do Not Get Them—Five Pay $1,113 Excess.

The theatre ticket agency of Tyson & Co., with main offices at 1,122 Broadway, made an unsuccessful effort late last night to redeem for its subscribers the tickets for to-night's performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, now held by the Metropolitan Trust Company of 49 Wall Street. About $44,000 worth of season tickets for the opera are still held as collateral for a loan to the ticket agency.

The trust company, through its attorneys, Carter, Ledyard & Milburn of 54 Wall Street, rejected an offer of $440.50 made by the ticket agency for the "protection of its patrons." The Metropolitan Trust Company made known its willingness to release the tickets for the entire first week for a payment of about $2,800, but Tyson & Co. was unable at a late hour to obtain the cash.

The temporary box office of the trust company, which was opened on Saturday in the Hotel Manhattan, was kept open yesterday from 11 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon for the delivery of the $44,000 worth of tickets. About fifty patrons of the ticket agency holding its receipts visited the temporary opera ticket office, but only five of these paid the additional amount for which the tickets were pledged.

Meanwhile Assistant District Attorney Lockhart, on the instructions of District Attorney Whitman, pursued his investigation, in an effort to learn if any unlawful act had been committed and by whom. The District Attorney's office, it is said, will undoubtedly find grounds for an action in case those patrons of the ticket agency who hold the receipts for subscriptions to the first performance to-night do not get their tickets.

H. L. Hartman, head of the ticket agency, was in his offices all yesterday afternoon and until nearly midnight. At 2 o'clock, after long conferences with his counsel, Mr. Hartman decided to try to redeem the opera tickets for to-night, with the intention of mailing them to his patrons by special delivery last night. In the presence of the newspapermen he counted out $440.50 and inclosed it in a letter addressed to Edmund L. Baylies, of counsel for the Metropolitan Trust Company. One of the employes of the ticket agency, bearing the letter with the money, was hurried into a taxicab and dispatched to the home of Mr. Baylies. The letter read:

Nov. 16, 1913.

Metropolitan Trust Company.

Sirs: We desire to anticipate the agreement of yesterday between our respective attorneys whereby we were permitted to withdraw the opera tickets for Monday, Nov. 17, performance at the Metropolitan Opera House for delivery to our subscribing patrons, and we request that seats for said performance be turned over to us as follows: Forty-eight orchestra seats at $6, 4 orchestra circle seats at $6, 25 dress circle seats at $3, 13 balcony seats at $2.50, and 14 family circle seats at $1.50.

Kindly prepare these seats for delivery to us by tearing the proper ticket from each book. We hand you herewith in currency $440.50 in payment for the above seats.

TYSON & CO.

No Agreement, Says Baylies.

At 9:30 o'clock, when Mr. Baylies was called over the telephone at his home, he said that he had received the letter and the inclosed $440.50, but that the Metropolitan Trust Company would not and could not accept a proposition that looked like a "preference." Mr. Baylies explained that the trust company would release tickets for the entire first week, requiring payment of about $2,800. Mr. Baylies denied that there had been any such agreement as was referred to by Tyson & Co.

"We won't release the Monday night tickets unless we are sure that the persons who hold receipts for Wednesday and other nights this week will receive theirs," said Mr. Baylies. "We cannot discriminate. We must be impartial. I now am given to understand that Tyson & Co. is going to try to raise the money to take up the tickets for the whole week some time to-night."

At the offices of Tyson & Co. it was found that Mr. Baylies had communicated with Mr. Hartman by telephone and refused to turn over the tickets. Asked if he intended to try to raise the $2,800 demanded by the trust company for the release of the tickets, Mr. Hartman called attention to the lateness of the hour and asked his questioners if they thought there was any place in town where he could get a check for that amount certified.

In the interim, the statement made by Mr. Baylies was amplified by this announcement of the Metropolitan Trust Company, made through J. M. R. Lyeth of its counsel:

The Metropolitan Trust Company will allow Tyson & Co. to redeem all single opera tickets pledged with it for the evening beginning Nov. 17 provided Tyson & Co. make a proportionate refund for single tickets for the first week of opera to those who have already taken up season tickets from the trust company by paying the amount for which they were pledged. Tyson & Co. can accomplish this by paying an amount less than $2,800.

The trust company insists that all holders of Tyson & Co.'s receipts shall be treated alike, and will not sanction a plan whereby the holders of such receipts calling for tickets for any particular performance will be preferred.

The temporary box office will be open all day to-day in the Hotel Manhattan at Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street, and the Metropolitan Trust Company has announced that it will hold the tickets for which Tyson & Co. have issued receipts for the subscribers holding those receipts until noon.

For the benefit of subscribers who wanted to redeem a few tickets at a time, Mr. Baylies and Mr. Lyeth gave out this announcement:

All persons holding paid receipts of Tyson & Co. for seats in Metropolitan Opera and who do not wish to take same immediately the entire subscription for the season may obtain their seats for the week beginning Nov. 17 from the Metropolitan Trust Company at the Manhattan Hotel, by presenting said receipts and by paying for each ticket the proportionate amount for which it was pledged, namely: Orchestra and orchestra circle seats, $6.50; dress circle seats, $3; balcony seats, front row, $2.50; balcony seats, rear row, $2; family circle seats, front row, $1.50; family circle seats, rear row, $1.

Five Pay $1,113.

The five persons who went to the trust company box office at the Hotel Manhattan and repurchased their season tickets for the Metropolitan Opera House were E. Howard Martin, 160 West Seventy-ninth Street; Mrs. Edward Siegman, Hotel St. Regis; Mrs. S. M. Rice, Hotel Savoy; Miss K. Ball, 101 Wayne Street, Jersey City, and Dwight S. Richardson, 19 East Seventy-first Street. They paid $1,113 to the bank in addition to the money paid to Tyson & Co.

In the early afternoon a receipt, made out to Mrs. Harriet W. Biddle of 11 West Eleventh Street, was presented

WILSON O. K.'S OWEN PLAN.

Indorses Democratic Changes to Currency Bill in Committee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Administration draft of the Currency bill as framed by six Democratic members of the Banking and Currency Committee was discussed with the President to-night by Chairman Owen of the committee. The President generally indorsed the measure as amended. They hope to submit it to the Senate the latter part of the week.

The five Republicans on the committee and Senator Hitchcock held a meeting to-night and continued work on their draft of the bill. The Republicans hope to finish it by Tuesday, when the bill will be taken up in a meeting of the full committee. Republicans and Democrats will report unanimously on those features of the bill upon which they can agree, and will report a disagreement on disputed points.

The guarantee of bank deposits adopted by the Republicans, it developed to-day, would have a wider application than was at first understood. The proposed fund to be established from the profits of the regional banks would be used as a source from which the regional institutions might recoup depositors in their member banks should the member banks fail. Thus, while the fund would be raised from the profits of the regional banks and would in no sense be a tax on the member banks of the system, the benefits would go to the member banks.

Though the provision was adopted by a vote of only four to two, a bare third of the full committee, its advocates insist that the insurance of deposits is justified on the ground that the insurance constitutes a sort of indirect compensation to the member banks for the proportion of their reserves which must be deposited without interest in the regional institutions.

The provision is that at first, after all expenses and 5 per cent. dividends have been paid, the remaining profits would be divided as follows: Twenty-five per cent. to create a surplus fund equal to 20 per cent. of the capital of the regional bank, 37½ per cent. to the Government direct, and the remaining 37½ per cent. to the insurance fund.

After the surplus fund reached the 20 per cent. limit the entire profits would be divided equally between the insurance fund and the Treasury.

CORNELL GETS $4,350,000.

Donor Believed to be Col. Payne—All for Medical School Here.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 16.—A gift of $4,350,000 to the Cornell Medical School was announced to-day by Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University. The name of the donor was withheld. It is believed, however, as was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, that Col. Oliver H. Payne of New York City, who for years has been a benefactor of the Cornell Medical School, gave the money. A report that he had made such a contribution was published several weeks ago.

The gift was made to President Schurman in New York Friday. The amount given will insure a yearly income of about $200,000. None of the money is to be used for new buildings; all will go toward meeting the annual expenses of the school. It will be used entirely on the Medical School in New York City, and none on the local branch of the Medical School at Ithaca.

It is well known among Cornell men that Col. Payne has been paying the deficit of the Cornell Medical School for years, and has given large sums for this purpose. On account of his disinclination for publicity, however, no public announcement of Col. Payne's generosity has been made.

MRS. GERRY TO BUILD ROADS

Gives $5,000 to Three Towns in Delaware County, New York.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry has gained the gratitude of the taxpayers in three townships in Delaware County, and has established a brand new fad and has given the highway improvement boom a big impetus by paying the town highway taxes in Andes, Bovina, and Delhi.

Mrs. Gerry recently inquired what she could do to assist in making better roads through Delaware County. Her automobile trips in this section convinced her that the residents of this part of the State were not enjoying the highway facilities to which they were entitled.

Several supervisors with whom she discussed the situation suggested that the reason why more good roads were not constructed was that the towns could not afford the expense. It had been a hard season for farmers and taxes were high. Without further comment and with no solicitation, Mrs. Gerry sent a check for $5,000 to the supervisors of Andes, Bovina and Delhi. This is to pay for 3.57 miles of highway construction in Andes, costing $1,335; 2.37 miles in Bovina, at a cost of $1,260.29, and 6.43 miles in Delhi, $2,404.63.

The gift inures to the benefit of every taxpayer in the three towns.

FALL KILLS YALE STUDENT.

John Lannom, '16, Found Dead Under Window—Was a Sleepwalker.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 16.—John R. A. Lannom, one of the leading students of the sophomore class at Yale, was found dead about daybreak this morning on the sidewalk under the window of his room on the second floor of Durfee Hall. Medical Examiner Scarborough said this evening that Lannom probably arose, walked to the window, where a bottle of spring water was kept, knocked it from the sill and, in reaching for it, lost his footing and fell thirty feet to the walk beneath. Death must have been instantaneous. The condition of the body led Dr. Scarborough to say that Lannom probably fell at about 4 o'clock this morning.

Funeral services will be held in Battell Chapel to-morrow morning, and the body will be taken to Lannom's home in Louisville to-morrow afternoon, in charge of a party of his classmates.

Lannom was 19 years old. He was a room-mate of Edwin Stein of New York City. Stein said to-night that he came to his room about 1 o'clock this morning and, finding Lannom in bed and apparently asleep, did not disturb him. He did not learn of the accident till awakened by a policeman at about 6 o'clock.

Stein says that Lannom was a somnambulist and had almost fallen out of a window twice before.

SULZER MUST WAIVE GRAFT IMMUNITY

Deposed Governor Will Not Be Allowed to Testify in "John Doe" Inquiry Otherwise.

MAY KNOW OF GRAFT RING

Panic Among Conspirators Expected to Follow Kelley's Overtures to Whitman—Fowler May Confess.

Ex-Gov. William Sulzer will not be allowed to testify in the "John Doe" graft investigation which District Attorney Whitman is conducting unless he signs a waiver of immunity. This was decided yesterday after Mr. Whitman learned that the details of a conspiracy to bleed contractors on State work were discussed in the Hotel Onondaga in Syracuse on the day after William Sulzer was nominated for Governor by the Democratic State Convention. Mr. Whitman wants to know all that Sulzer knows about that alleged conspiracy, and if Sulzer tells everything, it is expected that the most sensational chapter in the graft investigation will be unfolded.

At least six men were present at the Syracuse hotel when Everett P. Fowler was designated to continue to collect graft from the contractors on State roads. These men, it is said, approved the selection of George H. McGuire as "bagman" among the canal contractors. If Sulzer testifies he will be asked whether he was one of these six men and whether he took a prominent part in the deliberations. Sulzer denied last night all knowledge of this meeting at the Onondaga Hotel.

According to information which came to the District Attorney, Henry P. Burgard of Buffalo was also in the hotel when the meeting was in progress. Burgard has conferred with Mr. Whitman already. He was not allowed to testify, though. It was said that this opportunity was denied because Burgard insisted on obtaining immunity for himself. When he appears before Mr. Whitman again it will be under subpoena probably.

William H. Kelley, Democratic boss of Onondaga County, was also at the hotel, according to Mr. Whitman's information. Kelley, it was said, had opened negotiations through his lawyer with Mr. Whitman in the last few days. It was said that he, too, wanted an assurance of immunity and that this was refused as in Burgard's case.

Fowler and McGuire were at the meeting when the graft conspiracy was perfected, it was learned. There was at least one more and it was said that Eugene D. Wood, ex-lobbyist, could tell who that man was. Wood has already testified in the John Doe proceedings, and he is still under the call of the court. When he appears again, as it is said he will, Mr. Whitman will ask him whether he was present or whether he knew of any others who were present.

If Mr. Whitman can establish proof that this conspiracy was engineered in Onondaga County it will be necessary for him to prove then that money collected by the approved bagmen found its way into New York County. He expects to show this by the same method used in tracing the Hull-Mack check to the Fourth National Bank in this city. If he can show that the graft came into this county, then all of the conspirators can be tried by Mr. Whitman in this county.

McGuire Named Sulzer.

Ex-Gov. Sulzer has been brought into the case. McGuire, when he testified first, asserted that he had given Sulzer 500 in bills in the bathroom of a hotel in Syracuse. This money was passed secretly, he testified, the day after Sulzer was nominated for Governor. Mr. Whitman hopes to connect this incident with a previous meeting at which Sulzer and McGuire were present. This meeting may turn out to be the one at which the conspiracy to collect graft was discussed.

The "M" telegram produced in the "John Doe" inquiry revealed that Fowler's activity stretched into 1912, as well as through 1911, for McGuire, in that telegram, informed John A. Hennessy specifically that Fowler made a practice of coming to Syracuse in both 1911 and 1912 to "help William H. Kelley hold up and shake down the contractors on State work." Mr. Whitman will try to show that the activities of Fowler had a bearing on the directions which he received at the Syracuse hotel the day after Sulzer was nominated.

It is not contended by the District Attorney that a conspiracy to milk the contractors was hatched in Syracuse on the day after the Democratic convention. Mr. Whitman knows that the conspiracy was hatched long before that time, but it is asserted that the conspiracy was furthered in Syracuse, and that, it is argued, puts the case within the jurisdiction of the John Doe inquiry.

The two men who could tell all about this Syracuse meeting, it is believed, are George H. McGuire and Everett P. Fowler. McGuire is still ill as the result of his physical and mental breakdown while under examination by Mr. Whitman last week. Fowler will arrive in the city at 11:35 o'clock this morning, and whatever he may have to tell is expected to be in the District Attorney's hands soon after that time.

Although Fowler is under indictment for extortion, it is known that Mr. Whitman will take no chances with him. He will not let him slip through his fingers, now that he has a tight hold on him. Mr. Whitman, it is expected, will treat Fowler as he treated the informers in the police graft investigation. This is the procedure that will be followed probably: Fowler will present himself before the District Attorney on his arrival. Mr. Whitman will ask him whether he has considered his ultimate confession of Sing Sing—and if Fowler says that he has decided to tell everything, Mr. Whitman will direct him to go before Judge Crain in General Sessions to plead guilty to the indictment. After having received the plea of guilty Mr. Whitman will hear Fowler's whole story and will then take him before the Grand Jury.

Under no conditions, it is expected, will Mr. Whitman allow Fowler to go before the Grand Jury before pleading guilty. Such a procedure would give him immunity from prosecution for the extortion charge, and that is what Mr. Whitman will seek to avoid. In the police cases the threat of Sing Sing proved most effective. There was not a hitch, and four Police Inspectors were sent to the penitentiary. There is little doubt that Fowler will plead guilty. It was said yesterday that he would do this on the advice of counsel as the only means for saving himself.

Kelley Expected to Start Stampede.

The news that William H. Kelley has made an attempt to get under cover is expected to go through the up-State counties like wildfire, and it is thought it will precipitate a rush on the part of smaller politicians and small contractors to save themselves, if possible, by telling what they know. Kelley is regarded as Tammany's bulwark in Onondaga County. Publicly he has denied complicity in the Fowler case.

ARTIST SHOT DOWN AT RICHMOND HILL

Supposed Stray Bullet Hits Raymond Burns and Doctor Friend Makes Wild Auto Run to Him.

While crossing the bridge over the Long Island Railroad tracks in Forest Park, Richmond Hill, L. I., one block north of Division Avenue, yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock Raymond Burns, a painter of Western scenes, 27 years old, of 581 Walnut Avenue, Richmond Hill, was shot in the left side and seriously wounded. After being taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Jamaica Mr. Burns said that he had seen no one with a revolver or rifle in the woods near the tracks and had no idea who shot him. He did not even hear the report of the weapon used, he said. The police are inclined to believe that the young artist was accidentally shot by some of the numerous amateur sportsmen who habitually visit Forest Park on Sundays and practice shooting with rifles and revolvers.

When the bullet struck him Mr. Burns fell to the ground, but soon rose and, with great effort, walked to his home, three blocks away.

Andrew Mehling of 141 Ten Eyck Street, Brooklyn, the railroad crossing watchman stationed one block south of the bridge, heard the report of a revolver or rifle, and a moment later saw a young man of medium height and weight, dressed in a dark suit and gray peaked cap, hurrying along the railroad tracks away from the bridge toward the Richmond Hill station. He appeared to be agitated, the watchman said, but as Mehling could not see the top of the bridge from where he was standing, he did not know that any one had been injured and allowed the unidentified man to go on his way.

When Mr. Burns reached the back door step of his home he collapsed, and was found by his mother and younger brother, Edward. They at once telephoned to Dr. E. J. Cronin of Hillside Avenue, Richmond Hill, the family physician, and an intimate friend. Dr. Cronin was in Westchester Village, the Bronx, at the former home of his wife, a daughter of E. C. Potter, a banker, whom he married Oct. 4. Mr. Burns being an usher at the wedding. As soon as he heard of the condition of his young friend Dr. Cronin jumped into his high-powered automobile and broke all speed laws in a dash from Westchester to Richmond Hill. He made the run, a distance of from fifteen to twenty miles, and most of it through city streets, in forty minutes.

As soon as Dr. Cronin saw Mr. Burns he realized that the young man was in a serious condition and sent a hurry call for an ambulance to St. Mary's Hospital in Jamaica. He also telephoned to Dr. Joseph A. Blake, the New York surgeon, for a consultation. Dr. Blake was engaged, but promised his assistance to-day, it was said.

Dr. Cronin said last night that he had not probed for the bullet owing he the nervousness of Mr. Burns's condition, but that he had located it in the abdomen. He said that the wound appeared to have been made by a .32-calibre revolver bullet.

Young Mr. Burns returned from Arizona a short time ago, after spending two years in the West painting Indians and scenes of the country. His father is Edward Burns, Secretary and a Director of the James H. Roberts Elevator Company at 430 West Broadway. He is regarded as wealthy by his neighbors.

Mehling, the watchman, gave a description to the police of the man he saw hurrying away from the bridge just after the shooting. He was about five feet seven inches tall, weighed 145 pounds, was apparently 25 years old, clean shaven, and had dark hair. He wore a dark suit and a gray peaked cap.

VOTE STRIKE AT LAWRENCE.

Firemen in Textile Mills Demand an Eight-Hour Day.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Nov. 16.—The operation of practically all of the textile mills in this city may be affected by the action of 300 firemen, who voted to-day to strike to-morrow morning unless their demands for an eight-hour day were granted. There are about fifty cotton and woolen mills, employing altogether 35,000 operatives. The men at present work twelve hours a day. They ask that this time be reduced by four hours a day, with no reduction of pay.

The Steam and Operating Engineers' Union voted to-day to stand by the firemen if called upon. The union officials expressed confidence of success because the State law permits manufacturing establishments to operate with unlicensed firemen for only one week at a time.

The newly organized Chamber of Commerce has offered its services to bring about a settlement of the dispute in an effort to avert any such widespread suffering as was caused in the big strike of the mill operatives in 1912, when 27,000 men, women, and children were idle for nine weeks in the heart of the Winter.

Suffering from Lumbago, Dr. Wallace Conducts Services, Though Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 16.—For some time the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Wallace, pastor St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church here and formerly pastor of a church in New York City, has been a sufferer from lumbago. For the last week he has been confined to his bed. He was determined not to disappoint his congregation this morning, however, and, although still suffering severely, took a seat on the pulpit platform, preaching the sermon and conducting the entire service without once rising.

The sermon made a deep impression on the congregation. At the close of the service the pastor was assisted to rise and was helped off the platform.

TWO HERMITS DIE IN FIRE.

Forest Hut of Lone Brothers Burns While They Sleep.

WHITMAN, Mass., Nov. 16.—Two hermits, George Frye, 57 years old, and his brother Stephen, ten years older, were burned to death in their shack in the woods near the Brockton line last night. Nothing was known of the fire until to-day, when another woods dweller discovered the ashes, in which were charred bones.

The brothers had lived for several months in a hut built of orange boxes.

BELIEVE KIDNAPPERS GOT 3-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Police Can't Otherwise Explain the Disappearance of Winifred Byrne.

Three-year-old Winifred Byrne disappeared from in front of her home at 243 West Thirty-eighth Street early on Saturday evening while her father stood in the doorway to guard her from harm, and the manner of her going has mystified the police. A general alarm was sent out yesterday, warning the police of all five boroughs to be on the lookout for her. Detectives of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station are working on the theory that the child has been kidnapped.

Winifred's father, Joseph Byrne, is a florist. After the evening meal on Saturday he went to the street with Winifred to keep watch over her while Mrs. Byrne went across the street to a cobbler's to have a pair of the child's shoes repaired.

Mr. Byrne, in describing her disappearance to the police, said he stood watching the child at play, and saw her run along the street until she reached J. C. Hupfel's brewery, at 266. For a moment then his attention was attracted elsewhere, and when he turned again to look for her Winifred was not in sight.

For a few minutes he supposed that she had crossed the street to join her mother in the cobbler's shop, but when Mrs. Byrne returned from that place alone he became alarmed. With his wife he then began a search of the neighborhood for trace of the child.

Many children to whom Winifred was known were playing upon the street at the time, but when appeal to the news of the child none of these could recall having seen her on the street after supper.

Mr. Byrne and his wife continued the search until 2 o'clock yesterday morning, when, disheartened and deeply distressed, they appealed to the police of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station for assistance. Lieut. Wines immediately assigned Detectives Murphy and Ginter to the case and advised Mr. and Mrs. Byrnes to go home and leave the matter in their hands.

This they did, but as morning came and the day were on without tidings of the child the parents became distracted. Mrs. Byrne last night was said to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Winifred was a favorite in the neighborhood, and at each of the masses in St. Gabriel's Church, at East Thirty-seventh Street, prayers were offered yesterday for her safe return.

The little girl is described as being three feet tall, with blue eyes, and blonde hair cut Buster Brown style. She wore a white fur coat, a white bonnet, blue-striped dress, white stockings, mittens, and black shoes. The only mark of identification is a cut on the left thumb.

Detectives Murphy and Ginter, after working on the case all day, said shortly before 11 o'clock last night that in their opinion the child had been kidnapped, but admitted that they had no clue to the person or persons who had taken her away.

NO TRACE OF MISSING GIRL.

Mother of Edna Hardenbergh Prostrated by Daughter's Absence.

No trace has been found of Miss Edna Hardenbergh, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Louis Hardenbergh, who has been missing since Thursday morning, when she started from her home at 31 Lake Street, Gravesend, to go to Public School 153, at Avenue P and Homecrest Avenue.

Her father and Detective Henry Weyman, assisted by several of the neighbors, searched for her all Saturday night and yesterday. Mr. Hardenbergh was forced to tell his wife of their failure, and she suffered a nervous collapse. Last night Dr. Melvin Sheldon of 348 Ninth Street was called in to attend Mrs. Hardenbergh. She has suffered for some months from nervous trouble, and it was said that her condition was serious. Her two married daughters, Mrs. Ethel Hohns of 39 Lake Street and Mrs. May Turner of 113 Lincoln Avenue, were summoned to care for her.

Mr. Hardenbergh visited all of the hospitals in Manhattan and Brooklyn Boroughs yesterday, but the search proved a vain one. He did not believe that his daughter had run away, he said, but feared she had been attacked while taking the short cut across the old Gravesend race track on her way to school. In this connection Mr. Hardenbergh recalled that his daughter had been attacked by an Italian one evening about six months ago while she was returning to her home from a store nearby. She fought desperately with her assailant and her screams brought aid. She had told him, Mr. Hardenbergh said, that the Italian, as she ran away, had threatened to "get her."

Mr. Hardenbergh, as President of the Gravesend Board of Trade, has headed a movement against burglars who have committed thefts in that part of the city. The theory was put forward that some of the roughs in the district might have kidnapped his daughter in revenge.

The only reason his daughter could have for running away, Mr. Hardenbergh said, was that she dreaded making the long trip to and from school each day in the Winter. The school, he said, was beyond the border in Sheepshead Bay, more than a mile from the house. If his daughter would return, he said, he would see that she was put in some other school.

"But I can't believe that she ran away," he said. "Why, on Wednesday night she said she was going to help clean the house from top to bottom on Saturday when her school duties were over."

TO LET ROAD CONTRACTS.

Will Be Parceled Out Weekly in Interest of Economy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 16.—Confident that he can begin advertising for bids for highway construction early in December, John N. Carlisle, Commissioner of Highways, has directed the new division engineers to go carefully over the roads to be constructed next year. Plans and estimates then may be revised so that the contracts on between thirty and forty roads each week may be awarded, until all the roads to be constructed next year are under contract.

By having weekly lettings, Commissioner Carlisle believes, there will be a more even distribution of contracts, so that no one man or firm will get more roads than can be taken care of, and it is believed that this will also result in lower prices. These contracts will all be let so that the material can be placed on the roads this Winter and the construction work can begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the Spring.

O'SHAUGHNESSY MAY QUIT MEXICO TODAY; HUERTA OUSTS ALDAPE, AGAIN SAYS "NO"; WILSON ALL DAY CONSIDERING CRISIS

Report That O'Shaughnessy Will Depart for Vera Cruz—Crisis Expected This Week.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 16.—The difficulties between the United States and Mexico are expected to reach a climax within forty-eight hours—certainly in the early part of the week at latest.

It is rumored that Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé d'Affaires, may leave the capital for Vera Cruz to-morrow night. Mr. O'Shaughnessy will not discuss the matter.

There is little indication, however, that the public appreciates the seriousness of the situation.

A Red Cross surgeon, who arrived here this morning from Vera Cruz, asserts that he has been sent by John Lind to get American women and children out of the city by to-morrow morning at the latest. His announcement has caused some uneasiness, although most people do not credit his statement.

Manuel Garza Aldape was dismissed from his post as Minister of the Interior early this morning.

There is a persistent, but unconfirmed report that he will go as Minister to France.

A rumor is also in circulation here, which has been traced to minor officials of the War Department, that a shipment of arms and ammunition which was ordered in the United States before the embargo was enforced, has been ordered shipped to Hamburg. Officers in the confidence of Huerta are said to have been sent north to arrange for sending it across the Atlantic, and to have it reshipped from Hamburg to Mexico. This is thought by some to foreshadow an uprising under Huerta, if he is ousted from the Presidency.

Huerta Refuses Flatly to Resign.

Dispatch to The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 16.—It was learned to-day that Mr. O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé, had seen President Huerta, and from the President himself had learned that he would not resign his place and would listen only to such proposals from the United States as were compatible with his own dignity and that of his country.

This is the substance of a report which, it is said, Mr. O'Shaughnessy has made to Washington.

Previous to this any doubts that remained regarding Gen. Huerta's intentions with respect to compliance with the American demands for his own elimination had been removed from the minds of most Mexicans and foreign residents by his peremptory dismissal to-day of Manuel Garza Aldape, the Minister of the Interior, who was looked upon as the head of Huerta's Cabinet.

Garza Aldape led that faction of the Cabinet which held the conviction that it would be best to accede to that portion, at least, of Washington's demands which meant the total abandonment of power by the Provisional President, and he is said to have been the only one with sufficient courage to discuss the international situation frankly with his chief.

It was he who called at the American Embassy recently and induced Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the Chargé d'Affaires, to send to Washington his appeal for the reopening of the negotiations.

Señor Aldape's resignation was demanded at a Cabinet meeting at President Huerta's house early this morning. Huerta is said to have reiterated at this meeting the statement that he would not resign, that with him it was a case of life or death, and that he was determined to play out the game.

Certain intimate friends of Gen. Huerta have been suggesting to him, it is said, for some time that the Minister of the Interior was intriguing for the Presidency, and that the Cabinet had become divided into hostile camps.

Triumvirate Forced Him Out.

Among those who opposed Aldape were Querido Moheno, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Gen. Blanquet, Minister of War, and José Maria Lozano, Minister of Public Works.

It is stated authoritatively that these three Ministers assured Gen. Huerta that unless the Minister of the Interior was removed they would resign.

Aldape was designated to-night by the Provisional President to go to Europe in fulfillment of some undetermined special mission, and departed on a late train for Vera Cruz, en route for France.

His friends think it possible that he may be named to succeed Francisco de la Barra as Minister to France.

Señor de la Barra has been ordered to Japan as special Ambassador to present the thanks of the Mexican Government for the participation of Japan in the centennial festivities under Porfirio Diaz in 1910.

It was on this mission that Gen. Felix Diaz was proceeding when he decided to return to Mexico to take part in the elections. So far as official Mexico is concerned, there exists between it and the European countries no question to be settled.

The British Minister, Sir Lionel Carden, explained this afternoon that his instructions to British residents in Mexico were not in the nature of an order to leave their places of residence, except in the case of those located in the more inaccessible towns. It was simply a precautionary measure, intended to prepare them in the event that circumstances should demand their removal.

Sir Lionel said that he had no information indicating that such a necessity was imminent, but desired his countrymen to feel that their Government was manifesting a proper interest in their welfare and safety. The notification carried assurance that the British Minister would make every effort to give them warning of unusual developments in time to permit them to reach places of safety.

The French Minister, Paul Lefaivre, said that he had no intention of leaving the capital at this time. He added that he had issued no warning to French residents, but considered it quite probable that he would follow the example of the British Minister, although there was only a limited number of his countrymen outside the big cities.

LATE TALK AT WHITE HOUSE

Bryan Sees the President and Discusses the Dispatches Received from Mexico City.

OPTIMISM STILL VOICED

Hope Expressed That Financial Pressure May Yet Force Huerta to Yield.

MESS MADE BY CARRANZA

His Uncompromising Declaration, Backed Up by Huerta, Is Called Unfortunate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—"The Mexican situation is so delicate that our efforts might be damaged by publicity," said one of the foremost officials of the Government to-day.

This statement was made after Secretary Bryan, who spent several hours at the State Department, came from the White House, where he had an interview with President Wilson to-night.

The seriousness of diplomatic conditions affecting Mexico is indicated by the fact that the President remained in the White House, and in seeing Mr. Bryan violated his practice of not receiving officials or other visitors on Sunday. They talked over messages received from Mr. O'Shaughnessy, the Chargé in Mexico City, and dispatched a cablegram to him after their conference.

"We are not prepared to make any announcement," said Mr. Bryan as he left.

It was admitted that the State Department was in constant communication with John Lind, President Wilson's confidential adviser in Mexican affairs, who is in Vera Cruz; Mr. O'Shaughnessy, and Dr. William Bayard Hale, who has been treating with Gen. Carranza, the Constitutionalist leader, at Nogales, Mexico. Dispatches from all three were received to-day.

Silent on O'Shaughnessy Rumor.

Rumor here has it that Mr. O'Shaughnessy is preparing to leave Mexico City. This appeared at first to be a mere echo of press reports from Mexico City, and in view of the multiplicity and frequency of rumors of that general character, it would not ordinarily be regarded as important; but it gains some significance from the fact that Government officials decline to deny it. After hesitating over a question as to whether it was true, a high official said to-night:

"Please say merely that there is no announcement to make on this subject."

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan still hope that Huerta will come to terms without the necessity of such measures as lifting the embargo on arms for the Constitutionalists, and it seems likely that the American Government will wait a few days for the effect of foreign pressure before making any decisive move in its policy.

In a high Administration quarter it was stated that there was every reason for a continuance of the optimism which President Wilson voiced to newspaper correspondents last Thursday afternoon. Nevertheless, while most of the officials do not assert that hope of speedy settlement is gone, they have shown by their guarded responses to inquiries that the future relations of Mexico and the United States are hanging in the balance.

The warning which has been given to British subjects to move out of inaccessible towns was regarded by many conversant with the situation as likely to impress Huerta that a drastic policy against him might be in prospect.

Some Hope in Mexican Senate.

Strongly reinforcing the pressure which has been brought to bear on Huerta from the European Governments, the latest evidence of which was the effort of Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, is the independent attitude of the Mexican Senate, which temporarily, at least, has defeated the purpose of Gen. Huerta to convene the Mexican Congress.

The failure to obtain a quorum in that body is attributed to the absence of Catholic Senators, and there is much curiosity here to learn whether their action in preventing a quorum resulted from opposition to Gen. Huerta or was in pursuance of that official's plan to postpone the direct issue involved in the warning by the United States against convoking Congress.

Officials are discussing the possibility that the supposedly refractory Senators will come into line for the purpose of declaring the Presidential election illegal and that for Congress as well. The result of such a declaration would be enforced adjournment sine die of the Congress and the calling of another election for some future date.

This would mean complete defeat of the effort to obtain immediate Congressional approval for various important concessions, understood to have been recommended by the Huerta régime.

Regret Carranza Statement.

Regret was expressed by one of the important Government officers to-night that Gen. Carranza had stated that the Constitutionalists would not tolerate efforts on the part of any foreign nation to interfere in the interior affairs of Mexico. This utterance of the Constitutionalist leader has brought from President Huerta ready acquiescence.

In the opinion of Administration officials the negotiations for the elimination of Gen. Huerta from his present control have been complicated by what Gen. Carranza said just at the moment when the success of the Wilson policy seemed assured.

Gen. Carranza made his declaration soon after an interview on Friday with Dr. Hale. Apparently Dr. Hale had submitted proposals to Gen. Carranza, said to have included an armistice between the contending factions and the holding of general elections in which both Federals and Constitutionalists should join, which angered the revolutionary chieftain.

It is stated here that Gen. Gertrudis Sanchez, the Constitutionalist leader in Southwestern Mexico, has sent a dynamite squad to blow up the Tehuantepec Railroad to prevent a shipment of arms and ammunition purchased in Japan from reaching the City of Mexico. Gen. Sanchez has his headquarters about 150 miles distant from the railroad.

According to recent press reports, this consignment was purchased by the Mexican Federal Government in Japan and is on its way to one of the western ports of Mexico, probably Salina Cruz, in two Japanese merchant vessels. The consignment, rumor says, consists of 10,000 rifles, 10,000 carbines, and 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition. It is said, also, that field guns and probably other artillery are in the consignment.

REBELS DETAIN AMERICANS.

Wheeling's Commander Will Act To-day if They Are Not Released.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 16.—T. J. Ryder, head of the Pearson Syndicate oil interests, with twenty-five employes and some members of their families, arrived here to-day. Mr. Ryder started back to the oil fields to-night and will return only in case the American Embassy is withdrawn.

James Drake, a high official of the National Railway lines, arrived on a special train this evening, with members of the families of railway officials.

John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, said to-night that he did not see much hope in Alvarado's resigning so long as President Huerta remained obstinate.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 16.—Rear Admiral Boush, on board the United States battleship Louisiana, off Tuxpam, reports indications of rebels in strong forces in the vicinity of Tuxpam and Tampico, and says that both places are likely to be attacked at any moment.

Commander Kittelle of the gunboat Wheeling reports that there are fifteen American women and children at Tanguijo, near Tuxpam, and that the rebel leader refuses to permit them to leave on the ground that their departure would be taken as evidence that they were not safe within his lines. If they are still being held to-morrow, Commander Kittelle says, steps will be taken to obtain their release.

The number of refugees arriving here from Mexico City is not now very large. They consist mostly of women and children, and are escorted by male relatives, many of whom will return to the capital. All the hotels here are crowded, and it will be difficult to find shelter for refugees if the rumored general exodus from Mexico City takes place. Among the refugees here are the Superintendent and the members of the office staff of the Vera Cruz & Isthmus Railway, who left their headquarters at Tierra Blanca, believing the indications so threatening that it would be inadvisable for them to remain there.

John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, was engaged almost all of to-day in his office here receiving and sending dispatches. He declined to discuss the situation.

SHOOTING JUAREZ PRISONERS.

Two Executions Yesterday — Senator Catron Protests to Villa.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 16.—Two former Federal officials of Juarez, who were taken prisoners by Gen. Francisco Villa's rebel troops, were executed at Juarez to-day. They were Pablo Ebave, an official in the Juarez Police Department, and Juan Cordova, Chief of the Juarez secret police.

The executions took place at the Juarez cemetery, the condemned men standing on the brinks of newly dug graves and falling in when the firing squad shot them. Both men were sentenced to death by Gen. Villa, and the orders were carried out by subordinates.

Señora Ebave, wife of one of the condemned men, was present when the sentence was pronounced and pleaded with Villa to pardon her husband, but he refused.

A squad of fourteen Federal prisoners was taken to the cemetery to bury eighty-nine of the soldiers who were killed in the Juarez battle. One of the prisoners, fearing that he was to be executed, tried to escape and was shot by the guards.

The rebel officers say that there will be more executions in Juarez, and that all of the Federal volunteer troops, Federal regular and volunteer army officers will be killed. The common soldiers of the regular army will be pardoned.

United States Senator Thomas B. Catron of New Mexico to-day called on Gen. Francisco Villa at Juarez and cautioned him against the wholesale execution of the Federal prisoners of war, which has been conducted by Villa at Juarez since the surrender of the town.

"I told Gen. Villa that our Government had acted very favorably to the rebel Government, and that it was my opinion that the executions would make a bad impression on the United States Government, and probably retard any action toward recognition of the rebels by the United States," said Senator Catron, after his conference with Villa. "He did not say that he would desist from the executions, but said it was necessary that it be done, and that it was his duty to his contry and in accordance with orders from superior officers.

"Villa asked me if the United States intended to intervene in Mexico, and I told him that intervention was contrary to our policy and would not occur if we could prevent it. He said that it would cost the United States a great deal of money; but I told him that would not prevent the United States from intervening in Mexico if it was found necessary for it to do so. He appeared to be opposed to intervention, and thought that the United States would have a severe fight. My visit to Villa was wholly unofficial; I went to see him merely through curiosity."

FEDERALS LOOTING GUAYMAS.

Rebels Say the Garrison Is Demoralized and Deserting.

Special to The New York Times.

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 16.—According to reports given out at Gen. Carranza's headquarters to-day it may not be necessary for the Constitutionalist forces to make another attack upon Gen. Pedro Ojeda's position at Guaymas, as it is said that the Federal troops are becoming seriously demoralized, many of them deserting to the Constitutionalists. It is asserted that the Federal garrison has not been paid for many months, in consequence of which the banks and other business houses have been robbed by them of 220,00 pesos.

It is reported on the same authority that a vigorous attack upon the Federals at Mazatlan will be made in a few days. Gen. Alvara Obregon, whose command is now in pursuit of the Federals recently driven from Culiacan, who are supposed to be fleeing in the direction of Mazatlan, has orders from Gen. Carranza to proceed to the assistance of Gen. Yturbe, now before the latter place.

After the negotiations with the United States, through Dr. Hale, have been concluded, Gen. Carranza plans to go to Sinaloa, there to organize the civil government of the State.

Gen. Carranza to-day gave orders for opening the Custom House at Juarez.

An informal conference between Dr. William Bayard Hale and Francisco Escudero, Minister of Foreign Relations in Gen. Carranza's Cabinet, was held to-night at the home of Ignacio Bonillas, Minister of Public Works, who also acted as interpreter. It lasted two hours.

No announcement was made of the subjects discussed.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 16.—It was announced at rebel headquarters in Juarez to-day that Gen. Venustiano Carranza might transfer his headquarters from Sonora to Juarez within a few days. The possible transfer of the rebel headquarters was discussed this afternoon at a meeting between Gen. Francisco Villa and a commission which arrived here to-day from Gen. Carranza.

The provisional State capital of Chihuahua will be established at Juarez th's week. The Provisional Governor of the State has not yet been appointed.

At a meeting with the business men of Juarez to-day Gen. Villa appointed officers for Juarez. Pedro Maes was appointed Collector of Customs at the Port of Juarez, and José Velarde was made Mayor of the city. The port will be opened for business to-morrow.

SAYS WILSON WILL WIN.

Covarubbias Sure That His Policy Will Triumph Over Huerta

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Miguel Covaribbias, Mexico's ex-Minister to Russia, giving his opinion to-night of the latest developments in Mexico, said:

"Now that the Constitutionalists have captured Juarez the situation may be considered greatly improved from the point of view of Gen. Carranza and his friends, and I look for further speedy successes, all of which facts make it less necessary for the United States to intervene.

"President Wilson has only to continue his policy of boycotting Huerta for a little while longer, and the Constitutionalists may be trusted to provide the proper solution of the present difficulty."

WAR SCENES IN MEXICO

Shown in Moving Pictures, Which Army Men Witnessed.

War scenes in Mexico were shown in a number of moving picture films which were shown at the Hippodrome by William A. Brady and the Shuberts last night. Some of them showed Madero just before he was shot and others were taken during actual fighting between the Federal and rebel armies since then. One roll of films was taken from the rear of a train going through Mexico, and showed the ruin throughout the country wrought by the revolution.

Pictures of American troops along the border and of American battleships in Mexico waters brought forth much applause from the large audience. All of the army and navy officers stationed in New York were invited to witness the pictures last night, and most of them attended.

His sole defense has been that many of the letters purporting to have been signed by him were really signed "Kelly," and not "Kelley," as the name should be spelled.

The fact is, as Mr. Whitman has known for a long time, that Kelly and all the rest of the men who are involved in the John Doe investigation are being advised by prominent lawyers the best that money can retain. These lawyers have offices in this city. It was the same clique of lawyers, it was said yesterday, that bobbed up in every important case where Tammany officials were concerned; the same lawyers who have defended grafters in other years, and who worked hard to get evidence against Sulzer in the impeachment proceedings.

By this evening, it is expected, the District Attorney's battle will have been half won. It is not thought likely a politician so prominent as Everett P. Fowler was left out of any of the important conferences held by the graft ring. Fowler, it is expected, will involve a score of prominent politicians, from the lowest to the very highest, against whom Mr. Whitman has been trying for years to get evidence.

It is likely that Fowler's confession, if he makes one, will be kept secret for twenty-four hours so as to give all the persons mentioned in it an opportunity to seek terms from District Attorney White an. The "little fellows" would have the first call for immunity in such an event, and the "little fellows," as the events of the last few days have proved, usually make good witnesses. Seneca P. Hull, the Cortland, N. Y. contractor, whose testimony clinched the indictment of Fowler, was one of these "little fellows." He made a strong impression on the Grand Jurors, it was said.

Fowler stayed with his family at Kingston, N. Y., yesterday, in accordance with an agreement entered into between Mr. Whitman and District Attorney Cunningham of Ulster County, who is Fowler's attorney of record. There may have been attempts on the part of big politicians, it is said, to get into communication with Fowler so as to persuade him not to confess. This is a possibility that has not been overlooked. It was recalled that Fowler yielded to these influences once after he had decided to tell Mr. Whitman everything, and it was said he might yield again.

If Fowler does yield again; if he decides to plead not guilty when his time to choose between two courses expires at noon to-day, then Mr. Whitman will spare no efforts to send him to Sing Sing at once. It was said yesterday that Fowler's trial, under these circumstances, would begin within fifteen days. The evidence in his case is mostly documentary, and Mr. Whitman regards the case as one of the simplest of its kind that has ever come to his attention. One of the patrolmen in the police graft cases was sent to Sing Sing on an extortion charge for six years, and the evidence in his case was less than half as strong as in Fowler's case.

TELLS OF McGUIRE COLLAPSE.

Clark Describes Scene When "M" Message Was Handed to Him.

Assistant District Attorney John Kirkland Clark, in an address delivered at the Washington Heights branch of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon on "Crime and Its Relations to the Innocent," referred to the John Doe investigation now under way before Chief Magistrate McAdoo. Mr. Clark said that grafting had been condoned by many because of its prevalence. He warned the young men in his audience against accepting this view. Mr. Clark gave a graphic description of the breakdown on the stand of George H. McGuire of Syracuse, and told how McGuire was forced to admit that he was the author of the famous "M" telegram.

"Within five minutes after John A. Hennessy had produced his copy of the telegram," said Mr. Clark, "the District Attorney had the Syracuse Western Union operator on the long distance telephone The District Attorney warned him to take the greatest care of the original telegram filed at the Syracuse office. Then the general manager of the Western Union was consulted, and the original telegram was in the District Attorney's possession the next morning."

Mr. Clark described McGuire's conduct in the witness chair when he was asked to read the telegram which Hennessy had produced. McGuire took the telegram, Mr. Clark said, and without reading the contents pointed immediately to the letter "M" at the end and said: "I didn't sign this telegram. You see it merely signed M."

"I felt perfectly confident, from my experience with men who do not tell the truth," said Mr. Clark yesterday, "that McGuire was not telling the truth. I felt confident that McGuire had written that telegram himself on his own typewriter as future developments proved. Few appear to know it, but typewriting is the easiest kind of writing to identify and trace. Authorities said that the person who wrote the original "M" telegram was a novice, that they could tell this because the writing was heavy, the kind that is made when the operator uses only one finger. McGuire wrote out that telegram when every one had left the office and when he could be heard or seen by no one."

Referring to the graft on the highways, Mr. Clark said:

"I do not own an automobile and therefore have had little experience with the State roads on which millions have been spent. But we have heard from experts that the money appropriated for those roads has not all been accounted for. We want to know where the money did go. We want to find out whether there was any loss or waste. It may cost the community a great deal to find this out, but the community ought to know the truth. It is high time that the people of New York who believe in right, should take a stand against wrong in this matter."

MACK, HERE, MAKES DENIAL.

Collected Only $33,000 in 1911 Campaign, Not $750,000, He Says.

Norman E. Mack, ex-Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, who arrived in this city on Saturday night, was disturbed yesterday by the revival of certain charges made in the recent municipal campaign. The charges were resurrected in the present John Doe graft inquiry into contributions from State contractors to the campaign funds of both parties.

"I was surprised to see it repeated in the papers this morning that the Democratic State Committee in 1911, the year I was Chairman, collected $750,000 in the way of contributions for campaign purposes," said Mr. Mack. "In the most emphatic manner I want to say that the statement is ridiculously untrue. The amount contributed that year was about $35,000, and was accounted for by the Treasurer in the report filed with the Secretary of State. If it were true that any such large sum had been raised in that year, or any other year, I would not blame the people for wondering what became of the money. But as only $35,000 was raised, I fail to see any reason for hysteria and false statements whera the reputation and good names of honest men are involved. The amount received was so small that it was impossible to make any kind of a vigorous campaign that year.

"During my connection with the State Committee, I felt that I owed it to my party to conduct as vigorous a campaign as possible with the financial means at my command. It is true that I conferred with Democrats, in office and out, in Buffalo, Albany, and other places, as to means of raising money to pay the legitimate expenses of the campaign of that year, as this is the only way a State Committee has of obtaining money to pay the cost of office hire, clerical force, postage, telegrams, literature, and the numerous legitimate expenses of the campaign."

Mr. Mack would make no comment on the Indictment last Friday by the Grand Jury of Everett P. Fowler, one of the alleged Tammany "bagmen" up-State, for extortion, nor would he say anything concerning the suit for libel instituted by him against The Albany Knickerbocker Press, which printed allegations made by John A. Hennessy. Mr. Mack would not explain his mission to this city except to say that he had come to New York on "personal business."

PRINCE KATSURA A MENTAL GIANT

Post-Mortem Showed That the Japanese Statesman's Brain Weighed 1,600 Grams.

EQUAL TO THAT OF KANT

Princess Insisted Upon Dissection, According to Her Husband's Wish.

TOKIO, Nov. 16.—The brain of the late Prince Katsura, one of Japan's greatest statesmen, who died on Oct. 10, weighed slightly more than 1,600 grams. Prince Katsura was President of the Japanese society devoted to the study of cancer, from which disease he died, and in accordance with his own directions the body was offered to science and dissected.

This brain weight is said to be nearly the same as that of Kant, the philosopher, and heavier than that of Napoleon III and Gambetta. It was a little lighter than that of Bismarck and about three hundred grains heavier than the brain of an average person.

The examination was conducted under the historic Japanese ceremony When all preparations had been completed Dr. Nagayo, a celebrated surgeon, surrounded by several physicians, addressed the spirit of the departed person, saying that in accordance with the dead man's own wishes he was about to dissect certain parts of the body for the benefit of science. After the operation the surgeon again addressed the spirit, reporting the completion of the task and expressing gratitude for the benefit which science would receive. Princess Katsura then approached the body, uttered a brief prayer to her husband's spirit, and murmured that in accordance with his wishes she had requested the dissection in the interest of science.

The examination proved that the Prince was suffering from cancer, which originated in the stomach and spread to the liver. The fact that Prince Katsura had desired dissection was made public by the Princess, who insisted that the examination be made. Her fortitude has created a profound impression throughout the empire.

President Wilson took occasion to manifest the sympathy of America to the family of Prince Katsura and to the people of Japan by sending a beautiful wreath through George W. Guthrie, the American Ambassador. The wreath was placed beside that offered by the Empress-Dowager of Japan.

The brain weight of Prince Katsura would rank thirteenth in a list of the weights of the brains of 100 men eminent in action, art, or science, which was compiled last year by Dr. Anthony Spitzka, the Philadelphia brain anatomist. The man in this list with the heaviest brain was Ivan Turgenieff, the poet and novelist, whose brain weighed 2,012 grams. This was a phenomenal weight, however, for the second in the list was G. Cuvier, naturalist, with a brain weighing 1,830 grams, and from Cuvier down to the lowest brain weight in the list—F. J. Gall, anatomist, 1,198 grams—the differences between the weights are of comparatively few grams.

The great majority of the brain weights given by Dr. Spitzka exceed 1,300 grams, said to be the brain weight of the average man. In the list of 100, those above the average are Benjamin F. Butler, lawyer and General, 1,787; William Thackeray, novelist, 1,658; Rudolph Lenz, composer, 1,636; Daniel Webster, statesman, 1,518; Napoleon III., 1,500; Franz Schubert, composer, 1,420; George Grote, historian, 1,410; A. Bertillon, anthropologist and inventor of the Bertillon system, 1,398.

Only eleven men in Dr. Spitzka's list had brains weighing less than 1,300 grams, but among them were Walt Whitman, the poet, with a brain of 1,282 grams, and B. G. Ferris, jurist, 1,225 grams.

SULZER TALK CUT SHORT.

No Time at Dr. Peters's Forum to Discuss the Squareness of It.

"Did Sulzer Get a Square Deal?" was the advertised topic of a meeting yesterday morning in the People's Forum conducted by the Rev. Madison C. Peters at the New York Theatre. Dr. Peters found, however, after preaching a sermon considerably more than an hour in duration, that only a few minutes remained before the theatre had to be turned over for regular show purposes and that the four speakers who had been invited to talk on Sulzer were limited to talks between six and eight minutes in length.

The four speakers were Col. Alexander C. Bacon, Samuel Bell Thomas, Nathan B. Chadsey, and Chester C. Platt, all of whom were closely associated with Sulzer in the days of the impeachment trial. The speakers all agreed the impeachment was unfair and they assailed Murphy and Barnes, spoke of the private court of impeachment at Delmonico's, and re-emphasized most of the charges which Sulzer made against his opponents during the campaign.

Before the collection was taken Dr. Peters said that judging from the great variety of foreign coins in previous collections the people who came to the People's Forum formed a congress of representatives of most of the nationalities of the civilized world. He said that some of the strange moneys that were found on the plate on the preceding Sunday would be of great interest to numismatists or to children who love curiosities.

SULZER GOING ON TOUR.

To Lecture from Here to Pacific on "Tammany Treason."

According to an announcement made last night, William Sulzer, Assemblyman-elect from the Sixth District, will leave New York next Saturday night for a lecture tour of the United States, in the course of which he will journey to the Pacific Coast and back again, reciting the story of the alleged Tammany plot through which he was impeached and removed from office as the Chief Executive of the Empire State. Mr. Sulzer's tour will be directed by R. E. Johnston. The topic of Mr. Sulzer's lecture will be "The Treason of Tammany."

At the Broadway Central Hotel, Mr. Sulzer said last night:

"My lecture tour, under the management of Mr. Johnston, will, I hope, raise for me the funds I need to pay personal obligations, and some of the debts which I was compelled to incur to carry on the war against the grafters."

Mr. Sulzer said that he would be accompanied by his wife and by his personal secretary, Louis A. Sarecky, with M. A. Kraus, business manager for Mr. Johnston. Among the cities to be visited are Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, Philadelphia, Columbus, Cincinnati, Kansas City, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Omaha, Denver, Indianapolis, Salt Lake City, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane, San Francisco, San Diego, and Los Angeles.

THOMAS VISITS MOTHER.

Playwright Shows Her the Medal Presented to Him by Academy.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 16.—Augustus Thomas, the playwright, arrived here from Chicago to-day and spent three hours with his mother, Mrs. Imogene Thomas, whom he showed the medal presented to him by the American Academy of Arts and Letters. She is eighty-one and an invalid. The playwright's visit was unexpected.

Mrs. Thomas said she felt that the medal had come at the right time to ease her disappointment over the failure of her son's latest play, "Indian Summer."

Mr. Thomas's two sisters were preparing to go to church when the telephone bell rang and his voice was recognized. He arrived at their home shortly after in a taxicab, which took him back to the station. He explained that he had an appointment in New York for a new production, the name of which he would not disclose.

LACK OF CAPITAL HAMPERED LAKE CO.

Submarine Builders Unable to Borrow from Banks, Although Holding $1,650,000 Contracts.

COMPANY TO REORGANIZE

Will Try to Raise $50,000 on Bonds or Notes — Government to Finish Vessels Under Construction.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 16.—Stringency in the money market is the reason given for the request by the Lake Torpedo Boat Company of this city to the Navy Department to take its contracts for submarines off its hands, as reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning. Because of this request officers of the Navy Department came here last week and now are completing the construction of two submarines, G-2 and G-3, which are three-quarters finished. When these boats are advanced enough in construction they will be launched and taken to the Brooklyn Navy Yard for final completion. After that the Lake shipyard in this city will be shut down for an indefinite period, or until such time as the company shall be able to borrow money to resume operations.

The other submarines, L-5, at a price of $535,000, L-6 at $360,000, and L-7 at the same contract price, will not be constructed by the Navy Department. The first of the L type boats was started only recently, and is now finished 7.3 per cent. The other two have not yet been started. So far as the officers of the Lake Company are able to determine, there is no telling when they will be started.

Simon Lake, inventor of the Lake submarine, and President of the company, at his home in Milford to-day said:

"The situation is an odd one. The company does not owe a dollar. We have Government contracts amounting to $1,650,000 and yet we are unable to borrow any money from the banks, even with the contracts as security. The banks seem unable to get the money for us."

In reply as to the whereabouts of the company's working capital he said that it had been the practice with the company to have its submarines built in other shipyards.

"I desired to save that profit," said Mr. Lake, "so I purchased land and added it to the shipyard in Bridgeport at a cost of over $150,000. Some of my people did not quite agree with me in this. The construction of the submarine Defender cost us $277,000. She was built as an eight-knot boat, but when she was half completed the War Department contracted for another boat at eleven knots, and under a law passed at the same time the Navy Department could not accept the Defender unless she was as good as the best boat under contract.

"There is to be a reorganization of the company. I hope to be able to make a definite statement of the condition and purposes of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company within a few days. What we want is $50,000 working capital, so as to meet current expenses. Unless we can raise the necessary money by an issue of either bonds or no es, the contracts for new work will be sublet to shipbuilders, which may eventually mean the abandonment of the shipyard in this city."

MORE WIRE-TAPPERS OWN UP

Five Have Now Accused High Police Officials in Confessions.

The confessions of two more wire-tappers were added yesterday to the list now in District Attorney Whitman's possession, making five in all. The men who made the confessions were taken to Mr. Whitman's Madison Avenue apartment by Assistant District Attorney Groehl.

It is expected that Charles Gondorf, so-called king of the wire-tappers, will add his confession to the list to-day. It was said that Mr. Whitman would be less inclined to show consideration to Gondorf in view of the new confessions. Gondorf is out on $65,000 bail on three separate charges of fleecing victims through the wire-tapping game.

All of the five confessions, it is said, involve the names of high police officials. Two of the men named in them are reported to have offered several parcels of real estate for sale within the last week.

Mr. Whitman will not proceed with the prosecution of any of the wire-tappers now under arrest until after the highway and canal graft investigation has been completed. It is expected that the Grand Jury will hear evidence on wire-tapping, however, and that the cases will be pushed after the graft investigation.

14-YEAR-OLD IN SALON.

Suzanne Billet's Painting Has Attracted Much Attention.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The youngest exhibitor at the Autumn Salon is a fourteen-year-old girl, Suzanne Billet.

Her canvas, representing an aged woman, has attracted considerable attention. She had been studying at Louis Lavalle's studio and sent the picture to the Salon, never expecting it to be hung. It took her only three sittings.

at the box office by a man, whose name could not be learned. The receipt was for tickets A 2 and 4 in the dress circle, which the bearer of the receipt demanded. He asked R. W. K. Anderson, Assistant Treasurer of the Metropolitan Trust Company, when the trust company obtained possession of the opera tickets, and Mr. Anderson said on Sept. 14.

The bearer of Mrs. Biddle's receipt then produced a cancelled check of the date, Aug. 2, and said: "Well, those tickets are my property, then. It is just the same as if I had dropped my pocketbook on the street and you had come along and picked it up. I warn you now that my attorneys shall serve notice on you in the morning that if you dispose of my tickets you do so at your own risk."

It was just a little before 3 o'clock when Mr. Baylies, accompanied by Mr. Lyell, entered the temporary box office of the trust company, and after a consultation with the agents of the trust company gave out the announcement by which the subscribers were notified that they could take out their tickets for the first week. Mr. Baylies was asked if the trust company would proceed with the sale of those season tickets which were not redeemed by 6 o'clock this evening.

"It is the business of a trust company to realize more or less on collateral before it decreases in value," he replied.

Mr. Baylies, as a Director of the Metropolitan Opera Company, consented to tell something of the relations between the Metropolitan Opera Company, Tyson & Co., and other ticket agencies. He explained first that he was not speaking officially for the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

"The fact is," said Mr. Baylies, "that for two years Tyson & Co. and other ticket agencies have been large purchasers of opera seats. The Metropolitan Opera Company has no knowledge of the people to whom these agencies sell their allotment of seats, because the agencies have declined to disclose the names of those to whom they sell.

"Now as these agencies have been very helpful in building up the patronage of the opera it has not been considered fair to deprive them of the right of procuring tickets and selling them to their subscribers."

At this point Mr. Baylies was interrupted by a reporter, who wanted to know whether the Metropolitan Opera Company did not feel a moral obligation to see to it that all their patrons who had paid for seats as subscribers through ticket agencies should be protected against losing their seats.

Opera Not Responsible.

"There cannot be any moral obligation," replied Mr. Baylies, "when we never had any knowledge of these subscribers."

Speaking of the allotment of tickets given as collateral by Tyson & Co. for a loan from the Metropolitan Trust Company, Mr. Baylies was just explaining to the reporters that the tickets were given "like a purchase money mortgage by a man who wanted to buy a house" when he was interrupted by a man who approached the table with a receipt unfolded in his hand, and on catching the remark of Mr. Baylies said:

"So, then, the Metropolitan Opera Company knew that the tickets were to be pledged?"

"I don't know," answered Mr. Baylies.

"Well, it seems a peculiar transaction," added the newcomer, "for titles to those tickets were obtained first by the subscribers through the ticket agency."

This statement precipitated a warm legal argument between Mr. Baylies and the man, who introduced himself as Charles G. Koss of the law firm of Thompson, Koss & Warren. Mr. Baylies holding that "the title to the tickets passed through Tyson & Co. to the Metropolitan Trust Company, and was originally vested in Tyson & Co."

Mr. Baylies quickly qualified this by adding, "But the moment that Tyson & Co. got a title the Metropolitan Trust Company had a lien on that title."

"No; they did not," protested Mr. Koss. "I had a lien on that title long before the Metropolitan Trust Company."

Mr. Baylies then read to Mr. Koss the notice of the Metropolitan Trust Company to subscribers who desired to obtain their tickets for the first week. On hearing the terms, Mr. Koss said:

"I won't do that, gentlemen, and I give you notice now that I am going to start legal action. My receipt calls for orchestra seats Nos. S 110, 111, and 112 for Thursday evenings. If you dispose of them, you assume all the risk. I protest against the sale of my seats, and I also demand their delivery at this time."

"For your own protection," retorted Mr. Baylies, "you had better make your demand in writing."

Mr. Baylies tried to assure Mr. Koss that the Metropolitan Trust Company was "doing all it could to protect the subscribers as well as itself."

"It doesn't seem like it," answered Mr. Koss, "when the Metropolitan Trust Company accepted these tickets as security for a loan of $100,000, knowing that they had been paid for already by subscribers of Tyson & Co."

"That's untrue," replied Mr. Baylies, with his first show of anger.

"When were these tickets received by the Metropolitan Trust Company?" inquired Mr. Koss.

"On the 14th of September," said Mr. Baylies.

"And I got my receipt on the 6th of September," answered Mr. Koss.

"That makes no personal difference to me," said Mr. Baylies. "You will have to make your protest in writing."

"Well," added Mr. Koss, "I don't see how the Metropolitan Trust Company can come into court and say that it didn't know that these tickets had already been subscribed and paid for through Tyson & Co."

"You forget that this is the same as a 'purchase money mortgage,'" insisted Mr. Baylies.

"I've been connected with a great many real estate transactions myself, and usually I begin the investigation of a piece of property offered as mortgage by first finding out whether any other person is interested in it," said Mr. Koss as a parting shot.

On Saturday more than fifty of the subscribers announced that they would hold a meeting of protest at the Hotel Belmont this morning at 9 o'clock, when they will discuss ways and means of seeking legal redress for the hold-up of their season tickets to the Metropolitan Opera House.

CIVIL SERVICE TEST FOR POSTMASTERS

Commission Orders Examinations for Fourth-Class Positions Under Wilson's Order.

MERIT THE ONLY STANDARD

Burleson Says He Will Disregard Political or Other Influences in Appointing Men.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Civil Service Commission announced to-day that examinations would be held within the next thirty days for the positions of fourth-class Postmasters in the States of Vermont, New Hampshire, Florida, New Mexico, and North Carolina. A statement issued by the Post Office Department said:

"This order (President Wilson's order of May 7) removed the cloak of civil service protection from a large body of fourth-class Postmasters, who had been blanketed into the classified service by President Taft, and directed that these positions be thrown open to civil service competition. The examinations will be open to the present Postmasters of these offices, as well as to any other persons who desire to compete.

"Postmaster General Burleson stated that it is his purpose to carry out the intent of President Wilson's order that these positions be filled in accordance with both the spirit and letter of the civil service law. He added that he does not delegate the power of appointment, nor in any case is selection made simply upon or because of a recommendation of a member of Congress. He stated further that he has a duty to perform in making selections under the civil service rules; that it is his desire to select in every case the most efficient man obtainable, and that in furtherance of such desire he is using and intends to continue to use every available means of ascertaining the best of the men certified to him by the Civil Service Commission.

"And, further, he has directed that all letters recommending appointments based upon political considerations be returned to the writers.

"The Postmaster General states that he is in earnest in his efforts to obtain the best men, regardless of their political opinions, and whenever he finds in any case that he has been misled because of recommendations made for political reasons, the fourth-class Postmaster or rural carrier so appointed will be promptly removed from office."

NAVAL OFFICER TO PRISON.

Secrecy Maintained as to Charge on Which Steele Was Convicted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Lieut. Benjamin Harrison Steele, U. S. N., has been convicted of serious charges by court-martial at Philadelphia and sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary. Navy Department officials decline to make any statement in regard to the case, but it is learned that a report that Lieut. Steele was convicted of misappropriating Government funds is untrue. Secretary Daniels gave consideration to the matter of furnishing a statement on the case to the newspapers, but decided that he would not do so. It is inferred from what could be learned to-night that Lieut. Steele was convicted of the charge of "assault," but the specifications of this charge were not obtainable. The sentence of imprisonment carries with it dismissal from the navy.

Lieut. Steele was until recently in charge of the United States naval recruiting station and branch hydrographic office at Cleveland. Ordinarily such courts-martial trials are public, and no effort is made to conceal the action of the court, the Secretary of the Navy, and the President.

Lieut. Steele was born in Kansas on Jan. 18, 1885, and was appointed to the Naval Academy from that State on May 21, 1901. He had had about ten years' sea service when assigned to recruiting and hydrographic office duty at Cleveland. His last sea duty was on cruiser New Orleans.

NO WORD FROM STOVER.

La Roche Denies That There Has Been Any Department Friction.

No word came yesterday to his friends or to city officials from Park Commissioner Charles B. Stover, and there is still no explanation of his disappearance, except his own declaration before he left that he was going on a vacation. It was denied yesterday that there had been any friction between Mr. Stover and others in the department. Louis F. La Roche of the Board of Park Commissioners said Mr. Stover was not influenced in leaving by any unpleasantness either with his subordinates or over any contracts. He also denied a published report that early in October Mr. Stover had left a meeting of the board in anger.

Mr. La Roche holds the opinion of many of Mr. Stover's friends that the Commissioner went away because he felt the need of a complete rest and he believed the only way to get such a rest was by dropping ought of sight.

"I would not be surprised to see Mr. Stover walk in to his desk any day," said Mr. La Roche.

For four years the Commissioner has not taken a vacation, and he has put in long hours planning and carrying out the work of his department. S. C. Skipp, director of athletics at the University Settlement, 184 Eldridge Street, where Mr. Stover lived, said the Commissioner could be found sometimes as late as 2 o'clock in the morning at work. This he did day after day, and 8 o'clock each morning found him up and ready for work.

In a letter received from the Commissioner by Mr. La Roche from Philadelphia just before the continued absence of the city official began to cause comment he wrote that he expected to be away "for a longer period."

Mr. La Roche said the Commissioner had brought his work up to date before he went away.

"I see no cause for worry," said Mr. La Roche. "The Commissioner may be back now any day."

AIDS A GIRL PRISONER.

Magistrate Waits Long to Grant Bail to Rose Selinski.

Rose Selinski, the eighteen-year-old girl who was arrested at the Thirty-sixth Street station of the Culver line of the elevated railway in Brooklyn on Saturday night, on the charge of Thomas McGowan, an ironworker, who alleged that she had picked his pocket, was arraigned before Magistrate Voorhees in the Fifth Avenue Police Court yesterday and her hearing was adjourned until this morning. McGowan said on Saturday that he had seen the girl take his purse, which contained $22. Yesterday he made no such definite charge, saying that she had been behind him in the crush at the Brooklyn Bridge, and that he felt her pushing against him. The girl denied the charge and the money was not found on her.

Magistrate Voorhees said in court yesterday that he would immediately release the girl if he had the authority to do so. He remained at the police station until 11 o'clock on Saturday night until bail was obtained for her so that she would not have to go to a cell.

BURNING SHIP SAFE IN BERMUDA HARBOR

The Balmes Convoyed to Port and the Pannonia Heads for New York with the Rescued.

DUE TO ARRIVE TUESDAY

Cargo Still Ablaze When the Vessel Reaches Hamilton, but Big Pumps Soon Subdue the Flames.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 16.—The Spanish steamer Balmes, which caught fire at sea, arrived here this morning accompanied by the Pannonia of the Cunard Line, to which vessel the Balmes' 103 passengers had been transferred at sea.

The fire was still burning in the hold of the Balmes when she arrived in St. George's Harbor, but pumps were set to work and the fire was soon extinguished.

The Pannonia proceeded on her voyage to New York with all the passengers of the Balmes on board. No one was injured, and all were well when the Pannonia left this port.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 16.—With her cotton cargo on fire, the Balmes was towed into St. George's Harbor this morning by the tugs Gladisfen and Powerful, convoyed by the Cunard Liner Pannonia. The Pannonia had on board 103 passengers of the Balmes, taken off the burning ship Friday morning in mid-ocean, and while heavy seas were running, after the Pannonia had made a forced draught run of 150 miles in answer to wireless calls for help.

When the Balmes came to anchor in the harbor, her hatches were lifted and great clouds of smoke belched forth, but powerful pumps soon sent tons of water into her hold and drowned out the fire. The steamer is in good condition except for the damage done by the water and the fire in her cargo.

The Pannonia, when she had finished her task of convoying the Balmes, pointed her bow toward New York and steamed away at 10 o'clock this morning, the passengers of the Balmes lining her decks and cheering lustily.

The fire on the Balmes was discovered on Wednesday night at 11 o'clock while the steamer was plowing eastward on her trip to Cadiz, Spain, from Galveston and Havana. The flames were in Hold 6 and spread rapidly, the smoke penetrating to the engine room and the stoke hold. The second engineer and several members of the crew were almost suffocated, but stuck to their posts.

The wireless operator, by direction of Capt. Ruiz, then began sending out calls for help. The call reached the Pannonia, some 180 miles to the north, bound for New York, and Capt. Robert Capper answered that he would come to the aid of the distressed ship. The British cruiser Suffolk also answered the Belmes' plea, but the message she sent was indistinct.

Turning southward, the Pannonia, under forced draft, raced at top speed toward the spot where the Balmes had said she was in distress. All of Wednesday night and throughout Thursday Capt. Capper pressed the Pannonia. On Thursday night he sighted the Spanish vessel, and soon the Pannonia was alongside the burning vessel.

Capt. Capper stood by the Balmes until morning and then took off her passengers, the Captain and crew remaining on board their ship to navigate her, and fight the fire. When the transfer of passengers had been made the Pannonia and Balmes headed for Bermuda.

The crew of the Balmes fought the fire throughout Friday, but all the time it continued to gain headway. Saturday night the fire had reached such proportions that it was thought it might spread to the rum on the hold, and that it might be necessary to abandon the vessel. The crew, however, never lagged in the fight, and when the tugs picked up the Balmes and towed her into St. George's this morning, the powerful pumps put aboard soon quenched the flames.

At no time till the hatches were lifted here were there any signs of the fire above the decks, except the presence of heavy smoke.

Capt. D. J. Roberts, Marine Superintendent of the Cunard Line, said last night that the only message he had seen from Bermuda was one saying that the Pannonia had arrived with her convoy, the Spanish steamer Balmes, at 10 o'clock in the morning, and had proceeded for New York with the 103 passengers she had rescued.

"If she has fair weather," said the Captain, "the Pannonia should reach the Ambrose Channel Lightship about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and may not dock until Wednesday morning early."

In addition to the passengers from the Balmes, the Cunarder has on board several hundred immigrants from the Mediterranean.

DEFENDS SPORTING PARSON

Archbishop of York Also Extols Hunting as Christian Pastime.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The Archbishop of York, preaching this afternoon near York at the dedication of a memorial erected to the memory of a clergyman who was killed while hunting with a pack a year ago, made a defense of the sporting parson.

There might be some, he said, who found it difficult to understand how there could be a close connection between hunting and the life of a Christian man, still more of a Christian clergyman. He would be a very bold man indeed, said the Archbishop, who would set forth the argument that hunting was so cruel that it was absolutely wrong, and if it was not absolutely wrong, then it was like other things—the good or evil of it depended precisely upon the manner in which it was used. It is possible, he said, to contend that a very great balance of happiness to God's creatures is due to hunting of man—for the horse, the dog, and even for the fox. The very best Yorkshire Christians who ever lived, he said, had been keen sportsmen.

ROYAL SHOTS AS RIVALS.

King George and Archduke to Test Their Skill In Marksmanship.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—A friendly contest of their skill in marksmanship as sportsmen will begin on Tuesday between King George and the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, and will be one of the most interesting sporting events ever arranged.

The Archduke, who is visiting this country, will be entertained by the King at Windsor, where shooting parties have been arranged in Windsor Forest.

The King is a notable shot, while the Archduke also has a big reputation, especially for his skill with the rifle, in this country, but it is believed that the King will prove his superiority with the shotgun.

PLAN TO SUE HAMMERSTEIN.

Singers Obtained Writs of Seizure on His Property in France.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Owing to Oscar Hammerstein's postponement of the opening of his New York opera house twenty singers who are said to have been engaged by him have applied to the courts here and have obtained writs of seizure of Hammerstein's property in France. Among them is Mlle. Mathe Shenal of the Opéra Comique, who says she is determined to sue Mr. Hammerstein.

Maurice Renaud, the baritone, and others who were under contract to Hammerstein, say they have not decided just what course they will pursue. Holders of minor contracts assert that the postponement of the opening in New York means to them a total loss of salary for the season. It is believed that they will take collective action against Mr. Hammerstein.

LARKIN BEGINS FIGHT FOR BRITISH LABOR

Welcome by Thousands of Manchester Workers Impresses Dublin Strike Leader.

DELIVERS A FIERY SPEECH

Tells of Dublin Social Conditions and the Horrors of Its Slums and Jail Life.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—James Larkin, the Dublin labor agitator, began a crusade in England to-day against the Government, in reprisal for his imprisonment in connection with the recent labor disorders in the Irish capital, by delivering a fiery speech in Manchester, evoking one of the most remarkable demonstrations the latter city has had for a long time.

The meeting in the Free Trade Hall was timed to begin at 3 P. M., but two hours before that time the streets were crowded and the approaches to the hall were soon impassable.

The hall itself held fully five thousand people.

The demand for tickets was such that as much as $5 a piece was offered for admission. Inside the hall a choir of young women sang and the organ played the "Marseillaise" and other songs. Young women wearing the "Red Cap of Liberty" sold programmes.

Larkin was obviously impressed by his reception, and spoke in impassioned tones. He denied that he had called for a general strike in support of the Dublin workers, leaving that action to the English trade unions. At the same time, he said, he appealed to the English unionists to stand by the strikers to the death. He drew graphic pictures of social conditions in Dublin and the horrors of its slums and jail life. He said that if his colleagues in Mountjoy Prison were not liberated he wanted to rejoin them there.

Referring to the report that he lived in a mansion and drove a motor car, he exclaimed:

"If ever a man deserved a mansion or a motor car, that man stands here—Jim Larkin!"

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The employers of the United Kingdom are forming a new union and purpose to raise a guarantee fund of $20,000,000 in order to protect themselves against strike movements by the trades unions and other labor organizations.

INSANITY AS CHARLTON PLEA

Lawyers Seek New York Testimony as to His Past Life.

NAPLES, Nov. 16.—Giovanni Porzio and Signor Catapano, counsel for the defense in the case of Porter Charlton, the American who is to stand trial at an early date at Como on a charge of having murdered his wife, returned from that place to-day. They have prepared a long statement outlining circumstances which they allege are favorable to Charlton, and this will be submitted to the investigating Judge to-morrow.

The attorneys said to-day that about fifteen witnesses residing in New York State will be interrogated by a commission on Charlton's past life and the character of the Charlton couple. They are anxious to obtain the deposition of Mrs. Charlton's first husband, Neville H. Castle, formerly a lawyer of San Francisco. They hope to be able to induce the Crown Prosecutor to order an investigation by alienists of Charlton's mental state

RAISING A "MARTYR" FUND.

Russian Newspaper Working for a Monument to Yushinsky.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Monday, Nov. 17.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph sends the following: "The Novoe Vremya has started a public subscription for a monument over the grave of the murdered boy, Yushinsky. Among the letters of the first subscribers to the fund published in M. Suvorin's paper, is one signed by Count P. Lansdorff, who requests that his contribution be applied toward the erection of a monumental shrine over the tomb of the lad 'who was tortured to death by Jews.' In this way the Russian anti-Semitic fanatics seem determined to perpetuate the blood ritual delusion.

"Inquiries at the Ministry of Justice elicited the statement that no notice had yet been received of the expected protest on the part of the public prosecutor against the verdict of the jury in acquitting Beiliss."

STOP SUFFRAGIST MEETING.

Police Arrest Leaders of a Demonstration Near Asquith's House.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Attempts to address a meeting of the Women's Freedom League from the steps leading from Downing Street to the Horse Guards' Parade, led to the arrest this evening of four members of the League.

The women were a deputation who had left at the Premier's residence a copy of a resolution passed at an earlier meeting demanding that the mercy shown to Larkin, the Irish labor agitator, should be extended to the imprisoned suffragettes.

Subsequently the women addressed a crowd from the steps at the foot of the street until a force of police arrived and arrested them.

SPELLS THROUGH HER SKIN.

French Girls Also Reflects the Village News, Says Matin Writer.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—A strange narrative of a little girl whose skin reddens in fantastic words and phrases comes from a little Picardy village. The village priest, the schoolmaster, and dozens of other persons say they have witnessed this "miracle" writing.

The girl is Raymonde Beedlard, the twelve-year-old daughter of a pork butcher. Some weeks ago while she was in school the design of a ladder appeared on her forearm. A few days later a branch of mistletoe appeared in the same spot, and the French word for the plant appeared just above it.

Shortly after this the signs became more frequent, and appeared on the arms, legs, and forehead. Sometimes entire phrases appeared referring to daily events in the village. The girl is able to tell the Christian names of visitors and persons whom she never has seen before, the names appearing on her arm.

A most curious incident of this kind was reported by Henry Vidal of the Matin, who went to see the girl.

"What is my Christian name?" he asked her.

A few minutes later the letters began to appear on her knee, letter by letter, until the name Henry became visible, and before it disappeared Vidal took a photograph of it.

NAPLES COMPLAINS OF OUR SAILORS

Press Describes Conduct of Some as "Deplorable," Charging Molestation of Citizens.

OFFICERS AT SISTINE MASS

Attend Celebration of Anniversary of Pius's Coronation—Pontiff Present.

ROME, Nov. 16.—While the behavior of the sailors of the American fleet which is visiting Italian waters has been mostly exemplary, some of the newspapers complain that at Naples the actions of a few bluejackets were "deplorable." In some instances, these papers charge, peaceful citizens were molested, and the behavior of the sailors caused exasperation, notwithstanding the traditional hospitality of the Neapolitan people toward foreign sailors.

Several fights have occurred among the sailors themselves, with the result that some of the men have been taken to hospitals. Some incidents are cited which, although not very serious in themselves, caused not a little annoyance. In one case a sailor put a bottle of champagne in his pocket and declined to pay more than 10 cents for it. He was followed by the proprietor of the place, who was roughly handled when he attempted to recover his property. In another case a group of sailors tore a feather from a woman's hat and struggled among themselves as to who should wear it in his cap.

The newspapers urge the authorities to check such occurrences.

Officers of the fleet were present today at the ceremony in the Sistine Chapel in connection with the anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius X. Among those who occupied seats in the special tribune were Rear Admiral Cameron McR. Winslow and Lieut. Commander A. B. Keating of the Arkansas, Capt. William J. Maxwell of the Florida, Chaplain William H. I. Reany of the Utah, and Chaplain Curtis H. Dickins of the Florida. Others who attended were members of the Diplomatic Corps, many of the Knights of Malta, and a large sprinkling of the aristocracy of Rome.

A large number of American sailors stood in line in the halls leading to the chapel to witness the passage of the Pontiff, who was escorted by twenty-five Cardinals. Following in the procession were Patriarchs, Archbishops, Bishops, the members of the congregations, and the heads of religious orders. Contingents of the various guards added to the picturesqueness of the scene. The Sistine choir, conducted by Father Lorenzo Perosi, the noted composer, furnished magnificent music.

The Pope sat on the throne, afterward returning to his apartments in his chair. Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, celebrated pontifical mass and pronounced the benediction.

WON'T RETURN TO PRINCE.

Princess Marie Says She Never Will Go Back to Her Swedish Lord.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 16.—The official news agency announces that the Princess Marie, the wife of Prince William of Sweden, has declared her determination never to return to her husband, and that all efforts to induce her to reconsider her decision have failed.

Prince William of Sweden and the Princess, who was the Grand Duchess Pavlovna, daughter of the Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovitch, were married at Tsarskoe Selo in 1908. The Princess left her husband recently because of domestic troubles, and it has been reported that negotiations were proceeding between the courts of St. Petersburg and Stockholm for the dissolution of the marriage.

Austria Frees C. P. R. Agent on Bail

VIENNA, Nov. 16.—Samuel Altman, the Vienna agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, arrested in connection with the alleged emigration fraude, was released to-day on bail, fixed at 150,000 kroner, ($30,000.)

The public prosecutor will decide whether further proceedings shall be taken against him.

CITY HALL TABLET TO FIRST MAYOR

Thomas Willett, Appointed by English Governor in 1664, to be Honored Now.

MAYOR GAYNOR'S PROPOSAL

His Committee Sought In Vain for a Picture—The Tablet Designed by Henry Bacon.

A tablet in memory of Thomas Willett, first Mayor of New York, has been presented to the city, to be put up in the City Hall as the result of the efforts of a committee appointed by Mayor Gaynor, of which Alexander H. Spencer is Chairman. In a letter to Mayor Kline, Mr. Spencer tells of the circumstances under which the attention of the late Mayor was called to the neglected grave of Mayor Willett at East Providence, R. I., and the absence of any portrait of him in the City Hall.

An attempt was made, says Mr. Spencer, to discover some miniature or picture, from which a portrait could be painted, but that was impossible. Consequently it was decided that all that could be done was to erect a tablet to the first Mayor's memory.

The tablet bears this inscription:

THOMAS WILLETT.
MDCX. MDCLXXIV.
THE FIRST MAYOR OF NEW YORK.
Under a patent granted by James, Duke of York, he was appointed in 1665 for a one-year term by Gov. Richard Nicolls, and served a second term in 1667.

In his letter to Mayor Kline, Mr. Spencer recalls the historical circumstances of Willett's appointment. He says:

Let us turn out thoughts backward for a moment to that epochal year in the history of our city, 1664, which saw Gov. Richard Nicolls approaching the Harbor of New Amsterdam with his fleet of little vessels carrying in all some sixty-two guns, and demanding and obtaining in the name of Charles II. the peaceful surrender of the Island of Manhttes and its dependent territory. We are reminded of that most dramatic scene in the Council Chamber within the fort whereat Nicolls's letter of demand was read to the assembled Schepens, the climax of which was reached when that choleric old warhorse, Gov. Peter Stuyvesant, in his unrestrained indignation seized and tore Nicolls's letter into pieces. Directly after, however, as you will recall, calmer thoughts prevailed, the torn fragments of the letter were gathered up and pasted together, and the town of New Amsterdam was sensibly and gracefully handed over to the English.

Then Mr. Spencer thus describes the personality of the first Mayor of New York:

A little before this period a man had come from Holland and settled in Plymouth. He had become a land owner and a man of consequence in that Colony. He had gained property also in New Amsterdam. He spoke the English, Dutch, and French languages, and, not improbably, some of the Indian dialects. He seems to have been gifted with an equable temperament and a highly developed diplomatic faculty. So much was this the case that on various occasions he became the emissary and peacemaker between the whites and the Indians, and also between the Dutch and the English. By reason of his travels back and forth and his much intercourse with the Colonists, both of New England and New Amsterdam, he had, indeed, become persona grata to an exceptional extent to both English and Dutch settlers. This man was Thomas Willett.

Mr. Spencer also calls attention to the fact that the City Club has recently marked the grave of Mayor Willett in East Providence, R. I.

In conclusion Mr. Spencer states that the money for the tablet has been collected in the main through Andrew A. Bonton, a lineal descendant of Mayor Willett. He also extends the thanks of his committee to R. T. H. Halsey, until lately a member of the Art Commission; John Quincy Adams, Secretary of that body, and Henry Bacon, who designed the tablet. The attention of Mayor Gaynor was called to the long neglect of his predecessor by Arthur E. Warner of The Elizabeth Daily Journal.

Daylight on Saks evening clothes

¶ Home from your labors and into a tuxedo or full dress that you may properly fulfil the engagements of the evening.

¶ Into a Saks tuxedo or full dress garment that in fulfilling the engagements of evening you do not overlook the requirements of style.

¶ For remember this, that you can less afford to take chances with evening clothes than with your day attire.

¶ In the latter there are considerations of fabric and color and cut, but whatever style there is in an evening garment depends upon the tailoring and cut alone.

¶ So that, in purchasing evening clothes, you should patronize Saks', where style is a fixed quantity and the element of risk is nil.

¶ A Saks evening suit is a thing of contour and curves, capable in conception, consummate in cut and jocund with style.

CONSTIPATION

HINT THAT ZELAYA MAY BE EXTRADITED

Washington Hears United States May Be Asked to Send Him Back to Nicaragua.

OLD CHARGES ARE REVIVED

Supreme Court at Managua Considering Indictments for Murder and Robbery.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Latin-American exiles in Washington, as well as members of the Diplomatic Corps from the Central American Republics, are discussing with keen interest the interview with J. Santos Zelaya, ex-President of Nicaragua, which was printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday. In that interview he said the "Dear Tony" series of letters from William Sulzer to ex-Senator Don Antonio Frias of Cuba, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Aug. 24, were among the most important documents he ever had seen touching on the relations of the United States and Latin-America.

An interesting development here today was the statement in a reliable quarter that the United States Government might receive a request from the Nicaraguan Government for the extradition of Gen. Zelaya on accusations of robbery and assassination. It was said that the Legislative Assembly of Nicaragua had cited Gen. Zelaya to the Supreme Court at Managua on a charge of robbery, involving the sum of $11,500.

The Nicaraguan Legislative Assembly, it also was said, had arranged for the trial of Zelaya before the Supreme Court on a charge of assassination, the specification being that he had brought about the assassination of four or five natives, two of whom were alleged to have been burned in the public square at Managua. It is asserted here that the present administration in Nicaragua has discovered a secret cave or chamber under the palace where Gen. Zelaya lived, in which human bones and skeletons of prisoners were found, and that some of these bones were exhibited to members of the Nicaraguan Congress in connection with the action of the Assembly in asking for the trial of Zelaya.

Under the code in force in Nicaragua Gen. Zelaya could be tried and sentenced in his absence. But it is probable that no attempt will be made to extradite Zelaya unless the Supreme Court at Managua convicts him. The extradition treaty of 1905 between the United States and Nicaragua makes the offenses of assassination and robbery extraditable.

There has been a vast amount of gossip in Latin-American circles in Washington ever since Nov. 6, when Gen. Zelaya arrived in New York City, and particularly since Nov. 13, when Mr. Bryan's private secretary informed a representative of Gen. Zelaya that Mr. Bryan would not see him. Diplomats here are wondering what developments would follow conferences which it was reported Gen. Zelaya would have in New York City with former followers, among them Gen. Julian Irlas, ex-Minister General of Nicaragua.

Gen. Irlas resigned on Dec. 13, 1909, seven days after Gen. Zelaya quit the Presidency of Nicaragua and fled. Advices from New Orleans last week were that Gen. Irlas had arrived there on Nov. 13 and was going to New York City for conferences with Gen. Zelaya, and that Giuseppe Garibaldo, a soldier of fortune, who arrived simultaneously at New Orleans, also was bound for New York. These reports have created considerable speculation among Latin Americans regarding the plans of Gen. Zelaya. In the same connection there has been a revival of gossip over the presence of Cipriano Castro, former President of Venezuela, and of Gen. Zelaya at the same hotel in Havana on Feb. 26 last, two days after the publication of a special dispatch from Mobile in THE NEW YORK TIMES, which credited Castro and Zelaya with being the backbone of a plan to overthrow Honduras, Guatemala, and Nicaragua and merge those republics into a general Central American Union.

SULZER'S GUATEMALA DEAL.

Attention of Congress Called to It—Also Knox in Zelaya Episode.

Joseph F. Darling, who filed with Speaker Champ Clark of the House of Representatives a forty page document giving the history of the "Dear Tony" letters of William Sulzer, appearing in the issue of THE TIMES for Aug. 24, said yesterday at his office, 116 Nassau Street, that he had not received any letter from Mr. Clark in reference to his communication.

It was said, however, in a dispatch from Washington printed in THE TIMES yesterday morning that Speaker Clark acknowledged having received a complaint from Mr. Darling, but that he refused to make its contents public on the ground that it was not in a form to be presented to Congress. Mr. Clark was quoted as having said he had written to Mr. Darling suggesting that he make certain changes in the document to make it admissable as a petition or memorial to the House.

"I have had no letter from Speaker Clark," said Mr. Darling. "But I would be very glad to receive one, and would also be very glad to make any change that Speaker Clark might suggest in the form of my complaint and request for a Congressional investigation of Central American affairs in their relationship to certain groups of concession hunters and to the 'Dear Tony' letters that passed between William Sulzer when he was Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee and ex-Senator José Antonio Frias of Cuba.

"Similar documents to that I sent to Speaker Clark I also sent to Vice President Marshall as presiding officer of the Senate. That is, I believe, as far as any private citizen may go to bring a matter such as this to the notice of Congress.

"The matters involved, of course, are much greater than the scope of my private interest in Guatamalan claims that I have prosecuted unavailingly before the State Department for more than six years. Really, a private individual ought not to have to push consideration of this matter upon Congress since the honor of Congress itself is the principal thing at stake, and the sad impression made in Central America by the known private use made of public appearances on the floor of the House is the thing it is most necessary to clear up."

One part of the forty-page review of the "Dear Tony" correspondence which Mr. Darling filed with Congress deals with deposits Mr. Sulzer made in the defunct Carnegie Trust Company on dates on which he forwarded to Guatemala speeches made in Congress in favor of the recognition of J. J. Estrada as President of Nicaragua, and in favor of free coffee in the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill.

"If Congress will only 'investigate,'" said Mr. Darling, "we will know at last why Secretary Knox made such a determined issue as to the two Americans executed by Zelaya after being caught with the rebel army, whereas many other Americans have suffered terrible hardships in Central America and no word has ever been said about them. I got out of Guatemala, where I went as an American citizen lawfully in pursuit of my business as a lawyer, only by escaping from jail and fleeing to Mexico. Mr. Sulzer knew of this case when he spoke of his great friendship for Guatemala on the floor of the House and of his regard for Cabrera, its President. Of the fifty men whose claims I took up as a lawyer, hardly half a dozen lived for more than a year.

"And while the people are taking account of these strange alliances between concession hunters and Congressmen powerful enough to shape American diplomatic relations in Central America, let them also remember that Lisandro Barillas escaped from Mr. Sulzer's dear friend, Cabrera, and took refuge in the National Palace in Mexico City. And that there, while under the protection of ex-President Diaz, he was murdered. Also that his murderers, after being caught and put on trial, turned out to be Guatemalan peasants, who testified that they had been hired to follow Barillas by Col. Castillo, the Chief of Staff of Cabrera's army.

"So it ought to be clear to all that the great amount of blame put upon the head of Zelaya and the high praise put upon Cabrera in State Department circles during the period of the 'Dear Tony' correspondence needs thorough investigation.

"Should not Mr. Knox be required to show the people, through testimony on the witness stand in a Congressional investigation, whether any other American citizens have ever been avenged by the United States Department of State as the two Americans were who were put to death after being caught in the revolutionary forces by Zelaya in Nicaragua?

"John Bassett Moore of the State Department has written a volume giving legal summaries of the cases against all spies caught and executed from the days of Nathan Hale down, and he does not give any parallel to the cases of the two Americans, whose death Mr. Knox objected to in such vigorous fashion.

"Those two Americans landed in Nicaragua, as is well known, from Guatemala only a short time before Frias was wiring to Spriggs to have the United States Government recognize Zelaya's enemy as the de facto President. A Congressional Committee should by all means investigate fully into the background of the cablegram to Spriggs, with Sulzer's speech in favor of the overthrow of Zelaya which immediately followed it, and the Knox action in its strange relationship to all other cases in international law of a similar nature."

Mr. Darling said he got out of Guatemala after being told it would not be healthy for him to remain there and represent his clients. He suggested that if an investigation should be called, the real situation would turn out to be that Zelaya firmly resisted all American concession hunters in Nicaragua, whereas Cabrera, in Guatemala, welcomed American adventurers, and allowed himself to be used by them to overthrow Zelaya.

MRS. BISHOP'S NEW MOVE.

Will Seek to Have Divorce Annulled, Statement in Her Name Says.

The New York City News Association last night sent out a statement signed "Mrs. J. C. Bishop," which had come to its office by mail in an envelope of the Hotel St. Regis. The statement purported to set forth Mrs. Bishop's attitude toward the interlocutory decree of divorce which she obtained from her husband several months ago. Mrs. Bishop returned from Europe last week, but has not applied for the final decree. Mr. Bishop has asked Justice Giegerich to have the court compel Mrs. Bishop to apply at once for the final decree or to have the interlocutory decree vacated. That motion is still pending. In the statement Mrs. Bishop says that her only recourse is to have the interlocutory decree annulled.

Mrs. Bishop is a guest at the St. Regis, but could not be seen last night so as to confirm the authorship of the statement, which is in part as follows:

"In regard to the annulling of my decree, I think any Judge or unbiased person will agree with me it is the only thing I can do—to have it annulled—for, as my decree stands now, I am thrown out upon the world after twenty years of married life without a provision made for the security of my support, home, furniture, or anything that is ordinarily allotted to a wife, and who has children, and without my present alimony being secured, thus placing me in a position that if Mr. Bishop cared to show the enmity against me that he has throughout this case he could go to the other side and not pay my alimony at all until he returned. If he should care to remain over there a year or more I would be absolutely helpless, as I have not a penny, with the exception of the alimony, to even spend on paper whereby I could serve him. If he were in any way honorable he would secure my alimony and settle my debts, which are small, and let me go in a dignified way."

FEDERAL BIRD LAW FIGHT.

Carmody Insists It Is Unconstitutional—Ready to Enforce His View.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 16.—Attorney General Carmody says his opinion that the Federal Migratory Bird law is unconstitutional will be followed by the State Conservation Commission, and that the enforcement of this view will be insisted upon by him throughout this State.

"The fact that it is a Federal statute that is involved does not lessen the force of my opinion," he said.

These assertions were made in a letter Mr. Carmody wrote to William T. Hornaday, Director of the New York Zoological Park, as a result of the criticisms which Mr. Hornaday directed at the Attorney General's opinion at the annual meeting of the American Ornithologists' Union in New York recently.

Mr. Carmody says he is ready to cooperate with Mr. Hornaday in bringing the question before the courts to test the validity of the Federal law. He tells the Zoo Director that "it is not the function of the Attorney General to make law, but to interpret it; not to comment upon its wisdom or its folly, but to determine whether it be a valid, legal enactment."

Dinner to Aaron J. Levy.

Friends and political associates of Aaron J. Levy are arranging a dinner in honor of his election as Justice of the Second District Municipal Court. It will be held in Hennington Hall, 214 Second Street, on Dec. 3. Invitations have been sent to Gov. Glynn, District Attorney Whitman, and to other public officials. Murray W. Stand, Secretary of the Neighborhood Dinner Committee, 167 Rivington Street, is in charge of the arrangements.

JEWISH FARMERS HELP THEMSELVES

Their Own Insurance, Their Credit and Purchase Systems Saving Them Much.

AGAIN IN CONVENTION HERE

City Residents Encouraged to Go Farming, but Not Those Averse to Work and Fond of Lights.

The fifth annual convention of the Federation of Jewish Farmers of America opened last evening at the Educational Alliance in East Broadway. Delegates representing 52 local organizations scattered through New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania attended, and 200 Jewish farmers from nearby counties were seated. The session was presided over by Ely Greenblatt of Botsford, Conn., President of the federation, and much of the time was taken up by the yearly reports of officers and the Chairmen of committees.

The only address of the evening was by President Alfred Jaretski of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid Society. He welcomed the delegates and told them to encourage Jewish residents of the cities to take to the farms and prosper, but cautioned them against making converts of men and women who feared hard work, and liked the lights and clamor of the cities, or those whose wives cared for company and liked to gossip. It was not worth being a farmer, he said, if one lacked ambition and had no visions of success.

The report read by Secretary J. W. Pincus showed that the federation since its last convention in 1912 had saved Jewish farmers many thousands of dollars through its co-operative credit unions, its co-operative fire insurance company in Sullivan and Ulster Counties in New York State, and its co-operative purchasing bureau in this city. The insurance company, organized in 1912, has had only a year to find itself, but in the report for the last eight months it was shown that insurance had been placed with the company totaling more than $500,000; that the losses recorded were for only $800, and that through its low premium rates and "fair play" it had saved the farmers $35,000. The company was organized, officials of the federation said, only after the regular insurance companies had asked such exorbitant rates that the Jewish country people were unable to properly insure their property on the income got from the soil. The federation plans to establish companies in other parts of the country whenever there is a call for them from farmers who guarantee support.

At present the Federation has seventeen co-operative agricultural credit unions in and about New York. Eight of them are in this State, five in New Jersey, and four in Connecticut. Since the unions were organized four years ago they have lent to the farmers $74,000. They have a total membership of 517 and have made 1,103 loans with a profit of $1,300, showing a yearly dividend of 13 per cent.

The credit unions comprise a system of personal credit, whereby short-term loans for productive purposes can be obtained for moderate amounts on easy terms. Whenever a group of Jewish farmers subscribe into a general fund $500 the Federation immediately advances $1,000 to the fund at 2 per cent. Loans not exceeding $100 may also be made by any member of the Federation direct from the Federation. These loans must be paid back within six months. It is said that this credit system among the Jewish farmers has been a great success during the past year.

During the four years since its establishment, the co-bureau has bought in supplies at $140,000 and has turned them over to the farmers at savings of $20,000.

The federation has sent lecturers into various sections of the country, teaching the farmer how to raise his crops and get the highest possible return from them. Through the work of Miss Ray Pesiman of the Council of Jewish Women, two auxiliaries for women and children have been founded, one in Connecticut and the other in New York State.

The convention will continue until Wednesday morning, afternoon and evening sessions being held. To-night at 7:30 o'clock Prof. Alexander E. Cance of the Massachusetts Agricultural College will deliver an address on "What Can We Learn from European Countries in Co-Operative Financing and Co-Operation in General?" Leonard G. Robinson, General Manager of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid Society, will tell of the work of the Jewish Farmers' Co-Operative Credit Unions during the present year.

WHY WE ARE THANKFUL

Most of our reasons for feeling thankful are strictly personal and relate exclusively to our own good fortune.

The benefits of the Gorham Company are, however, a reason for thankfulness that includes us all.

Those who require new silver for the table especially have reason to feel thankful for the provision made for them at Gorham's. In all those articles which grace and decorate the Thanksgiving Table Gorham's, in particular, excels.

Who of us is there who does not love to dwell fondly upon the mental image of the family Thanksgiving Table? We see it surrounded by an atmosphere of sentiment, well laden, beautifully appointed, a scene of peace and content. It is one of the sentimental milestones of the year, and we would all like to do what we can to realize this mental picture.

The Gorham stock of table silver supplies just those pieces you need to give the finishing touches to your Thanksgiving Table. This Thanksgiving Silver includes a great number of individual pieces, all beautiful, all in the best Gorham design.

Chief among the articles of table embellishment — articles that complete the Thanksgiving picture — are Candelabra, Centerpieces, Compotier, Candlesticks, Vases, Fruit Baskets, Fern Dishes. Certainly no Thanksgiving Dinner Table is complete without one of these at least — Candelabra, Centerpieces and Fruit Baskets. They lend a particular flavor of Thanksgiving to the Table.

Of the Thanksgiving Serving Pieces there is no end. Each one of these is useful and beautiful in its own way. Here are some that fairly make our mouths water in anticipation:

Carving Sets in great variety, Pudding Dishes, Platters, Punch Bowls, Roast Holders, Dressing Spoons, Gravy Spoons, Poultry Shears, Preserve Dishes, Celery Dishes, Ice Cream Dishes, Cake Baskets, Almond Dishes, Service Plates.

Don't these call up visions of the bountifully laden Thanksgiving Board? To go on with the minor articles for the Thanksgiving Table—good then or at any other time—there are:

Finger Bowls and Plates, Bells, Grape Dishes, Napkin Rings, Ice Bowls, Cigar Jars, Corkscrews, Fruit Dishes, Cracker and Cheese Dishes, Peppers and Salts, Bread and Butter Plates, Tea Set and Tray, Coffee Set and Tray, Claret Pitchers and Decanters, Bonbon Dishes, Preserve Dishes, Casseroles, Patty Dishes, Bouillon Cups and Saucers, Coffee Cups and Saucers, Sandwich Plates, Condiment Sets, Candy Dishes, Fruit Plates, French Roll Baskets, Nut Dishes and Nut Crackers, Sugar Baskets, Sherbet Cups.

These are all mere details for a completed picture. The very mention of them calls up pleasant visions, bright anticipations. We are now very close to Thanksgiving Day, and we doubtless all have many reasons to feel thankful. Gorham's will help you realize your ideal of the perfect Thanksgiving Dinner.

Anything for the Thanksgiving Table, whether for embellishment or service, in silver or plated ware, can be procured at Gorham's.

TILDEN CLUB TALKS OF OUSTING MURPHY

Independent Democrats Are Divided on the Method to be Adopted.

DOUBT BATTLE'S SINCERITY

Believe Murphy's Enemies Up-State Would Seat Contesting Delegation in State Convention.

The leaders in the movement to drive Murphy and Murphyism out of Tammany Hall are divided between three courses of action. This was made apparent at a meeting yesterday afternoon of representatives of various independent Democratic organizations, under the auspices of the Samuel J. Tilden Democratic Club of the Nineteenth Assembly District, at 256 West 116th Street. The meeting was called for the purpose of forming definite plans for the organization of a permanent Anti-Tammany Democratic Union. The three plans advanced in the course of the meeting were:

1. The establishment of an absolutely independent Democratic organization, which shall hold aloof from the party primaries, and fight Tammany from the outside.
2. The formation of independent clubs in each Assembly district, which shall enter the primaries and contest the present leadership of the districts where such leadership was objectionable.
3. A combination of the two methods.

Richard E. Weldon, President of the Samuel J. Tilden Democratic Club, said in opening the meeting:

"Tammany Hall must be destroyed. The fight must be waged from the outside, for it is my opinion that were these independent oragnizations to go into Tammany Hall with a view to reforming it they would be swallowed up in short order.

"There has been a slight misunderstanding as to the purpose of this meeting. It was called to ascertain what progress has been made in getting independent Democrats to join with us in an organization to overthrow Tammany. Our aim is simply to co-operate with the organization of independent clubs in adjoining districts and build up strong anti-Tammany organizations, so that when the movement has been laid out in its final shape by experienced leaders, such as James J. Martin and Stuart G. Gibboney, we will be able to join forces with them."

W. J. Timmons, Chairman of the Columbia University Mitchel Club, reported that steps were being taken to organize all students qualified to vote in this city into anti-Tammany clubs in their districts. He said he had received assurances of support for the new movemen from the Fort Washington Democratic Club of the Twenty-third Assembly District and from the Cleveland Democracy.

Edward P. Sobel of the Thirty-first Assembly District said that he had written to President Wilson asking the latter to lend his name to the new movement and the organization about to be formed, which he said should be named the Wilson Democracy. He had received a reply, he said, from Secretary Tumulty advising him that the President would consider the suggestion.

Edward N. Ornitz of the Twenty-fourth Assembly District reported that a number of civic organizations in that district were ready to join the fight for clean government in New York City.

John S. Donohue, representing the anti-Tammany Democratic organization of the Twenty-sixth District, which is the bailiwick of State Senator Frawley, reported that a recount finished the day before had revealed that Greenberg, the Tammany candidate for Assembly in that district, had been defeated by Steinberg, his Bull Moose opponent, by seven votes.

A speaker who said he represented the Twenty-third Assembly District said in advocating the combination method of fighting Murphy both in and out of Tammany:

Murphy's Waiting Game.

"Mr. Murphy realizes that the result of the recent election was only made possible by a complete fusion of all of the anti-Tammany forces in this city. He also realizes that such fusion is impossible in a State election, such as will occur next Fall.

"He knows that next year there will be at least three separate tickets in the field. He knows that former Gov. Sulzer is likely to appear as an independent candidate seeking vindication, and that he has a strong following up-State among voters who insist upon regarding him in the light of a martyr.

"With a Republican candidate, a Progressive candidate, and an independent candidate in the field to divide the vote up-State as well as in this city, and with a whole year in which to repair his shattered organization, Mr. Murphy feels that there is a splendid chance for him to go up to the Harlem River with a sufficient plurality for the Democratic ticket to wipe out the plurality of the Republican candidate. He is even now scheming to get back his grip upon the Democracy of the State, and there is only one way to beat him.

"The fight against Tammany Hall must be waged both within and outside that organization. In every Assembly district in New York County our independent organizations must enter the primary fights to unseat such present leaders as are of the objectionable type. In a few districts we will succeed, but not in a sufficient number to take control of the County Executive Committee. In the other districts let us nominate, by petition if necessary, independent Democrats for Assembly and Senate. We must do this in every district where the nominees of the Tammany organization are of the 'Al' Smith or 'Jim' Frawley kind. Tammany Hall will never survive that kind of warfare from within and without. It must go down to destruction, and a new Democracy will rise triumphant in New York County.

Counts on Up-State Support.

"The chief merits of this plan of campaign," continued the speaker, "will be that by entering the party primaries we will be able to send a contesting delegation from New York County to the State convention next Fall, which otherwise we would be unable to do. Knowing the sentiment of up-State leaders against Murphy and Tammany, I have little doubt as to the result. I believe that a contesting delegation would be seated, but if we should fail to seat our delegates we would, at any rate, prevent Murphy from controlling the temporary organization of the convention, and with such a fight on his hands in his own county he could hardly maintain the rôle of dictator to the up-State Democrats."

Resolutions were adopted at the close of the meeting commending the attitude of Gov. Glynn in regard to reforms of the primary and election laws, and urging upon him the passage of a State-wide Direct Primary law.

Doubt Battle's Sincerity.

Independent Democrats are suspicious of the motives which actuated George Gordon Battle, law partner of United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, in issuing a call to the Democratic supporters of Mayor-elect Mitchel to join Tammany Hall and do battle against the present leadership within the ranks of that organization. John J. Halligan, anti-Tammany leader of the Thirteenth Assembly District, said:

"George Gordon Battle always has been a loyal adherent of Tammany, and his entire political activity has been identified with Charles F. Murphy. He may be sincere in his sudden demand for a reorganization of Tammany Hall. However, he is not going to mislead the intelligent anti-Tammany Democrats of this city. The fight will be waged against Murphy and Murphyism without recourse to the sage counsels of Mr. Battle, although if he is really determined to join in this movement his support will not be declined.

"I do not take the position that all of the present Tammany leaders are objectionable. Leaders of the type of Ross Williams and Thomas Rush are a distinct asset to any political organization, just as leaders of the type of 'Tom Foley,' 'Jimmy' Hagan, John F. Curry, or The McManus are a distinct detriment. If Mr. Battle desires to effect a normal change in the leadership of the present Democratic organization, which would leave the personnel of the Executive Committee practically unchanged, he is not going to delude those men who have entered this fight in real earnest."

Other leaders in the independent Democratic movement were disposed to regard Mr. Battle's pronunciamento of Saturday in the same light. James J. Devaney, who will lead the fight in the Eleventh Assembly District against State Senator Thomas J. McManus, was equally sharp in his censure of any attempt on the part of Tammany Hall to assume control of the destinies of the new organizatior..

"Murphy and his Delmonico directorate are in a tight hole, and they know it," he remarked. "It is not so much that Murphy's organization has been defeated in New York City. The real crux of the matter is that Murphy's leadership has been repudiated by the Democracy of the entire State. When the new organization has been perfected, and when we og after the tiger's skin, we can bank on practically two-thirds of the up-State leaders to recognize in us the real Democratic organization of New York County."

GOV. GLYNN BEGINS ECONOMY AT HOME

Will Ask Legislature for Only $71,020 for Executive Department for Next Fiscal Year.

SULZER OBTAINED $141,517

All State Departments Will Be Required to Keep Their Estimates Down to a Minimum.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 16.—Gov. Glynn decided to-day to ask the next Legislature for an appropriation of $71,020 for the expenses of the Executive Department for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1914. This is $70,497 less than William Sulzer obtained from the present Legislature, and $31,934 less than Gov. Dix asked for in his last year.

"As long as I am asking all other heads of departments, even officials of all our institutions, to help me bring down the expenses of the State," said Gov. Glynn, "I believe I ought to take the initiative and show what can be done in the pruning line in the Executive Department."

With H. Gordon Lynn, Deputy Commissioner of Efficiency and Economy, Gov. Glynn spent most of to-day going over the financial requirements of the various State Departments. The Governor expressed the intention of closely analyzing the estimates submitted by all departments, so that the annual appropriation and supply bills may be kept at a minimum. This can be done, the Governor believes, without impairing efficiency.

As the next fiscal year begins Oct. 1, 1914, Gov. Glynn will, with a just apportionment of the $71,020 which he asks appropriated for the Executive Department, have $17,755 for the three months which will remain of his term, leaving $53,271 for the remainder of the fiscal year available for the use of the Governor who succeeds him.

The appropriation for the Executive Mansion, it is understood, is intended to cover only actual necessities. No elaborate scheme of redecorating or refurnishing will be followed out. It is not the Governor's intention to limit the social side of the administration to the extent that his predecessor did, however. Mrs. Glynn will be active socially, as she has been heretofore. The Governor's family will move into the Executive Mansion to-morrow.

The Governor plans to hold numerous conferences this week with labor leaders, representatives of casualty insurance companies, and legislators, with a view to shaping his proposed workmen's compensation and direct primaries legislation for presentation to the Legislature when it reconvenes Dec. 8.

Meanwhile official Albany is anxiously awaiting some definite word from the Executive concerning his appointments. Members of all factions have found the Governor cordial and eager to learn their views on everything concerning the conduct of the State Government, especially his proposed primaries and workmen's compensation acts, but his promises have been few, if any. And if he has made promises, he has succeeded in placing the ban of silence on those to whom they were made.

There is not a single foot of waste in the Equitable Building

BEFORE the start of the Equitable Building's construction, the Owners, the Architects and the Builders, acting in conference and in concert, eliminated every foot of waste space from the plans. The result is a building in which every available foot of space is on an earning basis and not wasted forever by a fruitless supersession of architecture over utility. Thus, you can take a minimum of space in the Equitable and get the maximum out of it.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of this date.

"Mrs. Waters Liked it as much as I did." The pastor of the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, wrote that about a new book, "The Way Home." He talks one evening a week to a thousand of his people. One week it was about "The Way Home." And they asked him to talk about it again the next week. This book is a novel by the man who wrote "The Inner Shrine," and it is a big story about single life, married life, and business life.

THE IRON TRAIL

¶ Next time you build a bridge it will save time if you get Murray O'Neil, a builder and something more—in Rex Beach's new novel, "The Iron Trail." This is O'Neil's story. He's no handsome dashing hero, but a tall, heavy man of forty, with slightly graying temples and the facial marks of strenuous endeavor. But he can love and fight and build. The story certainly is Alaska.

A CHANGED MAN

¶ Waiting supper for a busy New York husband—or for fate itself in Wessex—there's a story for you. Thomas Hardy tells it, with eleven others, in his new book called "A Changed Man"—a book to arouse the keen interest of every Hardy lover. They are like condensed novels—rich in Hardy's genius and idyllic of the Wessex country of Tess and Jude. There's a map at the end—you can see for yourself where lived the romantic milkmaid, the dragoon, the knight, Alicia, and the shepherd who saw.

ARMY HORSES TO JUMP AT GARDEN

International Competitions to be Feature of To-day's Programme at Horse Show.

NEW EXHIBITORS STRONG

Champions in the Different Classes Will Find It Harder to Win Ribbons This Year.

With the judging of the novice classes completed the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden will settle down to-day for the real business of the exhibition. While the show always opens on Saturday, that day is not regarded as one to attract a big crowd, as the programme of events does not include any of the important contests containing the international entries. The opening day is run in opposition to one of the two big football games of the season, which is played either at Princeton or New Haven, and attracts a great many out-of-town visitors who do not make any effort to get back to New York in time for the opening night.

Newcomers promise to give the regulars a hard fight for the ribbons, and judging from the results of the first day's judging a number of the horses which have remained practically unbeaten during the past few years are likely to go down to defeat. Walter Hanley of Providence, R. I., is one of the most prominent of the newcomers. His saddle horses have been selected with great care and many of them are expected to repeat the triumphs of the outdoor Summer circuit. His victories in the first day's show indicate further successes, and Mr. Hanley bids fair to succeed to the place held by his father, who was one of the best horsemen in the country.

Prominent among the numerous other new exhibitors is the Broadlawn Farms of Newton Square, Penn., which is owned by Mrs Anne Vanclaine. This stable is represented by a strong group of heavy harness horses. The Acacias Farm, owned by Mrs. Cornelius B. Mitchell, is another likely winner among the newcomers. M. F. Goodbody of London, England, is represented by a strong stable of saddle horses, and George A. Heyl will be a strong contender for premier honors.

There are several United States and foreign army officers who will play an important part in the awarding of prizes These include Capt. Walker Bell, Royal Canadian Dragoons; Lieut. R. G. Anderson, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A.; Lieut. Thomas B. Clarke, First Squadron, First Cavalry, N. G. N. Y.; Lieut. De Laissardieres, Ninth French Dragoons; Lieut. Baron de Weston, First French Cuirassiers, whose horse, Amazone, won the first International jumping event on Saturday night; Lieut. Marquis D'Orgeix, Sixth French Hussars; Lieut. Le Compt Albert d'Oultrement, First Belgium Lancers; Cheval er Edward de Selliers de Moranville, Second Belgium Regiment de Guides; Capt. J. R. Lindsey, West Point; Major M. F. McTaggart, Fifth British Lancers; Capt. R. M. Stuart Richardson, Eleventh British Hussars; Capt. W. T. Rodden, Canada, and Capt. Paul Rodzanko, Russian Chevelliers Gardes.

This morning special attention will be devoted to hackneys. Eight classes are on the programme, and the most interesting of these will be the competition for the championship for mares. This class will follow four classes for mares of different ages. With the hackneys out of the way, the first event in which the army officers will meet will occupy the attention of visitors. There are two classes for officers' chargers, one of which is the Plaza Cup. These two events have attracted horses from Russia, Norway, England, France, Belgium, Canada and the United States, and in each class the entries have been so big that it has been necessary to divide each event into two; one-half of each will be judged in the morning and the second half of the Plaza Cup is down for the afternoon, the other event going over to another day. The judging of these chargers is always interesting, because the charger should be almost a perfect horse and broken so well that he would stand even if a 12-inch gun were fired over his head.

In the afternoon harness horses will open the programme. Twenty saddle horses will come next and then roadsters will occupy the ring. This class of roadsters has twenty-nine entries, which is the largest in a roadster class in the history of the Horse Show. The support given to this class has been particularly gratifying to horse lovers generally, because the roadster is the gentleman's driving horse and the advent of the automobile almost drove the roadster out of the parks and driveways.

Following the Plaza Cup competition, in which the foreign officers will ride in uniform, there will be tandems, ladies' saddle horses, hunt teams, in which the riders will appear in the hunt uniform, and the afternoon show will wind up with the heavyweight class of qualified hunters.

The big event of the evening is an international contest in which all the foreign officers will ride. This is called for 9:50 o'clock and is for a prize offered by Judge William H. Moore. The horses will go twice around the course, and as all seem to be in the pink of condition the contest will be very keen. Thoroughbred hunters, militia mounts, ladies' phaetons, and saddle and harness horses will complete the programme.

The foreign army officers, the Directors of the association, and the judges are to be entertained this evening at a supper at Sherry's after the close of the show. Those who have been invited are Paul Moore, G. L. Boissevain, Frederick Bull, Robert A. Fairbairn, J. W. Harriman, Alfred B. Maclay, William H. Moore, E. T. Stotesbury, President Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, G. Mifflin Wharton, Col. P. A. Kenna, Lieut. Baron De Meslin, Lieut. Marquis D'Orgeix, Lieut. De Lassardieres, Capt. Victor Myssens, Lieut. Le Comte Albert De Oultrement, Chevalier Edward De Selliers de Moranville, Lieut. N. K. Helberg, Commandant Feline, W. E. Lindsay-Hogg, Capt. R. M. Stewart Richardson, Major M. F. McTaggart, Capt. Paul Rodzanke, Capt. L. R. Lindsey, Capt. George Vidmer, Major Douglas Young, Capt. Walker Bell, W. K. Bloodgood, Charles A. Baudouine, E. Von der Horst Koch, Capt. Conrad E. Babcock, Capt. L. R. PROGRESSIVE TRUST BILLS.

Victor Murdock to Introduce Three in Congress To-day.

Announcement was made yesterday at the National Headquarters of the Progressive Party, in the Forty-second Street Building, that Victor Murdock, the Progressive leader in the House of Representatives, would to-day introduce in Congress three bills embodying the national Progressive proposals to create an Interstate Trade Commission to prohibit unfair competition and to suppresa monopolies. The three bills are colloquially known as the "Trust Triplets" of the Progressive party. They are the joint production of Congressman Murdock, Dean William Draper Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania Law School; Herbert Knox Smith, former Commissioner of Corporations, and Donald R. Richberg, Director of the Progressive National Legislative Reference Bureau. They are thus described by Mr. Murdock:

"These three bills are the most advanced proposals for a solution of the nation's greatest problem. They will put the quietus forever upon the libel that the Progressive party stands for the acceptance of monopoly. If enacted they will solve the trust problem in its entirety. Briefly, they will accomplish three things:

"First, they will wipe out monopoly.

"Second, they will affirmatively establish the maintenance of fair competition, specifically and in terms and by clear-cut definition.

"Third, they will ercate a Trade Commission to relieve the courts of administrative functions in business regulation, and to bring quick and adequate relief to the small business man.

"Probably the most interesting feature of the bills is the definition of two kinds of monopoly—that created with the aid of unfair competition, business built up on an artificial basis, and that established on a basis naturally tending to monopoly. The bills make the distinction for the first time in legislation clearly and completely, and provide for equally vigorous action for the protection of the community against both natural and artificial monopolies."

COURT OF APPEALS COUNT.

How the Error Which Seemed to Elect Werner Was Made.

H. Richmond Armour, secretary to Judge Willard Bartlett, said last evening that carefully revised figures showed that Judge Bartlett was elected Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals by a plurality of about 4,000 over Judge William Werner, the Republican nominee. Friends of Judge Werner admitted that this figure was about correct. It was calculated, however, that the revised election tables for Kings and Queens Counties made the plurality nearer 4,500.

The fight for the Chief Judgeship was a close one, in which incomplete election tables and errors in arithmetic twice have made it appear that Judge Werner was elected. On last Saturday, however, the hopes of Judge Werner's supporters were destroyed by the discovery that an error of 3,000 had been made in his favor in making up the unofficial tables. The error was made in the office of the news agency which handled the returns for Greater New York.

The total vote for Judge Werner in the Twenty-third Assembly District in Queens County was 4,518. In making up the table of the vote by Assembly districts the figure 4 was misread for 7. To correct this error 3,000 votes had to be deducted from Judge Werner's total. As he was then apparently leading only by about 500 votes the correction gave his opponent a lead of 2,500. A retabulation of the vote of Queens County disclosed a large number of minor errors, which increased Judge Bartlett's plurality to about 4,500.

Name Scott for President of I. T. U.

At a meeting of printers held yesterday afternoon in the American Tract Society Building at 150 Nassau Street Marsden G. Scott, President of Typographical Union No. 6, was nominated for President of the International Typographical Union to succeed James M. Lynch, recently appointed by Gov. Glynn to be State Commissioner of Labor. There will be a referendum vote for President of the International Union in May next. James M. Duncan, First Vice President of the International, will be Acting President for the balance of Mr. Lynch's term.

The Cleanest Soap

Medical and sanitary authorities, Boards of Health and superintendents of institutions are providing liquid soaps for public wash rooms.

Synol is a liquid, antiseptic toilet soap that is fast replacing cake soap in public places because it is the cleanest and most convenient soap that can be utilized for so many different toilet purposes.

It is the cleanest toilet soap because it comes in bottles. No dirt or germs can penetrate the contents, or settle upon it, as is the case with cake soaps. Dozens of people can use from a single Synol bottle and no two persons touch the same soap.

WHITE SOX WIN TWO GAMES---FOOTBALL---BOXING---ATHLETICS---SWIMMING---FENCING

GIANTS DROP TWO GAMES TO CHICAGO

Game in Oakland a Farce, While Errors Lose San Francisco Contest.

BY JOHN J. McGRAW
Manager of New York Giants.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 16.—We were defeated by the White Sox twice to-day, losing the morning game in Oakland by a score of 12 to 8, and the afternoon game here, by a score of 4 to 2. A crowd of 8,000 saw the afternoon game, while about 2,500 saw the morning game in Oakland. This was very much of a farce, and all the players seemed to be off form. The natives here expected a lot of high class baseball from the big leaguers, and they were disappointed at our showing.

We could hardly blame them, for we played a pretty weak game, and deserved to be beaten in the morning game. The Sox's two victories to-day gives each team tourtcen victories on this globe-trotting venture. "Germany" Schaefer's comedy was of more interest to the Oakland fans than our ball playing. A total of 26 hits was made in this game, six of which were for extra bases. The opposing pitchers made matters worse by issuing a total of eleven passes, making a couple of wild pitches, and then hit two batsmen and a balk. We had four costly errors, which made matters even easier for the Sox. "Bunny" Hearne pitched for us and Faber for the Sox, and both youngsters were way off form.

The afternoon game in this city was a big improvement, and Jeff Tesreau and Russell made a lively pitchers' battle of it. The game was nip and tuck all the way, but our errors figured largely in the Sox's success.

The Sox got two runs off Tesreau in the first inning. He walked Egan, who was forced by Rath. Speaker drove a single to centre and Crawford laced the ball to right. With the bases filled Chase sacrificed flied to left and scored Rath. Speaker and Crawford worked the double steal, and when Myers made an overthrow Speaker came home. New York evened up in the fourth. Lobert walked, and although Doolin forced Merkle laid the ball against the right field fence and sent Lobert to third. Honus came home on an infield out by Doolan, and Thorpe's swat through the pitcher's box to centre scored Merkle.

Crawford made the circuit in the sixth in starting with his usual double and aided by a fal Chase, while the last run came in the eighth, an inning in which Tesreau was in all sorts of difficulty. With one down Speaker beat out an infield hit and went to third on Doolan's overthrow. Crawford fanned, but Chase grounded again and was responsible for his third run of the day. The scor

Twelve-Hour Bowling Contest.

A twelve-hour endurance contest, which will bring together sixteen teams composed of some of the best bowlers in the East, will be run off beginning at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day on the Harlem Palace Alleys. Four driveways will be used.

One of the important teams, representing the Bronx, will be John Koerr and Peter Schultz of the Fidelias, the national two-men champions. They won the title this Spring in Rochester. Then there will be Alec Dunbar and Mortimer Lindsey, Joe Fabian and Joe Schwartz of the Pastimes, Harry Cohn and Henry Steinbruck of Jersey City, Al Traphagen and Paul Loetle of the Morningsides, Henry Mesloh and John Recker of the Rosedales, Alexander Kittridge and Clarence B. Horan of Hoboken, Henry Clauss and Justus Bock of Elizabeth, and Henry Servas and Henry Mahlenbruck of Hoboken, along with teams made up from such men as John J. Voorheis the little wizard of Brooklyn; James S. Watt, "the Bonnie Brier Bush"; George Hicks of the Park Rows, Asa Harris of Newark, Herman Cadien, the French-American claimant; Ferdinand Meier of the Pastimes, and John Klumpp.

AITCHISON BEST PITCHER

Newark Boxman Won 21 and Lost Only 5 Games Last Season.

President Edward Barrow announced the official fielding averages and pitchers' records of the International League yesterday. Aitchison, who was a big factor in landing the pennant in Newark, led the pitchers with 21 games won and 5 lost. His average was .808. Enzmann of Newark was second, with 11 games won and 4 lost. Jack Quinn, formerly with the Yankees and now with the Boston Braves, pitched good ball for Rochester. He took part in 38 games and won 19 and lost 13. Quinn had 153 strike outs to his credit. Bailey of Providence led the pitchers in strike outs, fanning 188 batsmen. He also issued the most passes, 157.

More runs were scored off Danford of Baltimore than any pitcher in the league, 146. Smith of Montreal took part in more games than any other pitcher, 51, and he was also hit the hardest, 301 hits being made off his delivery. Bunny Hearne, who is now with the Giants, won 11 games and lost 11 while he was with Toronto. Wilhelm of Newark was the best fielding pitcher in the league, and didn't make an error in 45 games.

Del Paddock, formerly with the Yankees, who played left and centre field for Rochester, had a perfect fielding record and didn't make an error in over 50 games. Fritz Maisel, the Yankee third baseman, had a fielding record of .936 with Baltimore, and Gilhooley, also of the Yankees, had a fielding record of .937 with Montreal. Barry, another former Yankee player, led the league first basemen. He played with Jersey City and had an average of .998. Larry Schlafly of Jersey City led the second basemen with a mark of .984. Hack Simmons, playing second base for Rochester, who was the leading batsman of the league, had a fielding average of .932. McMillan of Rochester led the shortstops with an average of .969. "Rocksey" Roach, formerly of the Yankees and now with Buffalo, was third among the shortstops with a mark of .947. Collins of Newark was the best right fielder, with a perfect average in 24 games. McCabe of Jersey City played in 101 games and had an average of .972. Bergen of Baltimore was the leading catcher, with a mark of .980.

LILL TO BE NAMED.

Boston Man Will Probably Be Elected A. A. U. President.

Members of the Amateur Athletic Union from all over the United States met yesterday in preliminary session at the Waldorf-Astoria. Three committees, legislation, registration and record, were represented by the full complement of members in each instance, with Justice Bartow S. Weeks, James E. Sullivan and Frederick W. Rubien, the respective chairmen.

During the progress of the conclave the question of the nominations for President of the organization was openly discussed. Quite a figure has been caused by the rumors that John Elliott of San Francisco would be named in opposition to Alfred J. Lill, Jr., of Boston, and George F. Pawling of Philadelphia.

With the purpose in view of making the action of to-day's session, which convenes at 11 A. M., move as speedily as possible, these committees delved into all the propositions which were advanced for their adjudication, to the end that the situation in many cases was made as forward as possible.

Among those in attendance at the session were Gustavus T. Kirby, President of the A. A. U.; James E. Sullivan, Justice Bartow S. Weeks, F. W. Rubien, Andrew F. Tully, J. W. Stumpf, and Otto Wahle of the Metropolitan Association; George F. Pawling and Allan P. Cox, Middle Atlantic Association; Alfred J. Lill, Jr., Joseph B. Maccabe, E. E. Babb, E. L. Hopkins, M. F. Winston, and L. A. Johnson, New England Association; F. J. Curran, Theodore H. Bland, and D. C. Hastings, Western Association; W. Burdick, W. Bowie, and B. Merrill Hopkinson, South Atlantic Association; Everett C. Brown, Central Association; George James, Pacific Association, and W. L. Robb, Southern Pacific Association.

Several radical changes were proposed by the New England delegates, the chief of which was naming the dates for the championship track and field games of the sectional associations to be vested (as far as New England was concerned, because of the conditions which exist in that section) with the Board of Governors, as against the Championship Committee as now exists. This question will be brought before the governing body at to-day's session by Joseph B. Maccabe, a former President of the union.

The Record Committee took action on a number of best-on-record marks which have been generally accepted, chiefly because none of he men delegated to attest the accuracy of the performances had taken any move to investigate their authenticity. Two of these, which will be discarded, are credited to A. S. Robinson, the Mercersburg School sprinter, who is stated to have run 100 yards in 0:09 3-5 and 220 yards in 0:20 4-5 during the progress of a minor series in Pennsylvania.

Cornell's Victory Encouraging.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Cornell's victory over Lafayette yesterday didn't impress the coaches, but it led to the belief that there is a chance for the Ithcans to rally for the final game of the season, that with Pennsylvania on Thanksgiving Day and put on the field a strong eleven. The new eleven, on which but three or four men are playing the positions which they held ull through the season until last week, plainly showed in the game against Lafayette that it had not had enough practice as a team, and some of the men, notably Collyer at right half, gave evidence of unfamiliarity with the positions. The work of Munns, Williams, and Williamson in the line also was the standard, while Barrett's playing was the feature of the back field. Philippi and Lahr, the new left halfback and full back, also lack experience. Cornell's problem is entirely a question of how much can be done toward teaching the men in the new positions how to play like a well-balanced, smooth-working team.

YALE MAY BE THE SEASON'S SURPRISE

It Is Believed Blue's Great Defense Will Defy Crimson's Backfield.

It looks very much now as if Yale was going to be the big surprise of the football season, which will come to an end in two more weeks. After the great showing the Blue made against Princeton Saturday in a 3 to 3 tie, in which they actually outplayed the Tigers more than Harvard did the week before, the Ells' stock has taken a big boost. Yale's defense was so strong that the undergraduates at New Haven are already betting that Harvard will not be able to score a touchdown. Yale followed out the policy on Saturday of preventing the other team from winning, even if they couldn't win themselves. This policy will probably be followed at Cambridge next Saturday.

If Yale had developed an offensive team as strong as the Blue eleven is defensively, it would be a top-notch football team. But as it is, the whole stress of coaching seems to have been on the defensive work. Saturday's game showed that Yale hasn't an effective scoring play. When an eleven can get on the six-yard line and have four opportunities to go that distance for a touchdown and then fail, it is certain that its attack is not strong. Yale showed possibilities of the running game, but it certainly had not been worked up to any great extent. With open-field runners like Wilson and Ainsworth, both of whom showed that they could follow interference with much skill, Yale should have been able to develop a running attack which would be far more effective than anything they have shown.

Once or twice on Saturday Yale had a compact interference which defied the Princeton ends and secondary defense. It showed what the backfield is capable of. Yale's backfield showed more power against Princeton than Harvard did, while Princeton experts admit that Yale's defense on Saturday was superior to Harvard's. Making conclusions on teams by performances at different stages of the season has proved so futile in judging football elevens this season that little weight can be given to this sort of reasoning. Preliminary figuring put the worst job of the season in the Yale-Princeton game, because on paper the Tigers surely looked the better team.

As for Yale's chances against Harvard, this much can be said. The rushing, line breaking tactics which both elevens have adopted will prove effective. Both lines are so formidable that it will be practically impossible to push one team or the other down the field for a touchdown by line plunging methods. It is natural to conclude that the game will be another punting duel Mahan will probably do most of the kicking again Yale, as it is hardly likely that Hardwick will be called back from end to do it. Knowles and Guernsey will be able to more than hold their own with Mahan.

Harvard's greatest chance for victory is in Brickley. If the Harvard team can work its way to a reasonable distance within Yale's territory Brickley can be relied upon to kick a field goal. Brickley is far more proficient at this trick than either Guernsey or Pumpelly, the Yale drop kickers. In the two seasons Brickley has been the best drop kicker in the East, and he has been improving all the time. Mahan is a close second to Brickley at the toe feat. It will very likely be a kicking game from start to finish. There is a possibility that Harvard may also see the wisdom of changing an open system of play. Many football men believed that if either Yale or Princeton had used open football tactics on Saturday the team sticking to the old-fashioned methods would have been defeated. The trouble with the big Eastern elevens is that they have not given the open game a fair trial.

As football is played at Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and other of the big colleges nowadays there is an absolute lack of scoring players. They have not developed any method by which a score can be made by a continuity of attack such as under the old mass plays. In the West the open game is used with more success. Under the present rules the line-smashing style of play doesn't count. Defensive play is too well developed these days to permit a team to gain ten yards in four downs through the line. Making five yards in three downs under the old rules and making ten yards in four downs is quite a different task. The game will probably be a monotonous kicking game with most of the scores made by field goals until the coaches see fit to give some attention to other methods.

In direct contrast to the Yale-Princeton game was the Carlisle-Dartmouth game at the Polo Grounds. Here was a mixture of old-fashioned football and the open running game which was a delight to watch. Coach Frank Cavanaugh of Dartmouth told Glenn Warner, the Indian coach, at the Winter Garden on Saturday night that he thought that this year's eleven was the fastest team the Indians ever had and by far the fastest eleven in the East. For effective co-ordination of attack, the equal of the Carlisle back field has not been seen in the East this season. The eleven has a variety of play and are almost perfectly drilled in the rudiments of the game.

Dartmouth's downfall was a big disappointment. The team's open attack and its close football were completely smothered by the Indians. The Carlisle team deserves a lot of consideration in the ranking of the players this season. The numbering of the Dartmouth players proved a greater success than was imagined. It was easy to see who was running with the ball, and when a Dartmouth man made a tackle the spectators knew who it was.

Pennsylvania's defeat at Michigan showed that the Brooke coaching regime has not yet brought the team out of the rut of misfortune. The Wolverines outplayed the Quakers from start to finish and the Yost methods proved superior to the Brooke system. Singularly, Michigan, where open football has been followed, knew that Pennsylvania's defense was weak and followed a plan of line-smashing attack which carried Penn off its feet. The Wolverines didn't have to use spectacular open methods, as they would have done if Penn's defense had been strong.

The Army had weak opposition against Villanova, but the scoring ability of the cadets was encouraging, and their use of the forward pass was the best that the soldiers have shown this year. The Navy defeated Penn State by a score of 10 to 0, but the coaches were not satisfied with the team's showing at this stage of the season. Four times Penn State took the ball from the Navy on downs, and the Midshipmen's attack, which has been fine all season, was stopped in a disappointing way. The Navy has had easy opponents this season, and Penn State is the stiffest team they have met. The Navy is not as strong offensively as the coaches believed, and there is hard work ahead for the next two weeks.

Chicago now claims the Western football title by defeating Minnesota on Saturday. It was an open, spectacular game, with flashy forward passes playing an important part in the outcome.

YALE AT FAIRFIELD.

Blue Eleven Resting at Summer Home of Oliver Jennings.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16.—With the Yale eleven at Fairfield for Sunday and most of the coaches out of town, practically no progress was made today toward picking the team for the Harvard game of next Saturday. Head Coach Jones and Capt. Ketcham both stated that no changes would be made unless it is found that they are necessary by reason of physical condition. For a day or two, however, it will not be absolutely certain whether it is advisable to stand against the Crimson three of the players who faced Princeton—Avery, left end; Pendleton, right tackle, and Carter, right end.

In all three cases a slightly wrenched knee has caused lameness, and Trainer John Mack is at work with his assistants trying to iron out the limp. The wrench is severe in no case.

The Summer home of Oliver Jennings of New York City, at Fairfield, Conn., where the Yale eleven spent Sunday, is located on a height overlooking Long Island Sound, and the players enjoyed their outing there, and their visits to the scales showed this afternoon that each one has taken on several pounds since the Princeton match closed yesterday. The scales will be taken back to this city for their morning recitations to-morrow. There will be signal drill during the afternoon, and on Tuesday and Wednesday the eleven will be tried in dummy football with the scrubs leading the forcing, using Harvard formations.

TIGERS LOSE TWO MEN.

Princeton Will Present Strong Team in Field Next Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 16.—A ray of optimism in the atmosphere of gloom over the Yale-Princeton football tie game comes from the fact that the Tigers will lose only two men from the 1913 eleven by graduation, while eligibility rules will permit all of the other 1913 team regulars to play next year. Capt. Hobey Baker, for three years a tiger half back, with Philips, left tackle for the same number of years, are the regulars lost by graduation, while the most prominent substitute to be lost is Thornton Emmons, sub quarter back.

There remains as a nucleus for next season Hammond at left end, Semmens at left guard, E. Trenkman at centre, W. S. Wart and Brown at right end, Glick at quarter back, law at left half and Streit at full back. This list is bolstered up by a list of subs most of who have been in one or more of the games during the past season. They are Longstreth and Heyniger, guards; I. Swart and Haviland, centres; Larsen and Love, tackles; P. E. Adams, quarter back; Borden and Doolittle, half backs; F. Trenkman, full back.

Indians In Good Shape.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 16.—With the exception of Vedernack, right end, who has a twisted elbow, the Carlisle Indian football eleven, which defeated the Dartmouth team, returned to Carlisle early this morning in fine physical condition. Capt. Welch, Guyon, Calac, and practically all of the braves bear scratches and surface bruises, but these the redskins will not even notice. The Indians admired the pluck of the New Hampshire palefaces, and openly commented on their game fight to the very last, when it was apparent that many of the Hanoverians were ready to drop in their tracks from sheer exhaustion, augmented by desperation worthy of a great battle.

Round Robin for Ball Clubs.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—The round robin series among the sixteen clubs of the American Association and the International League is practically assured, according to President Chivington of the former organization, who is just back from the minor league convention at Columbus. Mr. Chivington discussed the proposed tournament with the magnates of the Eastern circuit, who were at the meeting, and said that all the clubs, except Rochester, which was not represented, had declared in favor of it. President Barrows of the International approved the plan, and at the Winter meeting of his league will appoint a committee. It is expected, to confer with a committee from the association regarding details of the series.

GOOD BOXING BOUTS ON THIS WEEK'S CARD

Gunboat Smith, Shugrue, Phil Cross, and Hogan at Local Clubs.

With four boxers of established reputation scheduled to appear in as many shows and two formerly prominent clubs reopening their doors for the Winter season, boxing takes on some of its old-time activity in Greater New York this week. There is nothing on the card that will attract any such popular interest as the Cross-Ritchie bout last week, but there are at least three contests on this week's card that stand out more prominently than any bout on last week's programme except that in which the champion figured.

Two bouts to be staged to-night in other cities will attract more local interest than any arranged here. Both are heavyweight contests and will have much to do in establishing the status of three heavyweight contenders. At Boston Gunboat Smith will try his fortune against Sam Langford and the match should give a fairly good line on the relative abilities of the black and white heavyweights. At Milwaukee Jess Willard, a contender for the championship, boxes George Rodel, the Boer heavyweight.

The Atlantic Garden holds first place on this week's programme of boxing in Greater New York. The Bowery club has arranged two shows, one for to-morrow night and the other for Thursday, with boxers of prominence figuring as headliners in each. The Thursday show, with Gunboat Smith and Ed Hagen of Seattle as the principals, is the leading bout scheduled for the week. Hagen came to New York about a month ago, after winning several bouts in the West, and for the past week he has been training in Westchester under the watchful eye of the veteran Jim Flynn. The latter has fought Smith and knows all about the Californian's style and punching power. At the Bowery club to-morrow night Phil Cross and Frankie Madden will be the headliners. Madden has been very successful in his come-back effort, but is likely to find a difficult task when he tries to subdue the younger and more aggressive Cross.

The Fairmont A. C. of the Bronx, which has been closed to mid-week shows for several months past, will resume its Wednesday night bouts this week, and continue the same during the coming months whenever the Garden A. C. has no bouts. Joe Shugrue of Jersey City, who defeated Leach Cross at the Garden a few months ago, will make his first appearance in New York since that bout. His opponent will be Johnny Harvey of the Bronx, who has been coming along rapidly in the lightweight division for some time. His work against Willie Beecher and Young Brown stamped him as a "comer" among the lightweights. In the semi-final of this show Battling Reddy and Young Mantell will do the honors.

Another club to reopen after being closed for several months is the Olympic Athletic Club of Harlem, which is to hold bouts every Monday night during the next few months. One-Round Hogan of California, at one time one of the leading contenders for lightweight honors, will oppose Freddie Hass of this city in the feature event. Hogan has been training hard for the last two weeks, and is confident that he will soon be able to regain his former position among the leading lightweights.

The Sunnyside Athletic Association of Harlem will put on its regular weekly show Friday night, the card consisting of three ten-round bouts between Harlem favorites. These bouts will bring together Sailor Cahill of San Francisco versus Dave Kaufman, Frankie Young versus Frankie Brown, and Scotty Welsh versus Young Sandow.

The Military Athletic Club of Brooklyn will be busy to-night, and the East New York Athletic Club is arranging a card for Friday night. The usual week-end shows will be put on Saturday night at the Fairmont, Sharkey, and Atlantic Garden Clubs of New York, the Irving and Gowanus Clubs of Brooklyn, the Queensboro Athletic Club of Long Island City, and the Liberal Athletic Club of Staten Island.

Kolehmainen to Run for Record.

Hannes Kohlehmainen, the distance running sensation who recently made twenty-seven new records during the progress of the ten-mile championship at South Field and made a new A. A. U. record Saturday over the Van Cortlandt Park course, will be seen in action indoors on Saturday at the Diocesan games at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory. Opposed to him will be the best runners of this and the surrounding districts, who will be put to their mettle in an effort to beat Obertubbessing, the official handicapper, believes will make the Finn fight hard to overcome. Hannes hung up a three-mile record last Spring at the games of the Thirteenth Regiment, and is said to be partial to the easy turns and sweeping stretches of this arena. Lawson Robertson, his trainer, anticipates that his charge will run the distance in about 15:45, if he has the opposition which will probably develop with the handicaps with which he will be caonfronted.

Howard P. Drew of Springfield will endeavor to break the record for 130 yards, 12 4-5 seconds, now held by Bobby Cloughen. Drew's work recently favors his accomplishment of the task, and when opposed by such good short distance men as Alvah T. Meyer, the Metropolitan champion; Hal Helland, Jim Rosenberger and several others, it is anticipated that he will be pushed to his limit.

NEW WATER POLO RULES.

Colleges Revolutionize Game by Adopting Radical Changes.

The committee of graduates appointed by the Intercollegiate Swimming Association to revise the water polo rules met yesterday at the New York Athletic Club and after a four hour session adopted a new set of rules which promises to revolutionize the present style of play.

The most important change made was the increasing of the value of the thrown goal. This step will not only open the play and make it more interesting to the spectator, but also do away with most of the rough work. Hereafter instead of the touched goal counting five points and the thrown goal two, the latter will award three points, so that two thrown goals will afford a higher tally than one touched goal. Furthermore, after a score a free shot at the board, worth two points if successful, will be allowed. As will be seen, every effort has been made to encourage plenty of throwing.

A new rule stipulates that no player shall hold the ball in his own territory for more than ten seconds under penalty of the ball being given to the other side. He must, within the prescribed time, send the rubber beyond the zone line and he may not again take possession of it until it has been handled by another player.

The anticipated change in the division of time of play was unanimously agreed upon, and three periods of six minutes each, with five minute intervals between, will hereafter obtain instead of the two halves of eight minutes each.

Another innovation will be the giving of the ball to the side that has been scored upon, after each goal, instead of making the forwards race for it. The two teams will be lined up as usual and start from a dive, but any man of the losing side may throw or carry the ball at will.

A measure that will undoubtedly make the game faster and less hard on the players is the permitting of the retiring of a regular in favor of a substitute whenever the player's side is in possession of the ball, the regular to resume his position at the start of any succeeding period.

Results at Soccer Games.

Braving weather of the most inclement kind the Hollywood Inn F. C. and the Greenpoint soccer eleven met in a New York State Amateur League contest yesterday, and battled seventy-five minutes on the muddy gridiron at Knight's Oval, Brooklyn. The Yookers contingent came out on top, with the advantage of one goal, which was scored shortly before the referee called the contest on account of darkness.

Manning's the same speed and accuracy that has carried them through victors in many battles this season the Yonkers football eleven took the St. George F. C. into camp at Dunning Oval, Yonkers, yesterday by a score of 3 goals to 1.

Playing with five reserves in its line-up, the Columbia Oval F. C. defeated the Clan McKenzie eleven at Lenox Oval yesterday by the score of 2 goals to 0.

The Caledonian F. C. swamped the Overseas Wanderers at Columbia Oval yesterday afternoon by 7 goals to 1. Mannborg tallied four of the points, while M. Vander Waghe annexed the other three.

The Brooklyn F. C. traveled to Newark yesterday to meet the Caledonians in a National League championship contest. Only seven home team members put in an appearance, and Referee A. Montgomery forfeited the game to the Brooklynites. The Brooklyne now lead the league.

When darkness halted the National League championship contest between the Jersey City F. C. and the Clan McDonalds of Brooklyn at Jersey City yesterday, the Skeeters were leading by 4 goals to 0, and as the game was called fifteen minutes before the regular time of forty minutes, this contest will not go into the record, and the contest will have to be replayed.

Officials for Army-Navy Game.

The athletic authorities of the Army and Navy have agreed upon the officials for the annual game which will be played at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 29. Bill Langford of Trinity, who has worked in all the big games this Fall, will be the referee, and Al Sharpe of Yale and head coach at Cornell, will be the umpire. Carl Marshall of Harvard will be head linesman. Langford and Sharpe officiated in last year's game at Franklin Field.

FENCING TO BEGIN EARLY THIS SEASON

National Championships Again to be Held in Hotel Astor Ballroom.

The list of national fencing competitions, especially for this city, has been materially lengthened and the schedule issued by the Amateur Fencers' League of America is the most noteworthy one that has appeared in this country. The season will begin Saturday, Dec. 6, at the New York Turn Verein, to be followed the next week by a newly-instituted senior foil competition at the New York Athletic Club. Heretofore the fencing season has never begun until January. The national championships will again be held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor the latter part of April, and this will also include the women's championships, which were won last year by Mrs. William H. Desmar of Philadelphia, and which proved popular.

The Board of Governors of the league have clearly defined the classifications of the fencer, beginning with the "prep" class, which includes those who have not fenced in any competition whatsoever; followed by the novice class, inclusive of those who have not won an individual prize in open competition. The next step is the junior class, to which are eligible those who have not won the gold medal in the national junior championship or a place in the national championship. The senior class includes medalists of the junior championship.

The most important changes in the rules require competitors to continue their bout until stopped by the judges either for a foul or a fair touch. The object of this is to do away with competitors passing any judgment whatever upon the sword's play. In dueling sword competitions there is a return to the chalked button at the point of the sword instead of the naked steel as heretofore. While no accidents happen with the naked point, which is used abroad, still many of the physicians and surgeons were of the opinion that the scratches made possible serious or fatal results due to blood poisoning.

George H. Breed of the Fencers' Club is in correspondence with the English Fencing Association, and it is likely that an international team competition will be held in this city the early part of the year.

The schedule of national competitions to be held in this city follows:

Dec. 6—New York Turn Verein, soiree, fencing with foils.

Dec. 15—At New York Athletic Club, senior foil competition, A. F. L. A. gold, silver, and bronze medals.

Jan. 5—At New York Fencers' Club, club team match, each man to fence with a different weapon, foils, dueling swords, and sabres, for A. F. L. A. three-weapon trophy.

Jan. 8—At New York Athletic Club, foils competition, open to "preps," for President's prize medal and glove.

Jan. 12—At West Side Young Men's Christian Association, novice foils competition, for A. F. L. A. silver and bronze medals.

Jan. 19—At New York Athletic Club, novice foils competition for President's foils.

Jan. 20—At Fencers' Club, a junior team championship, with sabres, for A. F. L. A. silver medallions.

Feb. 1—At New York Athletic Club, team championship, with sabres, for A. F. L. A. trophy and gold medals to winners.

Feb. 9—At Fencers' Club, junior team competition, with foils, for J. Sanford Saltus medals.

Feb. 18—At Fencers' Club, junior team competition, with dueling swords, for Eddy Cup and A. F. L. A. silver medal to winners.

Feb. 21—At New York Young Men's Christian Association, soiree for three weapons.

Feb. 24—At Fencers' Club, junior sabre and dueling sword competition, for A. F. L. A. gold, silver, and bronze medals.

March 4—At New York Turn Verein, junior championship, with foils, A. F. L. A. gold, silver, and bronze medals.

March 9—At New York Athletic Club, three-weapon contest, with foil, dueling sword, and sabre, for President's medals.

March 16—At New York Turn Verein, team championship, with foils, for A. F. L. A. cup and gold medals to winners.

March 27 and 28—At New York Athletic Club, qualifying preliminaries for national championship, with foils, dueling swords, and sabres.

April 1—At Fencers' Club, women's junior championship, with foils, A. F. L. A. gold, silver, and bronze medals.

April 4—At Fencers' Club, interscholastic team competition, with foils, A. F. L. A. silver medals to winners.

April 6—At Fencers' Club, team championship, with dueling swords, for J. Sanford Saltus Trophy and A. F. L. A. gold medals to winners.

April (date to be announced)—At Hotel Astor, national championship finals, with foil, dueling sword, and sabre.

LONG ISLAND DIVISION.

Jan. 31—At Bedford Branch Young Men's Christian Association, junior sabre contest for Dr. T. A. Buys's medals.

Feb. 7—At Central Branch Young Men's Christian Association, junior three-man team contest, with foils, for Manrique Trophy.

March 19—At the Crescent Athletic Club, junior foils competition for Dr. T. A. Buys's medals.

April 4—At Crescent Athletic Club, Long Island division championship junior foils.

April 16—At Crescent Athletic Club, novice foils competition for Crescent Athletic Club Cup.

May 7—At Crescent Athletic Club, foils competition for Dr. De Witt C. Smith War Trophy.

TO PLAY FOR 18.2 TITLE.

Demarest Will Try to Wrest Championship from Hoppe To-night.

The first balkline billiard match of the season will be played to-night in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor. It will be for the 18.2 championship, and the contestants will be William F. Hoppe of this city, champion, and Calvin Demarest of Chicago, challenger. The last time these experts competed in a championship match, April 11, 1912, at the Hotel Astor, Hoppe won by a score of 500 to 440. The winner had a lead of only 8 points when he got a favorable break and ran the 52 he needed. It was an intensely interesting match, in which the chances of each player appeared equal until the deciding run was made. Many experts expressed opinions that Demarest should have won, and would have done so had he not made four fouls, two of them at critical stages.

Practicing for the pending match Hoppe has made the best averages and runs in games at Thum's with Harry P. Cline, Ledyard Blake, the amateur; George Moore, and Frank Barton he has averaged from 17 to 80, and scored one run of 274. At Maurice Daly's Demarest has not played so well. He has averaged as low as 8 and as high as 44 4-9. He has, however, played beautiful billiards.

Manhasset Bay Yacht Club Shoot.

The Manhasset Bay Yacht Club opened its trap-shooting season yesterday under anything but favorable conditions, drizzling rain and, consequently, poor light, making high scores extremely difficult. Despite this fact, five matches were completed, in one of which—that for the yearly cup, at twenty-five targets with a handicap, D. E. Smith succeeded in returning a full score, H. L. Hoyt being second, with twenty-four to his credit. H. L. Hoyt, Jr., carried off the honors in the every day for he not only won the ten "bird" scratch contest, but he captured first place in the shoot for the Monthly Cup and in the twenty-five-target special match. T. H. Lewis was the winner of the fifteen-target scratch event.

Oakland Cabriolet

A Coupé in Winter—A Roadster in Summer

This new car, designated as a Cabriolet, brought out by the Oakland Motor Car Co., is a distinct innovation and, unlike most novelties, is thoroughly practical in every respect.

It is a three-passenger car, with both closed body along the lines of coupe, and an open body with the convenience of a roadster.

By an ingenious construction the top rails back into a small compass at the rear; the side windows fold down and forward against the doors, while the panel windows drop into the walls of the car. Top and windows operated from within. For women drivers and professional men this car should make a distinct appeal.

Another new type of enclosed car is the Oakland Sedan—provides one spacious apartment with seating capacity for four. One of this car's unusual features is a sliding driver's seat, devised to accommodate any stature. Seats so arranged that entrance may be had from either side.

We shall be glad at any time to give you a practical demonstration of the outstanding merits of these cars—just let us know when we can expect you.

FACING THE FACTS.

Mr. TAFT declared in Washington on Friday afternoon that it would take two generations at least to educate the Taos in the Philippines to capacity to assert and defend their own rights. This is true of the great body of the people of the islands. At the time when the former President was making this obvious statement the Governor General of the islands was listening to a delegation of Moro chiefs in Mindanao, who petitioned him for the continuation of American Government in the district and protested against Filipino control. Governor General HARRISON respected their protest and promised to grant their petition.

The coincidence is striking and significant. It throws a flood of light on the inevitable working of the policy proposed by Democrats in Congress and approved last year by one branch, that of promising complete independence to the people of the Philippines at a definite time. If the people were substantially homogeneous, if they were of common origin, had a common language, were bound to each other by ties of kinship, accustomed intercourse and mutual interest and obligation, it would still be a most risky experiment, because the mass of the people are ignorant, dependent, unused to political action, and incapable of sensible judgment. But, as the incident we have cited shows, no such state of things exists; the conditions we have named do not exist. A considerable part of the inhabitants of the islands are entirely uncivilized, are "head-hunters" by inheritance and custom, and are kept in decent order only by vigilant and tactful use of police methods. The guarantee of order is force, and the force is supplied or directed by the Americans. Another and larger part of the population are Moros, the tribes whose chiefs petitioned for an American Governor and protested against Filipino control. They are Moslems in religion and in temperament and habits of life. They distrust and dislike the Filipinos, and if left to themselves would wage continual and savage warfare against them. Even among the Filipinos themselves there is little harmony, and because of the lack of a common speech and mutual interests and habitual general intercourse it will take a long time to establish such harmony.

Amid these difficult and complex conditions the policy of the United States has been framed and steadily applied. It is very simple. It aims to fit the people of the islands for self-government and to grant self-government when, and only when, they are found to be fitted for it. The first step in this direction, the absolute condition precedent to any experiment in even a degree of self-government, has been to preserve order. No people or congeries of peoples can rule themselves who have not learned to respect the rights of others. Safe independence can grow only in the soil of peace. The Americans have kept the peace. By great patience and skill and only the needed use of force they have gradually brought the islanders more and more to feel that peace and justice are normal and strife and lawlessness abnormal. Meanwhile they have slowly and steadily inducted the people of the islands into the practice of local self-government. At the same time they have pursued, with remarkable success, a system of practical education. And by works of irrigation, of transportation, and of improved agricultural and industrial methods they have developed the prosperity and the efficiency of the people.

This is a process, or series of organized processes, which in time can be relied on to make a reasonably united people, capable of caring for and advancing their own well-being, and of managing their political affairs. Mr. TAFT is confident of success if the right policy is continued. He says:

> I hope and assume that the present Administration is merely making itself acquainted with the situation. When it gets the facts I have not the slightest doubt that it will see its duty as we have seen it who have been there. This is to encourage the Filipinos to take as active a part in the Government as it is safe to have them take, but to retain a controlling hand while they are in their tutelage, while they are learning political self-restraint and acquiring "the character of self-government," as President WILSON calls it.

The action of Governor General HARRISON in the case of the petitioning Moro chiefs is an indication that Mr. TAFT's hope is justified. He and the President are facing the facts and learning from them.

THE "MOMENT OF NEED."

"A sentiment of purest patriotism," says Mr. DE LA BARRA, will unite all Mexicans in the "moment of need." It seems to outsiders that Mexico never had a moment of greater need than the present moment. That sentiment of purest patriotism seems to be chiefly expressed in murder and plunder. MR. DE LA BARRA, together with nearly all the Mexican statesmen of similar stature, seems to find it safer for the preservation of his patriotism and his health to dwell abroad. This continual warning of the United States against intervention has ceased to be impressive, and is certainly not pertinent. The United States is not threatening intervention. It is only pleading with the Mexicans to use their sentiment of pure patriotism, to get together and show some disposition to end the solemn farce at the National Palace.

The rebels of the North have been a little more active lately. Juarez has been taken again. That temporary capital of the famous BENITO, and more recently of MADERO and OROZCO, seems to have been founded chiefly to be "taken" frequently. It matters very little to us what Mexican faction occupies Juarez so long as the lives of American citizens across the border are not imperilled. But Americans of the twentieth century can have little faith in the wisdom or true patriotism of those who murder their unarmed prisoners in cold blood.

Between the rebels and the Federals there is very little to choose. HUERTA was an able and faithful soldier in the service of his country under both DIAZ and MADERO. But as Executive he has shown himself unfit. The story of the martyrdom of Senator DOMINGUEZ, who had dared to raise his voice against the errors and brutalities of HUERTA'S Government, published in THE SUNDAY TIMES, is one that civilization cannot regard tolerantly. The only way out of the difficulty seems to lie in the assumption of the Federal Government temporarily by a commission of foremost Mexicans, representing the best element of all factions. Probably peace could be restored by that means, and even ZAPATA might be induced to lay down his arms if he could be convinced that the land abuses in Morelos were to be abated.

SIR EDWARD GREY.

When Mr. ASQUITH last week, at the Lord Mayor's dinner, gave expression—sober, but clear and unequivocal—to the friendly feeling that underlies British policy toward the United States, he was following a line for which he, of course, as Prime Minister, is responsible, but which, primarily, is determined by the Minister of Foreign Affairs. It gives occasion for Americans to recognize a little more clearly than they otherwise might the unusual gifts and the powerful influence of one of the most modest and one of the strongest British statesmen of the present day; and one who has always held friendliness to the United States to be one of the bases of British foreign policy.

A statesman, like a prophet, is likely often to be without due honor in his own country. And Sir EDWARD GREY is an example of that queer rule. He enjoys the cordial sympathy and approval of Mr. ASQUITH—with whom he has some qualities in common, courage, restraint, dignity, and freedom from pettiness—but no member of the present Government has met with such extreme opposition and so much personal criticism, not only from the Opposition but from his own party. The average Englishman is as free to grumble at his country's foreign policy as he is incapable of understanding its complexity and difficulty, and he is very likely to be guided by some fad of sentiment or some class or personal interest. Sir EDWARD GREY has made bitter foes from this quarter. He "thinks imperially" and his view is broad as well as penetrating. He has a busy man's dread of fads and an aristocrat's contempt for private interests that interfere with public duty. He inherits conservatism and aloofness of the old Whig sort, but he is keenly alive to the forces and tendencies of the day and resolute in molding his course accordingly. In domestic affairs he is more radical than conservative. He is a warm advocate, for example, of equal suffrage, gradually attained, for women; is deeply interested in land reform, though not in sympathy with the extreme plans of LLOYD GEORGE; is a believer in home rule for Ireland, but quite awake to the perils involved in the alliance with Mr. REDMOND. In manner and in speech he is of the cool, self-contained, and slightly cynical type which we associate with the Conservatives, but in the last eight years he has shown abundantly that he is both earnest and strong.

The two chapters in his career as Foreign Minister which have won for him bitter opposition and also great confidence at home and abroad are, first, the development of the Triple Entente by the understanding with Russia and its consolidation by the conduct of Great Britain in the latest Morocco affair and, second, the initiation and management of the Conference of Ambassadors during the wars in the Balkans. Probably the latter would have been impracticable had not the former placed Great Britain in a position of definite and far-reaching strength. The understanding with Russia has been particularly unpopular with a wing of his own party because of its consequences in Persia, some of which have been unfortunate; but it has been justified by the increased prestige of Great Britain in the European concert. It was due to this understanding that during the perilous events of the past two years there was a real balance between the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente, and the two groups, facing the awful alternative of a titanic war, set themselves to preserving peace.

The immediate agency through which this task was performed was the Conference of Ambassadors at London, and this was the peculiar work of Sir EDWARD GREY. He not only proposed it and secured coöperation in it, but he presided over it, and contributed patiently and with infinite tact and with sagacity to its guidance. As London was regarded as the best place of meeting because it was the capital of the country the most disinterested and impartial as to questions of the Near East, so Sir EDWARD GREY was accepted as the leader of most influence because of the general confidence he had won in his fair-mindedness. His work has been exceedingly delicate and trying; but in its main object—to keep the peace—it has been successful. His purpose was to bring the representatives of Europe face to face with each other and with the facts, to leave as little chance as possible for action in the dark, or for misunderstandings, or for committals without the fullest knowledge. These conditions complied with, it remained, of course, to take the best terms that could be got. The terms obtained were not ideal, and the "Concert of Europe" is in many ways an uncertain and fluctuating combination, but it has prevented war. For this Sir EDWARD GREY, more than any other one man, is responsible.

SECRETARY WILSON'S MISTAKE.

In his discussion of the copper strike Secretary WILSON allowed himself to make a misrepresentation of the case in the manner which is common with labor leaders, but which is not permissible in a member of the Cabinet. He declared that the men were underpaid because on an investment of $1,250,000 one corporation had made profits of $200,000,000. The statement is not correct regarding that company, although its earnings are phenomenal, constituting the exception which proves the rule to the contrary. The company could not have made its profits unless it had invested more money than its original venture. And its profits were made only by constantly greater payments to labor. It has paid its men as well as other companies, or better, so that profits are not due to unfair wages. The comparison of the wages with the profits cannot be made fairly without comparing the total wages with the total profits, and the comparison of that company's wages has nothing to do with the entire case.

That this is so appears from a statement of the entire copper industry in the district concerned. Only fourteen mines have paid back the money invested, labor getting its wages regardless of investors' losses. If the phenomenal mine be excepted, a total of $78,300,000 of assessments is to be balanced against a total of $82,000,000 dividends. It is impossible for the weak companies to raise wages to the rate which might be paid by the better favored company. And it is impossible for that company to pay the wages which it might and leave any labor for the others. This is not a statement of the miners' grievances, but is a statement that the argument is not such as a member of the President's Cabinet ought to allow himself to make, or such as ought to be allowed to go without correction.

This is the more particularly true because it is an example of the manner in which labor disputes are presented to the public. In the railway wage dispute there was an overstatement of the railways' dividends by $167,000,000, and that false argument is all the worse because it has been made by those more to blame than the men themselves. The Chairman of the Iowa Railway Commission made the same mistake in a worse form in his argument within a few days favoring Government ownership of railways.

UNSCRAMBLING THE TRUSTS.

Now that the Federal Government has shown that the trusts may be unscrambled and how to do it, the question arises how far the process may go if undertaken by the various States. The question is suggested by the circular which Attorney General LOONEY of Texas has addressed to every cottonseed mill in his jurisdiction. He warns them that they must not deal in ties, or bagging, or other supplies in connection with their business. Those who own gins must not own cottonseed mills, and the mills must not own gins. Some of them have charters authorizing the transaction of such related businesses, but the Attorney General says that makes no difference to him. The law is his authority, and if the charters collide with the statute so much the worse for the charters.

It would seem that the prospect is for some difficulty to the planters of Texas in getting their crop ready for market. If they should complain to Attorney General LOONEY—we disclaim responsibility for his name—it can be easily seen what he will reply. The harvesting of the crops is insignificant in comparison with unscrambling the trusts. But what would happen to a man who both ginned cotton and milled the seed?

THE MILLION-DOLLAR CONTRACTS

The work which Mr. WHITMAN has undertaken in exposing the State officials and political leaders who "bled" the bidders for million-dollar contracts on the State highways and Barge Canal will be the sequel to disclosures of enormous extravagance up-State which the public already knew.

Officials of the Canal Boards, past and present, and of the State Highway Department must have been privy to the levyings upon hundreds of State contractors for campaign contributions. The contractors would never have paid the "bagman" of Tammany large percentages of the total amounts involved in their contracts were they not extorted as the price of the awards. That the contracts should be executed in bad faith was to be expected. Mr. CARLISLE, the new State Highway Commissioner, recently describing in THE TIMES the chaotic, corrupt conditions which he found, said that, among other things, the department was using twenty-eight different types of specification blanks and a lot of substituting was done in specifications. In Erie County a short stretch of country road for which a contract for $46,000 was let was later laid with brick at a cost of $147,000, although the road had no important connections. The bricks used were not tested, and could not stand the regular test. Out on the Merrick Road and the Port Jefferson Road on Long Island a work to cost about $500,000 was planned with a gravel foundation that would have raveled to pieces under heavy traffic. This construction was stopped in time for new orders providing a concrete base, and asphalt or tar surfaces, at a saving of about $150,000. The expensive Route No. 4, to cost $1,000,000, running through the southern tier of counties, was being laid under specifications that the Commissioner found "utterly worthless." The roads of this route could not be repaired, and they must be built over again. The tale of waste and expense is a long one. It describes conditions in widely separated parts of the State along the routes of the Barge Canal and the 12,000 miles of State and county roads already built, under bond issues aggregating $151,000,000.

Of course, Tammany in extending its influence throughout the State expected to get its hands on this money. The indications are that District Attorney WHITMAN has but begun to uncover conditions in which "graft" is deeply imbedded, and that the revelations to follow may compare with the worst that have come to light through the devious history of Tammany.

The fault, of course, is in electing so many State officials. Had the Governor been made responsible for the appointment of men to administer the highway and canal improvements, Mr. MURPHY'S lieutenants could not have gotten control. Few of the voters know after Election Day the names of the subordinate State officials, but the machine leaders knew them all the time, and they renewed their acquaintance profitably during their terms of office. If the investigation leads merely to the putting of a few or even of many men in jail, and not to a reform of elections that reduces the number of candidates, concentrating the responsibility for honest government in the successful ones, it will be largely futile.

Summoned by the startling call of S. O. S., the steamer Pannonia, though 180 miles away at the moment of the call, rescued the passengers of the burning steamer Balmes, 103 in number. A calamity would have been inevitable without the use of the wireless. The second time within a comparatively few weeks that priceless invention of MARCONI has proved its efficacy in a large way in the reduction of the perils of the sea. The common mind naturally remembers only such remarkable incidents as the burning of the Volturno and the Balmes. Innumerable instances of the usefulness of the wireless telegraph as a means of averting danger are not noted or are speedily forgotten. But every one knows now that it is the greatest blessing bestowed on man in this age of wonders.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Hard Work Done Joyfully.

In a recently issued novel there appears a little incidental yarn that is of interest from the standpoint of psychology as well as from that of humor. Perhaps it isn't a true yarn, but it might be, so the question of veracity is immaterial as regards deserving the brain-worker's serious attention. Thus runs the tale:

A party of decent young fellows dining at a roadhouse far out in the country were disturbed by the arrival and rough conduct of a huge coachload of overstimulated and low-grade "sports." Trouble was avoided, but the respectable pleasure-seekers were in a state of irritation when they started for home along the road which their annoyers would take much later. Before they had gone far they noticed lying by the wayside, at regular intervals, poles which a telegraph company was about to erect. To one member of the party these timbers suggested a means of revenge which his companions eagerly welcomed, and for a stretch of full five miles they proceeded to lay those poles carefully across the road.

The roisterers followed in time, and were driven, in the dark, over two of the obstructions with most disturbing consequences. Their hired driver in anger and protest removed a few more. Then he struck and insisted that his passengers should do work which formed no part of his contracted task. Some of them being drunk and quarrelsome and the rest drunk and sleepy, it was not till two hours of controversy in a driving sleet storm had produced a sobering effect that they consented to clear the way—a displeasing and tiresome job that took them till after daylight to accomplish.

Some will see in that story only a practical joke of somewhat more than common excellence, but involved in it is the difficult problem of explaining just why the first group of travelers did what was probably harder work than that which they imposed on the objects of their animosity, and not only did it voluntarily, but greatly enjoyed the doing. We all know well enough that no amount of toil is grudged by the perpetrators of such a jest, and it may even involve, as many a college boy has proved, no little pain and danger without becoming in the slightest degree obnoxious or repulsive to them. It is a case of the end crowning the work, but why? That we are made that way seems to be the only answer, and of course that is a mere begging of the question.

And His Scheme Seems So Very Simple!

In what is perhaps injudicious indifference to the risks of adding to the size of promises already so large as to make the timid, the unimaginative, and the skeptical—almost everybody, that is—doubt the promiser's sanity. CARROLL L. RIKER declares to a critical world that his spillway plan for controlling the Mississippi floods will accomplish a lot more than that one sufficiently difficult and colossal end. Nobody else, in spite of spending many more millions of public money than the Brooklyn engineer asks for, has succeeded in even half way doing even that, as yet, but Mr. RIKER insists that the abolition of magnificently disastrous annual floods will be only the beginning of the national benefits he expects to bestow.

He says that after the flood waters have been diverted to his ten-mile broad spillway running in a straight line from Cairo to the Gulf of Mexico, then at last, and for the first time, there will be an opportunity to build docks along the river at any desirable points—docks that will not be washed away by fifty-foot rises every year, as have been those hitherto constructed. What he coolly proposes, therefore, is nothing less than to canalize the Mississippi for that long stretch, to keep its level within three feet of a fixed line, and to make it practicable for steamers as large as the Mauretania to ascend the river as far as Cairo. Five locks properly placed will do it, he asserts, and at them, just incidentally, there will be developed 5,000,000 horse-power in electrical energy from "white coal"—a considerable saving of the black variety about the holding out of which we are all so worried.

And there are a few more items—the saving from the Gulf by unnumbered millions of cubic yards of silt as good as that which has supported the Egyptians since the well-known and justly celebrated dawn of history, the draining of all the marshes that now fester behind the levees of the Mississippi and its tributaries, a fine road along the dike over which to haul crops to market—

But one must shut Mr. RIKER off somewhere, and this seems to be a place as good as any. He is a confusing and disturbing person, who thinks in disquietingly large units, and so severely critical of all the other engineers who have tackled the Mississippi problem are the implications of his plan that it's no wonder a good many of them glower darkly at him and his schemes.

At Any Rate, They Have Really Tried.

MADELEINE Z. DOTY and ELIZABETH WATSON, the two young investigators who have been doing on the women's side of Auburn Prison what THOMAS M. OSBORNE did on the men's side, cannot claim as their own the idea of getting at the facts of prison conditions by enduring a week of incarceration. They can fairly enough say, however, that by making their imprisonment more nearly real than his was they improved on the example he set. This they did by going among the convicts and minor attendants as convincingly guilty criminals, while everybody in Auburn knew that Mr. OSBORNE was innocent of everything except the uplifter's thirst for first-hand information.

Of course, even the young women didn't get so very much closer to the actualities of a long sentence than he did, but the difference in their favor was at least easily measurable, and that in spite of their recoiling, as he did not, from the brain-shaking horrors of the dark cell.

Like Mr. OSBORNE, Miss DOTY and Miss WATSON insist that they found the prisoners not such a bad and hopeless lot as common belief makes them out to be. Like him, they demand for these unfortunates treatment more considerate of their feelings and desires as human beings, all more or less capable of improvement. Like him, too, and with something more of authority and persuasiveness, they say that the prison is about as well conducted as it could be under the penological theories which its present system of management illustrates and carries out. Of what would ordinarily be called cruelty they found none, but more than their predecessor do they emphasize the charge that in the prison kitchen good food is spoiled by bad cooking.

There is difficulty in seeing that they learned much which could not have been discovered by a thorough investigation made along more familiar lines, yet criticism of those of us who are taking no trouble and undergoing no hardships for the sake of learning the full truth about conditions we know to be bad and betterable should be very gentle when directed against such people as these. Wisdom may not die with them, but they just possibly, it may not with the rest of us, either.

Joy of Adopting a Child.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reading the letter from your correspondent, "Mediocre," (a widow who has sufficient income to live upon and who wishes to know how she can employ her time to the best advantage to herself and mankind,) I am moved to make a suggestion.

This is that the lady can in no other way so surely attain her desire, and at the same time so greatly contribute to her own happiness, as in adopting some homeless orphan child. If she does this and so rears the child that it will become a good and useful man or woman, she certainly will not have lived in vain, and the possible amount of good that may result, in generations to come, is illimitable. Her reward also in having a child to love and care for, and to love and care for her when she is old, will not be deferred to the life to come, but will begin at once. I know whereof I speak, for I have seen childless people thus made happy so that they seemed to be the special recipients of Heaven's blessing.

I hope your correspondent will adopt this suggestion for her own good, for the good of some homeless child, and for the good of the State. W. C. C.

TENEMENT LAW'S DEFECTS.

Municipal Commission Needed to Secure Housing Reform.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article, "Help Toward Self-Help the Best Help," suggested by Mr. McAneny's speech at the Union Settlement Association, occurs this thought: "There is something regrettable, if not wrong, in intrusting to private organizations the activities that have come to be called 'social service.'"

This thought applies particularly to this State's tenement law and the way it is administered. Housing is the keynote to the majority of our social ills, and yet the law and its administration, although thoughtlessly but enthusiastically indorsed by nearly all those interested in "social service," is producing new ills faster than ever can be corrected by social service.

The tenement law was originated by a private organization and has been dominated and controlled by that society ever since. So strong and wealthy has this private charitable society become that the public is powerless even properly to suggest amendments to the tenement law. This being the case, there are doubtless many improvements that never come to light that might be of unusual benefit to the masses in our congested districts, as well as to those on the outskirts of our city.

It has lately been suggested that the Mayor appoint a public commission to look into the tenement laws and see if the control by private charity is beneficial. This suggestion was made a fortnight ago by a prominent citizen in The Brooklyn Eagle, who had ample opportunity last Spring of observing the methods employed in killing several bills which were public-spirited and in the interest of better housing. Such a commission would serve a most excellent purpose.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., made a contribution to tenement progress in 1909 by starting in New York the economic open-stair tenement idea in her East River homes in extreme East Seventy-seventh Street. But those monumental buildings had to contain a blemish resulting from laws that did not preconceive of the type. Had such a public commission been in existence the private society's limited view would not have ruled. Succeeding Buildings of the economic open-stair type have been hampered by restrictions that now make it impossible for commercial builders to follow the idea, which was the expectation of those interested in the John Jay dwellings. The aid of a public commission to review such situations is the only hope for advancement.

THE MERIT SYSTEM.

This and Short Ballot Would Make for Purer Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There appeared almost daily in last week's issues of THE TIMES an editorial or letter from a reader advocating the short ballot. This is indeed a searching reform, which should at once be adopted in this and other States. But we can hope for the most favorable results from the short ballot only when it will be accompanied by the further extension of the Civil Service or merit system.

Under present conditions the political boss is so dominant because he controls the nominations and hence the candidates for the various elective offices. The institution of the short ballot, without the extension of the Civil Service, will permit the boss to retain his power, by making it possible for him to control the numerous appointments. And it is very likely that he will strive for the appointment of his henchmen, who are only too often prone to corruption and inefficiency. The result would be that the evil which we tried to eliminate by the adoption of the short ballot would still remain in vogue. We would stop the election of inefficient men, but we would make possible their appointment to office.

Of course I am in favor of the appointment of those officials who affect the policy of the administration—national, State, or municipal. I should not think of choosing a member of the Cabinet or a State Attorney General or a City Police Commissioner by means of the Civil Service. But would it not be advisable to subject to the merit system such men as the County Clerk, Register, State Engineer, &c.? Is there any reason why these should not remain in office for life, or during good behavior? The fact is that these men, with experience, become more efficient, and it is only a backward step to have them succeeded by new officials, who are devoid of their experience.

We should also bear in mind the great influence for the purification of politics that the extension of the Civil Service would be. With the elimination of the prospective reward of an appointment to some office many a corrupt election district Captain and many a petty politician would relinquish his political activities.

ENGLISH GARDENING

An Art Which Is Almost Unknown In This Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to congratulate you upon the timely article written by Mrs. Philip Martineau on the lamentable absence of gardens on this side of the ocean. Each time I pay a visit to this, my native country, I am more and more impressed with the too evident fact that we Americans take but little interest in the cultivation of what may be called a real garden.

How many people in the United States, either among the wealthy or the poorer classes, are there who cultivate, in the way of a garden about their houses, anything more than a strip of lawn with, perhaps, a crescent or a star or a circle of geraniums in the middle of it, running down to a public road? Where, I should really like to know, is there anything approaching the resemblance of real gardens—of roseries, of Alpine gardens, and herbaceous borders—among the rank and file of the well-to-do people on the outskirts of any of the American cities and towns?

Where are the fine groupings of cool trees and shrubs, the glimpses of inviting paths and fruit-covered walls, the brilliant flashes of the myriads of lovely annuals that one encounters every mile of the way when traveling through England? And where, oh, where, are the American workingmen (all men work in the States, but none like to be called workingmen)? Where are the countless thousands of workingmen with their little front gardens, their manifest love of flowers so deep and ingrained that nearly all of their little spare time is devoted to the growing and perfecting of prize roses and sweet peas? Where are such sturdy flower lovers and growers in the United States to prove that Americans as a people are inclined to gardens and gardenmaking? For it is the working class of England, with their rude but beautiful bits of garden before their cottage doors, everywhere, in every straggling village and alongside every winding country road that has so largely helped to make England the marvelously attractive country it is.

The real gardens in this country are few and far between. If they exist at all, in the English sense of the word. And why is this so? It is because the Englishman loves the country and country life, and the American loves his cities and the making of money. Perhaps the gardens will come in time. I am glad, for my country's sake, that an effort is being made to stimulate a taste for them. O.

INDICTING FOR MURDER

District Attorney Cropsey Has Cut Out Useless Verbiage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Noticing in your columns the discussion of the question of length of the forms of indictment in criminal cases, I think it might be of general interest to know that more than a year ago we took up this question and began redrawing all the forms by eliminating unnecessary verbiage and making them state the essential facts plainly. I have prepared these forms from time to time since then until now practically all the forms used in this office are simplified. The indictment form of murder in the first degree as used in this office, theretofore, was, in part, as follows:

> The Grand Jury of the County of Kings, by this indictment, accuse John Johnson of the crime of murder in the first degree, committed as follows:
>
> The said John Johnson, late of the Borough of Brooklyn, of the City of New York, in the county aforesaid, on the 15th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nine, at the borough, city, and county aforesaid, with force and arms, in and upon one Peter Smith, willfully, designedly, premeditatedly, feloniously, and from a deliberate and premeditated design to effect the death of said Peter Smith, did make an assault.
>
> And the said John Johnson a certain pistol then and there charged and loaded with gunpowder and one leaden bullet, which said pistol he, the said John Johnson, in his right hand then and there had and held, then and there willfully, deliberately, premeditatedly, feloniously, and from a deliberate and premeditated design to effect the death of the said Peter Smith, did discharge and shoot off, to, at, against, and upon the said Peter Smith, and the said John Johnson, with the leaden bullet aforesaid, out of the pistol aforesaid, then and there by the force of the gunpowder aforesaid, by the said John Johnson shot off and discharged as aforesaid, then and there willfully, deliberately, premeditatedly, feloniously, and from a deliberate and premeditated design to effect the death of the said Peter Smith, did strike, penetrate, and wound him, the said Peter Smith, in and upon the side, chest, lung, body, and vital parts of him, the said Peter Smith.

This form contained 911 words.

The form that we have adopted and have been using for some time reads as follows:

> The Grand Jury of the County of Kings by this indictment accuse the defendant of the crime of murder in the first degree committed as follows:
>
> "The defendant on Oct. 15, 1909, in the County of Kings, willfully, feloniously, and of malice aforethought, shot Peter Smith with a revolver, thereby inflicting injuries of which he died on Oct. 18, 1909.

This form contains 60 words. Similar changes have been made in the other forms, the object always being to have the form contain all that is essential and at the same time be brief and plain.

APPEALS COURT DECISIONS.

Judge Hand Disclaims Any Intended Reflection on Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of THE TIMES appeared an article part of the title of which was "Judge Hand Hits at Court of Appeals." In the body of the article appeared the following (speaking of me):

> He asked Good if he did not know that the courts had frequently handed down decisions which no one could understand, and which were frequently reversed. Good replied that he did, and then the Court, addressing counsel, said that he would instruct the jury that the Court of Appeals many times reversed itself, but did not often admit it.

The defendant, Good, was charged with bringing a suit wrongfully in the face of certain decisions of the Court of Appeals. It was urged in his defense that he had some reason to expect that the court might reverse itself, and his counsel, in support of that contention, cited to me certain cases in which he claimed this had occurred. I quote to you verbatim the colloquy between Good's counsel, Mr. Moore, and myself, from the stenographer's minutes:

> Mr. Moore—I assume your Honor will take judicial cognizance of the fact that our highest courts do reverse themselves, but I ask your Honor to allow me to offer in evidence here the case of Elsely against Pratt, reported in 142 N. Y., at Page 372, and also a case in 206 N. Y., at Page 355, in which the Court of Appeals reversed itself. I think I am entitled to have the jury know that.
>
> The Court—I will not take them in evidence, but I will state that courts very seldom indeed do that, though they do it a good many times when they do not acknowledge it, once in a century they acknowledge that they do it, and sometimes they do it and do not acknowledge it.
>
> Mr. Moore—The point I make is that this case—
> The Court—I know the case. I do not know that there was an actual and avowed recantation, but I will take your word for it.

My recollection is that there was some further colloquy in the case which I have been unable to find in the stenographer's minutes, but nothing which, so far as my memory goes, even in the remotest way reflected upon the Court of Appeals of the State of New York.

HELPING THE MEXICANS.

Col. Lampton's Advice Is Regarded as Extremely Unwise.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter signed by "W. J. L.," a Colonel in the United States Army, received its just criticism when it was headed "Mexican Problem Solved." The United States declaring war on Mexico by crossing the border, and then retreating as soon as a real fight seemed imminent, would certainly be fine food for foreign newspaper cartoonists.

But, to get down to facts, allow me to quote the second sentence of "W. J. L.'s" letter: "We are reliably informed that if we do send troops into Mexico the whole country would unite against the invader." Would the Mexicans allow our invasion to remain unavenged? What would keep them from trying to invade United States territory? Our army, of course; but that would mean fight, an extreme which President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, and all other soundminded Americans are trying to avoid. I am not saying that the writer of the above quoted letter is not soundminded, for if he is a Colonel in our army he must be; but he has not gone any further than the retreat of the United States Army back over the Rio Grande. Would the Mexican leaders stop to reason that our invasion was but for the purpose of uniting them? Certainly not. They are a hot-headed nation, and if a fight is once started they will be in it with both feet. We all trust that such a situation may be avoided, and President Wilson is doing his best to do so.

When I read of the efforts of the members of the Political Equality League to secure a pardon for the twenty-four-year-old murderess in Connecticut, I couldn't help feeling disgusted.

I have had more or less of an inclination toward woman suffrage, but if their idea of "political equality" is one law for the man and another for the woman, then I don't want any "political equality."

THE WILSONS FAVOR FRIENDS IN WEDDING

Gathering at White House Nuptials Will Be Largely a Non-Official Company.

BRIDE'S WISHES FOLLOWED

Many High Officials Not Invited to Ceremony—Sayre to Arrive in Washington on Friday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The details of the arrangements for the wedding of Miss Jessie Wilson and Francis B. Sayre are gradually becoming known. The wedding company will be composed primarily of personal friends. It will be largely a family party, plus a hundred or more associates of the bride and bridegroom. This follows the bride's point of view, and nobody is disposed to deny this privilege of selecting her own wedding company to any bride, even though her home is the White House and all the world wants to share in the interest of the unusual occasion.

From the point of view of the President and Mrs. Wilson, the official significance of this first marriage in their household stops with the request for "the pleasure of the presence" of the Ambassadors and Ministers of foreign Governments, the members of the Cabinet, the Justices of the Supreme Court, and the wives and daughters of these dignitaries.

The Senate, the House of Representatives, the army and the navy are not included in the official list, nor are the score or more of high department officials, such as the Counselor of the State Department, the Solicitor General, and the Assistant Secretaries of State, War, Navy, and other departments. That is, none of these officials is invited because of his position. There will be several young assistant secretaries present, but in each case such official or his wife has a claim to the personal friendship of Miss Wilson or Mr. Sayre.

That is the reason why one Government official has received the coveted bit of engraved and crested cardboard, while his superior in office has not.

There will also be a few Senators and Representatives present, but again for personal, not official reasons. It is known that half a dozen men in close personal touch with the President and his best supporters at both ends of the Capitol have not been invited, sometimes to the outspoken disappointment of the feminine members of these households.

The Presbyterianism of the Wilson family is also recognized by the pastors of several of the local churches being included. Several Episcopal clergymen, friends of the Sayre family, are invited. The marriage ceremony will be according to the Presbyterian form. The Rev. Sylvester W. Beach of Princeton will officiate.

Mr. Sayre did not come to Washington for the week-end, as has been his habit for the past month, but will arrive Friday to remain until he takes his bride away on the six weeks' honeymoon, to end at Williamstown, Mass.

The bridegroom and his brother, the Rev. John Nevin Sayre, will be guests, for several days prior to the wedding, of Mr. Justice and Mrs. Hughes, who will entertain at a dinner for the bridal party on Monday.

On the wedding day the bridesmaids, ushers, and possibly the bride and bridegroom will lunch with Mr. Justice and Mrs. Lamar, the latter a particular friend of the President's family.

Francis Bowes Sayre, whose marriage to Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of the President, will take place a week from to-morrow, has spent his last day to-day in District Attorney Whitman's office, with which he has been connected for more than a year. Mr. Sayre's resignation as Deputy Assistant District Attorney, a place to which he was appointed not long ago, was in Mr. Whitman's hands last week.

This afternoon Mr. Sayre will say good-bye to his associates in the Criminal Court Building. In February he will become assistant to President Harry Garfield of Williams College. To-morrow he will go down the bay to meet his brother, John Nevin Sayre, a missionary in China, who will arrive on the Gresser Kurfurst to attend the wedding at the White House. He will go to Washington on Thursday, and stay there until after the wedding.

In the thirteen months which Mr. Syre has spent in District Attorney Whitman's office his chief duties have been in connection with the complaint bureau, and of late he has had charge of the prosecution of abandonment cases. From his experience in this work, Mr. Sayre says he has become convinced that few persons appreciate the responsibilities of matrimony. He does not believe that to make it easier for persons to procure a divorce would improve the conditions.

"While strict divorce legislation," he says, "entails a certain amount of suffering, the individual must suffer sometimes for the good of the community. It is a case of 'the greatest good for the greatest number.' The trouble with easy divorces is that persons soon come to the point where they fail to appreciate the gravity of the marriage vow and do not realize that marriage is a serious and permanent contract. Easy divorce would mean that a great many persons would marry with the idea of severing quickly the bonds in case they did not find the matrimonial state as pleasant as they anticipated."

Turning the discussion to the old English law which prohibited divorce absolutely, Mr. Sayre said that he was not in favor of going to that extreme. He did think, he asserted, that there should be a uniform divorce law nation-wide and that the law should be patterned after the New York statutes. Mr. Sayre is in favor of imposing severe sentences on those persons who prey on women.

"The present law," he says, "puts undue emphasis on the crime of murder. To my mind, murder is by no means the worst crime there is. Generally speaking, in my opinion, the man who deceives and preys upon unfortunate women is infinitely worse than a murderer."

Adele Krueger's Debut.

Adele Kruger made her first appearance here in a recital of songs last night at Aeolian Hall. Her programme included a group of German songs, one in French, another of Russian compositions sung in German, and a fourth in English. It was only in occasional flashes that the singer revealed the possession of a voice with possibilities, faltering for the most part under the disadvantage of a style of tone production which robbed it of the musical quality and substituted breathiness and dryness. Yet in the few instances where the real voice shone through, generally on high notes in full voice, it seemed to be big and of fair quality. Not a great deal can be said for her in the present stage as an interpreter of songs on the recital platform.

THE NEW YORK SYMPHONY.

First Performance of Music by Fanelli, with a History.

It was no doubt necessary that the New York public should be introduced to the music of Eugène Fanelli, who gained the attention of Paris last year with his music and a pathetic story relating thereto, and Mr. Damrosch was the one to do it at the concert of the New York Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon. The pieces in question are a set of three "Symphonic pictures" called "Thebes," "On the Nile" and "Triumphal Entrance of Pharaoh," suggested by Gautier's "Romance of a Mummy." Their composer was making his living as a copyist of music, and brought his manuscript to Gabriel Pierné, conductor of the Colonne Orchestra, not as specimens of his composition, but of his penmanship. The conductor saw something remarkable in them, and found that though they were composed in 1882, when Debussy was a student, they were couched in an idiom quite parallel with that which has since made such a mark in the world as of the younger man's devising. Fanelli, eking out a miserable existence in the lowest ranks, had never heard his music performed. Pierné performed it, and there was much excitement over the gifts and power of expression it discloses, foreshadowing much of the essential quality of the modern French School.

Mr. Damrosch explained this to the audience before playing the music, and justly remarked that, however pathetic the story, it could not affect the judgment of musicians or listeners as to the music itself. He pointed out, however, that, while the music might seem, in places uncouth and unskillful, there could only be conjecture what Fanelli might have become had he had a chance to hear his music and to continue his work as a composer.

The first "picture" was omitted in the performance, and the last two were played. The music did seem uncouth and unskillful in more than one place. The one called "On the Nile" is an attempt to create an atmosphere, establish a mood, with not much musical substance. There is little or no attempt at giving the more or less conventional "Oriental color" that musicians use when they are thinking of the Far East. The melodic intervals, often those of the "whole tone scale," and the effect of the harmonies based upon it, often of the keenest dissonance, do, indeed, suggest what is ordinarily attributed to Debussy. The composer has been less successful in the first piece than in the second one played. Atmosphere, color, mood, do not really shine through this music. It produced very little effect upon the listeners, who let it pass without a single hand. The festal character of the second was easier of attainment. There is here Oriental monotony of rhythm, often accentuated by the insistent drum; there are brilliant and sonorous fanfares, sometimes successful touches of orchestration. But there are numerous "holes" in the orchestration, and it is evident here and there that the composer had not quite the skill to carry out fully his intention. There is interest, at least, in this piece, beyond the story of its origin; and there is a fragment of tragedy in the fact that nothing can probably be expected further from the man who wrote this music thirty years ago.

Miss Kathleen Parlow, the young Canadian violinist whose appearance roused interest two and three seasons ago, and with reason, was the soloist. She played Bruch's second violin concerto in D minor. Miss Parlow's style has broadened and deepened, as well as gained in polish and refinement. Her powerful and sympathetic tone, her remarkable facility and precision of technique, her energetic bowing, are again admirable. Her playing of the concerto was robust and straightforward, not lacking in sentiment and warmth. It made a deep impression upon the audience, who recalled her several times.

The other orchestral numbers of the programme were Robert Volkmann's Serenade for strings in F in four movements, and Richard Strauss's tone poem "Till Eulenspiegel." The delicate charm, the truly individual spirit, the finished workmanship of Volkmann's serenade ought not to have been forgotten and neglected so long as they have been by orchestral conductors.

PHILHARMONIC CONCERT.

Gerville-Reache the Soloist at First Sunday Afternoon Performance.

The Philharmonic Society played its first Sunday afternoon concert of the season yesterday at Carnegie Hall with Mme. Gerville-Reache as the soloist. In spite of the bad weather there was a good-sized audience, which was rewarded for coming by a very enjoyable afternoon of music. The orchestra played the overture to "Le Roi d'Ys," by Lalo; Massenet's suite, "Scenes Pittoresque," and Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony. Mme. Gerville-Reache sang "The Death of Dido" aria from Berlioz's "The Trojans," the Spring Song from "Samson and Delilah," and Massenet's Air de Posthumia from "Roma."

It is a far stretch from the ingratiating trankness of the Massenet suite to the heroic sternness of the Tschaikowsky symphony, yet Mr. Stransky and his orchestra were as thoroughly satisfying in one as in the other. The whole of the second portion of the concert was devoted to the symphony, which received a clear, well-articulated performance, and one that roused the audience to enthusiasm. At the close of the second movement the applause was prolonged until the conductor had the orchestra rise and share it with him.

Mme. Gerville-Reache was in good voice and sang her music with fine full-toned evenness, both in the high register and the low. It was altogether a well-planned and well-performed concert.

Gardner Gives Violin Recital.

Samuel Gardner, a young violinist, who has received most of his training in New York and who gave a recital last year with some credit to himself, appeared again last night in the Little Theatre. He played a Handel sonata in D major, some Tartini variations, and two groups of smaller numbers. He was assisted by George Dostal, tenor. Mr. Gardner's playing was on an even level of good musicianship. Though a young man, he plays with considerable authority and repose. is varied yet not capricious in his style and has ample technical resources. His tone is firm and of good quality. The audience last night was not large, yet the player is entitled to a wider hearing than most of the younger crop of violinists who have appeared this season.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

There will be a professional matinee of "Ourselves" at the Lyric Theatre on Thursday afternoon. Grace Ellison, who plays the leading role, and other actresses will make addresses between the acts on social betterment, which is the theme of the play.

The Rev. Alexander Irvine, the former rector of the Church of the Ascension, will make his debut as an actor at Hammerstein's this afternoon in his own play, "The Rector of St. Jude's."

The question of the income tax as it applies to actors will be the subject of a meeting of actors which will take place at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Several well-known actors will address the meeting.

Nora Hayes, Pilar Morin, and Adele Ritchie have been added to the list of stars who will take part in the matinee performance of the Professional Women's League at the Casino Theatre to-morrow afternoon. Madeleine Harrison will also appear in her sensational dance, "Temptation."

The production of Cyril Maude's new play, "Grumpy," scheduled for Thursday night at Wallack's Theatre, has been postponed until a week from to-night. Until then Mr. Maude will continue to present "Beauty and the Barge" and the one-act thriller, "The Ghost of Jerry Bundler."

Albert Sackett, father of Julia Sanderson, will return to the stage in "The Misleading Lady," the new play by Charles Goddard and Paul Dickey, which will be produced by William Harris, Jr., at the Fulton Theatre, on Nov. 24. He retired from the stage several seasons ago, and has been living at his country home, near Springfield, Mass.

Holman Day, novelist, poet and writer of short stories, will make his initial appearance as a playwright when Henry W. Savage discloses his American production of "La Demoiselle de Magasin." This is the Fonson-Wicheler comedy which has been playing at the Theatre du Gymnase, in Paris. When "La Demoiselle de Magasin" is staged in New York the programme will read, "Adapted by Holman Day."

ACTORS TO DEMAND CONTRACT REFORMS

Managers' Peace Agreement Moves Players to Ask for Better Financial Protection.

TO END LONG REHEARSING

Would Compel Managers to Pay for Actresses' Gowns—300 Members of Profession Attend Meeting.

At a meeting of the Actors' Equity Association yesterday afternoon at the Little Theatre, the first meeting of the organization since it was launched six months ago, a contract form was drawn up which will be submitted to the Theatrical Managers' Association, with the request that it be adopted as the standard to be used when actors and actresses are employed.

The contract is designed to do away with many evils of the stage from the player's point of view. What steps the Equity Association will take to enforce the adoption of its demands were carefully left out of yesterday's discussion, but Francis Wilson, the President, said that he believed the membership was made up of men and women with red blood in their veins.

"We will not attempt to cross any bridges until we come to them," said Mr. Wilson, when several members attempted to have the association go on record as to how the contract would be forced upon the managers.

The fact that the leading managers of the country, who have been at war for several years, are now working in harmony is said to have moved the association to action at this time, although several months have been spent in drawing up a legal contract which would meet all the requirements of the situation.

Yesterday's meeting was attended by 300 of the most prominent actors and actresses in America. Mr. Wilson presided and Bruce McRae, the Recording Secretary; Frank Gilmore, and Paul N. Turner, the latter the association's chief counsel, explained the points in the new contract.

The members of the council of the association, most of whom were present yesterday, are Charles D. Coburn, William Courtleigh, Edward Connelly, Arthur Byron, Edward Ellis, William Sampson, Thomas Wise, Albert Bruning, John Cope, Jefferson De Angelis, Wilton Lackaye, Frank Reicher, Grant Stewart, John Westley, Edwin Arden, George Arliss, Digby Bell, Holbrook Blinn, Robert Edeson, Frank Gilmore, and George Nash.

Among the reforms aimed at by the new contract is one to end the practice of forcing players to take part in many weeks' rehearsals without pay. A clause says that free rehearsals shall be limited to three weeks. If rehearsals are necessary after that period the manager will be required to add a half week to the usual two weeks' notice of the closing of the show for each week over three that the play is in preparation. That is, if a play is rehearsed four weeks the actor in the company will be assured of at least two and a half weeks' work or salary for that period, and if the play is rehearsed five weeks the actor must get three weeks' work.

Other clauses call for the full salaries on the weeks when managers have been accustomed to pay half salaries, although the manager gets the alternative of closing the company altogether on those weeks and paying no salaries at all. The two weeks' notice of closing clause must be fully lived up to, and when a play closes or ends its season on the road the manager must pay the railroad fare of the company back to New York. Transportation to the place of opening must also be paid.

Gowns for the Actress.

The women of the profession are to be protected by a clause which will compel the manager to buy all costumes, whether the play is a modern one or a "costume" play. Miss Lola La Follette, who was one of the speakers, explained that the day was past when an actress could take some flannel and a bit of fur and make an ermine cloak for the stage.

"The women of the stage to-day are required," said she, "to be only to dress right up to the latest fashion, but to assist in making the fashion, and an actress earning $100 a week and getting, say, twenty weeks' work a season, cannot afford to pay out about $500 for stage clothes."

The offices of the Actors' Equity Association are in the Longacre Building, and all the officers serve without pay. Mr. Wilson explained that the organization was fathered by the men in the profession who were independent of the managers and did not suffer from the prevalent evils.

Actors generally believe that with the shortening of the period of rehearsals managers will naturally look for better plays and not flood the stage with all sorts of dramas simply because it is so easy to put on pieces of no merit with the hope of being able to whip them into shape during many weeks of rehearsing.

OPEN JOSEPH SCHOOL.

New Building for 1,000 Children and Costing $100,000 to be Dedicated.

Services marking the four days' dedication exercises of the new building of the Rabbi Jacob Joseph School, 163-167 Henry Street, began yesterday afternoon. The speakers in the afternoon were Dr. J. Hyamson, who was recently a candidate for Chief Rabbi of England; Rabbi M. S. Margolis, Rabbi S. W. Margolis, and S. I. Andron, the latter acting as Chairman of the meeting. About 300 persons filled the lecture hall of the school.

Dr. Hyamson made an appeal for funds necessary to clear off the $50,000 indebtedness upon the building.

"America is the land of experiments, particularly in education," he said, "and this experiment has been a success. During the years of its existence this institution has turned out many college men, physicians, lawyers and school teachers, and the bulk of its graduates have shown themselves to be good Jews and worthy American citizens."

After Dr. Hyamson's address a letter was read from Judge Mayer Sulzberger of the Court of Common Pleas in Philadelphia tendering his regrets at not being able to be present.

The new school building is of modern fireproof construction with accommodations for 1,000 children. It has an auditorium, a lunch room, a roof garden, and represents an outlay of $100,000. The school was organized in 1901 in memory of the late Rabbi Jacob Joseph and is supported by popular subscription and membership fees.

MUSIC NOTES.

The first Symphony Concert for Young People will be given on Saturday afternoon at Carnegie Hall by the New York Symphony Society, Walter Damrosch, conductor. Kathleen Parlow will be the soloist. The concert will illustrate the orchestral use of the oboe, clarinet, English horn, violin, and viola. Among the works to be performed are "The Spinning Wheel of Omphale," by Saint-Saens; trio for oboe, clarinet, and English horn, by Beethoven; Bruch's Concerto in D minor, played by Miss Parlow; the Procession of the Pilgrims from Berlioz's "Harold" symphony, and Enesco's Rumanian Rhapsody.

The Three Arts Club will give a series of four subscription concerts at the clubhouse, 340 West Eighty-fifth Street, on Thursday afternoons, Nov. 20, Jan. 15, March 19, and April 16. The artists for the first concert are Michael Banner, violinist; Vera Curtis, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera House; Winifred Ducher, contralto, and Marie Grunwald, pianist. Tickets may be obtained at the clubhouse.

The first of a series of Composers' Nights at the New York Musicians' Club will take place there Tuesday evening, Nov. 25. Florence Hinkle and Arthur Philips will give a recital of Ward-Stephens's songs.

Under the auspices of the American Guild of Organists a series of four organ recitals on various organs will be given this season. The first is by T. Tertius Noble, at St. Thomas's Church, on the evening of Nov. 25. The others will be by Wallace Goodrich of Boston in January, Frederick Maxson of Philadelphia in February, and, Harold D. Phillips of Baltimore in March.

Sigismond Stojowski gives a piano recital at the von Ende School of Music on Friday evening.

MARY CARSON HEARD.

New Century Opera Singer Makes Debut at Sunday Night Concert.

At the Century Opera House concert last night a new member of the company made a first appearance preparatory to a regular place in its ranks in the person of Mary Carson, soprano. She sang "Ah, Fors e Lui" from "La Traviata." Miss Carson was evidently nervous and apparently more accustomed to the dramatic than the concert stage, but she made the impression of a young singer of considerable talent. Her voice was surprisingly large and full in view of her slight physique, and of agreeable quality.

The other members of the company who were heard were Louis Kreidler, John Bardsley, Alfred Kaufman, Ivy Scott, Walter Wheatley, and Jayne Herbert.

Lois Ewell made a reappearance after an absence of several weeks, during which she has been nursing a sprained ankle received in the jump off the parapet in the last act of "Tosca." She sang "Adieu Forets" from "Jeanne D'Arc" of Tschaikowsky. The full orchestra played the overture to "Zampa," the overture to "Guarany," by Gomez, and the ballet music from "Faust," while the strings alone played Tschaikowsky's Andante Cantabile, "the" Boccherini Minuet, and Schumann's "Traumerei." Josef Pasternack and Carlo Nicosia conducted, and Edward Collins was at the piano.

MRS. CAMPBELL, 104, DEAD.

Aged Jersey Woman Had Never Been Out of the State.

VINELAND, N. J., Nov. 16.—One of the oldest women in Southern New Jersey died early to-day at the age of 104 years. She was Mrs. Charlotte Campbell, a true-blue Jersey woman, never having been out of the State. Mrs. Campbell was born in Monmouth, Atlantic County, and was the mother of ten children, four of whom survive her. For some years she lived here with her son, David, at 420 Almond Street. A year ago she fell and broke her arm. In mind, she was bright, and few kept in closer touch with everyday life than she did.

Once while she was a girl, Mrs. Campbell picked huckleberries from the same bush with a black bear, but did not know the bear was on the other side. Another time she caught a bear up a tree, and, taking off her white skirt, tied the garment around the tree, and in this way held Bruin a prisoner until she could summon her husband with a gun. She took delight in telling her children of the first eclipse of the sun she ever saw, and how her mother gathered the children in prayer.

Heart Disease Kills J. P. Hartpence.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 16.—Returning to her home at Main Street and Prospect Avenue, East Orange, late last night, Mrs. Davis Moore found her father, John P. Hartpence, dead on the kitchen floor. He was one of the oldest residents of East Orange and was identified with its early growth. He was an engineer, and had retired from active professional life only a few months ago. Heart disease caused his death.

BAILEY AVERY, press representative for Joseph M. Gaites, the theatrical manager, was found dead in his room over Brown's Chop House yesterday morning by a waiter. Avery before he became a press agent was a well-known newspaper man.

OLD CHURCH TO GO.

Members of Bedford Street Methodist Together for Last Services.

In the year 1805 the Methodists of old Greenwich village organized a society of their own congregation and began holding meetings in the homes of Samuel Walgrove, a carpenter, and Mrs. Joanna De Groot, two religious leaders of their time. Five years later the society had grown so that homes would no longer accommodate its members and a wooden church was built in the heart of the village at Bedford and Morton Streets. After several enlargements, this building was replaced in 1840 by a red brick church that stands on the original site to-day. This was the third Methodist congregation established in New York and it has been self-sustaining for 108 years.

But, as a separate unit in the religious life of the city, it must go, and the old church building in a short time will be torn down to make way for traffic. Seventh Avenue, under which the subway will be built, is to be extended from its present terminus at Greenwich Avenue and West Eleventh Street through the Greenwich village labyrinth to the northern end of Varick Street, and the old Bedford Street Methodist Church is directly in the road. Last September, the Church property was condemned by the city and the building ordered abandoned.

This week the congregation is celebrating the 108th anniversary and holding final services in their church. The first of the services was held yesterday morning. There will be meetings and services on every night of the week, and next Sunday the last sermon will be preached in the church. On the following Sunday, Nov. 30, the entire congregation will unite with that of the Metropolitan Temple, Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street, of which the Rev. George W. Downs, pastor in Bedford Street, will become associate pastor.

RUBAIYAT ON THE STAGE.

Guy Bates Post to Play Title Role in "Omar, the Tentmaker."

The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam is to be dramatized and will be put upon the stage as the first offering of the newly formed theatrical company, of which former Mayor Phelan of San Francisco, is the backer. The play, by Richard Walton Tully, will be called "Omar, the Tentmaker."

The rôle of the poet will be played by Guy Bates Post. Recently Mr. Post has appeared as the beachcomber in Mr. Tully's play, "The Bird of Paradise." The star will be supported by a cast of sixty.

The play will open outside of New York about Dec. 8, and will be presented in a Broadway theatre a short time later.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

FOOTBALL
The New York Times will give to all its readers next Sunday a unique ILLUSTRATED FOOTBALL SECTION.
In this section — 16 pages, printed on paper of high quality and in a size handy for keeping as a souvenir—will be pictures of interest to college men and followers of the game in every part of the United States.
The records of the leading teams will be presented concisely, with photographs of their captains.
Views of the Army and Navy players, who are to meet here for the first time on Saturday after next, will be of special interest to New Yorkers. This city has not had a football game of national importance in many years.
Other features will be panoramic pictures of the Harvard, Yale, and Princeton grounds, packed with football throngs.
Among those who will find pictures and articles that directly appeal to them are the alumni and students of

Yale	Lehigh	U. of Georgia
Harvard	Lafayette	U. of Texas
Princeton	Pittsburgh	Vanderbilt
Pennsylvania	Penn. State	U. of Tennessee
West Point	Hobart	U. of Vermont
Annapolis	Colgate	Stevens
Cornell	Union	U. of Alabama
Brown	Hamilton	Alabama P. I.
Carlisle	Syracuse	Virginia P. I.
Dartmouth	Georgetown	Lake Forest
Rochester	Wesleyan	U. of Michigan

Stevens	Washington & Lee	U. of Kansas
Trinity	V. M. I.	Ohio State
Amherst	U. of Virginia	Notre Dame
Williams	U. of N. Carolina	U. of California
Tufts	U. of S. Carolina

Brief reviews will trace the game's development in the Eastern, Southern, and Western States. The contributors include Parke H. Davis, of the Rules Committee, one of the foremost gridiron experts, and others who are authorities in their respective fields.
The ILLUSTRATED FOOTBALL SECTION will be issued in addition to the regular Picture Section, which Times readers have come to know as an unequaled pictorial review of current events.
As the Sunday edition of The New York Times is always sold out it will be necessary to order in advance

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION IN AMERICA AND EUROPE

Some people in the financial district are beginning to ask themselves whether too much stress has not been laid in stock market opinion upon the unfavorable features of the situation and too little attention paid to the fact that most of the factors about which concern is being expressed these days are the very things which have brought the decline in prices and the contraction in trading which have resulted in the market's present position. To some extent the recent day-to-day movements of prices have in themselves supported the theory that the aggregate of sentiment and of inferences which go to make up the impersonal entity of the stock market has ceased to be swayed as much as the views of those traders close to the market are being swayed by adverse possibilities. Early last week a sharp decline was experienced. For a time the market looked very weak but slowly and irregularly and notwithstanding one or two further setbacks, the general level of quotations had, by the week's close, regained all of the loss with which the week had begun.

Of several matters which claimed attention last week it may be said that they lend themselves as easily to favorable as to unfavorable influence. This was even true of the award of the Wage Arbitration Board, which granted to trainmen and conductors on the Eastern railroads a wage increase which will call for about $6,000,000 a year. That award was opened to favorable interpretation from the railroads' point of view because of the emphasis which it laid on the dilemma in which the railroads are placed by successive awards of increased wages in the absence of any advance in freight rates. The Arbitration Board had no authority, of course, to pass upon the question of an increase in rates but it was believed that what it had to say about the probable reasonableness of an advance would materially help the railroads' cause in their present application for a 5 per cent. freight rate increase. It has all along been recognized that sooner or later the encroachment of railroad expenses upon their net earnings would compel an increase in rates. The mere fact that heretofore the efforts of railroads to increase their rates have been unsuccessful affords no ground for the assumption that the present application will be refused. On the other hand there are some good reasons for expecting a favorable outcome of the present effort and it is entirely reasonable to give these full weight in considering the general position of the railroads. The hope of such an increase being granted may grow stronger in coming weeks and that in itself would be a favorable stock market factor of some consequence. It must be borne in mind though, that the indications are that the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in this matter will not be rendered for a good many months to come.

Another matter far removed from this which also lends itself to favorable inference is last week's decision by the French Cabinet to offer for subscription probably early in December the proposed $260,000,000 national French loan. The success or failure of this bond offering will have far-reaching influence and its success seems already pretty well assured. If the hope is realized that this loan will serve the purpose of calling out a large amount of cash from its hiding places in France the placing of this loan may quite possibly, as some believe that it will, prove the turning point in the European money market and investment situation. The final month of the year is one of large special financial requirements in the European markets, but the present position of unusual strength of the great central banks gives promise that these requirements will, this year, be met without hardship. Particularly is this likely to be true if our own market bears out present indications of increasing money ease. Should the French loan prove a notable success, as well it may, it would exert psychological effect of no mean consequence upon the financial markets. The pessimist can, of course, assume its utter failure which inevitably would lead to a worsened financial condition abroad, but he would be assuming this against the probabilities of the case and against some very specific present indications to the contrary.

In any attempt to form a reasoned opinion regarding the stock market outlook, more particularly in our own market, it seems essential to form an opinion regarding the extent and duration of the resumption in trade which is now under way. If trade contraction is to amount to trade disaster the inference regarding the effect on the stock market is plain. But is there any ground for assuming business contraction in any such proportion as that? To assume that we are running into a period of disaster would be assuming a remedy much greater than the evil to be cured. One fact which seems to stand out very prominently in a glance over the general trade situation is that we have not been accumulating large stocks of merchandise, whose enforced liquidation in an unwilling market would bring very heavy losses and would be accompanied by wholesale curtailment of manufacturing. It would seem that consumption has too closely kept pace with production to have led to any such condition. It must be borne in mind that the enormous increase in the country's consuming requirements has greatly lessened the chance of surplus production. Quiet trade, therefore, rather than very poor trade seems the probability.

To whatever extent trade recedes, funds will be released and money-market ease increased. If money should become very easy, indeed, as some expect, there would before very long develop demand for securities of seasoned worth as an escape from idleness of funds or from their employment in an unremunerative money market. Such conditions would undoubtedly lead to a process of selection. Indeed, the recent record of the stock market shows that such a process of selection has for some time been under way.

The Mexican situation is an immediate factor upon which a large share of the attention of the financial community was centred last week. The outlook in that direction has undoubtedly been improved by the assurances which have come to hand that this Government would not encounter interference on the part of European countries in carrying out its Mexican policy. That is no small gain, and it justifies a more hopeful view regarding the Mexican problem. The situation lent itself last week to many contradictory reports, but it seemed at the week's close to be developing along lines which favor a peaceful settlement. The markets of Europe are watching Mexico even as closely as our own, and good news from that quarter not improbably would exert favorable influence upon the immediate position of the markets abroad as well as here.

News of Balkan Peace Aids the Market—Mexican Banks Recover.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—A much firmer tone prevailed on the Bourse last week than at any time for months past. Although business was not very active, there was a strong undertone in evidence that the public was finally returning to the market.

The news that Turkey and Greece had practically settled their differences and the more hopeful prospects of a solution of the Mexican question were factors inspiring confidence, although Mexican rumors caused some reaction in the middle of the week. Everything pointed to a steady increase of business after a period of idleness, unrast, and uncertainty.

Rentes started well, but wavered, finally reaching the level of the preceding week, since the terms of the new Government loan were not known before the close of the markets. In the foreign group Mexican banks responded to the more encouraging week-end news from Washington, the National Bank of Mexico advancing fourteen points. The weakest feature at the beginning of the week was Rio Tinto. This was explained by the fact that negotiations are still on between the company and the strikers, and by the relapse of copper shares in Wall Street; but the upward movement of Americans gave a fillip to prices later in the week, bringing the stock up 26 points.

LONDON IS MORE CONFIDENT.

Improvement in Mexican Securities the Week-End Feature.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The stock markets last week had a more confident tone, but the business was chiefly professional, and the quotations lacked the steadying support of the public. The Mexican situation was the controlling power in the markets, although Premier Asquith's Guildhall speech deprived it of its only dangerous aspect—the possibility of Anglo-American differences. The chief feature of the week-end was the further general improvement in Mexican securities; but in all the markets the tone was more cheerful.

The question now asked is: When is the public going to buy? It is pointed out that the markets are offering extraordinary investment bargaining; there is scarcely a section in which securities are not greatly undervalued. Market conditions were never intrinsically sounder.

SOMBRE TONE IN BERLIN.

Depressed by London, Wall Street, Hollins Failure, &c.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—The Boerse's tendency was unfavorably influenced throughout the week by the condition of London's money market and indirectly by a reported tension in Wall Street. Local money conditions are favorable, but in view of the foreign situation the outlook is not encouraging.

A disappointing feature of the week was the report of the Great Phoenix Mining and Smelting Company, showing 30,000 tons fewer orders on hand than last year, and falling coal prices. The Hollins failure also had an unfavorable effect here.

The Boerse's tendency was most irregular, one day up and the next day down, the public and even many professionals holding aloof and being unable to hazard even a guess as to the future.

RUGS CAN'T COME AS ART ANTIQUES

Appraisers Deny Free Entry to Valuable Importations Said to Belong to Widener Collection.

MADE FOR PERSIAN THRONES

Woven in the 15th and 16th Centuries and Considered Too Valuable to Lay on Floors.

Early this year the Kent-Costikyan Company, Inc., rug and carpet importers of this city, imported a dozen or more Persian rugs and carpets woven in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. While neither the official papers in the case, nor the testimony taken by the board disclosed the identity of the person for whom the importation was made by the dealers it was reported that they were intended for the collection of P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia. Customs officials professed ignorance of the personality of the owner, as did other persons who might have thrown light on the subject.

When the importation reached the Appraisers' Stores it was returned for duty at the rate of 10 cents a square foot and 40 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 391, Tariff act of 1909, as Oriental rugs. The importers, thereupon, appealed to the Board of General Appraisers for a review of the assessment, contending the goods should come in free under Paragraph 717, as artistic antiquities more than 100 years old at the time of importation. At the hearing before the board it was shown that the rugs ranged in size from 25 feet, 6 inches long by 10 feet, 6 inches wide to 31 feet length and 12 feet width. One of the rugs possessed an invoiced valne of $12,480, while another was valued at $9,200.

S. Kent Costikyan, President of the importing firm, testified that although his concern imported rugs and carpets for the usual commercial purposes, the articles in controversy constituted a class by themselves owing to their age.

Another witness, John W. Jones of Jones & Brindisi, had no difficulty in identifying the rugs as of the period reported by the importers. Asked for his reasons he said:

"Previous to the sixteenth century animals were very much used in designs. In the latter part of the fifteenth century the Chinese cloud pattern was first introduced into Persian goods by the Shah Abis, who imported Chinese laborers and artists to work in the factories of Persia. At that time the rugs were made principally for the Persian palaces."

The testimony also developed the fact that some of the rugs were originally used to cover thrones, while others contained rings showing that they were utilized as wall hangings. The witnesses agreed that the rugs were not practical for use as ordinary floor coverings, as they had passed their period of usefulness, and had become objects of antiquity and art, and were sought for the purpose of perpetuating the workmanship of past centuries. Replying to a question by the Government's counsel whether the rugs before the board could not be used on the floor as coverings, a witness acknowledged that they could be so used, but said that rare tapestries might also be put to similar use, but, of course, never were.

Judge Waite, in his decision for the board affirming the assessment imposed by Collector Loeb, held that the articles fell within the exemption clause of Paragraph 717, for "rugs and carpets," and, therefore, were not in the class of artistic antiquities for which free entry was provided.

It is understood that the Court of Customs Appeals will be asked to review the decision of the General Board.

NEW MAIL PLAN SAVES TIME.

Letters Will Be Sent from Downtown to Manhattan Transfer Station

A saving from forty to forty-five minutes in handling first class mail between downtown New York and the Manhattan Transfer Station of the Pennsylvania lines near Harrison, N. J., will be accomplished by a new system to be put in operation to-day. Heretofore all mail deposited at the Hudson Terminal Station, which has been the principal downtown mailing division for that past five years, has been shot through pneumatic tubes to the East Thirty-third Street postal sub-station and then transferred by automobile wagons to the Pennsylvania Station at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street.

Under the new plan, the first class mail for the Pennsylvania lines will be taken by the Hudson Terminal, direct from the Hudson Terminal Station at 30 Church Street to Jersey City, and thence to the Manhattan transfer station, where it will be picked up by the trains for the West and South. Postmaster Morgan said last night that the new system would mean that mail deposited at the Hudson Terminal at 10:45 o'clock in the morning, would catch the same trains at the transfer station in New Jersey as mail deposited formerly at 10 o'clock.

The first class mail deposited at the Hudson Terminal Station has been very heavy, and, it was explained that the new system would facilitate the handling of mail from central and uptown New York by making much lighter the work of the employes at the Thirty-third Street station. At present only the first class mail will be affected by the new order as the second, third, and fourth class mail in the holidays, at least, would be too heavy to handle by means of the Hudson tubes.

Mr. Morgan said yesterday that he had decided not to institute in New York the system of having Post Office employes put the stamps on mail deposited. Postmaster General Burleson made it optional with the local Postmasters whether they should adopt the plan. Mr. Morgan said yesterday that he did not think the plan would work to advantage here. Under the plan, when a parcel is presented for mailing the Postal Clerk receiving it, after he collects the required postage, indorses on the parcel tre amount of postage which would be affixed by a clerk later.

SEES PERIL IN KAHN LAW.

It Can Be Used, Says S. M. Weatherly, to Embarrass Manufacturers.

In announcing a convention at the Hotel Astor on Friday next of manufacturers whose products are covered by trade marks, S. M. Weatherly, Secretary of the National Registration League, yesterday attacked the provisions of the Kahn lw, just passed by Congress, and designed to encourage foreign exhibitors to attend the Panama-Pacific Exhibition at San Francisco.

This law, according to Mr. Weatherby, though framed with good intent, would react disastrously on manufacturers of this country by allowing foreign exhibitors patent rights on their products in this country for three years after the Panama Exposition, if they hold patents on those products at home, irrespective of whether American manufacturers have previously acquired patents thereon.

"Under this law any manufacturer is liable to criminal prosecution, fine, imprisonment, confiscation of property, and injunction, for continuing to manufacture his own products," said Mr. Weatherly. "It is possible, too, for any one to ask some foreign Government for a certificate of protection for the product of your concern, have the same imported and exhibited at the Exposition, obtain a certificate under this law and say to the American manufacturer that he must stop manufacturing or subject himself to all the liabilities and penalties provided by the Kahn law.

"Many other iniquities are harbored in the bill and endless loss and litigation are bound to result. So far as the Kahn bill has for its purpose a proper protection of foreign owners of original design property who may exhibit at the San Francisco Exposition, American manufacturers can have no objection, but the law as passed goes far beyond such purpose, permits the invasion of existing American rights, and must be amended to safeguard such rights."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Protest on Mohair Sustained and One on Pictures Overruled.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has sustained a protest by the Massachusetts Mohair and Plush Company, in which it was contended that the Collector of Customs at Boston made an assessment on an excessive weight of mohair. It was asserted that during the voyage the goods absorbed sea water. The board granted an allowance of 968 pounds for excessive weight and directed a reliquidation of the duties.

The Reuhl Moulding Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati was overruled in a contention relating to pictures, which were assessed for duty at 5 cents a pound and 30 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 411, Tariff act of 1909, as printed matter on surface-coated paper. The importers held that the merchandise was dutiable at 25 per cent. ad valorem as printed matter not specially provided for, under Paragraph 416.

The J. Wilckes Company was sustained in a claim that additional duty of four-tenths of 1 cent a pound did not accrue on importations of cold-rolled razor steel in strips. Collector Mitchell's action in assessing the extra duty under Paragraph 137, act of 1909, was reversed.

The board upheld a protest by Austin Baldwin & Co. dealing with the classification under the act of 1909 of printing presses. Duty was taken at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 199, as manufactures of metal. They were accorded entry at 30 per cent under Paragraph 197, as printing presses.

Raw Silk Imports Behind.

According to statistics compiled by the Silk Association of America, imports of raw silk in the month of October were about 1,000 bales smaller than those of the corresponding month last year. Imports of Canton silk for the month were more than double those of 1912 at 1,777 bales, and tussahs showed a gain of about 200 bales. Receipts of European, Japanese and China silks fell off, the largest drop being shown in Japanese filatures. Imports of raw silk into this country in the first four months of the current fiscal year, however, show a good gain over those of the same months in 1912. European, Japanese and China silk again show losses, but they are more than offset by the heavy gains in Cantons and in tussahs and doppionis. In this period shipments of Canton considerably more than doubled those of a year ago, while tussahs and doppionis together showed a gain of nearly 100 per cent.

Bankruptcy Sales

MILLIKEN BROTHERS, INC.—Adjournment of Sale—Pursuant to a decree of the United States District Court, Southern District of New York, dated November 10, 1913, the sale of the property of the bankrupt is adjourned to Tuesday, December 2, 1913, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, to be held at the County Court House of Richmond County, New York, in the Borough of Richmond, City of New York.

MILLIKEN BROTHERS, INC.

SALE BY TRUSTEES IN BANKRUPTCY.

United States District Court—Southern District of New York—In the matter of Milliken Brothers, Inc., Bankrupt—In Bankruptcy.

Pursuant to a decree made by the Honorable Stanley W. Dexter, Referee in Bankruptcy, dated September 5, 1913, the undersigned, Trustee in Bankruptcy of Milliken Brothers, Inc., by Charles Shongood, Auctioneer, will, on December 2, 1913, (adjourned from November 11, 1913,) commencing at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, sell at public sale, at the Court House of Richmond County, New York, in the Borough of Richmond, City of New York, in accordance with the provisions of said decree and the terms of sale, all of the properties of the bankrupt, wheresoever located, including real and personal property, choses in action, patents, copyrights, contracts, good-will, and in general all assets of every kind, nature, and description, together with all property acquired by or in the possession of the Trustees on said date of sale and being the property of said bankrupt, except (a) cash on hand; (b) all accounts and bills receivable, and (c) completed contracts and payments due thereon and to become due.

For the terms and conditions of sale reference is made to the Decree of Sale and to the Terms of Sale, copies of which may be obtained after September 27, 1913, at the office of the Referee, No. 71 Broadway, or at the office of the Auctioneer, Charles Shongood, 5 0 Broadway, or at the office of the undersigned, Attorneys for the Trustees. The official report of Appraisers may be examined at the office of the Referee.

The following is a description of the real property to be sold:

All those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land, together with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being at Mariner's Harbor, Howland's Hook, Staten Island, in the Third Ward of the Borough and County of Richmond, (formerly Town of Northfield,) City and State of New York, which, taken together in three separate parcels, are bounded and described as follows, viz.:

FIRST PARCEL.

Beginning at a point in the northerly side of the Shore Road, or Richmond Terrace, at the southwesterly corner of land now or formerly of Cornelius Jones, known as Lot No. 4 on a map entitled, "Property of the heirs of the late John De Hart, deceased, Tunis Tappen, Surveyor, 1870," and filed in the office of the Clerk of the County of Richmond; and running thence along the westerly line of said Lot No. 4, north 5 degrees 13 minutes and 34 seconds west, 403 feet 6 and ½ inches, to the waters of the Kill von Kull or Newark Bay; thence along the waters of the River Kill von Kull or Newark Bay, the nine following courses: north 75 degrees 58 minutes west, 30 feet 9 inches; north 1 degree 6 minutes west, 44 feet 8 and ¾ inches; north 22 degrees 32 minutes west, 29 feet 8 inches; north 4 degrees 56 minutes and 16 seconds west, 97 feet 7 inches; north 34 degrees 42 minutes and 30 seconds east, 102 feet 10 and ½ inches; north 49 degrees 17 minutes east, 89 feet; north 61 degrees 9 minutes and 50 seconds east, 40 feet; north 80 degrees 16 minutes and 40 seconds east, 61 feet; and north 48 degrees 6 minutes east, 33 feet 1 and ½ inches to the southeasterly corner of a certain grant or patent from the People of the State of New York to William R. Grace, dated March 14, 1884, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of Richmond County, in Liber 151 of Deeds at page 494; thence along the easterly line of said grant or patent, north 15 degrees 44 minutes and 40 seconds east, 555 feet 1 inch, to the pier and bulkhead line of the United States Government as approved by the Secretary of War, January 4, 1890, and established by Chapter 898 of the Laws of the State of New York for the year 1895; thence along said pier and bulkhead line, north 75 degrees 3 minutes and 40 seconds west, 870 feet 0 inches, to the easterly end of the United States Government Pier; thence still along said pier and bulkhead line, north 86 degrees 34 minutes and 50 seconds west, 570 feet, to the northeasterly corner of a certain other grant or patent from the People of the State of New York to Richard D. Jackson and Joseph W. Masters, dated December 2, 1893, and recorded in said Clerk's office, in Liber 225 of Deeds at page 392; thence along the westerly line of said grant or patent, south 3 degrees 0 minutes and 10 seconds west, 620 feet to the southwesterly corner thereof; thence along the easterly line of land now or formerly of the New York Transit and Terminal Company, south 3 degrees 8 minutes west, 240 feet 4 and 1-0 inches; thence still along the easterly line of land of said Company, and also along the easterly line of land now or formerly of Frederick Wehman, south 0 degrees 10 minutes and 30 seconds east, 615 feet, to the Shore Road aforesaid; thence along said road, the six following courses:

North 80 degrees 6 minutes and 37 seconds east, 245 feet 4 and ¾ inches to a spike in an old willow stump; south 76 degrees 26 minutes and 18 seconds east, 469 feet 4 and ½ inches to a stake; south 62 degrees 14 minutes east, 60 feet 11 inches to a stake; south 54 degrees 40 minutes east, 268 feet 8 inches to a stake; south 50 degrees 55 minutes and 10 seconds east, 107 feet to a cut in a box post; and north 78 degrees 53 minutes and 30 seconds east, 92 feet 9 inches to the southwesterly corner of land now or formerly of Henry De Hart; thence along the westerly line of said De Hart's land, north 0 degrees 4 minutes and 30 seconds east, 212 feet 6 and ¼ inches to a stake; thence along the northerly line of said De Hart's land, south 87 degrees 38 minutes and 30 seconds east, 230 feet 2 inches; thence along the easterly line of said De Hart's land, south 4 degrees 31 minutes east, 60 feet 3 and ½ inches to a nail and cut in the fence; thence along the southerly line of said De Hart's land, the two following courses:

South 83 degrees 47 minutes and 20 seconds west, 52 feet 6 inches to a stake; and south 80 degrees 45 minutes and 40 seconds west, 49 feet 6 inches; thence again along the easterly line of said De Hart's land, south 2 degrees 45 minutes and 17 seconds east, 102 feet to the Shore Road aforesaid; and thence along said Shore Road the three following courses:

North 76 degrees 58 minutes and 20 seconds east, 53 feet 7 and ½ inches; north 74 degrees 21 minutes east, 32 feet 6 inches to a nail and cut in the fence; and north 74 degrees 38 minutes and 10 seconds east, 52 feet 4 inches to the point or place of beginning, be the said several distances and dimensions more or less.

Together with all the right, title and interest of the said party of the first part, of, in and to the Shore Road, in front of and adjacent to the above described premises, and also all riparian rights, water grants, and accretions adjacent and appurtenant to said lands.

Subject to the conditions contained in the grant of lands under water to Richard D. Jackson and Joseph W. Masters, dated December 2, 1892, and recorded in Richmond County Clerk's office, in Liber 225 of Deeds, page 393.

SECOND PARCEL.

Beginning at a point in the southerly side of the Shore Road, or Richmond Terrace, at the northwesterly corner of land now or formerly of Elizabeth De Hart, which said point is distant 123 feet 6 inches south westerly from the southwesterly corner of Holland Avenue and the Shore Road at a nail and a cut in the fence, and running thence along the southerly side of the Shore Road the fourteen following courses:

The Weather

The Central Valleys depression has moved to the Middle Atlantic Coast and the weather has become more settled. It is considerably warmer throughout the interior West and somewhat colder from the Ohio Valley northeastward. There will be snow or rain Monday in New England and along the Middle Atlantic Coast, and rain in the South Atlantic States, followed by generally fair weather Tuesday. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair Monday and Tuesday, except in the Northwest, where it will be unsettled with local rains or snows, and probably with lower temperatures by Tuesday. It will be somewhat colder Monday in the South and warmer in the Plains States, the Central Valleys, and the upper lake region.

The winds for Monday and Tuesday: North Atlantic, brisk northeast and north, possibly moderately high; Middle Atlantic, moderate southwest and west; East Gulf, moderate, variable.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY:

Eastern New York—Cloudy Monday, probably local snows or rains in east and south, with moderate north and northwest winds; Tuesday generally fair.

Western New York—Partly cloudy Monday and Tuesday, warmer Tuesday; moderate, variable winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Monday; Tuesday fair; moderate northwest winds, becoming variable.

New Jersey—Cloudy Monday, probably rain near the coast in the morning; Tuesday fair, moderate north and northwest winds, becoming variable.

Southern New England—Snow or rain Monday, with brisk north winds; Tuesday probably fair.

CONGRESS INFERIOR, MR. PERKINS THINKS

Legislators These Days Are for Themselves and Pork Barrel and Not Civil Pensions.

THIS TO FEDERAL EMPLOYES

Corporations Have Learned Benefit of Pensions—Mayor and Mr. Vanderlip Also Speak.

George W. Perkins, speaking at a mass meeting of Federal civil service employes held in the Hippodrome yesterday afternoon, said that there had been a marked deterioration in recent years in the character of men elected to office in this country, and that a great many of them, especially Congressmen, had sought office for their own pecuniary reward and glorification, and with little, if any, honest patriotic purpose. The average politician of the present day, he said, was a person of ten parts—nine parts personal ambition and one part patriotism.

Mr. Perkins was one of many speakers who addressed the mass meeting, which was held under the auspices of the local branch of the National Association of Civil Service Employes for the purpose of urging upon Congress the necessity of passing without delay a pension bill for the relief of the superannuated civil service employes of the Government. The Hippodrome was packed. Among those who spoke were Mayor Kline, President Frank A. Vanderlip of the National City Bank, Congressman James A. Hamill of New Jersey, the author of the Civil Service Employes' Pension bill now before Congress; Congressman William A. Calder of Brooklyn, Street Cleaning Commissioner William H. Edwards, the Rev. Father Francis J. Sullivan, Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, Andrew W. McKee, President of the National Association of Civil Service Employes; the Rev. Dr. George R. Van De Water, and Frank J. McNabb of the local branch of the association. The New York Letter Carriers' Band furnished the music.

Mr. Perkins, whose speech was the principal one of the afternoon, was introduced by Mayor Kline as "the king bee of the greatest beehive of industry on the face of the earth."

Mr. Perkins began by saying that he believed in the pension system, not because of anything he had read in books or studied in theory, but because he had seen the system in actual practice and knew that in caring for his injured or superannuated employes an employer was benefiting himself just as much as he was benefiting the employes.

"The case," continued Mr. Perkins, "is perfectly clear; the Government is wrong and you are right. The wonder is that there should be any delay whatever on the Government's part in correcting the position it now occupies. Any one familiar with the whole question can think of no reason whatever for delay, but some of us who have been studying this question and many other questions that have to do with Governmental action realize that there are causes that account for the delay and that these causes are deep seated and must be removed before the problem in which you are directly interested, and many other problems in which our people are to-day interested, can be properly adjusted.

"One reason given for not adopting proper disability and pension plans on behalf of the Government is their cost. A reason like this from some of the Congresses we have recently had is too ridiculous to treat seriously. A few less pork barrel bills and a few more pension bills would result in a considerable net saving in money and a considerable improvement in efficiency, but there is more immediate personal glory, more headlines, in a pretentious public building for Podunk than in a proper pension plan for postmen.

"There has been a marked deterioration in recent years in the quality of the men representing the people in offices secured through political channels. In my judgment this is largely so because we have been so overwhelmingly busy with our commercial pursuits that we have paid very little attention to who was put up for this or that office. The result has been that many men have sought office for their own pecuniary reward and their own glorification, with mighty little, if any, honest, patriotic purpose behind their ambitions. They have gone into politics and sought office as a man would go into business and seek gain.

Congressman Hamill, in his speech, told of the efforts now being made to get the present Congress to pass a bill such as he has introduced. Mayor Kline, Congressman Calder, Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, Mr. Vanderlip, Dr. Van De Water and Father Sullivan, in brief speeches, gave the proposed legislation their unqualified indorsement.

Resolutions were adopted urging the passage of the Hamill bill. A copy of the resolutions will be sent to every member of Congress.

The DAILY TRADE RECORD announces a shrinkage of 35% in the CLOTHING sales in New York during October.

Clothing dealers who have suffered from this shrinkage and accumulated stocks as a result, have used it as a reason for cutting prices.

Notwithstanding many cut-price sales, notwithstanding this generally admitted falling off in business,

OUR BUSINESS INCREASED 17%.

If there is general talk of poor business, and we are doing a good business, there must be a reason, and there is. Never before were such values offered. Never before have clothes buyers been given equal opportunity. You will understand, if you see

OUR $25 OVERCOATS.

Made to measure from materials that would cost $40 to $60 in other first-class shops, and that can't be matched at all in ready-to-wear clothing. Made to fit you, to please you, and to satisfy in every particular.

OUR $25 SUITS

Equal in value to our $25 Overcoats. If you will call, and see the array of patterns waiting for your inspection and selection, you will realize why we are busy.

YOU Can Play This New Piano Like a Great Virtuoso

YES you—YOU can handle this NEW TYPE OF PLAYER PIANO like a great pianist handles his instrument, getting out of it the kind of music which moves you to your heart's depths, and which furnishes genuine enjoyment to your musically cultured friends.

Sohmer

"The Player Piano with the Gradatone Buttons"

The Final Result—The GRADUTONE BUTTONS

¶ In the Gradutone Buttons of the Sohmer Player Piano you have the means of controlling with the tips of your fingers the force with which each note on the piano is played, just as in hand playing.

¶ Five positive graduations of tone are obtained by simple movements of your fingers.

The Reward of Patient Experiment

¶ The Sohmer Player Piano with the Gradutone Buttons would not have been possible even one short year ago. It is an achievement by our inventors which has been sought after for years by other piano manufacturers.

You PLAY the Sohmer Player Piano—You Don't Merely "Operate" It

¶ The expression devices of the Sohmer Player Piano are the opposite of mechanical. The expression and feeling in the music are your very own.

An Invitation

¶ Come in and hear the new Sohmer Player Piano; you will be well repaid, for it is an entirely new type of player piano—a call carries no obligation.

Booklet on Request

¶ If it is not convenient for you to call, a booklet about the new Sohmer "The Player Piano with the Gradutone Buttons," will be sent you FREE. Write TODAY. Address Dept. A

Tyson Company

Merchandising vs. Speculation

True merchandising consists in purchasing goods at an inconvenient time and place, and transposing the goods to a convenient time and place, selling them at an advanced price to cover the service rendered. A. T. Stewart, Marshall Field and John Wanamaker represent the highest form of legitimate merchandising.

Brokerage, on the other hand, consists in discovering the need of an individual, promising to sell him a commodity at a certain price, and then purchasing that commodity at a lower price, sometimes on credit, for future delivery. THE TYSON COMPANY are ticket merchants. They are in no sense ticket brokers. THE TYSON COMPANY has no connection with Tyson & Company, and should not be confounded with any organization bearing a similar name. They have invested over $500,000 in theatre, opera and amusement tickets. It holds these tickets at your call for months at a time, and sells them to you from stock. In doing this THE TYSON COMPANY renders you a distinct service. Having agencies in 22 of the great hotels, your needs are instantly met, and for this service a reasonable profit is charged. This profit is always the same. For a $2 theatre seat you are charged $2.50 and, despite the popularity of the play, this price does not vary. It is a constant factor in the merchandising we conduct.

In dealing with THE TYSON COMPANY you are not asked to pay until you have the tickets in your possession. You need not wait to be supplied, for our vaults contain thousands of the best tickets for all amusements. Immediately upon receipt of your order, personally or by letter, the actual tickets are delivered to you.

We deal in actual tickets, not in promises, contracts or agreements, and we exist because we render a public service, charging therefor a reasonable profit.

THE LITTLE CAFE

Book and Lyrics by C. M. S. MacLellan. Music by Ivan Caryll.

YOU REMEMBER—

"The Pink Lady." You remember "Oh! Oh! Delphine." They were the biggest musical comedy hits of the past three years. The present season brings forth "The Little Cafe," by the same brilliant author and composer. Their first two works set the pace for musical comedy in this and all other countries. "The Little Cafe" is better than both its predecessors rolled into one. Its melodies are far more fetching, its surroundings are even more splendid, its story is lighter, gayer and more droll. Picture an ordinary waiter in a small cafe. He has romantic ideas with a suspicion that he is of noble birth. He suddenly falls heir to a million francs. An unscrupulous employer, with a knowledge of this legacy, tricks him into signing a contract to serve as a waiter for twenty years or forfeit a large part of his fortune. The waiter finds himself an important personage among the notables of Paris night-life. What would you have done in his case? See what this waiter Albert did, and you will laugh away three hours as if by magic.

OUR NEW POLICY IN PHILIPPINES IS ATTACKED

Dean Worcester Points Out the Evils of Substituting Ignorant Filipinos for Americans.

NATIVES NOW IN CONTROL

Dismissal of Bureau Chiefs Threatens Efficiency of Land, Health, and Printing Bureaus.

NATIVE HEADS LAND BUREAU

And Admits He Knows Nothing About the Work—Poor Landholders Likely to Suffer.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—Dean C. Worcester, for thirteen years Secretary of the Interior in the Philippine Islands, arrived here to-day on the Pacific liner Manchuria. He resigned his post Sept. 15 last; his successor has not yet been appointed. His arrival has been awaited with interest as he is the first prominent Philippine official to reach here since the induction of the new Governor General, Francis Burton Harrison of New York, and the introduction of President Wilson's policy that whenever feasible the Filipino is to be preferred to the American as an official.

Mr. Worcester said to a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES this afternoon:

"I left Manila fourteen days after the arrival there of Gov. Gen. Harrison and before he had time to go very far with the development of his policy. Upon his arrival, from a grandstand erected on the Luneta, the public promenade of Manila, he made an address outlining the policy of the new Administration. It did not differ in any important sense, so far as concerns its aims, from the policy which has been steadfastly pursued ever since civil government was established in the Philippine Islands.

"I called on Gov. Gen. Harrison at his request a week before my departure and discussed Filipino affairs with him. I was able to reply to the suggestion of his to the effect that, while we probably represented opposed political views, we apparently represented identical views as to the policy which ought to be pursued, but that the events of the previous week had made it evident that we represented radically opposed views as to the promptness with which that policy could safely be carried out.

Filipino Succeeds American.

"Within that brief time arrangements had been completed to dispense with the services of several of the most competent bureau chiefs and assistant chiefs of the Insular Government. The resignations of Capt. Charles H. Sleeper, Director of Lands, and of Col. Henry McCoy, Insular Collector of Customs, were the first requested. The vacancy created by Capt. Sleeper's removal was immediately filled by the appointment of Manuel Tinio, a bright young Filipino of good character but absolutely lacking in knowledge of public land matters and administrative experience which would fit him to conduct a business enterprise of anything approaching such very large dimensions. Señor Tinio has been Director of the Bureau of Labor, and has been principally concerned in assisting his countrymen to find employment and in the arbitration of labor difficulties. He was a General in the Insurgent Army at 21 years.

"The Bureau of Land has charge of the entire public domain, including the agricultural and mineral lands and the foreshore, and excepting forest lands only. It has been stated in the public press that the appointment of a Filipino to this position meant a radical change in the public land policy. It is greatly to be feared that this is the case.

"Heretofore the policy has been to give to the poor man—the poor Filipinos, who make up the bulk of the Christian population—and to the ignorant wild man as well all possible assistance in securing homestead or free patents or in purchasing the usually small tracts of land which they desire. It has been the hope of the Government that the very large majority of the inhabitants would become land owners, so that some small proportion of the immense areas of rich unoccupied public land might become privately owned and be made productive.

Try to Keep Poor in Peonage.

"Very many wealthy Filipons who are large land owners dislike to have the less fortunate people secure land, preferring to keep them tenants, as this makes it possible to hold them in peonage, or a state closely approximating it. They have, therefore, diligently sought to mislead the common people as to their rights under the law and have often caused opposition to be made when they sought to obtain land by homestead, free patent, or purchase.

"Capt. Sleeper had generally interested himself in instructing the poor and ignorant as to their rights and in assisting them to assert those rights. By doing them he made himself very unpopular with the Filipino politicians, and a man of their own race will find it very hard to resist the pressure which will be brought to bear by the rich against the poor.

"A second very important function of the Director of Lands was to protect the public domain against the endless and ingenious schemes devised by clever wealthy Filipinos wrongfully to acquire great tracts thereof. Our courts, many of which have Filipino Judges, have proved somewhat weak in protecting the interests of the Government and those of the general public, and these interests will suffer if these great tracts should be wrongfully eliminated from the areas open to homesteading, sale, and lease.

Problem of Friar Lands.

"The Director of Lands furthermore administers some $7,000,000 worth of so-called Friar lands, purchased by the Insular Government from religious corporations, in order that they may be resold to their occupants. All occupants

BOAT GOES THROUGH CANAL

Dredges Cut Channel Through Last Obstruction in Panama.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Nov. 17.—With many prominent canal officials and their wives on board, the small steamer Louise this afternoon had the honor of being the first boat to pass entirely across the Isthmus of Panama through the Panama Canal.

The trip was made possible by the cutting of a channel through the Cucuracha Slide, the last obstruction which has delayed the work on connecting the oceans. Dredges have been at work on the barrier for days, and have made a passage through the slide which is now forty-five feet deep. The dredges will complete the work of widening the channel at this point, and in case of necessity a large ship could be sent from ocean to ocean on very short notice.

SUMMONS B. F. YOAKUM.

Widow of George Henderson Bases Complaint of Realty Transactions.

On the application of Mrs. George Henderson, Benjamin F. Yoakum, Chairman of the Board of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, has been ordered to appear Friday before Surrogate Fowler in connection with personal property of Mr. Henderson's estate.

Mrs. Henderson says her husband bought "Duck Island," an estate in Suffolk County, for $82,500 in 1906, selling Mr. Yoakum a half interest in it. When Mr. Henderson died, she says, she permitted Mr. Yoakum, who had been intimately associated in business with her husband, to take possession of his books and papers in his office and to aid in the settlement of his affairs.

Mrs. Henderson says Mr. Yoakum now controls the Aldeo Realty Company, in which her husband held one-half the stock, and that Mr. Yoakum has denied that Mr. Henderson held any stock in the company. He has refused to return the papers to her, she complains.

HOLD UP TOWER'S DEGREE.

Yale Corporation Fails to Act on Faculty's Recommendation.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—Although the recommendation of the Yale Faculty that a diploma be granted to Charlemagne Tower, Jr., came before the Yale Corporation to-day, the corporation did not vote the degree and incidental diploma.

"Final action was not taken on the matter," said the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Secretary of the corporation, to-night. He did not explain where the hitch arose, but it is assumed that no decision will be made until the suit brought against young Tower by Miss Dixie Burdick, formerly of this city, who alleges that she is his wife, has been disposed of.

Young Tower failed to pass his final scholarship examinations and did not graduate with the class of '13. He has taken special examinations this Fall, however, and the Faculty feels that his degree should be given to him.

500 WOMEN TO LOSE JOBS.

New Law in Pennsylvania Disastrous to Hotel Employes.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The enforcement of the new law regulating the employment of women in Pennsylvania may result in hundreds of women losing their places in Philadelphia hotels this week.

The main feature of the law is that no woman can work more than fifty-four hours a week or more than ten hours a day; nor can they work more than six days in any one week. According to Mahlon W. Newton, President of the Philadelphia Hotel Association, the number of women thrown out of work will be at least 500, and may be much greater.

The hotel managers, he said, are willing to retain the women, but because of the necessity of hiring extra help where women are employed, wages will be reduced. In consequence, he said, some of the women, unable to live comfortably on less money, will enter other occupations. Men and boys will take the places of the women.

LESS PLUMAGE ON HATS.

Women Abandoning Bird Adornments, Says Col. Acklen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Women are abandoning the wearing of bird plumage for headgear decoration, according to Col. Joseph H. Acklen of Nashville, Tenn., who arrived here to-day to assume his duties as chief warden of the United States to enforce the recently enacted migratory bird protection law.

Col. Acklen, who is an enthusiastic bird lover, is to serve the Government without pay. He expects to visit every section and State of the country, enlisting the co-operation of State game wardens and the various sportsmen's organizations in the safeguarding of wild life.

The change in feminine fashions and the gradual abandonment of fur and feathers in the decoration of women's hats, the Colonel believes, are the most hopeful signs he has seen in his work thus far.

AERIAL PATROL FOR WIRES.

Power Company Employs Aviator to Locate Breakdowns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 17.—Robert Fowler, an aviator, announced to-day that he had signed a contract with a power company to patrol its lines between Oakland and Oroville in an aeroplane, and will make trips twice weekly, beginning Nov. 20. Headquarters for Fowler have been established at Sacramento.

Because of difficulty in locating broken wires and interrupted power service the power company hit upon the idea of employing an aviator, and when Fowler demonstrated that the plan was feasible, a contract was signed. A patrolman equipped with repair apparatus will ride with Fowler.

SON OF J. P. MORGAN ILL.

Henry a Diphtheria Sufferer in Groton School Infirmary.

Special to The New York Times.

GROTON, Mass., Nov. 17.—Henry Morgan, the youngest son of J. Pierpont Morgan, the New York financier, is isolated in the Groton School Infirmary with a mild attack of diphtheria.

The symptoms became evident Saturday and an injection of antitoxin was administered immediately. Later the lad was removed to the infirmary. His case is a light one, and it is predicted that he will be outdoors again within a week.

He will, however, have to forego a trip to Cambridge, where he was to witness the Harvard-Yale football game with his brother Junius.

TAMMANY SPENT $203,500 IN DEFEAT

Contributions of $152,500 for City Campaign—More Than $50,000 Raised in Loans.

MURPHY BORROWED $25,000

Contractor Bradley and G. W. Plunkitt Gave $5,000 Each—Politicians and Business Men Big Subscribers.

It seems that Tammany Hall was in desperate financial straits in the recent campaign, which resulted in a Fusion landslide, and that on the very eve of the election a hurry call was sent out for more money in an effort to stem the anti-Tammany tide. This unusual condition is indicated by the statement of receipts and expenditures filed yesterday with the Secretary of State at Albany by Philip F. Donohue, Treasurer of the New York Democratic County Committee.

Not only did Tammany spend $50,000 more than the organization received, but it apepars that Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy went down in his own pocket for $25,000, which he borrowed, and turned over to the depleted treasury. The statement shows that contributions to the amount of $152,500 were received, and that the expenditures were $203,500. The sums lent to Charles F. Murphy and making part of the receipts were:

Oct. 14, from the Empire Trust Company, $9,900.

Nov. 1, from the Commercial Trust Company, $15,000.

Nov. 7, from John A. McCarthy, $1,000.

The borrowing of this money would indicate that the surplus, if there was any in the County Committee's treasury, was wiped out.

The statement is eloquent of the condition of affairs within the Fourteenth Street organization a few days before the election on Nov. 4. On Nov. 1 Mr. Donohue reports $33,390 was raised and on Nov. 3, the day before election, $22,835 more was suddenly rounded up. Even after the election money was raised, for on Nov. 5, the receipts amounted to $7,105. On Nov. 6 there were $600 more in contributions, and on Nov. 7 John A. McCarthy lent Mr. Murphy $1,000 and Robert J. Fox contributed $25.

The Tammany district leaders and those on the "inside" contributed varying amounts, one of the interesting items being a contribution of $5,000 attributed to former leader G. W. Plunkitt. Mr. Plunkitt's name was brought out in connection with John A. Hennessy's charges against Edward E. McCall, the Tammany candidate for Mayor, and it was then said that Mr. Plunkitt was never known to have contributed any large sums to the organization.

The Largest Contributors.

The largest contributors, according to the statement filed yesterday, were:

How the Money was Spent.

The expenditures show that on Oct. 22, $500 was paid for a reception to the Rev. Dr. Sol Baum; Joseph Praeger received $4,500 for the Hungarian Democratic Club; Walter Russell, $2,500 for the college men's headquarters; Charles J. Crowley, $3,900 for the Irish Municipal League; J. G. Walsh, $1,785 for the Travelers' League; R. N. Wood, $9,000 for the colored Democrats, $5,000 of which was given in a lump sum on Nov. 3. The German League got $3,000 and the Italian headquarters $1,327. Max Praeger received $75 for the Hotel Waiters' Alliance. Robert Carter received $100, Charles Reese $150, and Henry Mayer $200 for cartoons.

On Nov. 1 these expenditures were noted: The Met. Company, charity, $25; Mrs. R. Tripp, charity, $25. There were a dozen or more items for literature and postage, but the largest amount for postage alone was on Oct. 23, when $1,000 was paid. The first contribution to the fund was on Oct. 6, when William P. Kelly subscribed $50. On that day the total was $635.

SENATOR LEWIS'S CLERK ARRESTED

Alleged Forger of the Pindell Letter Threatens President Wilson.

On a warrant issued at Washington, D. C., Sidney Mouithrop, the stenographer accused by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois of having falsified and published the letter informing Lewis Pindell of the terms upon which he would be made Ambassador to Russia, was arrested last night in the lobby of Smith & McNeil's Hotel in Washington Street by Detective Thompson of tht West 125th Street Police Station. The warrant charges forgery, and on the strength of it Mouithrop was locked up for the night. He refused to make any statement. According to the report of the case made to the police here, he was indicted for forgery by the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia.

The arrest of Mouithrop by a New York detective came as the hunt for him was about to be taken up by Secret Service men in this vicinity, for, according to dispatches from Washington received last night, President Wilson received yesterday a threatening letter purporting to come from Mouithrop. In this letter the writer said that unless the President calls off Senator Lewis from the prosecution of Mouithrop he will make public a letter involving the President himself.

According to the New York police, the actual complainant in the case is Edward Sullivan, private secretary to Senator Lewis, who charges that Mouithrop signed his employer's name to checks and documents. He had been living at the Washington Street hotel under the name of James Mansfield, and Detective Thompson caught him there last night just as he was about to mount the stairs to the second floor.

The letter to the President declared that the writer would watch the newspapers for news of the President's action. The envelope was postmarked Hackensack, N. J. A similar letter to Senator Lewis, sent from Edgewater, N. J., declared that if the Senator persisted in the prosecution letters would be made public involving Secretaries Bryan and McAdoo, as well as Roger C. Sullivan and William L. O'Connell of Chicago.

Other Senators have urged Mr. Lewis to insist upon the prosecution of Mouithrop, to make an exampie of him. They have told the Illinois Senator that unless he does so, Senators will be at the mercy of discharged clerks, who may have stolen letters from their files which they can sell to newspapers. Senator Lewis declares he will not withdraw the warrants.

SUICIDE FROM A LINER.

Irish Girl Jumps from the Cymric When Two Hours from New York.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The liner Cymric on her arrival at Queenstown today reported a tragedy.

When the vessel was two hours out from New York an Irish-American girl, whose name was given as Della Sheehan, got behind a lifeboat, climbed the ship's rail, and to the astonishment of the passengers, jumped into the sea. A lifebelt was dropped within a foot of the girl, but she made no effort to grasp it.

Within three minutes a lifeboat was lowered and the liner was stopped, but the girl had disappeared.

TOWN FIGHTS FOR LAND.

To Start Ejectment Proceedings Over Property in Dispute.

M. Linn Bruce, former Lieutenant Governor, was engaged yesterday by the Town of North Hempstead, L. I., to begin ejectment proceedings against Benjamin Stern, who owns a large estate on Hempstead Harbor at Roslyn, L. I. The town lays claim to the title of two acres of land adjoining Mr. Stern's estate, which for many years was leased to oystermen by the town authorities. The town bases its claim to the land on an old Colonial title giving it the ownership of all lands under water in and around Hempstead Harbor and Manhasset Bay.

The authorities also allege that Mrs. William R. Grace, widow of the former Mayor, who has a large estate at Great Neck, L. I., is using town property. Mrs. Grace obtained her lease of the land from the State Land Commissioners. Mr. Bruce, in a lengthy opinion, says that the State authorities had no right to grant a lease.

TAXI TURNS TURTLE.

Bruised Woman Passenger Found Sitting on the Inverted Ceiling.

Mrs. Catharine Dockrell was driving up Willis Avenue, the Bronx, in a taxicab yesterday afternoon, when the right front tire exploded with a sharp report, and the machine turned upside down. Bystanders hurrying to the rescue found her sitting, bruised and startled, on the inverted ceiling of the cab. The chauffeur had been tossed from his seat to the street.

Mrs. Dockrell is the wife of A. E. Dockrell of the undertaking firm of A. R. Dockrell & Co. of 310 Willis Avenue. She was helped from her uncomfortable position and sent home in an old-fashioned horse-drawn cab.

MARCONI TALKS ACROSS THE OCEAN?

Clifden-Glace Bay Wireless Suspended While He Makes Experiments, Reported Successful.

Special to The New York Times.

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, Nov. 17.—William Marconi has taken up the task of solving the problem of wireless telephony. It became known to-day that last week at the Glace Bay and Clifden stations the business of sending wireless messages was suspended thirty minutes while Mr. Marconi, who was at the Clifden station, made an experiment of talking from Ireland to Cape Breton, approximately, 2,100 miles.

Wireless operators are sworn to secrecy as regards the business of the company when they take office, and, since Mr. Marconi has not seen fit to divulge the result of the experiments, the staffs both at Glace Bay and Clifden cannot be induced to talk about the matter. However, they smiled in a satisfied sort of way when questioned as to how the experiment turned out, as much as to say, "It was all that was expected, but we dare not say a word about it."

It had been expected that Mr. Marconi would open the new station put in operation at Louisburg early last month, but it is understood that he was unable to be present owing to the fact that he is devoting his entire time and attention at Clifden to perfecting his wireless telephone.

Some wonderful innovations have been made recently in wireless telegraphy. At Louisburg dictographs have been installed, which, when affixed to the wireless receiving apparatus, copy a message ticked off in the Irish station with an exactness that could not be excelled if the dots and dashes were ticked off at the home station in the immediate vicinity of the dictograph.

GEMS AND BUTLER VANISH.

Manufacturer Mourns the Loss of $4,000 Worth of Jewelry.

Herman N. Butler is looking everywhere for his butler on the chance that his unexplained absence from the Butler home at Broadway and New Street, Far Rockaway, first noted at breakfast time yesterday morning, had some connection with the fact that during the night more than $4,000 worth of jewelry disappeared from the dressing table in Mrs. Butler's room.

The missing butler was a new one. He had come to the household only ten days before from a Sixth Avenue employment agency, and he made a most favorable impression, for he was deft with his hands, smooth in his manner and soft stepping. He was introduced to Mr. Butler as William Taylor, and it was that name which was given to the police of the Far Rockaway Station yesterday after the jewelry loss had been discovered.

The missing jewels include three gold watches, several rings set with diamonds and a diamond bar pin. Mr. Butler is a manufacturer of cloaks and suits, with offices at 48 West Twenty-fifth Street, Manhattan.

YOUNG HARRIMAN AT DESK.

Will Learn Railroading at First Hand in U. P. Headquarters.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Nov. 17.—W. Averil Harriman, son of the late E. H. Harriman, is coming to Omaha next week to take a position in the Union Pacific headquarters to learn how to run a railroad at first hand.

Mr. Harriman, who is Vice President of the Illinois Central and a Director of the Union Pacific, wishes to learn the practical end of railroading under the veteran railroad men who served his father on the Union Pacific.

He will spend some time in the headquarters, and an uncertain period in the big general shops as well. While it is not his intention to learn the details, he is expecting to learn the broad base of each department.

NEW CONGRESS ORGANIZED

Enough Senators Gathered to Form a Quorum and Elect a Chairman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—Admiral Paul von Heintze, the German Minister, called resident German merchants and business men together this afternoon, telling them that an American blockade of Mexican ports was to be declared in the next three days. The Minister took the names of all merchants importing goods directly from Europe and the United States and also asked for inventories of such shipments as were expected to arrive in the immediate future. This was done, he said, for the purpose of enabling the merchants to get their goods through the blockade if possible.

The international situation was unchanged to-day, although it was understood that all negotiations were definitely off, and that there was no further possibility of their being renewed, unless President Huerta voluntarily complied with the American suggestion.

It is generally believed here that further action will be delayed until Wednesday, when the new Congress will decide whether or not it is legal and when it elects a permanent Chairman. Then it is expected that the United States will take a definite stand regarding the legality of the Congress, bringing about a crisis.

Politicians pointed out to-day that it was absolutely necessary for President Huerta to present his resignation to the Congress which he has legally recognized. It is believed that in any case he will present a report of his work since he entered the Presidency for the approval of Congress, which may absolve him of any responsibility before the law. Failure to do this would leave him open to prosecution for his acts by any future Government which might be in power.

It is not believed that there is any possibility of his resignation unless this is done.

A rumor was in circulation here today that Gen. Blanquet was planning and armed rising to depose Huerta, since the latter was unwilling to resign.

A prominent politician said that he informed Gen. Blanquet several days ago of this rumor, and that the Minister of War then went to see Huerta, accompanied by his informant. He told the President of the report, saying that he did so in order that Gen. Huerta might know the stories which were current, and act as he saw fit.

Many prominent railway men and others who are considered well informed regarding possible developments are sending their families to Vera Cruz. This is causing considerable alarm in the American colony. The manager of a Mexican railroad went to Vera Cruz yesterday on a special train carrying many women and children whom he had advised to leave.

Rebels attacked Victoria, the capital of the State of Tamaulipas, yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. The Federal garrison under Gen. Juan de Dios Arzamendi, with about 800 men, was defending the place. Soon after the attack began a telegram was received here saying that rebels were closing in on the town and the attack was becoming fiercer. The wires were cut soon afterward, and nothing has since been heard from the town. Fear is expressed here that it may have fallen.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—With the departure of Manuel Garza Aldape, late Minister of the Interior, foreigners here feel that the Cabinet has lost one of its most conservative members, whose moderation could be depended upon. His successor has not yet been named.

In the meantime Gen. Huerta is proceeding with his efforts to organize the new Congress regardless of the notice given to him by John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, that serious consequences would follow such a step.

The Chamber of Deputies was ordered to hold a session to-day for the purpose of examining the credentials of its members, and it is expected that, unless the United States Government finds a means to bring about an alteration of the present plans, the first regular meeting of that house will occur on Thursday.

The American Chargé d'Affaires today received instructions to continue to advise Washington with respect to developments, but he was not instructed to approach the Mexican Government officials again; nor did his instructions include anything relative to the withdrawal of the embassy.

Rumors that the Chargé had been ordered to leave persisted, although an emphatic denial was made at the embassy, and trains leaving for Vera Cruz were watched anxiously by Americans, who have made up their minds not to delay their departure if Mr. O'Shaughnessy goes.

The Imparcial to-day refers editorially to the organization of the Mexican Congress, saying:

"It appears that this Mexican Congress displeases the mighty personage of the White House, who takes us for slaves, whereas we belong to the noble and fierce race of Cuahtemoc, the last Azteo sovereign of Mexico, crossed with that other indomitable and proud people whose monuments of glory rear themselves on the heights of the Andes.

"Our grand President, now unembarrassed by intriguers, stands more firm than porphyry or bronze.

"A people which loses its independence and dignity without a supreme effort is worse than dead and merits eternal ignominy."

The article closes by saying that the writer cannot believe the Yankees will launch upon such an insane adventure as a war with Mexico.

The organization of President Huerta's new Congress was completed late today, when enough Senators were gathered to form a quorum in the Upper House. Gen. Francisco Pronces was chosen Temporary Chairman of the Senate, and a Committee on Credentials was appointed. A similar committee of the Chamber of Deputies to-day began the work of revising the Deputies' credentials, and there is nothing to indicate that the formal opening of Congress next Thursday will be postponed.

President Huerta talked to-night informally to the members of his staff and a few personal friends regarding the possibilities of intervention by the United States. He intimated that he would be ready to resist such a step.

KNOW NOTHING OF BLOCKADE.

Navy Officials in Ignorance of Mexico City Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Rear Admiral Victor Blue, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation and Acting Secretary of the Navy, said to-night that he knew nothing of any report that the United States would blockade the Mexican ports within three days.

The substance of the dispatch was read to him over the telephone, and he dismissed the subject with the general statement of ignorance. Secretary Daniels is in the Middle West for a week's speaking, and his absence is thought to cast doubt upon the report of any course that would involve the activity of battleships.

Secretary of War Garrison said this afternoon that no particular moves were contemplated along the Mexican frontier, and that has been the consistent expression from Major Gen. Wood, Chief of Staff, for weeks past. It has always been assumed that any plan for blockading the Mexican ports would involve a tightening of the lines on the frontier and a material increase in the troops placed there.

Secretary Bryan had retired for the night before the dispatch from Mexico was received. At his home, when the nature of the dispatch was disclosed, it was said it appeared not of sufficient importance to justify rousing the Secretary.

It is suggested here as a possible explanation of the reported statements of the German Minister that he might have consulted with German residents in the City of Mexico as to various measures to be taken in case of various contingencies. An American blockade would have been a contingency that would have naturally been suggested, and it is thought the report might have grown out of that.

The general opinion here has not been that a blockade would be the first hostile movement of this Government against Mexico, although it has been suggested. It has been explained that a blockade is simply an ineffective warfare that would allow the Mexicans every opportunity for wreaking vengeance on Americans within their borders. A blockade, it is suggested, might be a supplement to extensive military operations by land, but it can be stated positively that no such military operations are under contemplation.

BLANQUET OUSTED ALDAPE.

Gave Huerta His Choice Between Himself and His Rival.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—The ousting of Manuel Garza Aldape from his post of Minister of the Interior is believed to have been largely the result of friction between himself and Gen. Blanquet, the Minister of War.

A three-cornered fight has been in progress for some weeks, the three factions having been headed by Aldape, Blanquet, and Moheno. Recently Moheno and Blanquet have been working together to insure the elimination of Aldape. The Blanquet-Aldape fight began when Aldape became Minister of the Interior, and conflicting instructions were given to

WILSON STILL OPTIMISTIC

O'Shaughnessy to Leave Mexico City Only When Ordered to Do So.

1,500 AMERICANS THERE

Apprehension Felt That They May Be Isolated by Wrecked Railroads.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—These are the official statements of fact from high authorities to-day regarding the Mexican situation:

The optimism which President Wilson openly expressed on Thursday has not been diminished, and the situation, as far as he is concerned, is substantially unchanged, though Gen. Huerta's personality is thought to give it a kaleidoscopic appearance.

The cause of the Constitutionalists has been considerably impaired in the eyes of the Administration by the reports of Pancho Villa's executions of Federal prisoners at Juarez.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Chargé d'Affaires, has not been recalled by this Government, nor has he received his passports from the officials of President Huerta.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy has not "contingent instructions" under which, in any eventuality, he could withdraw from Mexico City without express orders from the State Department. Nor has he instructions under which he could take any given course, either aggressive or conciliatory, following developments in Mexico, without express instruction from Washington.

The retirement of Manuel Garza Aldape, Mexican Minister of the Interior, and the only active supporter of American policies in Huerta's Cabinet, is confirmed at the State Department.

Fear Mexico City May Be Cut Off.

The State Department has received advices suggesting that communications between Mexico City and Vera Cruz, its nearest port, may be cut in the near future, though this information is not positive. The department apparently inclines to the view that this cutting of communications would be due more to President Huerta's determination to suspend traffic than to the rebels' ability to blow up the lines. The number of Americans who would thus be shut in is known to the department, though it refuses to give out the figures.

The one unexplained feature in these various items of official information is the unqualified statement that the President's optimism has been unimpaired by developments of the last few days. The determination, however, to keep Mr. O'Shaughnessy at his present post fits in with this statement and shows at least that what has been called the Micawber policy of this Government has not been changed. Mr. O'Shaughnessy will remain in Mexico City, and Mr. Lind at Vera Cruz, and both of them are in close and constant communication with Washington, receiving instructions for every movement from the State Department.

The prevailing opinion here is that the dismissal of Señor Aldape from Gen. Huerta's Cabinet yesterday at one blow shattered whatever basis there may have been for President Wilson's optimism of last Thursday. When Mr. Lind left a note with Gen. Huerta's private secretary, saying that he would leave the city if a favorable reply were not received by 7 o'clock to his demand that the new Mexican Congress be dissolved before convening, it was Señor Aldape who held out hopes of Huerta's surrender and pleaded for delay. It was at this time that hope was highest in Washington.

There were suspicions then in various quarters that Señor Aldape's efforts for peace were made without knowledge of his chief. There had been reports for many weeks of friction between Señor Aldape and Gen. Huerta. These reports increased in circumstantiality a little while before Señor Aldape made what now appear to have been at best unofficial advances to Mr. O'Shaughnessy. It was represented that Señor Aldape, with others of the Provisional Cabinet, notably Señor de la Lama, Huerta's Minister of finance, were working together to induce President Huerta to go so far toward yielding to American demands as to submit his resignation to the new Congress as soon as it could be called together.

Many of these most encouraging events happened while Gen. Huerta was in seclusion. No sooner did the President return to the national Palace and get the reins in his hands then every intimation of surrender was repudiated. He then declared that he, like the rebel Gen. Carranza, would stand fast against any foreign intervention. Unofficially, his statements were still more emphatic until finally Señor Aldape was dismissed. This dismissal of the last member of his original Cabinet is regarded here as being the most emphatic of Gen. Huerta's intimations that he has no intention of surrendering

Suspicions of Aldape's Motives.

There is, unquestionably, a strong suspicion here that Señor Aldape's overtures never meant anything more than that he foresaw his own downfall and was preparing a bed to fall upon. His alleged friendship for the United States is of two recent growth to receive full credence here. It must be recalled that the announcement that almost ended John Lind's mission before it began was signed by Señor Aldape. As Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, he declared that Mr. Lind would be an undesirable allen. It was only after Señor Aldape was replaced by Señor Gamboa in the Foreign Ministry that Mr. Lind received a courteous hearing.

The statement that Mr. O'Shaughnessy has no contingent instructions whatever seems to mean a return to the old drifting policy that obtained prior to last Thursday. Mr. Lind's demands for certain pledges from Gen. Huerta were unaccompanied by any statement of what would follow failure to comply with them. Mr. O'Shaughnessy's communications at the present time are conducted on the same basis. Apparently only one step is decided at a time, and that decision is reached in Washington.

The State Department to-day was unusually reticent regarding the activities of Dr. William Bayard Hale at Nogales, Sonora, where he has been in consultation with Gen. Carranza and his provisional Cabinet. There is every reason, however, to believe that those negotiations continue. The mere fact that they do continue strongly suggests that his proposals to the Constitutionalists must include something besides mediation. That has been stoutly rejected by Gen. Carranza, and Gen Huerta has echoed Carranza's sentiments in an unmistakable way.

Villa's Executions Worry Washington.

But whether this means that Dr. Hale is offering, in return for certain pledges, to permit the Constitutionalists to import munitions of war from the United States, or even to recognize their Government as de facto in the Northern States, is still unknown. Certain it is, however, according to information here to-day, that President Wilson feels that whatever negotiations were in progress at Nogales have been markedly embarrassed by the reported Constitutionalist outrages in the captured city of Juarez. The President has declared against the blood-stained hand of Huerta, sympathizing evidently with Carranza. Should the reports of wholesale shootings in Juarez, long after resistance was over, be confirmed, it is difficult to see how any dealings of a friendly sort could be continued with the Carranzistas.

At the White House to-day it was said on the best authority that this Government was investigating the reported murders at Juarez. This afternoon, however, the State Department admitted that no investigation was being directed through its officials, and the same statement was forthcoming at the War Department.

However, the routine summary of facts from the State Department announced that good order prevailed in Juarez under the military rule of the Constitutionalist captors.

1,500 Americans in Mexico City.

Unofficial estimates here fixed the number of Americans in Mexico City at 1,500, though the State Department appeared reluctant to excite alarm in this country by giving the precise figures. Six months ago it was estimated that there were 10,000 Americans in Mexico scattered throughout the country, so that the estimate for Mexico City would be moderate.

While press dispatches from Vera Cruz and the City of Mexico indicate no danger to the line connecting those cities, the Department has been advised of such danger. This information is thought, partly at least, to explain the urgency with which some Americans have tried to leave the Mexican Capital.

DANIELS IS OPTIMISTIC.

Expects No Trouble in Mexico, but Says Navy Is Prepared.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, accompanied by his aid, Lieut. Commander N. L. Jones, was here to-day for the purpose of inspecting the United States Naval Training Station at Lake Bluff, and took occasion to say that, though in his opinion war with Mexico was a remote possibility, if it should come the navy of the United States was never in better condition to meet a foe and give a good account of itself.

Secretary Daniels dwelt upon the fact that 7,000 marines and sailors were gathered on the two coasts of Mexico on seven battleships, four cruisers, and three gunboats.

"What are they there for?" the Secretary was asked.

"To protect American interests," he replied, and then he added:

"I don't believe there is going to be any trouble. I sincerely hope not. I don't want to talk about war with Mexico. I think the sailors already there are ample to protect American citizens. There are on the east coast of Mexico seven battleships, one cruiser, and one gunboat. On the west coast we have placed three cruisers and two gunboats. I believe in a good navy, always ready. I am doing my best to make it so."

"How many battleships a year do you favor?" was asked.

"I'd rather tell that to Congress first," said Secretary Daniels. "Before I became Secretary I argued for two battleships a year."

The Secretary predicted that United States warships would pass down the Drainage Canal if the waterway to the Gulf should be completely developed.

"If they keep that creek in good condition, I'm going to send warships down from the St. Lawrence through the lakes to the Gulf," he said. "There is no reason why we should not make use of our most important waterways."

Secretary Daniels said his chief interest centred around making sailors better men by giving them a training in the "Three R's."

"I have come to Chicago purposely to see the new school in which sailors are taught grammar, reading, writing, arithmetic, and the fundamentals that every man ought to have. A man who knows these subjects can better understand electricity and mechanics. He becomes a better sailor. The course is really high school and grammar school work combined. It is my idea. We needed it in the navy."

CARRANZA PARLEYS CRUCIAL.

Hale and Constitutionalists in Constant Sessions—Balk at Demands.

Special to The New York Times.

NOGALES, Mexico, Nov. 17.—With rumors of continued victory for the Constitutionalist arms coming from the State of Tamaulipas and reports of dissension in the ranks of the enemy at Guaymas, matters of far more importance to the rebel cause have been under consideration in conferences held to-day between Dr. William Bayard Hale, President Wilson's representative, and the leaders here. It has been a day of almost constant sessions, but at its close no definite statement can be obtained from any of the principals.

"It is certain, however, that a critical stage has been reached. When the conferences will end can only be surmised, although a Mexican official says that the conferees are hoping to finish to-morrow.

That some important point on which there is a divergence of opinion between the Washington Government and the Carranzistas is under discussion is practically certain. The Mexicans know what they want, and have asked for it; and their requests have been transmitted to Washington to-day, according to the statement of Francisco Escudero, Gen. Carranza's Minister of Foreign Affairs.

In speaking of the conference Señor Escudero said that the lifting of the embargo would be a very desirable thing; "but," he said, "it is not very necessary for the triumph of our principles. Possibly we shall obtain it in a few days, but it is not vital." In this connection he predicted that there would be definite results by to-morrow.

Although the Constitutionalists did not ask for recognition of their belligerency, it is believed that Washington will grant that if it does anything, since it will be very desirable that the rebels assume the obligations of a belligerent State, which would thus be imposed upon them by international law in the event of their later triumph.

Such obligations they evidently desire to avoid. It is hardly probable that Washington would make the mistake of accepting the mere word of Carranza as a guarantee; hence it is pointed out that the requirements of Washington may go even further, so as to include the acceptance of conditions which will vouchsafe to the United States an advisory if not a supervisory relation with respect to some future action if the Carranza movement is to have American backing.

It may also be in the thought of President Wilson that if the American Government is to have a hand in bringing about peace in Mexico, now is the time to secure conditions by which it will be easier to maintain peace after seeing constitutional government re-established.

This may or may not be called a protectorate, but many men well informed as to Mexican affairs believe that there can be no other way to peace and civilization in the Southern republic than through their establishment by the strong hand of the United States.

Official announcement was made here this morning that the troops of Pablo Gonzales had engaged the Federals of Victoria, Tamaulipas, and were fighting in the streets.

An official statement was also made that the seven Federal officers who were executed at Juarez were men who had been previously captured at Torreon and released only to break their paroles and return to the Federal service.

TROOPS DEPORT ALDAPE.

Deposed Minister Virtually a Prisoner Until Placed Aboard Ship.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 17.—Gen. Fernando Gonzales, with a detail of troops, returned to the City of Mexico on a special train to-night, having embarked the deposed Minister of the Interior, Manuel Garza Aldape, on board the steamship Espagne, en route for Europe. Aldape was virtually a prisoner until safely aboard ship.

Politicians here think Querido Moheno, Minister of Foreign Affairs, got President Huerta's ear and forced Aldape out as a suspicious member of the Cabinet.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 17.—Rear Admiral Boush, on board the United States battleship Louisiana, reports that the Constitutionalist Gen. Aguilar has given the town of Tuxpam until next Thursday to surrender. Capt. Spencer S. Wood, in command of the battleship Nebraska, reports that Aguilar controls all the country south of the Ponuco River. Aguilar, Capt. Wood says, professes to desire to protect American property, but is hostile to the English.

The Constitutionalist leader at Tanguijo says that, in compliance with orders from Gen. Carranza, he intends to control all the oil fields and collect the revenues that now are paid to the Federal Government and prevent the supplying of oil to the railroads. He has notified the Eagle Oil Company that it must pay $200,000 down and $25,000 monthly. The insurgents number several thousand, and have garrisons on all the oil properties.

The American women and children at Tamiahua are expected to reach Tampico to-night.

COWDRAY DENIES RUMORS.

Tells The New York Times Carden Was Not Appointed at His Request.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Lord Cowdray, head of the Pearson syndicate, operating large concessions in Mexico, has sent the following communication to the London correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES to-day:

"I shall be obliged if you will afford me the courtesy of your columns to enable me to reply specifically and categorically to persistent rumors now appearing in the press, more especially abroad, to the following effect:

"1. The rumor that Sir Lionel Carden was appointed his Majesty's Minister to Mexico at my wish or suggestion is untrue. It is a fact that I knew nothing about such an appointment until it had been made.

"2. The rumor that interests in which I am concerned are finding moneys directly or indirectly for the present de facto Government of Mexico is untrue, except in so far as we participated to the extent of less than 3 per cent. in the loan that was negotiated for the Government by the National Bank of Mexico some two months ago.

"3. The rumor that concessions granted to us by the Government of Gen. Diaz some eight years ago were canceled by the Madero Administration is untrue. The fact is that Government specifically recognized those concessions as being legal and valid.

"4. The rumor that we have desired or solicited any oil concessions from the present Mexican Government is untrue.

"5. The rumor that we have or seek to obtain a monopoly is untrue. Our concessions give us no monopoly.

"6. The rumor that we took part, either directly or indirectly, in the overthrow of the Madero Government, is untrue.

"In speaking for myself I also speak for my firm and any company in which I or my firm is interested.

the military Governors by Aldape and Blanquet. This has been the case with other holders of the Interior portfolio, who had to pocket their pride and yield to Blanquet or regard themselves as soldiers and obey his orders.

Until recently it was believed that Aldape was the stronger of the two, aided, as he was, by slight friction between Moheno and Blanquet, which caused the presentation of Blanquet's resignation about a week ago. This was not accepted, however, and the crisis was tided over.

The final friction between Aldape and Blanquet arose over the recent international developments. The diplomats, seeing the futility of attempting to exercise direct pressure upon Huerta, began to work upon the Cabinet officers, principally Aldape, who seemed most amenable to reason. At that time Aldape was counted upon to support Leopoldo Rebollar, Minister of Commerce and Labor, and Adolfo de la Lama, Minister of Finance. The other Ministers, with the exception of Blanquet, agreed halfheartedly that the best course would be for Huerta to resign. Moheno, Garcia, Naranjo, and Lozano laid their plans to be clear of blame whichever way Huerta should decide, refusing to commit themselves. It is also understood that de la Lama was able to clear his skirts in time to avoid being forced out. The resignation of Rebollar, however, will probably be forthcoming soon.

It is generally believed that Huerta drew Aldape out until he was convinced that the Minister was looking toward the Presidency for himself, whereupon his resignation was demanded.

Another report says that Blanquet gave Huerta the alternative of accepting his resignation or demanding that of Aldape and that Huerta preferred the latter in view of possible military developments.

Aldape is wealthy, being a large landowner in the vicinity of Torreon and Monterey. He was prominently connected with revolutionary movements against the Madero régime.

It is rumored that Francisco Olaguibel, now a Sub-Secretary, will become Minister of Foreign Affairs; Moheno of Commerce, replacing Rebollar; that Lozano will change from the Ministry of Communications to that of the Interior; that a new man will probably be appointed to the Communications portfolio, the others retaining their posts.

The principal importance attached to Aldape's resignation is that it practically does away with any possibility of Huerta's elimination through diplomatic pressure. Aldape has been the only hope of the diplomats some time, and has conferred frequently with O'Shaughnessy and the other foreign representatives, presumably regarding the Dictator's resignation.

Aldape does not count sufficient strength to cause any trouble in a revolutionary way. He has always been connected with the Reyes faction, which is as good as dead since the arrest of Rodolfo Reyes, who is unable to carry with him more than that small faction which was headed by his father, who was killed in the bombardment.

Many social engagements have been cancelled, and the society columns are filled with announcements that leaders of fashion will not keep their days at home. Several large social functions have been postponed indefinitely.

VILLA GETS $100,000 "LOAN."

Tells Juarez Banks They'll Be Repaid if Rebels Win.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 17.—Gen. Francisco Villa threatened to-day to take over the Mexican Northwestern Railroad, a property owned by Canadian capitalists, if the officials did not themselves immediately repair and operate the line. The railroad line has been destroyed by both rebels and Federals and has not been in operation for several months. At a conference with Villa today the railroad officials decided to begin the repairing of the line, instead of permitting it to be confiscated by the rebels.

Loans amounting to about $100,000 were made to Gen. Villa at Juarez today by the two banks of that city. Villa gave the bankers assurances that he would refund the money to them if the revolt was successful.

The money is being used in paying off the rebel troops and buying uniforms and provisions.

A full report of the executions in Juarez within the last few days was forwarded to the War Department today by United States Army officers.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Nov. 17.—A. L. King, a Chicago mining man, arrived here today from a mine near Temosachic, State of Chihuahua. King said that a band of twenty bandits shot his horse from under him and robbed him of $600. He walked the last six days of his journey. King expressed a determination to obtain Government action in his case if possible, his first step being to make a report to American Consul Frederick Simpich at Nogales.

WHITMAN MAY SIFT OPERA TICKET SALE

Clients of Tyson & Co. Ask Him to Call the Bankers—He Will Answer To-day.

WEEK'S SUPPLY RELEASED

Trust Company Returns Proportionate Sums to Those Who Paid Twice—Replevin Wins Others.

As Chairman of a committee representing more than 200 patrons of the theatre ticket agency of Tyson & Co., 1,122 Broadway, ex-State Senator Frank D. Pavey of 82 Nassau Street went to the office of District Attorney Whitman late yesterday afternoon and demanded a John Doe investigation into all the transactions resulting in the tangle of over $54,000 worth of Metropolitan Opera tickets, which the Metropolitan Trust Company of 49 Wall Street has held as collateral on a loan made to the ticket agency. Mr. Pavey is going back to the office of the District Attorney this morning at 10:30 o'clock to receive his answer.

It is more than probable that District Attorney Whitman will then tell Mr. Pavey that the whole matter is to be put in the hands of the Magistrate's Court, as the usual procedure when a John Doe investigation is started.

Asked what his next step would be in case District Attorney Whitman should announce his intention this morning of starting a John Doe inquiry, Mr. Pavey said that he would, of course, ask the District Attorney to call certain witnesses. When he was pressed to give the names of the men he would request Mr. Whitman to subpoena, Mr. Pavey mentioned first the names of four of the officials of the Metropolitan Trust Company—Beverly Chew, Vice President, now acting as President; Bertram Cruger, Treasurer; George N. Hartmann, Secretary, and Rupert W. K. Anderson, Assistant Treasurer.

Mr. Pavey then said he would ask that the following men be called to tell what they knew about the transactions leading up to the opera ticket tangle: Richard J. Hartman, President of Tyson & Co.; John A. Sullivan and John McNamee, Vice Presidents; Eugene Lucas, Treasurer, and Earl Lewis of the box office of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Richard J. Hartman, President, and John A. Sullivan, Vice President of Tyson & Co., were seen in the District Attorney's office also yesterday. They were in conference for some time with Assistant District Attorneys Lockhart and Train, whom Mr. Whitman directed to make the preliminary investigation into the opera ticket situation.

Release a Week's Tickets.

An arrangement was made by counsel for the Metropolitan Trust Company and Tyson & Co. by which the tickets for this week's performances were released to the ticket agency in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Immediately the tickets were taken to the offices of Tyson & Co. at 1,122 Broadway, where they were delivered to the patrons of that company during the afternoon, and plans were made for delivery in the lobby of the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. Tyson & Co. made no additional charge for the ticketland the Metropolitan Trust Company has announced that it will refund to the holders of its receipts the money that the subscribers paid in redeeming the opera tickets for the performances this week.

Those who expected that some of the disappointed subscribers would create a disturbance at the Metropolitan Opera House by presenting their receipts and refusing to repurchase or accept a part of the tickets were entirely disappointed. Not one of the subscribers was distinguishable in the regular first night gala crowd. Most of them had procured their tickets at Tyson & Co.'s offices during the afternoon, and only four or five obtained them from the temporary box office opened in the lobby of the opera house. When the performance began only two seats, both held by one subscriber, remained to be delivered at the temporary box office, and the subscriber claimed them before the performance was half over.

An hour after the arrangement was completed by the counsel for the trust company and the ticket agency for the release of the first week's tickets ex-Senator Pavey appeared at the office of District Attorney Whitman. The attention of Mr. Pavey was called to the fact that the tickets were being delivered for this week by the ticket agency. But the only remarked that the remaining twenty-two weeks' season tickets were still in the possession of the Metropolitan Trust Company.

When Mr. Pavey visited District Attorney Whitman he was accompanied by Otto M. Sternfeld, an attorney of 31 Nassau Street, who also has been appointed a member of the committee to represent the subscribers in any legal action for the recovery of their tickets or redress for the loss of them. This committee had been appointed in the morning at a meeting of the subscribers held in the Hotel Belmont. At this meeting ex-Senator Pavey, as Chairman, reviewed certain facts he said he had obtained by a private investigation into the transactions in opera tickets.

His request for a John Doe investigation by the District Attorney's office, Mr. Pavey said, was predicated on these same facts, and he was requested by Mr. Whitman to tell all he knew about the transactions to Assistant District Attorney Lockhart. Mr. Pavey and Mr. Sternfeld were in conference for nearly two hours with Assistant District Attorney Lockhart.

Pavey's Version of the Transaction

What Mr. Pavey told Mr. Lockhart was an amplification of this statement that he made in the morning at the meeting of more than 150 of Tyson & Co.'s subscribers:

As a result of the investigations which I have made, the facts in regard to the transactions in opera tickets appear to have been as follows:

Tyson & Co. subscribed for tickets of the total value of $153,000. About Sept. 1 they paid $53,000 to the Metropolitan Opera Company, which left a balance due on the tickets of $100,000. The Metropolitan Opera Company would not deliver the tickets to Tyson & Co. until this was paid. Tyson & Co. had already collected from some of their subscribers. Whether the amount which they had collected was more or less than $53,000 I have no means of knowing. It would probably take an audit of their books to determine points of that character.

On Sept. 12, 1913, Tyson & Co. opened a special account in the Metropolitan Trust Company by the deposit of $20,063.25. On Sept. 13, 1913, the Metropolitan Trust Company credited the special account of Tyson & Co. with $100,000. This $100,000 was a loan from the Metropolitan Trust Company to Tyson & Co., secured by the pledge of the tickets as collateral. The tickets were delivered to the Metropolitan Trust Company in the following manner: Mr. Hartman and Mr. Sullivan, as representatives of Tyson & Co., went to the Metropolitan Opera House. Mr. Lewis, who is, I believe, Treasurer of the Metropolitan Opera Company, had the tickets packed in a box. The box was put in a taxicab, Mr. Hartman, Mr. Sullivan, and Mr. Lewis went with the box in the same taxicab to the Metropolitan Trust Company. The tickets were not taken to the office of Tyson & Co. When the tickets were delivered to the Metropolitan Trust Company that company certified a check drawn by Tyson & Co. in favor of the Metropolitan Opera Company for $100,000, which was given to Mr. Lewis. My understanding is that the making of the loan for $100,000 to Tyson & Co., the delivery of the tickets, and the certification of the check were all one transaction.

"On the same day, (Sept. 13, 1913,) Tyson & Co. made a further deposit in the special account of the Metropolitan Trust Company of $1,644.50. This deposit was made by nearly them, Treasurer of Tyson & Co. can remember, solely made up of checks of subscribers to opera tickets. From Sept. 13 to some date in October Tyson & Co. continued to deposit in this special account in the Metropolitan Trust Company all checks received by them from subscribers. This at least is their claim.

"Prior to Oct. 1, 1913, Tyson & Co. had no account except this special account at the Metropolitan Trust Company. On Oct. 1, 1913, Tyson & Co. opened, in addition to the special account, a general account. Some time near the end of October or the first of November Tyson & Co. withdrew from the Metropolitan Trust Company a considerable amount of opera tickets. According to the information given to me the tickets withdrawn were those in the front rows of the orchestra, from A to L inclusive, and tickets in those rows were withdrawn from the Metropolitan Trust Company, regardless of the question whether they had been paid for or not. These tickets withdrawn were taken to the office of Tyson & Co., where they were delivered to subscribers or placed on sale."

Threatens to Jail Somebody.

When he had finished his prepared statement Senator Pavey said:

"Now, I don't know to what extent the Metropolitan Opera Company or the Metropolitan Trust Company knew the identity of the subscribers of Tyson & Co., but from what Mr. Hartman, the President of Tyson & Co., had told me, the Metropolitan Trust Company did know that the tickets they accepted as collaterial were subscribed for. I don't believe they would have loaned that much money on the tickets unless they had known that they were subscribed for.

"I don't undertake to say who is responsible, but I do say that somebody is going to jail at some time or pay back my check. I think we can be sure of that if we all take that attitude—and we won't have to miss possibly more than one performance. I understand that District Attorney Whitman is going to take immediate action. I talked to Mr. Whitman last night, and he made known his willingness to assist us in the matter. Therefore, I shall make a motion that a committee be appointed to co-operate with the District Attorney and give him all the assistance in its power."

Mr. Pavey then suggested that a list be made of all the subscribers who had paid their opera subscriptions to Tyson & Co. before the tickets for which they were subscribed were given into the possession of the Metropolitan Trust Company, because he believed that those subscribers could obtain immediate action by having its committee demand that the trust company turn over those tickets. When he suggested that the committee visit the District Attorney without delay, one of the women interrupted to ask:

"Mr. Chairman, may we not communicate with District Attorney Whitman over the telephone in order to save time?"

Another woman wanted to know whether the tickets would not properly be classified as "stolen goods," and Mr. Pavey assured her that "the Judge would have the last guess at that question." One questioner desired to know whether a subscriber, in repurchasing tickets for a single performance or for a single week, would jeopardize his rights for the rest of his season tickets. Mr. Pavey advised him, in the event of repurchasing tickets for a single performance, to file notice with the trust company's agents that he did so without waiving his rights with respect to the balance of the tickets.

The discussion developed a third class of subscribers in addition to those who had paid their subscriptions either before or after the tickets were delivered to the trust company. The third class embraced those who paid for their tickets a second time on Saturday and yesterday. The fourth class were those who refused to pay, and the fifth class were those who bought tickets for single performances.

Replevin Writs Successful.

In order that the interests of each class of subscribers might be taken care of, Senator Pavey thought it advisable to appoint on the committee members representative of each class. He had just started to name that committee when Dudley F. Phelps, an attorney of 96 Broadway, entered the room and announced that he had obtained the release of tickets for several of his clients last Saturday by starting replevin actions. Mr. Phelps explained that he had, in pursuance of legal requirements, obtained bond for twice the amount of the value of their tickets. On account of the lateness with which he started the legal action to recover the tickets, however, he was unable to file bond and merely served a summons on the trust company. According to Mr. Phelps, the summons was sufficient to induce the trust company to produce the tickets.

Mr. Phelps was immediately named by Mr. Pavey as a member of the committee who had merited the right to represent all the subscribers. The other members of that committee were ex-Senator Pavey, Otto M. Stern, attorney, 31 Nassau Street; E. Dick, 244 West Seventieth Street; Mrs. Henry M. Bloch, 126 West 115th Street, and Edward Benneche, 1,312 Madison Avenue. Mr. Pavey announced that no bills were to be sent to subscribers for any services rendered, and that each subscriber was free to go ahead with individual legal action.

On the suggestion of ex-Senator Pavey, the gathering, in high spirits, then adjourned to the Hotel Manhattan to inform agents of the Metropolitan Trust Company of the stand they had taken. Mr. Stern acted as spokesman.

Mr. Anderson was explaining that the trust company held that Tyson & Co. never had any title to the tickets except subject to the lien of the Metropolitan Trust Company, when he was interrupted by a heavy set little man, who literally plowed through the packed mass of subscribers, with a larger man following close on his heels.

"I'm from the office of the Sheriff of New York County," said the newcomer, speaking to Mr. Anderson, "and I hereby serve you with a writ of replevin for the tickets indicated in the writ."

The writ was obtained by L. L. Leventritt, an attorney of 128 Broadway, acting for Simon Marx of Port Chester, who was required to give bond amounting to $600. Mr. Anderson asked for a few minutes of grace in which to consult over the telephone with the attorneys for the trust company.

Subscribers Affected.

While he was consulting his counsel, one of the subscribers, who gave her name as Mrs. Grace Huniston, mounted a chair, asserted that she held a check drawn on her bank in payment for a Tyson & Co. subscription, and indorsed by the Metropolitan Trust Company. She asked Mr. Anderson if she was not, therefore, entitled to obtain her seats. The Assistant Treasurer of the trust company started to make another legal explanation, when Mrs. Huniston interrupted him, asking:

"Won't you answer my question?"

"Answer her question, 'yes or no,'" shouted the crowd.

"Then, 'No,'" answered Mr. Anderson.

Meanwhile Mr. Leventritt had obtained an order for his tickets on the writ of replevin served by the Deputy Sheriff. Sheriff Harburger received another writ of replevin yesterday, the second one, and it was in favor of Jacques Kahn, who had subscribed for tickets valued at $303. Bird S. Wise, as legal counsel for Miss Edith L. Taylor, also started legal action for the recovery of season tickets for his client.

Some of the subscribers, who left their names with the committee representing them before the District Attorney, were Mrs. Edward B. Moore, Mrs. Charles Joel Flint, Mrs. Appleton Wade, Mrs. R. W. Nesbit, George C. Taylor, Mrs. C. M. Wray, Mrs. E. D. Schmack, L. Satenstein, Dr. Eleanora M. Arthur, Mrs. Henry Mason Day, Wainwright Parrish, Gardiner S. Dresser, Miss Alice W. McCall, Mrs. J. R. Pavey, and M. Goodrich.

Others holding receipts were Adolph Lewisohn, Isaac Guggenheim, Mrs. M. E. Jesup, Otto Jaeger, Mrs. E. R. S. Gould, S. H. Valentine, Albert Kaskell, George C. Hellner, Herbert J. Park, H. L. Smith, Miss Ina R. Guarenter, Mrs. Lewis Russell, Mrs. Thomas Mott, Miss Mary Benson, Mrs. Augusta F. Gilbert, Bernard M. Baruch, Mrs. Howard Richmond, Mrs. Annie E. Smith, Mrs. James M. McCoon, Mrs. S. M. Rice, E. Howard Martin, Miss K. Ball, Dwight S. Richardson, Mrs. Harriet W. Biddle, and Charles G. Koss.

Subscribers Hear of Settlement.

The temporary box office of the Metropolitan Trust Company, opened in the Hotel Manhattan on Saturday, was kept open yesterday, and practically all the subscribers whose tickets have been held up were there in person to serve notice that their tickets must not be sold, or sent their legal representatives. It was about 3 o'clock when Robert J. Hartman, head of the ticket agency, appeared in the box office on the mezzanine floor in the rear of the building, accompanied by William L. Marshall of his counsel, Griggs, Baldwin & Baldwin. They were met by R. W. K. Anderson, Assistant Treasurer of the Metropolitan Trust Company, and J. M. R. Lyeth of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, counsel for the trust company.

These men immediately went into conference, after the subscribers were requested to leave the box office and after the doors had been closed. The doors were closed for nearly three-quarters of an hour, when Mr. Lyeth appeared and was asked by the reporters whether a settlement had been reached. Mr. Lyeth returned to consult for a few minutes with Mr. Anderson, and returned with this announcement:

The Metropolitan Trust Company will refund to all holders of its receipts for money, paid in redeeming season tickets for Metropolitan Opera, pledged with it, proportionate amounts for the tickets for performances for the first week of opera, viz.: Orchestra and orchestra circle seats, $5.50; dress circle seats, $3; front row, balcony, $2.50; rear row, balcony, $2; front rows, family circle, $1.50, and rear rows, family circle, $1.

All who have taken up tickets for single performances for the first week will receive the full amount paid by them. Checks for the above refunds will be mailed tonight by the Metropolitan Trust Company.

Mr. Lyeth's attention was called to the fact that counsel for the Metropolitan Trust Company, in a statement issued on Sunday night, had said it would not consider any proposition from Tyson & Co. to redeem tickets for a single performance, but that it would accept an offer to release the tickets for the entire first week, by a payment amounting to a little less than $2,800. Asked if that sum had been paid for the release of the tickets by Tyson & Co., Mr. Lyeth replied:

"I can only say that a proportionate amount was paid by Tyson & Co. for the tickets for the first week's performances at the Metropolitan Opera House."

"Did the Metropolitan Opera Company take any part or exert any influence in this preliminary settlement?" Mr. Lyeth was asked.

"So far as I have been concerned, the Metropolitan Opera Company did not," replied Mr. Lyeth.

This announcement was then made by William L. Marshall of Griggs, Baldwin & Baldwin, counsel for Tyson & Co.:

Tyson & Co. announce that the matter at issue between them and their banking connections have been adjusted, so as to permit of the immediate delivery without further payment of opera tickets to which their patrons are entitled for the performances during the current week. The tickets will be deliverable at the offices of Tyson & Co., 1,122 Broadway, during the afternoon, and during the evening in the lobby of the Metropolitan Opera House, where a temporary office will be established by courtesy of the management.

Mr. Lyeth and Mr. Marshall then made this joint announcement:

Counsel for the Metropolitan Trust Company and for Tyson & Co. are hopeful for an agreeable settlement, which will result in the release of the tickets for the whole season of opera before the end of the present week.

Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., the eminent novelist-statesman, writes from London:

"Sanatogen is to my mind a true food-tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy, and giving fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind."

Colonel Henry Watterson, the famous editor, writes:

"I feel I owe it to truth to state that I have made a thorough trial of Sanatogen, and that I have found it most efficacious and beneficent. I do not think I could have recovered my vitality, as I have done, without this Sanatogen operating equally upon the digestive organs and nerve centers."

Arnold Bennett, the famous novelist, writes:

"The tonic effect of Sanatogen on me is simply wonderful."

And Sanatogen will do the same for your Health

IT is literally true that Sanatogen has brought grateful help and a new enjoyment of life to multitudes. Wherever people suffer from nervous starvation, feeling "run-down" and exhausted, Sanatogen daily imparts new strength and vitality.

And Sanatogen will go on doing this so long as the strife and stress of modern life sap our innermost strength. You, who are nervous may well remember that thousands praise Sanatogen for its grateful tonic and sustaining effects, restoring nerve health and vigor—the will and the power to do. You who need building up should remember that as an upbuilder of blood and tissue, Sanatogen is used daily in the best hospitals and sanitariums. And you who may be skeptical, remember that over 18,000 practising physicians, over their own signatures, have recited the remarkable results which they have seen Sanatogen produce in their patients.

Therefore, may we not say: Sanatogen will do the same for your health.

VAST THRONG HAILS OPENING OF OPERA

Society in Gala Garb at Splendid Performance of "La Gioconda" at Metropolitan.

MANY BRAVOS FOR CARUSO

Mmes. Destinn and Matzenauer, and Amato Win Plaudits—Orchestra and Chorus Magnificent.

The Metropolitan Opera House opened its season last night, and Broadway between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Streets, which has been for months the one conspicuous dark spot in the Great White Way, woke to bright lights and bustle, taking the place of honor on Broadway it will now occupy through the Winter and until the Spring weather turns New Yorkers away from such things as thrive under electric lights.

The opera was "La Gioconda," and the singers were Emmy Destinn, Caruso, Amato, Mmes. Matzenauer and Duchene, and Messrs. De Segurola, Begue, Reschiglian, and Audisio, while Arturo Toscanini occupied the conductor's desk. Massenet's "Manan," was originally to have been given, with Geraldine Farrar opening the season for the first time since her initial appearance here, but an attack of the grip and her doctor's orders, forbade, so the opera was changed at the last moment.

It is hard to imagine how many more people could have been crowded into the large auditorium than were there last night. The line of intending patrons began to form outside the main doors of the house at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The first comers were three young girls, who had a libretto with them, and it was not their fault if they did not memorize it completely before the doors of the house opened to them. They were soon joined by others, and by the time that most folks consider their dinner hour had arrived, there were several hundred in line. These were the advance guard of standees who did not hold the magical slips of paper that entitled them to sit in the sections of the house where diamonds sparkled.

Ticket Situation Cleared.

The subscribers arrived earlier than is their wont, and old habitues of the place said it was because they were fearful that the mix-up in the ticket situation would make a delay, which they were anxious to get clear of. As a matter of fact, the ticket situation had been cleared up hours before, and, for all last night's audience as a whole was affected by it, might never have occurred.

By 8 o'clock the line which forms on the curbs of the side streets to watch "society" arriving, was mustered in its full strength. But the line had to wait, for it was not until well after 8:30 that the boxholders began to arrive in any number. The limousines rolled up and deposited their owners at the entrances, while the line craned its neck. There was a brief glimpse of elegance, and then all was over for those who watched from without.

Inside the densely crowded auditorium things moved as smoothly as if it were the middle of the season instead of the opening. The audience was seated early, as has been mentioned, and gave itself up to the task of looking itself over. When the lights were lowered for the overture not a single occupant could be seen in any of the parterre boxes.

Toscanini was seen in the orchestra pit making his way to the conductor's desk through the semi-darkness, and this was the signal for the first applause of the evening. The overture was played, and then the audience settled itself back to wait for the appearance of its favorite singers. Amato was cheered as the receding chorus left him discovered with his back to the audience, and as Destinn made her way through the crowd later clad in her red robe, and when Caruso made his entrance, the music was again momentarily interrupted for applause.

After the first act, when people got through wondering why Caruso had not taken any curtain calls with the others, the bustle which accompanies the turning on of the lights was on in full first-night fervor. Batteries of opera glasses were leveled at the boxes. A great many seemed to be interested in the presence of Vincent Astor and his fiancée, but it was soon seen that the Astor box was not occupied by the family.

Great Applause for Caruso.

At the conclusion of Caruso's "Cielo e mare" aria in the second act the house warmed up to a great burst of applause, in which was mingled a storm of "bravos" and "bis-es"—and they did not all come from the galleries by any means. At the end of the act there were many curtain calls, enlivened by some of familiar Caruso by-play with flowers. Enough of them were passed over the footlights for the various singers to start even an ambitious florist in business.

There was more enthusiasm after the third act, which ended at about 11 o'clock. It was about 11:30 when the opera came to an end, and then came for the first time this season the familiar opera carriage dash, and Broadway and the side streets was once more the scene of the modern prototype of the Ben Hur chariot race, carried on simultaneously in all directions of the compass amid a tooting of horns and squealing of brakes that deprived the humble foot passenger of what little wits the shouting of the taxi drivers had left him.

At last only the traffic policeman remained of the bewildering throng. He gave a last look around, wiped his brow, and made off. The first night of the opera season was over.

"GIOCONDA," WITH GREAT CAST

A Finished Performance of Ponchielli's Opera—Caruso in Fine Voice.

La Gioconda .....Emmy Destinn
Laura Adorno .....Margarete Matzenauer
Alvise Badoero .....Andrea de Segurola
La Cieca .....Maria Duchene
Enzo Grimaldo .....Enrico Caruso
Barnaba .....Pasquale Amato
Zuane .....Bernard Begue
Un Cantore .....Vincenzo Reschiglian
Isepo .....Pietro Audisio
Conductor, Arturo Toscanini.

Whatever storms may have raged about subscription seats, whatever electric tension may have charged the air, whatever fires there may have been smoldering, more or less fiercely, in orchestra, dress circle, and upper balconies, the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House last evening was brilliant. There was a great throng of what Carlyle, on a similar occasion, called "high-dizened and most expensive persons" and others; there was an urbane air of expectancy to hear a cast of great and favorite singers. Metropolitan audiences, however, are cool and do not forget their coolness, even on an opening night. There was applause, cordial and polite, but there was little more demonstrative welcome for any of the principal singers when they first appeared upon the stage than if they had appeared there the night before. There was applause after the fall of the curtain—such applause as may be heard almost any night of the season.

The management does well to put its best foot foremost on an opening night and to do its utmost to intensify what spirit of the occasion there may be. But the opera that stands upon the bill of an opening night is not of the greatest importance. Illness had prevented Miss Geraldine Farrar from appearing last night; and so instead of Massenet's "Manon," in which she was to sing with Mr. Caruso, there was Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," in which Mme. Destinn sang with Mr. Caruso; also Mme. Matzenauer and Mr. Amato, and Mr. Toscanini conducted.

"La Gioconda" has been useful before in opening the season, and when it has not opened the season Ponchielli's gloomy tragedy has often of late years made an early appearance in the repertory. Opportunity for admired singers to sing effective airs, tuneful, and dazzling, though rather commonplace ballet music, and the unusual chances for the display of elaborate dancing and of a sumptuous stage setting, all argue in favor of "La Gioconda." It has, indeed, theatrical effectiveness and musical traits superficially striking. But Ponchielli's music, important in one sense as it may have been at one of the starting points of a school, is essentially vulgar. It has also lost much of its freshness and the sense of newness, and many of its effects once accounted "modern" are to-day anything but modern. Much of it seems even cheap and tawdry, and it is in the nature of things that it must seem cheaper and tawdrier as time goes on and the opera is kept upon the stage only so much for its own sake as for the advantages it offers for opening nights and the appearance of favorite singers.

It is doubtless much more to the point to note that Mr. Caruso seemed to be in admirable voice, and sang not only with all needed power but also with taste and style; with more of these qualities, indeed, than he has sometimes displayed in the past. His "Cielo e Mar," always one of his best achievements, was given with beautiful art. And yet some of his admirers may have been made a little uneasy by a certain unsteadiness that appeared now and again in some of his sustained tones—an unsteadiness that has been foreign to Mr. Caruso's singing.

Mme. Destinn likewise was in admirable voice; she has rarely sung with greater beauty—how exquisite is that searching and sustained high tone with which she makes her exit at the close of the first act! So, too, were Mr. Amato and Mme. Matzenauer in admirable voice, though Mr. Amato's had not all the smoothness that it should have had at the beginning of the season. His delivery of the dramatic and declamatory solos that are so significant in his part, was masterly. Mme. Duchêne as La Cieca, sang very well, and made a step upward in the appreciation of the Metropolitan's audience. It was indeed a performance of superb verve and sonority, at the same time of finesse, of remarkable finish and power.

Mr. Toscanini has rarely been more in the vein than he was last evening, and his authority and contagious enthusiasm completely dominated the performance. Chorus and orchestra were magnificent in what they accomplished. Such a performance indeed gave no hint of a season's beginning; everything about it was as finished as could be offered in midseason. So far as the quality of the performance was concerned, there could not have been a more favorable augury for the impending months of opera.

SOCIETY IN BRILLIANT ARRAY.

Count and Countess Szechenyi Attend with Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Society was in gala garb last night at the opening of the opera season, although it was 9 o'clock before the boxes began to fill. When the second intermission came around the parterre was a blaze of color and scintillating lights from jewels, but it was a soft color, in which palest pastel shades intermingled with the warmth of cerise, rich brocades, and silvered chiffons. The Oriental note in color, so much in evidence last year, was almost wholly absent this season.

Around 9 o'clock the carriage foyers presented a kaleidoscopic scene, for it is here that the society matron and débutante is seen in their gorgeous wraps, which they remove before entering the boxes. There were many trailing, superb brocaded cloaks, ermine, seal, and cerise velvets seen, and the flash of diamond diadems attracted such a crowd of the curious on the Thirty-ninth Street side that the police had to drive them away.

Just as Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury arrived, wearing her famous jewels, a flashlight was exploded outside the carriage foyer, and several matrons in the line of limousines were considerably frightened until they learned the cause.

Many Distinguished Visitors.

The first intermission gave those who were already seated in the parterre a chance to look around, but it was after 10 o'clock before the changes that have been effected in the occupancy of the "golden horseshoe" could be fully noted. Besides the noted absence of those who are in mourning, there were many distinguished visitors, including the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Warren; of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Warren; the German Ambassador and the Countess von Bernstorff, who were with Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer, and the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Riano, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr.

Vincent Astor did not occupy Box 7, as society expected, for everybody was hoping to see Mr. Astor and his fiancée, Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, make their first appearance together at the opera. The J. Pierpont Morgans, Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies, George F. Baker and family, Mrs. John Astor, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, and many other prominent New Yorkers were kept away owing to mourning. The Count and Countess Laszlo Széchényi were there, the guests of the Countess's mother, Mrs. Vanderbilt. Clarence Mackay, who recently returned from abroad, was seen greeting his friends. The newcomer in the parterre was William Ross Proctor, who now owns Box 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren, who had the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhméteff, also had Mr. and Mrs. George L. Rives as their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Speyer, besides the German Ambassador and the Countess von Bernstorff, had J. Coleman Drayton and Frank A. Munsey as their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin were also the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, who occupied the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Riano.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry and the Misses Mabel and Angelica Gerry had as guests in Box 23 Mr. Leslie and Mr. Grenville of England, and James Barney and Horace Stebbins.

Mr. and Mrs. Kontze's Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Kountze had as their guests in Box 32 Mr. and Mrs. De Lancey Kountze and Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas.

Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones had as guests in Box 11 Mr. and Mrs. John Russell Pope, Pembroke Jones, Jr., Clinton Gray, and Harry Eldridge.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Davison, in Box 21, had with them Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury and Mr. and Mrs. William D. Guthrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormond G. Smith, in Box 22, had Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Livingston with them.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ross Proctor, Box 26, had Miss Vouletti Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Root, and Mr. Stevens as guests.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shillito Rogers, in Box 2, had with them Mr. and Mrs. Earle Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Dulany Howland, and Frederic Juilliard.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies did not occupy their box, No. 53, in the grand tier, as they are in mourning for Mr. Baylies's mother. Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer and Miss Van Rensselaer occupied it.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Frick, in Box 19, had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Childs Frick, Mrs. Lawrence Dilworth, and John P. Grier.

George G. Haven had in Box 25 Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Borland, Miss Alice Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pell, and William Barclay Parsons, Jr.

George Goulds in Clews Box.

Henry Clews, in Box 12, had Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. James Blanchard Clews, Mrs. Herbert Parsons, Sir Courtney Ilseon, M. P., and the Hon. Charles R. Crane. Mrs. Clews has not yet returned from Europe.

Mrs. James B. Haggin, in Box 24, had Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Perry, and Elliott Gregory.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bruce occupied Box 13, and had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. J. Sargeant Cram.

Mrs. John T. Pratt, in Box 10, had Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Potter and Louis C. Clark, Jr., as her guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Cabot Ward, Miss Olivia Cutting, and Miss Hester Chanler occupied Box 28 in the absence of Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, who is in mourning.

Mrs. E. H. Gary, in Box 15, had as her guests Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little of Atlanta, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney were in Box 30, which they share alternately during the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Guinness occupied Box 7, in the absence of Vincent Astor, and had with her Mrs. Linda Lee Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, in Box 4, had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. F. Gray Griswold.

Mrs. George B. Hurd, in grand tier Box 45, had with her Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Landstreet and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Proal.

Miss Julia Chester Wells, in grand tier Box 41, had Mr. and Mrs. William North Duane, Hon. Charles A. Sherrill and Mrs. Sherrill, and Rutgers Bleecker Jewett.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dennis had in Mr. Gatti-Casazza's grand tier Box 48 as their guests Mrs. Gonong and Miss Lillian Lee of Toronto, Alexander Webb, Archie Reid, and Mr. Dennis.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Herbert, in the stall boxes, had Mr. and Mrs. John G. Quimby as their guests.

The Gowns and Jewels.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney was in a Venetian red velvet brocaded in dull gold, the top of silver lace. She wore a crescent shaped diadem set almost solidly with diamonds, and a diamond necklace with huge stones.

Mrs. Payne Whitney, in the same box, wore a deep petunia velvet brocade, with different colors showing through, and diamonds.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was in a brocaded mauve chiffon with scarf draperies of pearl-studded white lace falling from the neck at the back and sleeves of the same. She wore a diamond crown with huge stones tipping its points, a diamond necklace and corsage ornaments.

The Countess Széchényi was in pale blue pannier velvet with a square fichu of silvered white lace and the sleeves coming to the elbow were extensions of the fichu and stood out a bit from the arms. She wore a diamond comb and diamond necklace.

Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, in the same box, wore a silver gray satin gown with a V-shaped neck, outlined with silver sequins, gray tulle sleeves, and draperies lightly embroidered, and diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish wore a gown of blue satin brocaded in gold and having lace embroidered in gold thread on the corsage and forming the sleeves. She wore diamond bands in her hair and a diamond necklace.

Mrs. Orme Wilson, Jr., who was with Mrs. Orme Wilson, Sr., was in a brilliant coral pink velvet, opening in coat effect over white lace, with a white lace top. Two lines of sable fur outlined the round neck and ran down each side of the front, giving the coat effect.

Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry was in pale lilac brocaded in silver, with a plastron of brocade coming up the centre of the corsage, which was of silver and crystal embroidered lace. She wore a diamond tiara and necklace.

Miss Mabel Gerry was in a beaded white net over satin, with pearl and diamond ornaments. Miss Angelica Gerry was in pale lilac velvet, with folds of silver lace around the corsage top and silver drapery about the knees.

Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas was in a dull coral-colored chiffon and satin, the neck cut square, draped sleeves, and a large black velvet rose at the left of the corsage. The chiffon skirt drapery was also held with a huge black velvet rosette.

Mrs. De Lancey Kountze wore a pale blue satin gown veiled with silvered net, with the decolletage cut straight across, and cape sleeves of net

Mme. Bakhmeteff in Blue and Gold.

Mme. Bakhmeteff wore a blue gown brocaded in gold, with white lace corsage having a large pink rose as a decoration. She wore a diamond and aquamarine tiara and plastron of the same jewels.

Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, in the Astor box, had Mrs. Linda Lee Thomas as one of her guests. She wore a simple black gown with black tulle sleeve bands.

Mrs. George Henry Warren was in silver gray satin with silver sequined tulle of the same hue and elbow sleeves. She wore ropes of diamonds and diamonds in her hair.

Mrs. Oren Root was in black velvet with the low, square cut corsage of black tulle and elbow sleeves of the tulle. She wore no ornaments.

Mrs. W. Ross Proctor wore a brocaded petunia velvet with silver lace and diamonds.

Mrs. Arthur Iselin was in a light cherry satin velvet with cherry net, with a low round neck and band sleeves. A jeweled band held her flat coiffure, and from the left side sprung a cherry bird of paradise aigrette.

Mrs. Luther Kountze was in sable-trimmed black satin and net, with elbow sleeves and the neck rather high; diamond ornaments in her hair and on her corsage.

Mrs. James Speyer wore pale mauve pink velvet, veiled with silver embroidered net. The sleeves were deep wings of silver lace. She wore diamond hair and corsage ornaments.

Countess Bernstorff was in black velvet with a tunic of black net. The bodice was white chiffon and net, with touches of black, and the white net sling sleeves were edged with black. She wore a diamond corsage plaque.

Mme. Riano wore a lilac chiffon over white, with white net corsage having a cluster of purple flowers. Her coiffure was bound flat with jeweled bands.

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury wore a brilliant red velvet gown, elaborately draped, with a point lace corsage and diamond necklace, tiara, and large corsage ornaments.

Mrs. George Gould was in a white satin brocade, a pannier gown, with the square-cut corsage of jeweled lace with a touch of gold across the back. Her diamond and emerald jewels were oddly arranged in pendant effect at one side of the front of the bodice.

Miss Vouletti Proctor wore a silver net gown trimmed with silver lace, nothing but silver in dull and bright effect showing in the costume.

Mrs. Linda Lee Thomas was in black velvet and tulle with the white tulle at the corsage top forming one of the sleeve bands. She had a large pale emerald green ostrich feather fan.

Mrs. Warren in White Satin Gown.

Mrs. Whitney Warren wore a white satin gown, the scarf sash and high pannier drapery brocaded in large red roses. White aigrette in hair and pearls.

Mrs. Ogden L. Mills was in a golden brown satin brocaded in dull gold. The top of point lace. Diamond ornaments.

Miss Anna Sands was in pale blue velvet with the corsage of crystal lace Pearls and diamonds.

Mrs. John Russell Pope was in a grayish-green panne velvet robe, draped in emerald green chiffon, and wore a green tulle scarf and a huge emerald pendant.

Mrs. George L. Rives wore an amethyst brocade most simply made, and pearls and diamonds.

Mrs. James Blanchard Clews was in a gown of old pink satin with a tunic of chiffon of the same shade and a girdle of old blue.

Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., was in a silver brocade gown with white lace.

Mrs. August Belmont wore a simple pink and silver gown. Diamond and pearl ornaments.

Mrs. John Shillito Rogers, in Box 2, wore a silver brocaded gown and her jewels were ropes of pearls and diamonds.

Century Opera Has Big Crowd.

The Century Opera House was watched with some interest last night, because of the question that has been raised of late as to whether its patronage would be affected by the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House. The house of opera in English was practically sold out last night, but eighteen orchestra chairs and two boxes failing to be disposed of, in spite of the fact that the Metropolitan was crowded to the limit.

PAVLOWA AT MANHATTAN.

Russian Dancer is Applauded by Large Audience.

Anna Pavlowa and her company of Russian dancers began an engagement at the Manhattan Opera House last night which is to include matinée and evening performances to-day and to-morrow. In spite of the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House there was a large audience at the Manhattan, all the seats visible from the parquet being occupied, and many standing in the rear. There was a good deal of enthusiasm displayed by the audience.

The programme included the "Oriental Fantasy," Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," and a series of divertissements for the last part. The audience demanded repetitions of Pavlowa's dancing of the "Pizzicato" of Drigo, "L'Automne Bacchanale," and the "Gavotte Pavlowa," which was called "Gavotte Directoire" when she danced it at her recent engagement at the Metropolitan.

MRS. HAVERTY'S VICTORY.

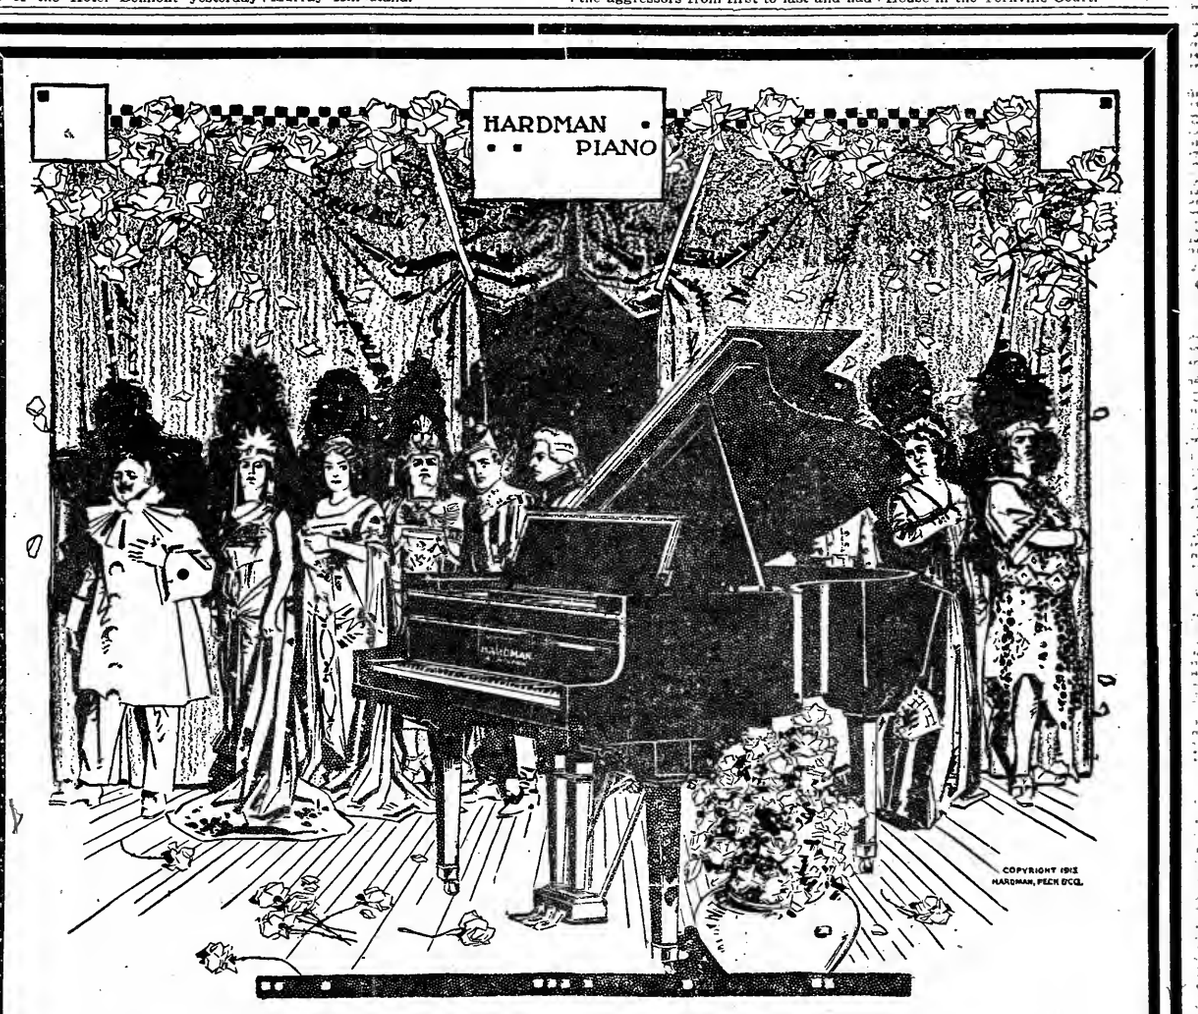
Her Taxicabs Running Securely with Non-Union Chauffeurs.

Mrs. Catherine Haverty, head of Haverty's Taxicabs, Incorporated, directed seventeen of her taxicabs at the stand in front of the Hotel Belmont yesterday without interference from any of the striking chauffeurs who walked to and fro in front of the hotel. Mrs. Haverty superintended the taxicab service from the sidewalk part of the time. Occasionally she went into the hotel and watched from her window. Four of the Haverty taxicabs were running at the Murray Hill stand.

Regarding the strike as practically broken, Mrs. Haverty has decided to have no further dealing with the Chauffeurs' Union, and to run her business hereafter on the "open shop" plan.

"The special guards have been taken off some of the taxicabs," said John W. Browne, counsel for Mrs. Haverty, yesterday. "The men who struck were the aggressors from first to last and had no grievance. In the agreement which expired there was a provision that they should do nothing at the end of the agreement until a conference had been held, but they went on strike before the conference which had been arranged had taken place."

A man who was arrested on the charge of puncturing a tire of one of the Haverty machines, has been held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury by Magistrate House in the Yorkville Court.



All of the Great Metropolitan Opera Stars Tune Their Voices to the HARDMAN Piano

THOSE priceless voices whose melody and art are worshipped by music lovers the world over, rehearse day by day to the correct and artistic tones of the HARDMAN Piano.

No less perfect an instrument can be risked upon such an important service.

Think of a billion people on this earth and only twenty or thirty supreme voices among them all!

And ALL of those sublime voices—possessed by the greatest artists of melody that the world has ever produced—are heard daily in harmony with the HARDMAN Piano.

The instrument in which true artistic TONE is supreme.

A piano is the purchase of a lifetime—if well selected.

The purchaser should have the best advice possible when making this artistic investment.

Who would you rather ask than all others possessing real musical knowledge? Whose opinion would be most convincing to you?

The word of the possessor of the most marvelous voice that ever dwelt in man's bosom, to bless with supreme melody the world in which we live—

Would you ask the opinion of Signor Enrico Caruso?

His answer, over his own signature, is:

"The HARDMAN is my favorite piano."

Would you like to hear Mme. Destinn's opinion? She says:

"The HARDMAN is a perfect instrument."

Do you value the estimate of Riccardo Martin? He writes:

"The HARDMAN is the best piano made."

Look for the word of your own particular favorite, on the side of this page; for ALL have paid their tribute of praise to the instrument that commands universal love and respect of all true musical artists.

These world-famous opera stars use only the beautiful HARDMAN—the Piano of the Opera. Would they use any but the BEST?

Just as there are but few voices that ever reach the supreme heights of artistic achievement, so there are but few pianos that attain superlative excellence, and can be acclaimed worthy to accompany the silver voices of grand opera art.

The Hardman is such a Piano.

It has stood the test of generations, and has won the enthusiastic favor of the world's greatest musicians.

To possess a HARDMAN confers distinction upon the owner—the hall-mark of the connoisseur who knows real merit, and has the discrimination to own nothing but the truly artistic.

The superlative HARDMAN graces and honors the homes of wealth and refinement all over the world.

But it is also within the convenient reach of artistic people of most moderate means, and most acceptable terms of payment will be arranged at the purchaser's desire.

For those who do not play by hand, there is provided the same matchless piano, in player form—

The HARDMAN AUTOTONE

Thus the Piano of the Opera may be possessed by every music-loving family, to dispense its marvelous melody, at the touch of every hand, whether musically educated, or with no musical technique at all.

We invite you to come and see and hear these superb instruments, in their Fifth Avenue home.

Convenient terms of payment, as desired.

Easy Terms You may pay us a deposit on the purchase price of any of our instruments and we will deliver it to you immediately—then you may complete your payments in small weekly or monthly installments, just as you wish. Liberal allowance for old pianos taken in exchange. Write for handsomely illustrated catalogue.

TANGO IS TABOOED BY KAISER'S ORDER

Naval and Military Officers Dancing It in Uniform Will Be Dismissed.

ONE-STEP ALSO VETOED

Emperor's Dislike of New Dances So Great That Members of Royal Opera Ballet Have Been Warned.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The tango, the two-step, and the one-step have been officially forbidden by the Kaiser to all officers of the German Army and Navy when in uniform. The decree, sent to all commanding officers, reads, according to The Berliner Salon:

"Officers of the army and navy are hereby requested to dance neither the tango nor the one-step nor two-step in uniform, and to avoid families where these are danced."

The Berliner Salon asserts that dismissal will be the punishment for infringement of this order.

The Berliner Tageblatt learns that the Kaiser's objection to the tango and one-step is so pronounced that members of the ballet of the Royal Opera House have been warned against taking part in charity entertainments at which tango competitions are included. Mme. Arnstadt, a well-known member of the company, was recently informed by Count von Hülsen-Häseler, the Director of the Imperial Opera Houses, that although he could not refuse permission to her to attend a tango tournament, he warned her against taking part in it.

The Kaiser's edict, if correctly reported, will upset the arrangements of the majority of Berlin hostesses, who have accepted the tango. Almost the first society function of the season was a tango tea given in the official apartments of Countess Schwerin in the Prussian Houses of Parliament. It was attended by the American Ambassador and many young military officers.

Some young women who were to attend a course of tango lessons with German Lieutenants were informed to-day that the officers had canceled the arrangement, as they had received an intimation that their efforts to learn the tango would be regarded with disfavor.

KAISER SNUBS FERDINAND.

Bulgarian Ruler, at Coburg, Told Visit to Berlin Would Be Useless.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who arrived to-day in Coburg, is passing through such a crisis, according to well informed circles in Coburg and Berlin, that his abdication of the throne in favor of his son is possible, and even probable, in spite of a denial published by the Bulgarian Legation here.

Austrian statesmen are understood to be doing their utmost to discourage the King's surrender of the throne, because they consider the young Crown Prince Boris likely to be influenced by the element among the Bulgarian Ministers that is friendly to Russia.

King Ferdinand at the same time is receiving little encouragement in Germany, which is indisposed to assist a monarch whose star is believed to be setting. Emperor William and the German Government have expressed themselves openly as friendly to Greece, and it is understood that King Ferdinand, who desired to come to Berlin, received an intimation that such a visit would be useless.

King Ferdinand, who is residing incognito at the palace in Coburg, spent this morning in prayer at the graves of his ancestors. He is the youngest son of the late Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and was elected Prince of Bulgaria in 1887. He declared himself King in 1908, and was recognized as such by the powers.

PANAMA CHINESE STRIKE.

Shut Up Their Shops as a Protest Against the New Laws.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Nov. 17.—A crisis was reached to-day in the controversy between the Government of Panama and the Chinese in the country over the new anti-Chinese laws which have gone into effect. All Chinese stores, laundries and manufacturing plants in the country closed their doors today as a protest against the law which would force many of the members of that race to leave the Republic, and which puts a heavy tax on those who remain.

As the Chinese have a monopoly in most of the lines in which they operate, the situation is serious, and the general public to-day was shut off from buying many necessary supplies. The Chinese seem to hold the whip hand, and strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the Government to make the law less drastic, but so far no concessions have been made.

The Congressional Appropriation Committee arrived here to-day from Washington to inspect the fortifications being erected at the entrances to the Panama Canal.

NOT TO EXCLUDE ULSTER

But Government Will Submit Certain Proposals to Opposition.

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 18.—The statement in The Times yesterday to the effect that the Government had decided to arrange a compromise with the Opposition leaders in Parliament on the Home Rule bill has provoked much discussion. Apparently, however, it goes beyond the actual facts.

According to an inspired statement issued last night, "the Government will submit certain proposals to the Opposition leaders for the special treatment of Ulster, subject to the acceptance of Home Rule by all parties. The scheme will only be submitted as a basis for discussion, and it is clearly impossible to insert a clause excluding Ulster."

This is held to mean something in the nature of home rule within home rule, as recently suggested in a speech by Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary.

$3,485 FOR TEAKETTLE.

Big Prices for Old Silver at the Fitzhenry Sale in London.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The sale of the collection of English and foreign silver, formed by the late J. H. Fitzhenry, the greater part of which has been on loan for several years at the Victoria and Albert Museum, was begun at Christie's to-day.

A George I plain teakettle and stand by Ambrose Stevenson, 1717, brought $3,485.

A George II oval bread-basket, dated 1741, sold for $1,065.

A ewer, thirteen inches high, by L. Herne and F. Butty, 1764, went for $1,170.

A Commonwealth porringer, maker's mark, "W. G." with pellet above and below, dated 1657, was knocked down for $1,110. A smaller porringer, made by Christopher Shaw in 1656, brought $1,450.

A Commonwealth beaker, maker's mark "D. G." with an anchor between, was sold for $490.

A pair of Charles I beakers, maker's mark a thistle head, Norwich, 1631, from the Massey-Mainwaring collection, brought $630.

A pair of oval baskets and covers by William Homer, Dublin, 1770, went for $3,130.

An oval basket and cover by John Lloyd, Dublin, 1772, brought $1,015.

The sale will be continued on Nov. 20.

BANK MUST GIVE UP GEMS.

English Court Decides in Favor of Creditors of Aberheim & Co.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The ownership of a parcel of sixty valuable diamonds alleged to have been taken illegally by a bank from the Yokohama branch of the firm of Richard Aberheim & Co. of New York, London, and Japan at the time of the failure of the London firm was decided in the High Court to-day.

The trustee in bankruptcy of the Aberheims asked the court to order the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China to return the diamond for the benefit of the Aberheims' estate. It was urged for the plaintiffs that the gems were not those hypothecated with the bank as security for a bill of $9,670.

On the witness stand Richard Aberheim, who came from New York to fight the case, testified that the bill, which did not fall due till the April following the failure of the London firm in February, would have been met in due course.

The court held that Richard Aberheim had not acted in any way dishonestly, and ordered the bank to return the jewels. The Aberheims' creditors will therefore be the richer by the distribution of the proceeds realized from the sale of the diamonds.

250 SAILORS SEE THE POPE.

Seamen and Petty Officers from Our Battleships Blessed by Him.

ROME, Nov. 17.—Pope Pius to-day received in his private apartments 250 seamen and petty officers, including thirty Filipinos, belonging to the vessels of the United States fleet now in European waters. The sailors were conducted into the presence of his Holiness by Chaplain Evan W. Scott of the battleship Kansas.

The Pope imparted the Apostolic Benediction to the bluejackets. He urged them to be good Christians and good citizens, as well as good sailors and brave men.

NAPLES, Nov. 17.—Thomas Nelson Page, American Ambassador to Italy, and Mrs. Page arrived here this evening from Rome to visit the American battleships Wyoming, Arkansas, and Florida, now anchored off this port.

Rear Admiral Ladger, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, gave a dinner on board the flagship Wyoming this evening in honor of Ambassador and Mrs. Page. The guests included Admiral Cattolica, ex-Minister of Marine, who had officially welcomed the American battleships to Italian waters, and ten other Italian naval officers, as well as the officers of a Dutch warship that is now here.

All the warships in the harbor were beautifully illuminated to-night.

M. KOKOVTZOFF IN BERLIN.

Russian Premier Confers with Chancellor—Kaiser to Entertain Him.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The Russian Premier and Minister of Finance, M. Kokovtzoff, arrived here to-day and conferred for some time with the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg.

The object of the visit is generally assumed to be the discussion of the financial side of railroad construction and development in Turkey and also Russian finances, although the general European political situation will probably be touched upon.

As the Russian statesman is accompanied by M. Davidoff, his principal subordinate in the Ministry of Finance, color is given to this belief.

The Russian Premier will be the guest of Emperor William at luncheon on Wednesday, and will dine with the Imperial Chancellor to-morrow. He will depart on Thursday.

TO TRY ZELAYA FIRST.

If Convicted, Nicaragua Will Demand His Extradition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The disclosure that the United States Government might be asked to extradite Gen. J. Santos Zelaya, ex-President of Nicaragua, to Managua, the capital of that country, in connection with charges now pending there accusing him of robbery and assassination was read with keen interest in Washington to-day. At the State Department it was learned that Gen. Zelaya's extradition had not yet been asked.

The Legislative Assembly of Nicaragua has instituted charges of robbery and assassination against Gen. Zelaya before the Supreme Court at Managua. The understanding is that if that tribunal should find him guilty of the charges the Nicaraguan Government will formally ask for the extradition of Gen. Zelaya, not for trial, but for sentence. The Nicaraguan code permits the trial and conviction of an accused person in his absence, though the absent principal is allowed to be represented at the trial by counsel.

Gen. Julian Irias, Minister General of Nicaragua during the latter months of the stormy régime of ex-President Zelaya, who has been living in exile in Costa Rica since the flight of himself and Gen. Zelaya from Managua, arrived in Washington to-day and is registered at a leading hotel. Gen. Irias declined to be interviewed on the ground that he could not speak English. The statement was made, however, that he came to Washington on a "peaceful visit."

'SWEATERS' VICTIMS AT DUCHESS'S HOME

Workingwomen Tell What They Earn at Meeting at Duchess of Marlborough's House.

COUPLE GET $2 A WEEK

Movement to Abolish Sweating Inaugurated—Duchess Quiets Suffragette Interrupters.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Led by the Duchess of Marlborough, a great call for the abolition of "sweating" among women workers went forth to-day from a conference of influential persons at her London home, Sunderland House, Mayfair. Representatives of society, of the Church, and of every political party united with those of the workers themselves in demanding the abolition of sweating.

C. F. G. Masterman, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, urged that this was no party question. Lord Lytton condemned this "dry rot sapping the strength of the nation." J. R. Clynes, a Labor Member of Parliament, pleaded for "a place in life for the worst-paid worker." The Bishop of Oxford was another speaker.

No speech brought home the conditions of sweating more forcibly than that of the Duchess herself. She said that when it was remembered that 2,000,000 women and girls were employed in factories and workshops in Great Britain, and at least 100,000 were working for wages in their own homes, the question of sweating became, surely, a matter of great importance. She went on:

"The number of women workers is increasing. A single woman needs, in order to obtain the minimum requirements to live, 15s. ($3.75) a week, yet in organized industries there are probably over 300,000 women who earn less than 12s.

"In London many women earn only 6s. a week, and we are bound to admit that there are thousands of women and girls suffering actual hunger, want, and destitution, although they work every available hour the full year out."

Afterward some workingwomen told their stories to justify the call. A matchbox worker held up two boxes, for making which she gets 6 cents a gross. A shirtmaker produced a man's colored shirt. "I get 9d. (18 cents) a dozen," she said. "Last week I and my husband worked from 5:30 A. M. till 11 P. M. and made 10s. 6d. Out of that we had to pay 1s. 6d. for the machine and 1s. 10d. for cotton."

A young widow who works in a sugar factory said her wages were $2. She gave her mother $1.25 and had 75 cents to live on. Out of this she bought her meals and clothes for her two children. Her dinner cost her 2 cents a day—"a ha'porth of fish and a ha'porth of potatoes."

When Mr. Masterman rose to speak, it was discovered that suffragettes were present. Several women at the back of the room greeted him with cries of "Votes for women!" As the interruptions continued, the Duchess of Marlborough appealed to the suffragette element to desist, with the desired effect.

SUFFRAGISTS RIOT.

Stewards Kicked and Bruised Trying to Eject Them.

SHEFFIELD, Nov. 17.—A wild suffragette disturbance occurred here tonight.

Philip Snowden, Socialist Member of Parliament for Blackburn, attempted to address a "no conscription" meeting arranged by the Labor Party, but was howled down by suffragettes. Stewards promptly took a hand, and in the resulting scrimmage were attacked not only by the women, but also by male sympathizers. Some of the stewards were kicked and badly bruised.

In spite of the fact that many of the disturbers were ejected, the uproar persisted to such an extent that at the end of half an hour the meeting was abandoned.

A large section of the audience displayed anger at the Chairman for calling the police to his aid, declaring that the working classes had "had enough of the police."

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Sylvia Pankhurst, addressing an open air meeting at Bow to-night, announced that the next suffragist campaign would be a "no rent strike," among the workingwomen of London.

Two bands described by Arthur Hopkins, the Police Magistrate, as "raving women," appeared in police courts of London to-day in connection with Saturday's outrage at the Old Bailey, where hammers were thrown at Mr. Justice Lawrence, and with yesterday's disorders near Premier Asquith's official residence in Downing Street.

The four women charged with assaulting the Judge were sentenced to terms varying from one month's to two months' hard labor.

In the second case Miss Boyleau and Mrs. Kerr were bound over to keep the peace, while the proceedings against the Misses Murray and Boyle were adjourned.

It was noticeable that the police took the precaution of depriving all women of their baskets or parcels as they entered the Police Courts, evidently fearing that they might carry concealed weapons or missiles.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BOGOTA, Nov. 17.—Thaddeus A. Thompson, United States Minister to Colombia, left here for Barranquilla yesterday to sail for New York, owing to the illness of his wife. Leland Harrison, Secretary of Legation, will act as Charge d'Affaires during his absence, and will continue the negotiations between the United States and the Colombian Government in connection with the claims of Colombia arising out of the partition of Panama.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The announcement is made by Ambassador Page that a presentation is to be made to Harry Brittain by the members of the Pilgrims' Club of England and America, to mark their appreciation of his ten years' work for the club. Mr. Brittain, with Lord Roberts and two or three Americans, founded the English section of the club in 1902, and has been an energetic Honorary Secretary ever since. The presentation is to take the form of a portrait of Mrs. Brittain, which is being painted by J. J. Shannon, R. A.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Right Hon. James Bryce, ex-Ambassador to the United States, was received in audience to-night by the King. The relinquishment by Mr. Bryce of his post at Washington was discussed.

$9,200 GOLD ROBBERY.

Ingots Vanish from a Consignment from Constantinople to Paris.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Officials from the Ottoman Bank were engaged last night at the Gare du Nord in unloading a bullion wagon which had just arrived from Constantinople, when they discovered that one of the cases containing specie had been tampered with in the course of the journey and £1,840 ($9,200) had been abstracted.

One of the cases appeared somewhat light and was found to be under the contract weight. The leaden seal on the lid had been damaged and the iron band which fastened the box had been severed with a file, lifted, and subsequently hammered down again. The case should have contained five sealed bags of Turkish sovereigns. Only three were found.

The other cases, numbering sixty, containing gold coins to the value of £184,000, were weighed. They had not been touched. Either the thieves worked in a hurry or else they feared to burden themselves with too heavy a weight of gold.

The gold was in a sealed wagon. Its arrival had been privately signaled to railway officials along the route, and from the moment of its entry into French territory it had been specially watched by officials of the Nord Railway Company.

Several robberies of gold similar to that reported from Paris yesterday have been under investigation by the police of the European capitals for some time. In November, 1912, $50,000 in English sovereigns was extracted from a large consignment sent from London to Alexandria, Egypt, and last January $25,000 was stolen while on the way from Hamburg to Rio Janeiro.

The police believe the robberies have been committed by the same band of thieves, and that it has ramifications all over Europe.

WOMAN DETERIORATING?

Views of Dr. Claye Shaw—He Thinks the Present Trend Disastrous.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Dr. Thomas Claye Shaw, who is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, an authority on medico-psychology, ex-President of the Society for the Study of Inebriety, and ex-Medical Officer of Banstead Asylum, read a paper to-day on "The Nervous Factor in Woman's Health" at the Institute of Hygiene before an audience mainly composed of women. He had a good many things to say about modern women which are likely to be resented. He said in part:

"The type of woman has changed. She has become harder in feature, more wrinkled. Her complexion has been affected by outdoor life. She is more independent, has less reverence for authority, fewer home interests, is less of a stay-at-home.

"If, as seems to be the case, women's desire is to be what men are, to do what men do, then I think I can see some reason for the present style in women's dress, in its display of the figure. This is a mistake, as doing away with the mystery in woman.

"Sport is a bad marriage market. An athletic girl becomes too like a man, exposes her character to him too much. Besides, as a rule, she neglects her home. You can tell an athletic girl at home. Bicycles are thrown together and never cleaned. Hockey sticks are heaped together. Ill-shaped, muddy shoes are without lasts. Meals are at casual intervals. Then there is an acquired bucolic look and athletic carelessness of deportment.

"Proper sex development is necessary for full mental development, and if it is interrupted or tampered with this leads to most disastrous bodily and mental results. Many women restrict their families, trying to combine the care of a home with the freedom and irresponsibility of a single life. This is a fatal mistake. If they marry they ought to accept the full responsibilities. They must not try to balk nature.

"Are women more emotional than men? I think they are, because for ages they have been used to deference and adulation. This has made them live in rivalry, to be fond of notoriety and advertisement, jealous of interference. As emotion is necessary for the spread of their new ideas and propaganda, their emotional trend in this direction is bound to increase, but it is not in a healthy way, because it tends to make them harder, more wrinkled, more like men, whereas they have more need of tender sentiment."

FOXHALL KEENE FINED.

Called Himself Maximilian Agassis When Arrested for Auto Speeding.

Magistrate Murphy looked hard yesterday in the West Side Court at the defendant, charged with speeding in an automobile, who came forward when the name of Maximilian Agassiz was called.

"How do you do, Mr. Keene?" asked the Magistrate.

The accused man laughed and admitted that he was Foxhall Keene. When he was arrested last Saturday afternoon for speeding on upper Broadway on his way to the Yale-Princeton football game he had given the name of Maximilian Agassiz, for the reason, he told the Magistrate, that he did not want to be annoyed by seeing his real name in the newspapers.

Policeman Guiderman, who made the arrest, testified that Mr. Keene had at first refused to give any name, but upon being threatened with arrest he had abused the policeman roundly and finally described himself as Maximilian Agassiz, 55 years old, of 27 West Forty-third Street.

Magistrate Murphy imposed a fine of $25. Mr. Keene was before arrested on the night of July 19 of this year on a charge of disorderly conduct because he refused to give his name to a policeman who sought to serve him with a summons because his automobile, which stood just outside of Hotel Astor, bore a 1912 tag. On that occasion he was discharged by the Magistrate with a reprimand.

Fines or Imprisons Auto Speeders.

Seven men were fined or committed to jail for two days in the West Side Court yesterday for speeding automobiles. They were John Archbabbeau, 29 years old, 158 Brookfield Avenue, sent to jail for two days; Russel Durand, 24 years old, Fifty-first Street and Broadway, fined $25; George Farrell, 27 years old, 156 West 100th Street, committed to jail for two days in default of $25 fine; William Riley, 19 Greenwich Street, 21 years old, jail for two days; John J. London, 36 years old, of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, paid $25 fine; William J. Allen of Peekskill, N. Y., 32 years old, paid $25 fine, and Vincent J. Fi[illegible] 190 West Tenth Street, 25 years old, fined $25.

HINDUS IN NATAL BURN PLANTATIONS

Declare a General Strike Owing to the Exclusion Laws—Troops Ordered Out.

PROBLEM IS EMPIRE-WIDE

Indians Are Being Kept Out All Over the British Dominions—Imperial Government Worried.

DURBAN, Nov. 17.—The East Indians in Natal to-day declared a general strike, which was accompanied by rioting and the burning of sugar plantations.

The police force is insufficient to deal with the rioters, and white women and children are in a state of terror.

Troops have been ordered to some of the disaffected districts.

In this city practically the whole East Indian community struck work and became so aggressive that a demand was made for the proclamation of martial law.

In the country districts hundreds of acres of sugar cane were burned.

The revolt of the East Indians was brought about by the exclusion laws in force against them here. Their resentment had hitherto been passive, but it developed to-day into violent action.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The question of the British East Indians has again reached an acute stage, nearly every dominion and colony to which these British subjects emigrate either barring them or having legislation which very effectually prevents them from entering or remaining.

The Imperial Government, having more to say in the government of the crown colonies than it has in that of the dominions, has taken steps to make the life of the East Indians in those colonies more bearable. A commission composed of a member of the British Indian Government and an East Indian of industrial experience is visiting the crown colonies to which indentured immigration is still permitted for a thorough investigation into the conditions of employment of East Indians and generally into their position and treatment.

In the dominions the Imperial Government, which would have Indians treated as are other British subjects, is faced with exactly the same difficulty as the Federal Government at Washington has to deal with in connection with California's anti-Japanese legislation. The people of the dominions insist upon having "white men's countries."

In Australia, East Indians, like all other Asiatics, are being barred out under the operation of a new law which empowers the State Governments to make the entry of Orientals conditional on their ability to pass an examination in a European language, which they may not understand, and in New Zealand legislation of a similar nature is being prepared. Not only English, but any European language may be the test.

In South Africa, to the many other disabilities imposed on East Indians another has been added by a recent decision of the High Court. This declares that the wives of East Indians, even if sole wives, are not wives before the law of the Union if they have been made so under the rites which also allow polygamous marriages.

In Canada admission to East Indians is still refused, in spite of an arrangement which Lord Hardinge, the Viceroy of India, has stated, has been reached with the Canadian Government. By this arrangement special permits were to be issued to East Indians desirous of visiting Canada.

As in South Africa, East Indians who have acquired domiciliary rights in Canada are not allowed to bring their wives and children into the country owing to a provision in the Immigration Law which requires that they shall reach Canada by an unbroken voyage from British India. As there is no direct steamship communication between the two countries, this provision cannot be complied with.

British Columbia is further embarrassing the Imperial Government by threatening more legislation to keep out not only British East Indians, but subjects of England's ally, Japan.

PARISIANS CHEER ALFONSO.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain, who are on a three weeks' European trip, arrived here to-day. They will spend a few days in Paris before leaving here for Vienna. They were loudly cheered by crowds in the streets as they drove to a hotel.

The King and Queen were met at the station by M. Pichon, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and other high officials.

This evening the King went to a theatre, while the Queen remained in her apartments. The King's love for the theatre is one of the causes of his great popularity in France. Between the acts he was repeatedly cheered, at which he smiled and seemed delighted.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN UNION SQUARE

Crowd Sees Husband Fell Wife with Axe and Then Commit Suicide.

REFUSED TO RETURN TO HIM

Both Had Sought Death — Marital Discord Grew Out of Grief Over Child's Death.

The workers who as they hurried home through Union Square just before 6 o'clock last night slowed their steps to watch the outcome of a stormy dispute between a man and woman sitting on one of the park benches had started on again at the sight of the woman departing in anger when they were halted abruptly by the action of the man. As the woman left him, he drew from the pocket of his overcoat a short-handled axe, and, springing after her, struck her twice upon the head. She dropped in a heap in the path, and two women who had witnessed the attack ran out into Broadway, screaming the news that a woman was being murdered in the square.

The hurrying crowds of the rush hour swarmed into the Park, led by Traffic Patrolman Clark. When he reached the point in the path he found the man lying with his throat cut by a long bladed knife still clutched in his hand. The axe lay beside him on the path. Both man and woman were unconscious as they were carried through the crowd to an ambulance. He died on his way to Bellevue Hospital, and the surgeons there said there was no hope for her recovery. One blow had fractured her skull.

From papers in his pocket and in her purse, the police of the East Twenty-second Street station surmised that the dead man was Joseph Gierack, a coppersmith of 493 East 156th Street and that the dying woman was his wife, Antoinette. This guess was verified later in the evening, and from the story told by her family in the Bronx it was clear that his savage attack had followed her flat refusal to return to him. It was clear, too, that the bitterness between them had grown out of the grief they felt when their 8-year-old daughter Josephine died of diphtheria last February.

The Gieracks had then been living together ever since they came from Poland just before the baby was born. Shortly after the child's death the mother was taken to Lebanon Hospital after an attempt to kill herself by inhaling gas. Some weeks ago Gierack and tried suicide. He was found one night, weak from loss of blood, lying in the hallway of the East 156th Street tenement. Both his wrists had been cut.

Meanwhile, there was gossip among the other tenants in the house to the effect that the Gieracks were at odds, and the tenement talk was substantiated on the day before election when Mrs. Gierack packed up her things and went to live with her sister, Mrs. Adam Czernisjswski, at 740 German Place, not far from her old home. Gierack was bitter at this and on the next day he went to the German Place house and tried to establish peace between himself and his wife.

He failed absolutely, and that night a neighbor found him lying unconscious in the tenement hallway with his throat cut. This did not kill him, and a few days ago he was discharged from Lebanon Hospital. Last night the ambulance surgeon found the Lebanon Hospital bandage still at his throat. But this, his third attempt to take his own life, had been successful.

When Mrs. Gierack left her husband she went out to find work, and soon was busy as an operative in a cloak and suit factory, just off Union Square. In some way her husband must have found out where she worked. Probably he had trailed her from the Bronx when she went down in the morning, and had hung about to waylay her when the day's work was over.

The first hint as to the identity of the man and woman was furnished by a clipping in her purse. It was a short newspaper story of his attempt at suicide on election day, and of his explanation then that he no longer cared to live since his wife had left him. This, with the discharge slip from Lebanon Hospital found in his pocket, satisfied the police, and the record was complete when her brother-in-law made the identifications.

LIMITS DIAMOND OUTPUT.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The German Government to-day placed a limit on the quantity of diamonds from German Africa put on the market, the large production of which had threatened to bring about a break in prices.

German producers had hitherto favored holding the Antwerp syndicate to its contract to take over the entire output from German Africa, but the Government evidently converted them to the policy adopted by the British diamond trust of withholding stones from the market in bad times and thus maintaining prices in the hope that conditions will improve.

The Saunterer

THERE is some fashion for every man, but all fashions are not for all men. The best-dressed man is he who knows his limitations, and discreetly keeps within them, tempering each style to his type and adapting, rather than adopting.

However, there are some boot styles, which might be termed "bread-and-butter" styles, because they fulfill an all-day, every-day need and are correct for all but occasions of ceremony.

The "Avenue" is one of these. It is made of King Russet Calf in a deep-brown Van Dyke tint—mellow, not yellow. Long, sloping toe; flat English forepart; square heel; pinked tip and perforated vamp; sole has a mite of an outswing, invisible eyelets to top. Price $5.

Quite the "smartest" walking and week-end boot for young men and for men in whom the mustering years cannot quench the youthful spirit. Judge for yourself at any Regal Shop.

Preliminary Estimate Is Less by $1,000,000 Than Figure Estate Was Thought to be Worth.

ADMINISTRATORS NAMED

Three Sets of Litigants Have Started Proceedings to Break the Will of General's Widow.

Surrogate Southard of Putnam County appointed yesterday John R. Yale of Brewster and William H. Berrigan of Cold Spring as temporary administrators of the estate of Mrs. Julia Lortillard Butterfield, widow of Gen. Daniel Butterfield, which is being contested by three sets of litigants. Eight wills are said to be in existence which were made before the one offered for probate on Aug. 14. This will disposed of an estate said to be worth nearly $2,000,000, most of which Mrs. Butterfield left to the Army and Navy Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

A preliminary estimate puts the value of the estate at $1,998,528, which is more than $1,000,000 less than an estimate made by others. The estate is chiefly in personalty, and $1,811,128 is the sum given under that classification. In the preliminary estimate all securities are valued at par.

The total par value of bonds of different railroad, gas, and municipal corporations is $363,000. Among the bonds are $30,000 Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway; $25,000 Central Railway of Georgia, $50,000 Union Pacific Railroad, $20,000 Fort Worth & Denver, $69,000, Guatemala Central Railroad, $25,000 United States Mortgage and Trust Company. The total par value of stocks is $362,100, including $50,000 United States Rubber Company first preferred, $40,000 Minnesota Railway Construction Company, $20,000 International Paper Company preferred, $87,100 Western Union Telegraph Company, and $91,400 P. Lorillard Tobacco Company preferred. The stocks include twenty-two shares of the Coney Island Jockey Club and two shares of the Rider and Driver Publishing Company.

The largest item of personalty is a block of bonds secured on first mortgages on real estate in Manhattan, estimated to be worth $871,000. Mrs. Butterfield's jewelry is estimated at $100,000. Household furniture, paintings, pictures, bric-a-brac, books, silver, and wearing apparel in New York and Crsgside, the Butterfield estate at Cold Spring, are valued at $74,750.

The amount of money on deposit in four banks is not estimated. The banks are the Cold Spring Bank, the Hamilton Trust Company, the Lincoln National Bank, and the Equitable Trust Company. Certified checks for interest on mortgages represent $16 372. Miscellaneous checks are for $4,580. Coupons due since Mrs. Butterfield's death call for $5,425. A one-twenty-fourth interest in the personal estate of F. J. James is valued at $5,000. Other items are: Automobiles and carriages, $5,000; mortgage on property in Sioux City, Iowa, $5,000.

The interest in the real property of the estate of Frederick P. James is estimated at $100,000. This includes a one-twenty-fourth interest in these properties: Nos. 39 West Twelfth Street, 41-43 West Twelfth Street, 44 West Twelfth Street, 47 West Twelfth Street, 48 West Twelfth Street, 106 West Thirtieth Street, 128 West Thirtieth Street, 130 West Thirtieth Street, and 132 West Thirtieth Street. A one-sixth interest in Cragside, Cold Spring, and a one-forty-eighth interest in the Deerfield property in New Hampshire are the other items in the James estate. Mrs. Butterfield also left real estate in Michigan, the value of which is unestimated. A Columbia College leasehold on 616 Fifth Avenue, expiring twenty-one years after July 1, 1908, is valued at $80,000. The other realty is two vacant lots in Sioux City, Iowa, $2 400, and property in Utica, N. Y., $5,000.

The litigants, who are trying to have the will set aside, are: Daniel Butterfield, 2d, son of Theodore Butterfield, who alleges undue influence; four grandnieces, who were cut off by one of the clauses of the will, and several cousins, who allege that they were not cited in the probate proceedings. The four grandnieces allege that the will was obtained by fraud and undue influence on the part of Albert F. Hagar, Mrs. Butterfield's lawyer, who received $100,000 and no other property under the will.

GRAB EIGHT MALE FLIRTS.

Ogling Men Fall Victims to Waldo's Second Raid.

Eight male Subway flirts were arrested last night in the second raid made within a week by Commissioner Waldo's special squad. The first raid upon these pests occurred several days ago, when Lieut. Costigan and a half dozen detectives visited the women's waiting room in the department store of Gimbel Brothers in Sixth Avenue and took eleven prisoners.

Following this raid letters began to reach Police Headquarters from indignant parents, who complained that girls of tender years were subjected to insult and annoyance at the hands of ogiers who infested the neighborhood of the Subway station at 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue.

Lieut. Sherb and Detectives Judge, McCann, Graham, and Waterhouse, known as Central Office Squad No. 3, last night were ordered to investigate conditions. They grabbed eight youths, who, they said, had accosted young girls. The arrest of the nine men caused a commotion in the crowd, and it was only with considerable difficulty that they finally were corralled and brought to the St. Nicholas Avenue Police Station.

They gave their names as Ejnar Szendhen, 17 years old, of 1,253 Ogden Avenue; John J. Frawley, 19 years old, of 1,678 Nelson Avenue; Andrew Tierney, 20 years old, of 109 East 176th Street; Jacob Stafford, 22, of 2,263 Walton Avenue; George Benjamin, 26, of 1,303 Sedgwick Avenue; Harry Jacobs, 20, of 977 Summit Avenue; Andrew Wood, 20, of 101 Summit Avenue, and Robert MacWhinney, 20, of 1,372 Ogden Avenue.

GLASS NAMED AS SENATOR.

Alabama Governor Appoints Editor in Johnston's Place.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 17.—Frank P. Glass, editor of The Birmingham News and President of The Montgomery Advertiser, was to-day appointed United States Senator by Gov. O'Neal to succeed the late Senator Joseph F. Johnston. The term expires March 3, 1915.

Mr. Glass is a native of Alabama, and an alumnus of Princeton. He founded The Blade, in Bibb County, in 1880, a year later bought The Selma Daily Times, and in 1886 acquired a half interest in The Montgomery Advertiser. He became editor of The Birmingham News two years ago. Mr. Glass is 55 years old.

MRS. BELMONT HEADS SHOP UNION FIGHT

With Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Boissevain, and Others, She Descends on Department Store.

POLICE CURB ON CRUSADE

Stop Circulation of Printed Demand for Shorter Hours—Mrs. Belmont Did Not Speak.

Led by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, a dozen suffragists and members of women's labor unions who are trying to organize the employes of the department stores into a union concentrated their efforts last night on the clerks and employes of Gimbel Brothers department store in Sixth Avenue. At 5:30 o'clock in the evening Mrs. Belmont, Mrs. Pankhurst, and Mrs. Boissevain arrived at the side entrance to the store in Mrs. Belmont's automobile. They made a tour of the store before the employes stopped work.

Two other automobiles brought the union organizers to the side entrance to the building. The women stayed in these autos until the employes began to depart at 6 o'clock. Then they started to make speeches urging the girls and men to join the Retail Clerks' Union. Mrs. Pankhurst departed after the trip through the store, and Mrs. Belmont did not take part in the speaking. She stayed within the inclosed part of her auto while speakers took turns in addressing the crowd from the front seat.

The speakers had arranged to address the workers as they came through the doors reserved for employes and the autos had been drawn up close to these doors. Not many employes came out that way, though. The police ordered the chauffeurs of the automobiles to move away from the vicinity of the store, and they stopped further to the west, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. The police did not interfere further except to keep one side of the street clear for traffic.

When Mrs. Belmont learned that the employes were being sent out by the main entrances, half a block away, she directed some of her followers to go to Sixth Avenue and direct the attention of the shop workers to the meeting arranged for them in the side streets. Some 300 employes, men and women, gathered finally around the automobiles and listened to the speeches.

Mrs. Herbert Waroasse, one of the suffragist leaders, was warned by the police to stop distributing a printed letter issued by the Retail Clerks' Union, of 140 East Nineteenth Street, in which the store employes were urged to organize, and demand fifty-four hours as a working week with double pay for Sundays and evenings, a vacation of one week with full pay, and equal pay for men and women for equal work.

Miss Helen Schloss, one of the leaders in the shirt waist strike, the first speaker from Mrs. Belmont's auto, said:

"You girls deserve more wages. You are required to dress well, to look attractive, and must smile even though your face may be cracked with weariness."

Miss Dorothy Miller, an organizer of the dry goods clerks, told the employes that the stores would not dare to discharge them for joining the organization, because the public was in sympathy with the employes. Mrs. Boissevain, another speaker from Mrs. Belmont's auto, asserted that all the comforts provided by the store managers, including rest rooms, roof gardens, and other things for the benefit of the employes did not compensate for the lack of pay.

"To get better pay you must help yourselves," she said. "Any one who will not do that, deserves to be underpaid. You have nothing to fear. Lose your position, if necessary; the public is with you."

SHOOT YOUNG LEADER AS HE ENTERS CLUB

Two Men Whom He Does Not Know Wound Delane Mortally and Then Escape.

FRIEND'S CHASE IN VAIN

Companion of Italian Politician Pursues His Assailants Until They Enter a Tenement in the Bronx.

John J. Delane, a leader among the younger Italians in the Bronx, was just entering the hallway of the clubrooms of the John J. Delane Association, at 655 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, when two young men stepped up behind him on the sidewalk outside and from a distance of only three feet discharged revolvers at him. Two bullets entered his lungs and he dropped to the floor as his companion, John Duza, jumped by him to the street.

Duza was just in time to see the two gunmen retreating east in 153d Street, and he ran after them, but half way up the block they disappeared into the dark hall of an Italian tenement, and Duza was afraid to follow them. He returned to Morris Avenue and there met Patrolman Curtin and two detectives of the Morrisania Police Station who had run up the avenue at the sound of the shots.

They carried the wounded Delane to the corner drug store, where he retained consciousness long enough to tell Detective Schueing that he had no idea why the men had tried to shot him, and that he did not know who they were. Duza had seen them both, and he asserted that both were strangers in that part of town. Duza, who lives at 248 East 150th Street, was born and brought up in the district, and the police were sure no would recognize any of the young Italians of the Bronx's Little Italy.

The men who shot Delane, he said, seemed to be not more than 23 years old, and they wore ragged caps pulled down over their foreheads. For men of this description the police hunted through all the tenements in the block, but they knew their task was idle. The two gunmen had succeeded in getting away.

An ambulance carried Delane to Fordham Hospital, where, soon before midnight, he lapsed into unconsciousness and the surgeons said his recovery was improbable.

Delane, who is 28 years old, as a very young man built up a real estate business, and the Delane home is an attractive house at 696 Cauldwell Avenue, the Bronx. His father and mother brought him here from Italy when he was a baby, and he grew to manhood in the Bronx.

His leadership among the naturalized Italians and among the American born of Italian parents was recognized long ago. As the standard bearer of the social club that bears his name, at election time he could be counted upon to swing a large vote to the candidate of his choice. His club stands in the Thirty-third Assembly District, and in the last election he supported Tammany.

ASSAILS UNITED CIGARS.

Representative Reilly Asks for Congressional Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The initiative in the direction of endeavoring to bring about a Congressional investigation of the United Cigar Stores Company was taken in the House of Representatives to-day by Representative Thomas L. Reilly of Connecticut, who introduced a resolution calling for such an investigation by the House Judiciary Committee. This is the committee which will have charge of the Administration measure, or measures, dealing with the trust situation during the coming regular session of Congress. Judge Henry D. Clayton of Alabama is its Chairman.

"There are many independent tobacco dealers in my district," said Mr. Reilly to-night. "I have been appealed to by them so strongly that I consider it my duty to do everything I can to have such an investigation and learn the facts. The final decree of the Circuit Court in the American Tobacco Company case did not take cognizance of the United Cigar Stores Company, and many are of the opinion that it is still connected with the American Tobacco Company or with men dominant in that concern.

"It appears to be the opinion of many of the independent cigar dealers that the United Cigar Stores Company is a combination in restraint of trade. The purpose of the investigation for which I asked to-day is to bring out the facts as to its status, control, ownership, and operations throughout the country."

Mr. Reilly thinks the action of the court, in its dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, in leaving the United Cigar Stores Company practically as it was before, was contrary to the original views of Attorney General Wickersham, who, in his argument before Judge Lacombe, cited the United Cigar Stores Company as being one of the worst features of the old tobacco trust combination.

S. M. Stroock, counsel for the United Cigar Stores Company, said last night: "The American Tobacco Company formerly owned two-thirds of the stock of the United Cigar Stores Company. This it was required by the dissolution decree to distribute to its own common stockholders, which it did on Dec. 1, 1911. Within six months thereafter George J. Whelan and his associates, who were the owners of the United Cigar Stores Company before it was affiliated with the American Tobacco Company, had acquired a very large majority of the stock formerly held by the American Tobacco Company, including every share held by any of the twenty-five individual defendants in the dissolution suit against the American Tobacco Company.

"These facts are well known and were officially announced by the United Cigar Stores Company a year and a half ago."

MORGAN SAVED NEW HAVEN.

Got Loan for Railroad from France in 1907 Panic, Says Robbins.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—That the late J. Pierpont Morgan saved the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad from disaster during the panic of 1907 by securing from France on short notice a loan of millions was told to-day for the first time by E. D. Robbins, General Counsel for the railroad and one of its Directors, at the hearing before Judge Sheldon in the Supreme Court on the appeal of ex-Gov. Morgan G. Bulkeley of Connecticut and other stockholders from a decree of the Public Service Commission authorizing the issue of $67,552,000 in convertible bonds. Had that loan been delayed a week, said Mr. Robbins, the consequences would have been disastrous. It was in view of such situations, he said, that New York and Massachusetts had clothed their Public Service Boards with highly discretionary powers to meet an emergency.

Nathan Matthews, who appeared for the appellants, said that the policy of the Commonwealth was at stake in the matter of issuing stock and bonds, and that the unlawful exercise of authority by the commission would tend to do away with the limitations that have existed since 1893 to prevent stock inflation and to regulate indebtedness. Charles F. Choate, counsel for the railroad company, and Attorney General Swift, for the Public Service Commission, both argued that the action of the commission was legal under the legislative acts of 1913.

If the papers can be printed in time the case will be heard by the full court this week.

An increase in transportation charges which would give the Boston & Maine an additional annual income of $5,000,000, the sum which officials of the railroad declare is needed, is "absolutely impracticable," according to Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty. In a statement published here to-day Mr. Prouty is quoted as saying:

"The rate schedules of the Boston & Maine at present are filled up with all sorts of inconsistencies. What ought to be done, and what they propose to do, is to apply a uniform mileage scale. It will work advances in some sections, and reductions in others. The road asks to increase its class rate revenue by $800,000 to $900,000, but it should not be allowed an advance of much if anything over 30 per cent. in such rates. The commission will permit the Boston & Maine to put into effect soon whatever class rate increases are approved."

TESTIFY FOR DIAZ.

Attacked from Behind, Say Witnesses—General Absent from Trial.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Nov. 17.—Four new witnesses, who say they saw Gen. Felix Diaz attacked, testified and were examined by the Judge to-day. Their evidence favored Diaz, saying that the attack was from behind. One witness said he saw perfectly when [illegible] man fired at Diaz and shot Pedro Guerrero instead.

Diaz was supposed to report to the Judge to-day as the indictment requires. Instead he sent a medical certificate of his inability to attend owing to his wounds.

The private prosecutor again insisted to the Judge that the indictment charged "attempted assassination" and that Diaz be held without bail, or, if bail be admitted, that it should be $10,000.

KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Retired Diamond Setter Despondent, Fearing Blindness.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, Nov. 17.—George D. Newman, a retired diamond setter formerly employed by Tiffany, shot his wife four times this morning as she was preparing his breakfast and then blew out his own brains. He died instantly. His wife died three hours later in the New Rochelle Hospital.

The Newman home was at 220 North Avenue. For more than a year Mr. Newman's eyesight had been failing, and he brooded over it. He said he feared he would go blind and be a burden to his wife.

His son William, a teller in a bank here, was dressing in his room when he heard the shots. He rushed into the kitchen just in time to see his father turn the revolver on himself.

The marriage of William Newman and Miss Esther Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius J. Leary of New Rochelle, which took place in New York City on July 4 last, was announced last night. Mrs. H. L. Warner of Houston, Texas, who is the only other child of the deal couple, was injured in the tunnel wreck about eleven years ago when a Harlem Division train crashed into the New York, New Haven & Hartford train in the Fourth Avenue tunnel in New York, and she received a large sum from the railroads.

GEORGE TIGAR SENTENCED.

New York Autoist Gets Two Months in Boston, but Appeals.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov 17.—George Tigar of New York, who was arrested a few days ago by Policeman John H. Boyle on a warrant charging the operation of an automobile on Nov. 23, 1912, in a manner such as to endanger public safety, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment by Judge Parmenter in the Municipal Court to-day.

According to the policeman's testimony, Tigar, wmose machine ran down Patrick Gallagher at Cambridge and Charles Streets, gave Boyle a fictitious name and address at the time of the accident. Tigar was also fined $10 on a charge of having no license. He appealed both cases.

have been given the opportunity to repurchase their holdings, and most have elected to do so, buying on the installment plan. Being Asiatics and inclined to put things off, they need constant but kindly encouragement and stimulation, or they are liable to fall badly behind in their payments and get into serious trouble. The management of the Friar lands alone is a very large business enterprise, demanding not only technical knowledge and wide experience, but also first-class ability, and on it depends the power of the Insular Government to meet the bonds issued for the purchase of the lands in the first instance upon their maturity without levying a special tax.

"Furthermore, the provinces and municipalities in which these lands are located have repeatedly sought to get control of them for their own special benefit, and the Philippine Assembly has twice passed acts to turn over to them the administration of these lands. The Commission killed these acts and thus saved the taxing of the whole country for the benefit of a few provinces and municipalities.

"As in the case of the public lands, wealthy Filipinos have repeatedly tried to prevent poor people from purchasing holdings in the Friar lands, which they themselves wrongfully claim, and thus keep as tenants would-be landowners.

"In commenting upon his own appointment, Tinio said that he knew nothing about the work. While I like him personally, I must say that he is utterly incompetent to perform the work. John R. Wilson, Assistant Director of Lands, has also resigned, and it is improbable that any competent person can be found for the salary of this position to tell Tinio what to do.

"Cause for Grave Alarm."

"There is cause for grave alarm that the placing of the balance of power of the Commission in the hands of Filipinos will work irreparable damage to the stupendous work the Land Bureau has accomplished in the past.

"Col. McCoy, the Collector of Customs, was a highly competent, energetic, and capable official of unquestioned integrity and thoroughly familiar with the details of the work of his important office. His removal was strictly political.

"Close on the heels of these events came another especially extraordinary occurrence. The Insular Government has taken special pride in the work of its Bureau of Printing, because of the excellence of the product and the extraordinarily low cost. Its Director, John Leech, from the outset had given special attention to the training of Filipinos, making of his bureau a great industrial school and fitting many young men for remunerative employment. He had incurred the ill-will of some Americans by pushing Filipino employes up until they were performing approximately 95 per cent. of the work of the bureau.

"Immediately after Mr. Harrison's arrival there were rumors of sweeping salary reductions. Some American employes, entitled under their contracts to promotion in the near future, became alarmed, and, after consulting Mr. Leech, sent a respectful telegram to the President protesting against any such reduction. Without consulting Mr. Leech, they also sent a telegram to the presiding officer of the International Typographical Union in the United States, protesting against the reduction and requesting him to secure a hearing.

Demanded Leech's Resignation.

"Both messages, in my opinion, were perfectly proper. Copies were promptly sent to the Governor General, who seemed to be incensed because they had been sent. He closely examined Leech as to his knowledge of the matter, and asked him the names of the employes who had conferred with him. He demanded the Director's immediate resignation when he refused to give them. The resignation of the Assistant Director of the bureau was demanded at the same time.

"Another matter is the Department of Public Health. A skillful surgeon has been asked whether he would accept the Directorship of Public Health. He is thoroughly competent to operate upon individuals, but without experience to fit him to safeguard the public health in a country of 8,000,000 people. Realizing this, he has declined to consider the proposition, but the fact of the offer conclusively demonstrated the gross incompetence and complete failure to grasp the situation on the part of whomsoever authorized it.

"No living sanitarian has a better record for ability and efficiency in coping with great sanitary problems than Victor C. Heiser of the United States Public Health Service, who has been Director of Public Health in the Philippines for nine years. He has practically eliminated smallpox, bubonic plague and cholera and has excluded beri-beri from public institutions; has built the best general hospital in the tropics, and has isolated the lepers while arousing only a minimum of opposition by so doing. He has reduced the death rate of American officers and employes to less than five in 1,000, and among Filipino officers and employes to four in 1,000; he has made Manila more healthful than many of the larger cities of America and has materially reduced the death rate throughout the islands. His place simply cannot be filled for years. Should Dr. Heiser be transferred to make way for a politician, he doubtless would heave a sigh of relief, but it would be a sad day for the Philippines.

Harrison as a Partisan.

"Prior to my departure I was informed that the Governor General had cabled to Washington for advice as to how far he could go with removals without violating the letter of the Philippine Civil Service act. It is a fair conclusion from his first week's work that he intends to go the limit.

"While en route to the islands he gave out an interview in which he stated in effect that for years he had seen Democrats badly treated as such, and that he took sardonic pleasure in now being able to accord similar treatment to Republicans. Hitherto the Philippine service has been kept remarkably free of this sort of thing, and its appearance at this time must cause grave concern to all advocates of capable and honest administration.

"I deem it right and proper that the Governor General should have in the highest administrative officers under him men in full sympathy with his political plans, but the removal of expert and highly competent bureau chiefs, who should occupy themselves not with politics but with the efficient and economic performance of the Government, will, if persisted in, result in quick and dire disaster.

"By far the most important and dangerous thing which has been done is the appointment of the majority of Filipinos to the Philippine Commission. The present Legislature consists of two houses, an elective Assembly of eighty-one Filipino members, representing thirty-four provinces, and the Philippine Commission, an appointive body of nine members. Five of these latter have heretofore been Americans. The two houses have equal power; either may initiate a bill, but affirmative action by both is required to pass any bill. It is greatly to be regretted that before changing the present make-up of the commission careful study was not made of the acts passed by the Assembly but refused passage by the commission, of which many were dangerous, while some would very gravely have endangered the stability and effectiveness of the Government.

Filipinos to Control Moros.

"There is another reason why this change should not have taken place. When the existing Legislature was established its jurisdiction was limited by Congress to the regularly organized provinces inhabited chiefly by one or another of the Christianized peoples known collectively as the Filipinos, while exclusive legislative jurisdiction over the territory inhabited by the Moros and other non-Christian tribes remained vested in the Commission. It was unquestionably the purpose of Congress thus to continue American control and legislation for the non-Christians, of whom there are slightly more than 1,000,000.

"Without violating the letter of the law the spirit has been trampled upon. Every true friend of civilization familiar with the facts must view with gravest concern the placing of legislative control over the wild tribes in the hands of their bitter enemies, who have viewed with disgust the efforts heretofore made to improve the condition of these backward people. The Filipinos have never ceased to warn them that American occupancy was only temporary, and to threaten them with dire punishment for the present 'insubordination' when they, the Filipinos, gained the whip hand.

"Governor General Harrison assured me in the strongest terms that the results of the work for the wild tribes would be kept intact, that the former policy of kindliness and justice in dealing with them would be continued, and that the highly competent and experienced men through whose personal influence hordes of savages and barbarians have been turned from head-hunting into paths of peace and progress would be retained in their positions and supported in their work as heretofore. His intentions may be the best, but how can he make his promise good? The Legislature has only to decrease the salaries of these men below the living point in order to paralyze the work, and he is utterly powerless to prevent this or any other vicious measure adopted to gain the same end.

Valuable as a Demonstration.

"The present situation has one satisfactory aspect: It will result in speedily demonstrating to the American people certain important facts relative to the present fitness of the Filipinos to maintain an independent government, one for which the United States could afford to be responsible. Unfortunately, while the demonstration will be highly instructive, it is the poor 'tao' in the fields who will pay the freight. If the consequences could be made to fall on the Filipino politician only, one might welcome the demonstration.

"The proposal to merge the Bureau of Forestry with the Bureau of Lands cannot be successfully carried out without permission of Congress. By the act of Congress of July 1, 1902, certain duties were prescribed for the Director of Forestry. The Philippine forests constitute a national resource of enormous potential wealth. In the past they have been ruthlessly sacrificed. Under the present policy of conservation an immense lumbering industry can be built up, while at the same time the forests can be increased and protected. The Filipino has always been ready to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. He has ever favored this policy, established in his own interest.

"The Assembly has long sought to minimize the importance of this bureau and to cripple its work. The average Filipino likes to fell valuable timber and burn it where it lies in order to save himself the trouble of fighting weeds, making new clearings at frequent intervals, and ruthlessly destroying millions of dollars' worth of timber. This he cannot lawfully do at present. The Assembly and the commission, with its Filipino majority, however, may be counted on to do their utmost to change conditions for their benefit."

Mr. Worcester's Plans.

Mr. Worcester has had large influence in civilizing savage tribes in the Philippines. His latest work was to try to induce the Philippine Administration to take up his charges of actual slavery in the islands, but no action was taken until after he had sailed. When he reached Yokohama he learned that an investigation had been ordered.

Mr. Worcester seems profoundly in earnest in his desire to tell the American people the truth about conditions in the Philippines. He brings with him 1,500 stereopticon slides and 20,000 feet of film of moving pictures of the various tribes, and he purposes to deliver lectures throughout the country. He will remain here about a week, or until he has finished the preparation of his second volume on "The Philippines, Past and Present." Then he will go East and begin his lectures.

MEN'S WINTER OVERCOATS

With Distinction as Their Keynote

Keeping out the cold is merely one of several duties of an Overcoat, although an important one.

Equally essential is its obligation to give to the man who wears it the air of being well-dressed.

Taking the first requirement for granted, it is in the second that GIMBEL Overcoats for Men excel.

Even the most modestly-priced Overcoat in the fine collection — at $17.50 — gives an excellent account of itself in looks and service.

And at the top of the heap are the magnificent and genuine Sedan Montagnac Overcoats—the Beau Brummels of their tribe—at $95 and $100.

But the great middle ground of Overcoats at $30, $32, $35, $37.50 and $40 is where we shall interest most men who wish dignified materials, distinguished styles and perfect tailoring. (Certain new double-breasted styles about knee length, some with braided edges, are attracting great attention.)

The Young Men's Overcoats At $22 to $35

for youths of 16 to 20 years, have the same merit, but with an intentionally youthful cut to their jib. Here, again, the Double-breasted Overcoats are great favorites. Fourth Floor

Smart Stetson Derby, "The Beverly," $3.50

Feather-weight, tapering crown in two heights—jaunty pitched brim and a new three-quarter bow—altogether a particularly smart Hat for young men. Also, among the other John B. Stetson Derbies and Soft Hats—(there are over a hundred styles at GIMBELS—)

SOFT HATS with Welted Brims, flat pencil curl and semi-telescopes which can be worn in three styles. The following shades: green, blue, Oxford gray, tan and black. $3.50. Fourth Floor goes this woman, and a wonderful woman's journey it is from sentimentalism to passion. It is told in a new book called "The Main Road," by Maude Radford Warren. You will like these pages of life—of a girl's catching up with her dream of love.

PEANUT

¶ To the desperado's grave a little boy tramped—on ten cents a day for fifteen hundred miles. Albert Bigelow Paine tells you about him in a new book called "Peanut." Because some one made fun of Blazer Sam, who had befriended him, Peanut's loyal little heart made him run away to seek the grave. And the Rose of Texas, waiting for him in the mountains, gave up her toddies and her gaudy finery to be like the ladies Peanut knew in the city. Peanut creeps into your heart like David Copperfield.

THE GOLDEN RULE DOLLIVERS

¶ Your first automobile, like the Dollivers', brought trouble, probably, but there's a new book called "The Golden Rule Dollivers" which tells of the fun and exciting adventures of trying to give other people a lift. Margaret Cameron wrote "The Golden Rule Dollivers," and in it the fun bubbles up and spins along past all counting by any speedometer.

MARK TIDD

¶ There's a fat boy who is the courageous and resourceful leader of four live country boys in a new book called "Mark Tidd." It's a story your boy will warm up to—and, there's no telling, you might like "Mark Tidd" yourself. Clarence B. Kelland wrote it.

RECORD DAY RAISES FUND TO $2,556,426

Subscriptions of $172,291 Received Yesterday by Workers for Christian Associations.

WOMEN WERE IN THE LEAD

President Wilson Telegraphs Good Wishes to Miss Dodge—Markham Reads a Poem.

Breaking the record for any one day of the campaign, the workers of the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations, who are trying to raise $4,000,000 by Nov. 24 for a building fund, announced new contributions amounting to $172,291 at the luncheon held at noon yesterday at the headquarters, 25 Broad Street. This makes the grand total to date $2,556,426.

Much enthusiasm was manifested at yesterday's meeting of the workers, which was in honor of Miss Grace H. Dodge, President of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., and in memory of Mrs. Janet McCook Whitman. President Woodrow Wilson sent a message of congratulation to Miss Dodge, and, it being Woman's Day at the headquarters, Edwin Markham, author of "The Man with the Hoe," read a poem written for the occasion.

Among those present at the luncheon were President and Mrs. Burton of Smith College, Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. Charles R. Crane, Miss Ilbert, daughter of Sir Courteney Ilbert, Clerk of the English House of Commons; Mrs. George Lorillard Rollins, Mrs. George P. Duncan, Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris, Mrs. Whitman Hoff, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Markham, and Miss Florence Sullivan. George W. Perkins, Chairman of the Executive Committee, presided.

It was considered appropriate that the Women's Committee should make the best record for the day, with contributions amounting to $57,848. The Executive Committee came second, with contributions of $32,050, and the Clark Committee was a strong third, with $40,224. Of the individual teams, that of Mrs. Francis Louis Slade made the best showing, with contributions of $27,190, while John Sloane's team made the best record for the men, with $10,260. It was announced that the $50,000 given anonymously last Friday came from Mr. and Mrs. George W. Perkins, and was made in honor of Miss Dodge.

There wtre a number of surprises in the list of contributions of $1,000 or more, which was announced as follows:

New York Telephone Company	$25,000
Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McCormick, Jr.	25,000
Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Sr.	25,000
James Stokes	15,000
Mr. and Mrs. Morris K. Jesup	10,000
William D. Sloane	10,000
L. Gordon Hamersley	5,000
Mrs. Benjamin Brewster	3,000
The Gorham Company	2,500
Mrs. W. L. Harkness	2,000
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Walker	2,000
John E. Parsons	1,000

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Lee	1,000
Pauline Morgan	1,000
Mrs. Edward Sparrow	1,000
Mrs. Mary Scoville	1,000
James Deering	1,000
George A. Helm	1,000
Mrs. C. A. Bliss	1,000
Louis C. Tiffany	1,000
Malcolm D. Whitney	1,000
Alfred M. Post	1,000
Mrs. Horatio L. Bigelow	1,000
George W. Collard	1,000

The Chairman of the Bronx Committee said that $25 of the sum he reported had been given by a Catholic priest. Selfridge of London sent a check for $500, as did George W. Baker, Jr. The gift of Mr. and Mrs. Jesup was the second they have made.

The official list of contributions by committees and teams was:

Miss Dodge received this message from the White House:

May I not express my deep interest in your campaign and convey my sincerest congratulations on your very promising success so far? WOODROW WILSON.

President Burton of Smith College made a short address after the luncheon. He said that he was amazed at the prestraint exhibited by the two organizations in not striving for $5,000,000. "From the wonderful way the money is pouring in," said President Burton, "I am sure you could have got a fifth million as easily as you will four."

Mr. Markham's poem was received with enthusiasm. It was entitled "The Friendly Door," and was dedicated to the courageous New York women who are struggling to raise $3,000,000 with which to construct Y. W. C. A. buildings as homes for working girls. This is the poem:

What is the word on the wind to-day?
What is the rumor of dare and do?
Women, you come with a dream, they say,
Banded to see that the dream comes true.

Then gather as one to your rallying camp;
Here is your chance to give God praise;
Here is the hour to lift a lamp
To light the march of the coming days.

Women, you work for the girls that strive,
Girls on the battle line early and late;
You are helping them keep their souls alive
As they take their chance in the fight with Fate.

You are working for unborn sister-bands,
For a great host coming the human road;
You are reaching hands to their unseen hands
To level the way and lighten the load.

And this be your praise as the years go by,
(And enough it will be for a soul's renown!)
You opened a door when there came a cry,
You builded a wall where the wall was down.

And th[illegible] the end of the ways that wind
One jo[illegible] will stay through a world's defeat—
To know as you go that you left behind
A friendly door on a friendless street.

It was announced yesterday that Messrs. Jesse I., Percy S., and Herbert N. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co. had given permission to the Young Women's Christian Association to use one of their large show windows for an exhibition picturing the many activities of the organization. Miss Martie Leonard, the pageantry expert of the Y. W. C. A., who owns and manages a theatre in Mount Kisco, held a long conference yesterday with W. F. Allert, chief of the window display department of R. H. Macy & Co., who will help in arranging the exhibition. They were joined by Miss Mabelle M. Ford, leader of the new recreation centre of the Y. W. C. A. at 21 West Forty-fourth Street, who came here from Celeveland recently to teach New York girls how to play.

After the conference it was announced that the display would open at 8 o'clock to-day in the big window south of the main entrance to the store, on the Broadway side, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets. Taking part will be nine girls, each one representing a branch of the local Y. W. C. A. In selecting the types and costumes, Miss Leonard was assisted by Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan and Mrs. James Stewart Cushman. Pupils in the dressmaking and art needlework classes of the Central, Harlem, West Side, and other branches worked all day yesterday getting the costumes ready for a dress rehearsal which was held last night.

One of the girls will wear a cap and gown, representing the Intercollegiate Alumnae; another will be dressed as a Hungarian peasant; another will represent Camp Bluefields at Blauvelt, N. Y., where 1,000 girls spent vacations last Summer, at a cost of $7.95 each for two weeks. The Blauvelt girl will wear an outing costume and carry a canoe paddle in one hand and a football under her arm. Still another girl will wear the indoor costume of the recreation centres—a middy blouse and bloomers. A hospital nurse will exemplify the work of the Y. W. C. A. in caring for the sick, and the other girls will depict other phases of the work. Above them will be this sign in large letters:

Y. W. C. A.—Y. M. C. A. $4,000,000 BY NOV. 24

FOR THESE.

Every girl will carry a pennant with the name of the branch she represents, or will have explanatory letters on some part of her costume.

George W. Perkins issued this statement last night:

"Owing to the immense amount of detail in connection with the campaign, it is impossible for the newspapers, kind though they have been to our movement, to record even a small proportion of the many small contributions made to the fund every day. Lest an erroneous impression be formed by the public, I should like to say that not only are small contributions welcome, but that they are desired most eagerly. It is the object of the Joint Committee to not only to obtain the $4,000,000 building fund for the two associations, but also to interest as many persons as possible in their prosperity, to the end that we shall obtain for them the double friendliness of financial support and lively concern in their welfare.

"Three thousand contributions have been received to date, of which 2,531 are classified as small, though only to distinguish them from the big gifts that have done so much to swell the total so rapidly. It is believed by members of the Joint Committee that, although the large contributions will continue, the total of smaller gifts will increase steadily in a way which will prove to all New York that the work of the two associations strikes deeply into the hearts of the people."

ACTON DAVIES LOSES SUIT.

He Sued Because Short Story of His Was Made Plot of a Play.

Acton Davies, the dramatic critic, lost the copyright suit yesterday that he brought some time ago in the Federal District Court against Edward J. Bowes, the producer of the drama known as "Kindling," the name of the author of which was given as "Kenyon."

In June, 1908, Mr. Davies published in an afternoon newspaper, under the headline "News of the Theatres," a short story. It was supposed to describe a pathetic scene in a court room in a little Massachusetts town, in which Mr. Davies was present through the chance of having missed his train. This Kenyon picked up and made the plot of his play, "Kindling." Mr. Davies then sued the producer for breach of copyright.

Judge Hough, in deciding against the plaintiff yesterday, laid it down that it was impossible to copyright the news. He quoted the case of Wright versus Tallis, in which it had been held that the fact that the author, in order to arouse interest in a copyrighted work, said that it was a translation from a well-known foreign autnor, vitiated the copyright. In the same way the Court held the fact that the incident had been published as a true happening made it impossible to copyright.

"The pretense here," said the Court, "was for the purpose of attracting attention and lending interest to an alleged occurrence, which if told as fiction would have been tawdry and unconvincing. The man who used the episode swears that he thought it at least as true as most journalistic news items—and I may add that I remained under the same impression until the argument of counsel enlightened me."

TO RECALL COLONIAL WARS.

Other Organizations to be Represented at Patriotic Society's Dinner.

Speakers at the twenty-first annual dinner of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of New York, to be held to-night at Delmonico's, will include Martin W. Littleton, the Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, and Frederic R. Coudert. Col. William Whitehead Ladd, the Governor of the society, will preside. Howland Pell, the Governor General, will speak for the national society.

Among societies which will be represented at the dinner will be the Society of the Cincinnati, the St. Andrew's Society, the St. George's Society, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the New York Historical Society, the Society of the War of 1812 and the Veteran Corps of Artillery, the St. Nicholas Society, the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, the New York Commandery of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, and the New York Chapter of the Society of the Colonial Order. A business session of the General Society of Colonial Wars will be held this morning at the residence of Howland Pell, at which most of the twenty-seven State societies will be represented.

FOUND DEAD AFTER FIGHT.

Man's Skull Fractured by a Blow or by a Fall.

A milkman, stopping on his round at sunrise yesterday morning to make a delivery at 446 West Forty-seventh Street, came upon the body of a man lying at the entrance of the tenement. He had died of a broken skull, that might have been due to a blow or to a fall down the stairs leading into the building.

The body was identified later as that of Louis Lambert of 439 West Forty-second Street, whose business it was to go to 442 West Forty-seventh Street every morning at 3:30 o'clock to waken Herman Grieme, son of the proprietor of a Tenth Avenue saloon. He was bound on this mission, apparently, when he met his death.

The janitress of the tenement recalled having been wakened just before 4 o'clock by the sound of a fracas on the sidewalk that indicated the presence of several men in some violent altercation, but, as the noise subsided suddenly, she dozed off again.

PUT STRIKERS IN TOMBS.

Nine Mail Chauffeurs, Failing to Get Bail, Are Locked Up.

Of the eighteen mail chauffeurs who have been indicted for obstructing and retarding the mails in connection with the recent strike against the Postal Transfer Service Incorporated, nine were arraigned yesterday before Judge Hand in the United States District Court. They were David Hockberg, Patrick Johnson, Timothy Kennedy, William J. Simpson, Louis Terry, William D. Euellis, William P. Glock, Frank Gillece, and George T. McGrath.

They pleaded not guilty and Assistant District Attorney Roger Wood asked that the $5,000 bail set by Commissioner Shields in their cases be continued. After argument by their counsel, Mann Trice, Judge Hand reduced the bail to $1,500 each. In default of bail the men were returned to the Tombs.

The Federal authorities are looking for the other nine strikers who were indicted.

Cashier Loots Bank, Gets Long Term

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 17.—Ralph E. Jossman, defaulting cashier of the E. Jossman State Bank, of Clarkstown, near here, was to-day sentenced to serve from seven to twenty years in the State prison at Jackson. He admitted having taken for his own use more than $100,000 of the bank's funds. The affairs of the bank are now in the hands of a receiver.

$30,000,000 MUSEUM A PEACE MEMORIAL

American Committee for 100th Anniversary Celebration Has Funds to Begin It.

A GROUP OF 20 BUILDINGS

It is Proposed to Preserve the Records of Industrial and Scientific Advance for Posterity.

At a meeting and luncheon of the sub-Executive Committee of the American Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English-Speaking Peoples, held yesterday at the Lawyers Club, 115 Broadway, Dr. George Frederick Kunz, President of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, made an announcement of the fact that steps had been taken for the founding of a group of museums in this city consisting of twenty buildings, which will be known as "The Museums of the Peaceful Arts." The group when completed will constitute the greatest institution of its kind in the world.

According to John A. Stewart, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the organization, funds for the foundations of the proposed museums have already been pledged in large part by citizens of this country, but the names of the individual donors and the amount given will not be made public until after the articles of incorporation have been filed in Albany, which will be within a few days. The list of incorporators includes these names:

Dr. M. T. Bogart, Charles A. Coffin, Thomas A. Edison, Elbert H. Gary, H. A. Hardenberg, A. B. Hepburn, Dr. A. C. Humphreys, R. U. Johnson, George F. Kunz, Col. E. D. Meier, Rear Admiral Robert M. Peary, Calvin W. Rice, Dr. L. L. Seaman, Jacob H. Schiff, Charles M. Schwab, Melville G. Stone, Charles H. Strong, John A. Stewart, Nikola Tesla, Henry R. Towne, F. A. Vanderlip.

It is proposed that the museums shall be divided into the following branches:

Electricity, Steam, Astronomy and Navigation, Safety Appliances, Aviation, Mechanical Arts, Agriculture, Mining, Labor, Efficiency, Historic Records, Health and Hygiene, Textiles, Ceramics and Clays, Architecture, Scenic Embellishment, Gardening, Roads and Road Building Materials, Commerce and Trade, Printing and Books.

According to the present plan there will also be established a central library building containing books and periodicals giving full information concerning the subjects covered by the museums.

Record of Modern Inventors.

"The purpose in founding the museums," Mr. Stewart said yesterday, "is to preserve the records of our industrial, mechanical and scientific progress for posterity. For example, there are still existing valuable models of the first aeroplanes invented in this country and later models, which portray clearly the advances made in the conquest of the air. These models, if not properly collected and preserved, must eventually be destroyed or disappear. They will be of incalculable interest to posterity, and will help to keep alive the names and memories of the great men of our day. Similarly the plans of our architects and engineers, together with those of their predecessors, which are still extant, should be properly preserved and tabulated."

On this point the report of Dr. Kunz says:

In regard to time, there is no time like the present. We have still with us Edison, Thompson, Houston, Tesla, one of the Wrights, Alexander Graham Bell, Marconi, and many others whose inventions have revolutionized the mode of living of the entire world, and their original, experimental work should be preserved forever.

We have still with us many of the generals of industry, through whose leadership some of the greatest incorporations have been formed, the men who see visions, who believe in the possibility of higher industrial education. What may we not safely trust to see created eight years from to-day, if adequate encouragement is given, and if the materials already secured are properly grouped together, so that they illustrate one another and suggest new and greater developments?

In regard to a proper site for the proposed building, Mr. Stewart said that this matter had not yet been considered. He explained that only one or two of the projected buildings would be attempted in the beginning, but that land would be acquired sufficient in area to accommodate the entire group of twenty buildings. According to the report of Dr. Kunz, the cost of erecting the group of museums will be about $30,000,000, and it is esimated that their maintenance would call for an annual expenditure of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

Appeal for 1915 Fair.

In the course of the meeting of the committee yesterday resolutions were introduced by Jacob H. Schiff and were unanimously approved. They asked support of the British section of the committee to get a British exhibit at the San Francisco Fair and said:

The American Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English Speaking Peoples 1914-15, and of unbroken peace with Germany, France, and other great nations, views with deep regret and much concern the decision of the Government of Great Britain, acting in concert with Germany, not to be represented officially on the occasion of the Panama-Pacific Exposition in celebration, in 1915, of the opening of the Panama Canal, through which the commerce of the whole world will be so vastly benefited;

And, inasmuch as the official celebration of the centenary of the Ghent Treaty in America will terminate at the San Francisco Fair in a week of ceremony and public exercise—a fitting and impressive finale of the period of international rejoicing over the end of war between America and Great Britain—our Committee deems it unfortunate for the peace celebration, and an incongruity, that our principal associate in the celebration should remain officially unrepresented at America's celebration over the completion of the Panama Canal, a situation likely to be misinterpreted and misunderstood;

Now, therefore, we greet our friends and associates in the Peace Celebration cause in Great Britain—the British Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English speaking peoples—and beg their good offices and influence in seeking to secure from the Government of Great Britain their reconsideration of their decision not officially to participate in the Panama Exposition, to the end that Great Britain and Ireland may be adequately represented among the exhibitors.

Resolved, That the Chairman be directed to lay these resolutions and this matter before the British Committee in London, and to take such steps in furtherance of this desired end as may be necessary.

A telegram was read by Chairman Stewart from Charles C. Moore, President of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, accepting in behalf of the exposition authorities the suggestion of the committee that the concluding ceremonies of the hundredth anniversary of peace celebration be held in San Francisco in 1915. President Moore suggested to the committee that one week be set aside during the exposition to be known as "International Peace Week," during which an International Peace Congress should convene in the fair grounds. Peace week at the exposition will end with an international peace pageant and the dedication of an American-English peace monument.

On the motion of Robert C. Morris resolutions of thanks were extended to the British committee in charge of the celebration in England of the Peace Centennary for its generous offer to set aside from the proceeds of the American-British Exposition to be held in 1914 at Shepard's Bush, London, the sum of £40,000 ($200,000) for the foundation of scholarships. The British committee's offer, which was accepted, provides for the establishment of scholarships in commercial and social economics in both countries, in equal proportions to each nation, to be called "The American-British Exposition Scholarships."

It was announced that a conference of the members of the American committee would be held in Richmond, Va., on Dec. 3 and 4. The conference will close with a banquet given to the conferees by the City of Richmond and the Chamber of Commerce of Richmond. Gov. William Hodges Mann will preside at the opening meeting on Dec. 3 and Andrew Carnegie will act as Chairman at the subsequent sessions. Delegates will be present from all of the States and from the eighty-six city committees. The conference will arrange to celebrate on special days and in special occasions the peace which has endured between the United States, France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Italy, and other nations. Robert Laird Borden, Premier of Canada, will be a guest of the conference.

At yesterday's meeting of the Sub-Executive Committee the City of Richmond was represented by T. M. Carrington, President, and R. A. Dunlop, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Among the other members present were Alton B. Parker, Jacob H. Schiff, Bayard Henry of Philadelphia, James Brown Scott of Washington, D. C.; Gen. Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H.; Albert Gallatin, George T. Wilson, R. A. C. Smith, William Church Osborn, William Curtis Demorest, Austen G. Fox, Charles Stewart Davison, Dr. George F. Kunz, Andrew Humphrey, Louis Livingston Seaman, Oscar S. Straus, Job E. Hedges, George William Burleigh, E. R. L. Gould, William B. Howland, T. Kennard Thomson, Albert Shaw, Nicholas Murray Butler, Robert C. Morris, James L. Wandling, and John A. Stewart.

ORDER FENDERS ON B. R. T.

Commissioner Says He Can't Haggle Over Cost of Saving Lives.

As the result of hearings and investigations which have been in progress since 1909, the Public Service Commission has ordered the B. R. T. to equip its street cars with wheelguards and fenders, and in the opinion accompanying the order Commissioner Maltbie has expressed the opinion that the increased safety to the life and limb of pedestrians is worth the $150,000 which he estimates the company will have to spend.

The matter was taken up by the commission in January, 1909. The first order in relation to it was to take effect on July 1 of that year, and was to be fully complied with by Nov. 1, 1909. But it was not obeyed, and a series of rehearings and fresh investigations followed. Commissioner Maltbie in his opinion says "the record shows the long delay and determined resistance which the commission has encountered in its efforts to compel the installation of adequate safety devices and appliances," and he quotes from the evidence, taken during one of the hearings, the statement of Mr. Marsh, counsel for the B. R. T., that the company would be willing to operate the old style of fender, "because it would not touch our pocketbook."

Commenting on this, Commissioner Maltbie says: "If the company is willing to operate its present defective type of fender, why should it objject to operating a more efficient type? Clearly the answer is the one given by Mr. Marsh, that it 'touches the pocketbook,' and, therefore, the order is contested. * * * But, after all, we are dealing in this matter with the lives and limbs of pedestrians, many of them little children. The yearly toll of the dead and maimed is far too great to warrant us in haggling over an expenditure of $150,000, if that be the cost of installation, to save children from being maimed, to prevent breadwinners from being deprived of their ability to support themselves and their families, and to avoid the death of some mother beloved in her family circle."

APPEALS TO PRESIDENT.

Woman Asks Wilson to Intercede for Connecticut Murderess.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17.—A letter was sent to President Wilson to-day by Mrs. Sarah Devlin of the Fair Haven Political Equality Club requesting him to use his influence with Gov. Baldwin in favor of commuting the death sentence of Mrs. Bessie Wakefield to life imprisonment. Last week Mrs. Devlin's letter to Miss Jessie Wilson asking her to use her influence with Gov. Baldwin was referred to the Governor.

Mrs. Devlin yesterday directed the circulation of her petition among the churches of the city, where it secured about 400 signatures. She believes that on President Wilson's appeal Gov. Baldwin will commute the sentence.

BLOOD GIFT FAILED TO SAVE MISS THOMAS

Columbia Men Volunteered to Aid Popular Barnard Student Who Died of Typhoid.

ILLNESS DUE TO OYSTERS

Father Called on Daughter's Friends When Physicians Said Blood Transfusion Was Only Hope.

Miss Edith Thomas, 20 years old, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Thomas of Savannah, Ga., and member of the senior class of Barnard College, died early yesterday morning in the Presbyterian Hospital from an attack of typhoid fever, which she suffered less than four weeks ago. Her physicians strove desperately to save Miss Thomas's life, and on Sunday night a pint of blood was transtused into her arteries from those of Thomas Pinkerton, a former student of Columbia University; but, although the patient seemed to gain strength after the operation, she suffered a relapse a few hours later, and she died before another operation for blood transfusion could be performed yesterday morning.

Miss Thomas was taken ill on Oct. 23. She was transferred at once from her room in Brooks Hall, the Barnard College dormitory, to the Presbyterian Hospital. Her physicians attributed her illness to typhoid, as she ate while dining with friends outside the dormitory. Her parents were notified as soon as the nature of her illness was known, and they came to the city from Savannah at once, and stayed with their daughter until her death.

On last Sunday the physician attending Miss Thomas saw that she was sinking from anaemia, and it was decided to perform an operation for blood transfusion. Mr. Thomas told the physicians to spare no expense to obtain the blood. An offer to pay any man well who would submit to his part in the operation was sent to the officers of the United Charities and to the Salvation Army. No person could be found, though, who answered the requirements. Mr. Thomas decided to call upon his daughter's friends. One of these who had known Miss Thomas well for three years, was Francis Scott, a graduate of the Columbia law school in the class of 1911. He has a law office at 115 Broadway, and lives in the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house. Mr. Thomas telephoned to Mr. Scott Sunday night, and he went to the hospital at once with three other members of his fraternity.

After testing the blood of the four men the physicians decided to use that of Thomas Pinkerton of Duluth, Minn., formerly a student of Columbia and a college athlete. He is employed by the General Electric Company. Although Mr. Pinkerton did not know Miss Thomas, he consented readily to give as much of his blood as the doctors needed. One pint was taken. All of the fraternity men were eager to undergo the transfusion operation, and the physicians had intended, if Miss Thomas had lived, to call upon another man yesterday.

A bed in the hospital was offered to Mr. Pinkerton after the blood was drawn from his arteries and he was advised to spend two days in rest.

"Why?" he asked. "I feel fine. There's nothing the matter with me. I'm glad I could help." Then he turned to his friends and said, "Come on, fellows."

He drank a glass of egg-nog and departed from the hospital, as well as ever, seemingly. The two young men who went to the hospital with Messrs. Scott and Pinkerton were Thomas E. Huser and Ashley Dickinson, both students of Columbia University.

Miss Thomas was very popular at Barnard, and, besides receiving many honors from the students, she stood high in her classes and was much esteemed by the college authorities. She was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Fraternity, Chairman of the Sophomore Dance Committee, Vice President of the student government body of Brooks Hall, in which she lived, and President of the Société Française. She had dramatic ability and appeared in several college plays, among them "The Road to Yesterday," given in 1911, and the annual French play given in 1912. She was proficient in languages, and French was her favorite study. She was noted also among her friends for her grace as a dancer.

John M. Thomas, the father, lives at 312 Bolton Street, Savannah. He and Mrs. Thomas departed for their home yesterday afternoon with Miss Thomas's body. The funeral will be held in Savannah next Wednesday. Many flowers were sent to them by friends of Miss Thomas.

After a thorough inspection of Brooks Hall yesterday, a representative of the Board of Health and the Columbia University Health and Sanitary Officer said that Miss Thomas caught typhoid fever outside of the dormitory. They found the hall in perfect condition. There have been no other cases of typhoid fever among Barnard students.

WHITMAN WILL PUSH FIGHT ON FOWLER

State "Bagman" Switches and Will Challenge the District Attorney's Jurisdiction.

IS HELD IN $5,000 BAIL

Great Array of Counsel Is Promised —Whitman Will Take No Dare in Graft Inquiry.

Everett P. Fowler of Kingston, indicted on a charge of extorting $250 from Seneca P. Hull, a State road contractor of Cortland, decided yesterday that he would stand trial on the charge. William D. Cunningham, District Attorney of Ulster County, who, it was said, advised Fowler to tell all he knew about the up-State graft ring, was dismissed summarily as Fowler's attorney yesterday.

With the dropping of Cunningham the graft situation underwent a decided change. Fowler went before Judge Crain and pleaded not guilty to the indictment, at the same time challenging District Attorney Whitman to place him on trial. Since Saturday Fowler had considered Mr. Whitman's ultimatum—to tell all or go to prison.

Fowler was expected to arrive in this city shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and it had been agreed that he should give the District Attorney his answer at noon. Mr. Whitman as late as Saturday night received assurances from Kingston that Fowler would tell him what he knew about what John A. Hennessy called the "sandbagging" of State contractors.

Who was responsible for the change of plans is not known, but the fact is that Fowler got up at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and hastened to New York on an early train. By 10 o'clock he was in conference with Martin W. Littleton. About the same time Mr. Whitman heard from District Attorney Cunningham that Cunningham was out of the case.

Mr. Littleton had not been Mr. Fowler's attorney long when it became known that the case was to be fought bitterly in the courts. Several of the lawyers in whose learning Tammany Hall puts the greatest reliance, it was learned eventually, will be retained. They will make the contention that District Attorney Whitman has no jurisdiction over Fowler, and they will assert that he has no jurisdiction in similar cases that may arise out of the present graft investigation. The fight is expected to be a long one, and probably will be taken to the highest court in the State for final adjudication. The fight, it is expected, will involve not only Mr. Whitman's right to prosecute in this county but also will question the validity of the John Doe investigation now under way before Chief Magistrate McAdoo.

Whitman Will Not Halt.

When District Attorney Whitman learned of the plan to block his investigation and the trial of Fowler, he made it clear that he would agree to no delay. His answer to the Fowler challenge was that he would go right ahead and seek other graft indictments. He had expected, he admitted, that the question of jurisdiction would be raised. That was the only question that possibly could be raised, he insisted, in a case which was as simple and as strong as that against Fowler. There was no doubt about his jurisdiction, he said, adding that he was willing to fight all the lawyers in New York on the issue.

Mr. Littleton said that he would begin his active fight for Fowler within a week. First he will demand the minutes of the Grand Jury which indicted Fowler. In case the court refuses him permission to inspect the minutes Littleton will appeal. Littleton then will move to quash the indictment on the ground that Mr. Whitman has no jurisdiction.

Mr. Littleton cites Section 134 of the Penal Code as aplying to his case. This section reads:

"When a crime is committed, partly in one county and partly in another, or the acts or the effects thereof, constituting or requisite to the consummation of the offense, occur in two or more counties, the jurisdiction is in either county."

It was under this section that Mr. Whitman sought the indictment of Fowler. The contractor, Hull, alleged that Fowler had extorted $250 from him in the Syracuse office of William H. Kelly, Democratic boss of Onondaga County. Hull, as alleged in the indictment, paid the money after Fowler had threatened him. Hull drew a check payable to Norman E. Mack. The check reached the Democratic State Committee at 1 West Thirty-fourth Street. It was indorsed by Mack, then by Democratic State Treasurer Arthur A. McLean, and then was cashed at the Fourth National Bank in this city. Mr. Whitman's point was that the crime was extortion, and was not completed until the check was cashed. As the check was cashed in this city, that fact, he maintained, gave him jurisdiction.

Littleton Disputes Jurisdiction.

Referring to the same section, Mr. Littleton asserted yesterday that he would try to show by argument before the courts that the crime of extortion, if it was committed, was committed in Syracuse. The passing of the check into New York County, he maintained, was only a method employed for getting the check back to Hull. The crime, he said, if there was one, was begun and completed in one transaction.

If Mr. Littleton should win in the fight, the indictment, of course, would be quashed. To continue the case against Fowler, it would be necessary to obtain his indictment in Onandaga County. Fowler, it is said, is well known in Onondaga County. It is known that Mr. Whitman will fight vigorously every move to transfer the case to that county. If, however, the case should be taken there, Gov. Glynn still could command the situation by appointing a special Attorney General to try it. It was suggested yesterday that Mr. Whitman, as Special Attorney General, might try the case himself. The District Attorney of Onondaga County is George H. Bond, a Republican. Mr. Bond lives in Syracuse.

If Mr. Whitman wins in his fight to have Fowler tried in this county it is expected that the trial will be rushed. Mr. Whitman, it was said, would ask for a special panel from which to select the jury. The punishment on conviction for extortion is imprisonment in a State prison for not more than fifteen years.

Fowler reached the Criminal Court Building at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning. With him came Mr. Littleton, Joseph M. Fowler, his cousin, who is a lawyer, and F. A. Palen, a lumber merchant of 464 Riverside Drive. Mr. Littleton conferred with Mr. Whitman, leaving Fowler outside. Fowler posed willingly for the photographers. He referred all inquiries to his lawyer.

Mr. Whitman, it is understood, briefly reviewed his case against Fowler to Mr. Littleton, and told Mr. Littleton what he might expect if the case went to trial. Upon behalf of his client, Mr. Littleton then told the District Attorney that he would fight the case.

Fowler appeared before Judge Crain shortly after 12 o'clock, and stepped briskly to the bar when the clerk called his name.

"Everett P. Fowler," said the clerk, "you have been indicted for extortion. Do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

"If your Honor pleases," replied his counsel, addressing the Court, "the defendant desires to plead not guilty with leave to withdraw that plea within the usual ten-day period, and to make such motions as may be deemed necessary."

Fowler Gives $5,000 Bail.

District Attorney Whitman assented, and asked that the defendant be held in $5,000 bail. There was no objection to this, and Fowler was taken to the bail department.

The $5,000 bail bond was furnished by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company. This is the company which George H. McGuire testified bonded over two-thirds of the barge canal and highway contractors who obtained their bonds through his office in Syracuse.

"Will your client make a confession?" Mr. Littleton was asked while the arrangements for bail were being made.

"Who said confession?" replied Mr. Littleton. "Did you ever see me on a confession side? I have known Mr. Fowler for many years, and when I took this case it was with the understanding that Mr. Fowler would stand on his rights. What we are going to do now is to prepare our defense. Mr. Fowler has no confession to make."

In a later talk with Mr. Littleton, the lawyer said that he did not want to be understood to say that Fowler's case positively would be brought to trial. There might be exigencies, he said, which would make this unnecessary. But that did not mean, he added, that Fowler had anything material to say. He might have an interesting story to tell, Mr. Littleton said, bu it would be a story which would fall far short of the popular idea of a confession.

Littleton Promises "Real Trial."

"If this comes to trial it will be a real trial," said Mr. Littleton, "and Mr. Fowler will tell his story on the witness stand. There is nothing to hide."

At this point Mr. Littleton admitted that an attack would be made upon Mr. Whitman's jurisdiction. Fowler's friends in Kingston, it was said yesterday, were enraged over his indictment. They picture him as an honest, home-loving church-going man. These friends hinted at Fowler's possible line of defense. It ran something like this: That the one man in Kingston who had the admiration of everybody was Everett P. Fowler. He was the most charitable man in Kingston. Whenever a new church was to be built, Mr. Fowler hustled around and raised the necessary money. Perhaps Mr. Fowler did collect a little money for the Democratic State Committee. Perhaps he collected, say, $5,000. But if he did he just did it because he wanted to do his share for the party. He couldn't have extorted it from any one, and he did everything above board. That is why he used checks.

This story, if told on the witness stand, will be subject to sharp attack. It was said yesterday that Mr. Whitman would be able to prove that at least $40,000 had been collected by Fowler in Rochester, Buffalo, and Syracuse. Fowler, the District Attorney will try to show, was the official "bagman" among the contractors on the State highways. Most of the $40,000, it was said, had been collected in 1912, but there were some collections in 1911.

Norman E. Mack, in a statement issued on Sunday, said that only $35,000 had been collected for the State Democratic Committee in 1911. That was the year that Mack was Chairman of the State Committee. Mr. Mack did not say how much was collected in 1912.

SEEKS GRAFT FLOOD'S PATH.

Whitman Hears That $5,000,000 Was in One Golden Stream.

Assistant District Attorney John K. Clark started yesterday afternoon on another of his flying trips up State. He left the Criminal Court Building within a half hour after Mr. Whitman had had a conference with Alexander Otis. Mr. Otis as a lawyer has acted in an advisory capacity for the Republican State Committee for several years, and it was admitted after his departure that the conference had related to certain phases of the graft investigation. Mr. Clark, it was learned, would visit Albany to check the new evidence furnished by Mr. Otis.

This evidence, it was said, related to graft in the letting of contracts for road repair work. It was said that $5,000,000 in graft had been divided in State highway work.

If the information given by Mr. Otis can be substantiated, it was said last night, a State official will be involved. Evidence against this official, it was said, had been piling up in Mr. Whitman's office for several weeks. Mr. Clark carried with him a number of subpoenas, which will be served on persons named in the Otis revelations.

In the letting of some road repair contracts, according to the information which reached Mr. Whitman, there was discrimination. When contracts were about to be let word was passed around among the favored contractors. These contractors then conferred with their County Chairmen. Each favored contractor carried a letter of introduction from his County Chairman when he presented himself at Albany. The holders of letters could not be distinguished, of course, from the horde of unfavored contractors who assembled in Albany when contracts were let and to weed out the favored ones there was a countersign. This countersign was "Go to the Hampton," meaning the Hampton Hotel in Albany.

At the Hampton Hotel, according to the information obtained by Mr. Whitman, secret meetings were held by the favored ones. Here, it was said, the contractors got assurances that they would get the bids provided they put up a 10 per cent. contribution "for campaign expenses." They were reimbursed for this 10 per cent., it was said, in "overcharges." Bills for this purpose were rushed through the Legislature.

It was learned that Mr. Otis had given the names of many of the "favored contractors" to Mr. Whitman, and Mr. Clark, in his trip through the northern part of the State, it was inferred, would serve subpoenas upon those named by Mr. Otis.

When Mr. Clark returns from his trip it is expected he will have the names of the 300 contractors who have done work on the Barge Canal and on the State highways in the last three years. Mr. Whitman, according to present plans, will call all of the 300 as witnesses in the investigation.

BURGARD MAKES DENIAL.

Did Not Attend Syracuse "Sandbag" Conference, Buffalonian Says.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Nov. 17.—Henry P. Burgard, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, to-day emphatically denied having participated in a conference held in Syracuse last year, the alleged purpose of which was to exact campaign contributions from barge canal and good roads contractors.

"The story sent from New York is a malicious lie," he said. "The man who inspired the story did so with malicious intent, and I think I know where it originated. I did not attend the conference referred to, and do not know that such a conference was held. It's a downright malicious lie."

Chairman Burgard returned to Buffalo to-day from Fulton, where he is engaged upon a large contract.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS SAY BARNES MUST GO

Report of Leadership Committee Opposing Him Adopted After a Stormy Debate.

SAYS COLONEL WANTS HIM

Ottinger, In Defending His Chief, Asserts Roosevelt Tried to Bring Barnes Into His Camp.

The New York Young Republican Club gave a smoker at the Prince George Hotel last night and wrangled over a perennial Republican tangle—the fitness of William Barnes to continue as Republican State leader. When the time arrived for light refreshments the young Republicans, after a debate which had lasted more than two hours, decreed by a vote of 38 to 17 that Mr. Barnes must go.

A report presented by the Committee on State Leadership, appointed several months ago by the Young Republican Club, started the discussion. It was learned that the action of the club in bringing up the debate when the Republican Assembly was about to organize did not meet with the approval of Herbert Parsons or any of the "elder" Republicans who are opposed to the leadership of Mr. Barnes.

Several Republican Assemblymen-elect, including Thaddeus C. Sweet of Oswego, who is one of the Republican candidates for Speaker, had been invited to attend the meeting, but representatives of the Republican organization met them in the lobby of the hotel, and when they learned that the topic of discussion at the smoker was to be, they took the advice of the organization men and stayed away from the affair.

The report was presented by Walter T. Arndt, Chairman of the Committee on State Leadership. In the report the committee asserted that its investigation had shown "a strong and growing dissatisfaction with the present leadership of the Republican Party in every county of the State."

"We therefore recommend," the members of the committee said, "that the New York Young Republican Club take such steps as will help to bring about a change in the State leadership, and that it enter at once on an active campaign to put these recommendations into effect." The report was signed by Walter T. Arndt, Alfred Conkling Coxe, Jr.; Charles E. Hughes, Jr.; Frederick P. Keppel, Phillip J. McCook, and E. Stagg Whitin. Albert E. Ottinger, who is prominent in the Republican party councils in the Fifteenth Assembly District, arose when the report had been read by Mr. Arndt.

"If it hadn't been for William Barnes," he said, "Mr. Taft would never have been renominated at Chicago last year, and the party would have been turned over to Roosevelt. It does not lie in the mouth of the Republican organization in this city to find fault with the up-State Republicans who have indorsed Mr. Barnes's leadership, for the Republican organization in this city is a joke. If it hadn't been, we would have nominated and elected a Republican Mayor this year.

"It has been said here that Mr. Barnes is pre-historic in his views and methods; that he belongs to a bygone age, and that he ought to be apologized for. But what are the facts? Roosevelt sought Barnes's aid, and Barnes said: 'No, I am a Republican.' Roosevelt would take Barnes into camp to-day if Barnes would only give him a chance. He has made overturnes, and I know what I am talking about."

Mr. Ottinger wanted the report tabled, but this motion was defeated by a viva voce vote. After his speech, Mr. Ottinger was asked to elaborate on his assertion that Mr. Roosevelt had approached the Republican State leader privately whom he had so often assailed in public.

"I have Mr. Barnes's statement for that," said Mr. Ottinger. "Better see him."

Phillip J. McCook, who presided at the smoker, answered Mr. Ottinger. He said Mr. Ottinger was in error when he asserted that the report was an indorsement of Roosevelt, the Bull Moose boss.

"What reference is made in the report to Roosevelt is to the old Roosevelt, the Republican Roosevelt, we used to know and love—the Roosevelt who owed everything he had politically to the Republican party," said Mr. McCook.

Ex-State Senator Martin Saxe urged that action on the report be deferred to a later meeting and that in the meantime Mr. Barnes should be invited to come before the club and answer the allegations made in the report. Chester Mayer of the Thirty-first Assembly District said that the opposition to Mr. Barnes did not come from the rank and file of the Republican party, but from the Progressives.

"Roosevelt started this cry against Barnes, and by keeping it up you are only playing into the hands of Roosevelt," he said. "I have heard no complaint voiced against Mr. Barnes by the prominent men of our own party. Senator Root does not complain. Mr. Taft does not complain. Are you going to help lift the cry against Barnes they now are against Murphy? You are just playing into the hands of the Progressives. If you want a change in leadership start your fight after the Gubernatorial election next year, and do not spoil our chance of success then."

Crosby McHarg, who was active in corralling colored delegates in the South for Roosevelt before the Chicago Convention, is a member of the club. When his turn to speak came last night he said he was "for Barnes the Chairman and against Barnes the cynic." He said it was foolish to try and beat Barnes with an idea, as long as there was no man to put up as a candidate for the leadership.

"I freely admit the deplorable condition of the party in this State under the leadership of Barnes," said Mr. McHarg. "But I know also that there are men in this room who helped elect Sulzer in the name of Republicanism."

For a time it looked as though those opposing the adoption of the report would prevail. Then E. Stagg Whitin spoke.

"If you wish to continue to bow under the yoke any longer," he said, "then heed the counsel of those who for the last three or four days have been moving heaven and earth to prevent this report from being made."

When the debate was at an end a vote was taken on a motion to re-submit the report of the committee to give Mr. Barnes an opportunity to be heard. This was beaten by a vote of 30 to 18. The report was then adopted.

NEW WIRE-TAPPING TRAIL.

Whitman Looking Into Purchases of Police Officials.

New evidence concerning the alleged collusion of the wiretappers and the police reached the District Attorney's office yesterday, and materially strengthened the State's case in the investigation which is being made by Assistant District Attorney Frederick J. Groehl. The investigation by the Grand Jury was to have been begun to-day, but it seemed probable last night that it would be postponed until the latter part of the week, in which case the subpoenas issued to twelve or more witnesses will be extended.

Among the evidence to be submitted, it is understood, are the records of raids made upon different wire-tapping establishments in this city. By means of these records the testimony of some of the wiretappers that they paid $2,500 a month and 15 per cent. of their profits to police officials will be checked up. The investigators will seek to corroborate in this manner a story which has come to them regarding the purchase of a house by a high police official. It is asserted that shortly after raids were made upon different establishments certain interests got to work, with the result that the sale price of the house was cut in half.

Mr. Whitman is investigating the story of a visit paid by a civilian attaché at Police Headquarters to a private detective agency which has been active in the wiretappers' disclosures. The visit followed an interview last Friday morning between Mr. Whitman and a man brought to him by the head of the agency.

It was said yesterday that if the connecting links in the mass of information which has already been collected by the District Attorney's office are supplied before the case reaches the Grand Jury, as many as twelve indictments may follow. Of these, nine are detectives and three are officials. The purchase by one official of two automobiles within six months this year is regarded by the prosecution as significant.

J. C. MARTIN'S WILL BROKEN.

Court Holds Proponents Needed to Prove His Sanity.

Probate of the 1912 will of John Calvin Martin, who died on Sept. 3, 1912, was refused yesterday by Surrogate Fowler. This will, which was executed on July 31, eight days before the testator was adjudged insane and while he was visiting at Portsmouth, N. H., among total stragers, disposed of property estimated as close to $1,000,000. It gave $20,000 each to the Society for the Prevention of Vice and the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, $20,000 each to seven sisters, a gold medal only to a brother, and the residuary estate to the John C. Martin Educational Foundation, which he had established a few years before.

The contest of the will was brought by Mr. Martin's sisters on the ground that the testator was suffering at the time of the instrument's execution with "manic depressive insanity." Witnesses said that in their opinion Mr. Martin was sane at the time of the signing of the will. These persons, however, were acquainted with the testator only during a few days previous to the making of the will. Surrogate Fowler decided that this testimony was overbalanced by the fact that Mr. Martin had at various times in 1912 and 1911 shown undoubted signs of insanity, and had been adjudged an incompetent.

The decision of Surrogate Fowler establishes a precedent, since it is the first case in which the testator was brought on the ground that the testator at periods suffered from insanity, the proof of the testator's sanity at the exact moment of executing his will being placed upon the proponents and not on the contestants.

NO ONE IS EAGER FOR MURPHY'S JOB

O'Gorman Says He Won't Take It and Smith Asserts Talk of Him as Boss Is Silly.

THINKS MURPHY WILL STAY

Leader Won't Abdicate Voluntarily or from Pressure Within the Organization, in Secretary's Opinion.

Apparently nobody in Tammany covets the mantle of Boss Murphy. It was draped gracefully on the ample shoulders of United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, and on those of Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, yesterday, by would-be inside reorganizers of Tammany. Senator O'Gorman was in town yesterday. When asked about the report that he would take up the burden of leadership, Senator O'Gorman said the job of United States Senator provided him with all the work he could perform. Secretary Smith, when the same question was addressed to him, put up his hands and said that so far as he knew Mr. Murphy would not either voluntarily or as the result of pressure from within the organization vacate the leadership.

"It was said that Mr. Murphy was through, and that he was going on a long vacation," said Secretary Smith. "Mr. Murphy will seek his usual after-election rest undoubtedly, and I believe he intends to go to Hot Springs, Va. But I doubt whether he will go this week. He is too busy with the affairs of the organization. Mr. Murphy will be on the job here to-morrow, and I should not be surprised if he stayed here for the rest of the week. There is no truth in this silly talk that I am to become the leader of Tammany, either for myself or as the understudy for Senator O'Gorman."

"Would you accept the leadership of Tammany Hall if Mr Murphy was eliminated and the offer came to you in the proper way?" Senator O'Gorman was asked at the Manhattan Club yesterday afternoon.

"That proposal is simply impossible," said the Senator. "There isn't a circumstance on earth that would induce me to accept political leadership while I am a Senator. There is enough work for me as a Senator to keep me busy. I am not mixing in politics, all rumors to the contrary."

George Gordon Battle, law partner of Senator O'Gorman, who on last Saturday called upon all Democrats, whether they had supported McCall or Mitchel in the Mayoralty election, to take an interest in the Democratic organization in this State and bring it abreast of the times in leadership and ideals, said yesterday that in voicing that summons he had spoken for himself alone.

"And now that you ask me," said Mr. Battle, "I want to emphasize the point that, such as it is, the Tammany organization exists under the law, with its leaders elected under the law. The way to reorganize it is not to start a new organization, but to have those on the inside work under the rules established by the law for a change in the leadership, if such a change is desired, as I believe a majority will admit it is. The law as it stands on the statute books provides ways and means for such a change."

CITY BREVITIES.

As Mrs. Helen Pelouze, wife of an electrical engineer of 55 East Fifty-eighth Street, did not appear yesterday in the Federal District Court to alter her tentative plea of not guilty to an indictment charging her with the failure to declare furs, laces, and jewelry she had brought from Germany, Judge Hand set her trial for next Monday.

Ten members of the Committee on Local Transportation of the City Council of Chicago arrived in New York at 6:40 P. M. to make a brief study of transportation methods here. They were entertained at dinner at the Imperial Hotel by Robert Rideway, engineer of the Public Service Commission, and Travis Whitney, Secretary of the commission.

Three Bulgarians who arrived in this country on Thursday were found yesterday overcome by gas in a room in the Carmel Hotel, 32 Livingston Street. They will recover.

$1.50 SECURITY FOR $850.

Creditor Dismayed When Ralston Strong Box Is Opened.

William S. Searing, an automobile man of 494 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, decided yesterday that it was time to claim the security for $850 which he had lent to William L. Ralston of Hempstead, L. I. Ralston, who said he was the manager of the Salvation Army at Hempstead, and that he had recently inherited $70,000,000 from his father in Pittsburgh, presented two keys to Mr. Searing when the money was advanced. The keys, Ralston said, opened his two streng boxes in the Long Island Warehouse Company.

Mr. Searing felt that he had plenty of security at that time, but when the safe was opened yesterday it contained contents which Searing estimated to be worth $1.50. Ralston has disappeared.

Ralston recently offered an automobile as a tip to a porter named Crowe at the Hotel York. The machine, however, hsppened to be Searing's and he refused to give up the car when Crowe presented Ralston's order for it.

CANADIAN HORSE WINS OVER JUMPS AT GARDEN

THRILLING JUMPING CONTEST AT GARDEN

Capt. Rodden's Sarah Moore Defeats Amazone, $30,000 French Entry.

WESTERN GIRL A WINNER

Miss Long of Kansas City Shows Skill in Handling Splendid Roadster—First Cavalry Trooper Wins.

International jumping formed the feature of the programme yesterday of the Horse Show at Madison Square Garden. The competition for a cup valued at $100 and $150 offered by Judge William H. Moore attracted seventy of the finest jumpers in the United States and Europe, and produced one of the most sensational contests in the history of the National Horse Show Association. The event furnished a series of thrills that continued for two hours, and culminated in a Canadian victory for Capt. W. T. Rodden's black mare Sarah Moore over the famous $30,000 French entry, Amazone, ridden by Lieut. Baron de Meslon of the First Cuirassiers, which captured the first international jumping event on Saturday night.

A brilliant throng of interested spectators watched the event, which was continued until long after midnight. The class, which was limited to officers of all branches of the service of all nations, was the first real test of jumping ability of specially selected horses from the armies of America, France, England, Canada, Belgium, and Russia. By the process of elimination the entries were reduced to twelve on the second round of the jumps. Six of these made a clean score, and the judges ordered a third round. This resulted in reducing the field to four, and two of the horses failed to quality.

From the big field of entries Canada and France alone were represented in the fourth trial. Capt. Rodden of Canada piloted Sarah Moore successfully over the eight jumps, and Lieut Meslon on Amazone accomplished the same feat. The judges were in a quandary, and suggested that the two foreign officers toss for the first prize. The sporting spirit predominated, however, and it was agreed that a further trial should be held. Meanwhile the spectators were wrought up to a high state of excitement, and the building rang with cheers when it was announced that a fifth trial would follow.

International pride influenced the decision of the rival competitors, and the appearance of Capt. Rodden was greeted with a salvo of cheers. The Canadian carried his horse over the course without a mistake, and when he completed his task the cheers were renewed. Lieut. Meslon followed, and to the spectators it appeared as though he had successfully emulated his Canadian rival. The two officers stood in the centre of the arena awaiting the result of the decision.

The huge building was wrapped in silence for a while, but when the judges finally selected Capt. Rodden's entry as the winner, the applause was deafening. Capt. Rodden and Lieut. Meslon, with military precision, stepped back two paces, saluted, and then shook hands, thus bringing to a close the most spectacular and best contested event in the history of New York horse shows.

Miss Long Clever Whip.

Women owners, drivers and riders, played an important part on the second day of the show, Miss Loula Long of Kansas City achieving a best on record as a whip. She drove her black mare Aspiration to winning honors in a novice class for trotting roadsters which had twenty-one entries, after one of the closest contests between light harness horses ever seen. Aspiration did all that a horse could do by fine manners and a beautiful style in action to gain the blue, and Miss Long supplemented its excellent qualities by a clever handling of the reins.

As to the best on record, no woman has ever driven the winner in a roadster class before in the long years of the show; moreover, few whips, men or women, are equally capable on the box seat of heavy harness traps and in a speeding road wagon behind a soft-mouthed trotter, which is another distinction for Miss Long. With the saddle horses, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark won on her gelding, Supplement, and Mrs John J. O'Donohue, wife of the M. F. H. of the Watchung Hunt, on Harry J. Graham's Black Prince, scored a blue for the further honor of the feminine sex. Also, Miss Viau of Montreal sent a winning highstepper into the ring, not to speak of other successes for the fair patrons of the show.

Rival attractions did not tempt the fashionable supporters from the equine contests, and in the afternoon and night the Roman concourse was the gathering place of the many prominent persons who have given year after year a loyal allegiance to the fixture. Their ranks, too, were recruited by countless visitors from out of town and the girls and the young chaps who have gained recent renown as drivers or riders at the many country shows. Features of especial interest at night were the contest between women drivers in tumble phaetons, the most distinctive park one-horse equipage of fashion, and the first of the international sequence of jumping competitions in which the riders will be officers in uniform.

All the world, women and men, join with the Duchess of Geroistein in the praise of military men in their glorious cloth and gold braided uniforms, and the jumping contest had the added interest of being a stimulus to patriotism, for Uncle Sam's representatives were matched against the picked men of England and the Continent.

Militiamen Win Over Regulars.

The militia scored in one class over the regulars of the United States and from abroad. It was for officers' chargers, the judging being on the good looks and good manners of the horses and no jumping being required. Major Howard K. Brown of the First Cavalry, N. G. N. Y., better known as Squadron A, carried off the blue with his big bay gelding Trooper amid the cheers and rail rapping of his fellow-guardsmen. Uncle Sam's regulars rode in second and third place.

Hunt teams of three, the riders to wear hunt regalia, only had two entries—from Peapack, N. J., and Ottawa—which seems a reproach to the sporting spirit of the many hunt clubs of Long Island, Westchester, and Staten Island, but possibly these riders are too busy chasing the elusive aniseed bag 'cross country to don their pink coats in town.

Tandems, that elongated style of driving which is not seen so often now on Fifth Avenue or in Central Park as the days of the New York Tandem Club, when all New York's young swells under the tutelage of Burton Mansfield thought it high fashion to drive "at length," had a remarkable showing in one class. It may be a revival—who knows—and the tandem meets will take the place of the vanished coaching Spring meet. No less than nine were in the tandem whirlings, and Judge Moore, driving with a control and style to reveal he has kept his eyes open on his recent trips to the crack British shows, won out with his champion hackneys, Lord and Lady Seaton.

Under the mellow glow of the golden electroliers, the women and their beautifully appointed phaetons, glistening as brightly with varnish as the sleek coats of the horses that drew the vehicles, made a pleasing picture before the crowded boxes and seats at the night session. The exhibit of J. Sumner Draper of Boston. Rillington Nimble, won, and may have consoled him for having been elliminated from the tandem class through the air-pawing antics of his leader. Miss Belle Beach was the driver, and those who gained minor ribbons were Miss Edith Webb driving for A. G. Vanderbilt; Miss Ella Rasmussen, and Miss L. Webb, who with all who drove, needless to say, were exquisitely attired in carriage gowns and hats.

Canadian Hunter Wins.

It is no slight task for a hunter to carry a man well over 200 pounds in weight over the six formidable jumps of the Garden ring. In one class, technically for heavyweight hunters, qualified, which means that they have been regularly ridden to hounds during the past season, there was a splendid contest between these big, raking fencers, and they cleared the obstacles as lightly as though they were mounted by fairies and guided with reins of gossamer. The victory was another success for a Montreal entrant, the handsome gelding Out Post, ridden by Capt. W. T. Rodden. An American entry, Mrs. Sid Hollaway's Caesar, was second; next in line being Capt. Stewart Richardson of England, with Dan Leno, and the Canadian, Capt. Sifton, on Ravello, revealing that for brawn honors are about even between the hunters here and under other flags.

Hackneys, once nearly exclusively the fad of gentleman farmers of the East, are now being appreciated in all parts of the States and in Canada. Justly so, for the hackney is the natural high-stepper in harness, and by this enterprise it may not be long before the champions will be raised here or across the border, instead of being recruited from the winners at Olympia. To bring home the point, four of the winning hackneys in the classes for the breeder were owned in different parts of Pennsylvania, and other wins were scored for Virginia, Illinois, Canada, and New York. The latter blue was captured by Clarence H. Mackay with Miss Burns, a filly bred at his Roslyn estate.

DAY WITH THE JUDGES.

Women Riders and Drivers Capture Many Ribbons at the Garden.

From a horseman's standpoint the second day's judging at the Garden brought out many of the horses which will figure prominently in the awards during the week. With the completion of the novice classes the more important events came in for attention at the hands of the ring officials. It was a day of triumph for the women, and, while the classes in which they competed were somewhat limited, they made a splendid showing in the events in which they were opposed by men.

One of the most notable victories scored by women was that of Miss Loula Long of Kansas City, a newcomer in horse show circles in the East. Miss Long won the roadster class with Aspiration from twenty-one competitors. This is the first time a woman has driven a winning horse in the roadster class, which heretofore was considered to be the exclusive province of lovers of the light harness horses, although Miss Kathryn Wilks of Galt, Ont., furnished the winning roadsters in pairs and singles some years ago, but her trainer drove. Miss Long is identified with horses as a whip and rider. She handles every type of horse with equal facility and drives in a light harness rig as cleverly as when tooling a heavy harness pair, tandem or four-in-hand. This is Miss Long's first appearance as an entrant at New York, but she exhibited at Long Branch and Washington this year, besides being for several seasons the best known horsewoman in the Middle West.

Miss E. Viau of Montreal defeated Judge W. H. Moore, A. G. Vanderbilt, and other prominent exhibitors in the class for harness horses over 15.3 hands with the bay gelding, Earl Grey, although she did not drive herself. It was a pronounced victory over the American horses. In this event Miss Long secured the white rosette with her bay gelding, Appreciation.

Another blue ribbon went to Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark in the saddle horse class, which attracted twenty entries. Mrs. Clark rode her own horse Supplement against several European entries, but the victory was largely due to the manner in which Mrs. Clark rode her entry. It was one of the most important classes of the day, and the victory earned the rider unstinted applause from the spectators. Mrs. I. J. Donohue, Jr., carried off the premier honors in the competition for the Colin Campbell Cup for saddle horses with Harry J. Graham's Proud Prince.

Nine tandems in the class won by William H. Moore, with Lord Seaton and Lady Seaton, was the greatest showing of the "at length" sort of teams since the palmy days of the New York Tandem Club in the '90's, when Charles A. Baudoin, E. Berry Wall, who once harnessed a team in white; John H. Shults, Jr., Frank Beard, H. K. Bloodgood, and Charlie Bates were leaders in this style of driving.

The Plaza Cup contest displayed the good training of the American militia and regular service mounts. Trooper, the entry of Major Howard K. Brown, First Cavalry, N. Y. N. G., won over the regular army entries, which included several foreign horses.

Max, the jumper entered and ridden by Lieut. N. K. Herberg of the Akershus Dragoon Regiment of Norway in the international jumping competitions, was made lame through bolting, striking one of his forelegs. This happened on Saturday while the horse was being led from the Garden to the stable. Max was frightened by the elevated trains, and the injury may keep the horse out of competition during the show.

William H. Moore scored several victories during the day's judging. In the class for heavy harness horses over 14.2 hands Raeburn, a strapping bay gelding, won the blue ribbon from a number of high-class performers, including Ringing Bell, a former Garden champion, and Lady Dilham, another famous winner of blue ribbons when in the stable of Joseph W. Harriman.

Very little class was shown in the competition for the cup presented by Mrs. N. J. Hess for saddle horses over 14.2 hands and not exceeding 15. The premier award went to M. O. Ranger's chestnut mare Dainty Lady, which carried herself in good style, but lacked the qualities of a good saddler. Godfrey Preece sent the second ribbon winner into the ring in Belle Stewart.

In the appointment class J. Sumner Draper was represented by Rillington Nimble, which behaved so badly in the saddle class. Rillington Nimble was on her best behavior and made an impressive appearance, while the appointments were perfect. Miss Belle Beach handled the ribbons in splendid fashion and earned the premier award for Mr. Draper's entry. Broadview Farm's Summit was placed second.

The first award for militia mounts went to Alden S. Blodgett's bay gelding Justice from the First Squadron of the New York National Guard Cavalry. Twelve horses competed, but the splendid training of Justice was apparent from the first display of evolutions necessary for militia mounts. Covington, entered and ridden by Sergt. Charles McDougall of the Second Cavalry, found favor with the judges for second award.

Thoroughbred hunters occupied the ring for nearly an hour, with America and Canada as the only representatives. It was an interesting class, and the horses made a splendid exhibition over the jumps. Canada carried off the honors with the Sifton Stables, which captured first and second ribbons. Cleveland, a slashing chestnut gelding, captured the first prize and Elmhurst the second. Both horses were ridden by Jack Hannton.

The first hackney class for two-year-old fillies went to Auburn Snowflake, a chestnut mare by Aquinas-Litchfam Daisy, exhibited by the Auburn Hackney Farm of Pennsylvania, after a close competition with Princess Patricia, another representative of the Auburn farm. The winner is a splendid son of the 1911 winner of the Challenge Cup and carries many of the characteristics of her sire. Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Sandy Point Fascination secured the third ribbon and Clarence H. Mackay's Miss Burns the fourth. In the three-year-old class Mr. Mackay carried off the premier honors with Lady Burns, a well-built chestnut mare with plenty of fire and action. Kalmia, another of the Aquinas family, was placed second.

R. C. Vanderbilt Hackney Defeated.

Canada carried off the honors in the four-year-old hackney mare class for horses over 14.2 hands and under 15.1. The victory was an unexpected one, as Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Silfield Venus was expected to win. There was little to judge between the pair, but the hock action and striking appearance of Major C. W. McLean's England's Pride a well-built daughter of Towthorpe Performer, influenced the judges in their decision. In the big division the Broadlawn Farm, owned by H. M. Vauclain, sent the winner into the ring in Bury Surprise, a magnificent specimen of the breed by Slow Gabriel-Bury Candy, which outclassed the other entries, which included the Willisden Farm's Copper Rosette and William du Pont's Kirkburn Lady.

The preliminary evolutions of fifteen officers' chargers brought out representatives from the United States Army, France, Belgium, and England, and furnished an interesting spectacle for the real horse lovers. The various aids and methods of control and management of horses received a practical demonstration. This class was followed by thirty-four chargers from all nations, and branches of the service. The final of this class will be judged this afternoon.

The Colin Campbell Cup for ladies' saddle horses over 15.2 hands went to Harry J. Graham's black gelding Proud Prince, which possesses quality and manners, and was admirably ridden by Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue, Jr. Miss H. D. Atterbury rode Nickel Plate, a big winner on the Summer circuit, but which failed to perform up to her standard. Walter H. Hanley's Sir Evelyn, with Miss Helen Rasmussen in the saddle, was placed third.

Huntsmen in scarlet regulation coats and black velvet hats made a gallant show in the class for three qualified hunters from one hunt. Only two teams appeared in the arena, and resulted in a triumph for America over Canada. The Essex Fox Hounds were represented by G. Maynard, A. A. Fowler, and W. Cleland, while the Canadian riders were Jack Hamilton, Capt. J. W. Sifton, and Jack Sutton. The latter trio made a perfect score over the jumps, while one of the Essex club entries struck the top rail of the gate. As the conditions called for uniforms, appointments, and general excellence of the horses, the latter qualifications carried the New Jersey entry to victory.

The Dominion, however, evened up the score in the next event, which was for qualified hunters, when Capt. W. T. Rodden's bay gelding Outpost won the blue rosette after a keen competition from Mrs. Sidney J. Halloway's Caesar, formerly Dreadnought. Outpost returned perfect score over the jumps and showed to advantage when lined up with the other entries. Col. Clifton Sifton's Ravello was third, and England secured its first ribbon of the show with Capt. R. M. Stewart Richardson's Dan Leno, which was placed fourth. The summary:

SOCIETY MAKES FINE DISPLAY.

Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff in Gay Throng.

There was a large and brilliant assembly of society at both the afternoon and evening sessions of the Horse Show. The afternoon performance drew a larger gathering of well-known society people, probably owing to the counter attraction of the opera at night.

The Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhméteff made their first appearance at the exhibition during the afternoon, occupying Box 49, which the Ambassador has taken for the week. Mme. Bakhméteff wore a tailor-made costume of brown and a small black velvet hat with beautiful sables. She had large and superb diamond earrings.

In the adjoining box were Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean of Washington, D. C. Mrs. McLean wore a shade lighter brown costume with yellow furs, a small black velvet hat with yellow aigrettes, and pearls.

Mrs. Stotesbury in Blue.

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia appeared for the first time in Box 46, which Mr. Stotesbury had taken for the week. She wore a costume of gobelin blue and a blue velour hat topped with bluish ostrich plumes. Her earrings were large pear-shaped pearls and she wore several strands of pearls, a necklace of diamonds, and gray fox furs.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, in black velvet; Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson, (Miss Edith L. Stotesbury,) who was in black with ermine, and Lady Hadfield, occupied the box with Mrs. Stotesbury.

Lady Hadfield wore a stunning costume of chiffon velvet of a bluish pastel shade, with a broad drooping hat of the same shade, and an ermine cloak. Preston Gibson, Harry Black, and Ralph Bloomer were visitors in the box during the afternoon.

Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, as usual, received her friends in Box 13. She was in black velvet with a broad black velvet hat edged with sable. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Henry and Mrs. Frederick Martin Davies were with Mrs. Vanderbilt during the afternoon. Mrs. Henry, who was with Mrs. Vanderbilt at Newport last Summer, wore a costume of black velvet, with a minaret tunic, with touches of ermine, and a large black velvet hat. Mrs. Frederick Edey, who was in black and purple, with a purple velvet turban, visited Mrs. Vanderbilt for a while.

Mrs. Joseph Wright Harriman had a party of young people for the afternoon session, including her débutante daughter, Miss Miriam Harriman. The Misses Adelaide Cannon and Mary McCagg, a débutante of the season, were in the party. Mrs. Harriman wore a costume of raspberry red with a black velvet hat, and Miss Harriman was in peacock blue with fur

Mrs. E. Francis Hyde was in blue brocade velvet with a black velvet hat. At the evening session Mr. and Mrs. Hyde had Mr. and Mrs. George H. Church as their guests in Box 39.

Mrs. Charles B. Alexander was a visitor during the afternoon, appearing in a taupe costume with fox furs. She joined a box party, consisting of her daughters, the Misses Harriet and Janetta Alexander, Mrs. Richard L. Morris, (Miss Fellowes,) Mrs. Preston Davies, (Miss Emily Bedford,) and Miss Carol Harriman.

Mrs. Henry Seligman, who was in bottle green velvet, with a black velvet hat, had with her in Box 53, Mrs. Samuel Seligman, Mrs. Philip Lewisohn, Miss Greta Stout, and Miss Waterman.

Mrs. E. L. Breitung, who was in gray with furs, entertained Col. and Mrs. Kenna, the latter being in taupe, with a black velvet hat.

Among the Promenaders.

There were many who promenaded during the afternoon, among them being Mrs. Charles de Loosey Oelrichs, who was in black velvet with white fox furs; Mrs. Stuart Duncan, in dark blue with sables; Mrs. Walter Watson, in black, and her daughter, Miss Mai Watson; Miss Elise Ladew, in a gray checked suit; Miss Marie Taller, Miss Mimi Scott, a débutante of the season, who paid her first visit to the show, and was with Miss Ladew, wearing a tunic frock of black velvet; Mrs. Hamilton Wilkes Cary, Mrs. Morris Voick, in black; Mrs. George D. Pratt, Miss Pratt, Mrs. Henry L. Burnett, Mrs. Dave H. Coddington, Miss Angelica Brown, Miss Julia Robbins, Francis Roch, R. Thornton Wilson, Reginald Vanderbilt, Creighton Webb, who was with the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff for a time; Louis Haight, Mr. and Mrs. Berry Wall, Miss Hilda Holmes, Henry A. Barclay, Bryce Wing, Whitewright Watson, Miss Margaret Overton, Mrs. Frank A. R. Washburn, (Miss Pauline Clarkson,) Miss Vera L. Van Buren, Mrs. Johnston Livingston, Mrs. J. Gordan Douglas, in black with sables; James L. Breese, Mrs. Frederick Brooks, Miss Mary Brooks, Miss Angelica Gerry, Miss Susan Fish, Dresser, Miss Leonie Burrill, one of the season's débutantes; Mrs. George L. Nichols, Foxhall Keene, and Harvey S. Ladew.

Gen. J. A. Buchanan, U. S. A., retired, and his daughter, Miss Helen Buchanan of Washington, attended the show, entertaining Mrs. Edwin L. Arnold of Paris and Miss Juliana Conover of Princeton, N. J., also Baron and Baroness Long of Los Angeles, Cal.

LILL NEW PRESIDENT OF ATHLETIC UNION

Boston Man Elected as Head of Amateur Body to Succeed Kirby.

Alfred J. Lill, Jr., of Boston, was elected President of the Amateur Athletic Union yesterday at the twenty-sixth annual convention of the national governing athletic body at the Waldorf-Astoria. The Bostonian was opposed by George F. Pawling of Philadelphia, the men having been for the last year respectively first and second Vice Presidents of the body. The vote was 23 to 9 in favor of Lill. At the request of Mr. Pawling the vote was then made unanimous.

The only man at the top of the ticket who held over, his selection being unopposed, was James E. Sullivan, as Secretary-Treasurer, a position he has held since he surrendered the Presidency some years ago. The Vice Presidents chosen were: John Elliott, Pacific Association; Theodore R. Bland, Western Association; George J. Turner, Middle Atlantic Association, and Fred W. Bauer, South Atlantic Association.

The report of Mr. Sullivan showed a most encouraging state of affairs in the financial department, a net gain of $3,-161.56 being recorded for the year, with a complete capital in the general account of $24,877.52, attesting the strongest condition the Union has attained. The two greatest money getters proved to be the boxing and indoor championships, as these respectively netted $3,-086.84 and $2,594.19.

The report of the outgoing President Gustavus Town Kirby, in which was incorporated in modified form his recently much heralded scheme for the joint competition of amateurs and professionals, was read and referred to the incoming Board of Governors for action without discussion. In connection with it was a scheme for the government of amateur sport in the United States and contiguous territories, in which it was said there were many good points well worthy of absorption by the governing body.

The plan contemplates the organization of a body to be known by the name of The American Federation of Amateur Sports, or words to similar effect, with its chief objects being the agreement on the fundamental rules of amateurism. The outline of, the plan follows:

That an amateur is one who competes for sport's sake, or, as laid down in the rule recently accepted by the International Athletic Federation, the following:

1. An amateur is one who competes for the love of sport.
2. Competing for money or other pecuniary reward in any sport makes the competitor a professional in all sports.
3. In track and field athletic sports one who knowingly competes with or against a professional in sports other than track and field athletics, or for money or other pecuniary reward, then the member of the federation to which the athlete belongs shall be the judge of such competitor's status according to its own rules, and its certificate as to the competitor's status shall be accepted by all other members of the federation.
5. One who teaches, trains, or coaches in any sport for money or other pecuniary considerations is a professional, except however, that an employe or representative of any school or other educational institution, who teaches, trains, or coaches as an incident to his main employment, shall not become or may not be a professional, as the member of the federation governing such sport shall decide.

The suggestion of the New England Association that the governing body should take steps which would prevent the participation by professionals of cooperation as members of the Board of Governors or as members of the various registration committees was referred to the incoming board, as was their request for a change in the constitution and bylaws of that association, the delegates being instructed to return their request in piecemeal, so that each section might be taken up separately. The New England delegates particularly sought the right through the Board of Governors for a particular zone for the holding of their sectional titular events, a privilege which is now vested in the Championship Committee.

The Record Committee, headed by Frederick W. Rubien, attested to the acceptance of ninety-two new records. Seventy-eight of these were made on track and field and fourteen in swimming. Of those awarded for track and field excellence, forty-three are credited to Hannes Kolehmainen, who made thirty-one in outdoor events and twelve in indoor running, the record number made by an individual in any season.

There was some slight contention over the 42-pound stone record awarded Pat Ryan of the Irish-American Athletic Club, 29 feet 11¾ inches, it having been suggested at the eleventh hour that Ryan had fouled after his delivery by falling over on his hands. The game being essentially an Irish one, it developed that there was no rule on the books to govern the event, so the committee accepted it.

Dr. Otto E. Herschman, President of the Austrain Olympic Association, who is studying athletics in this country, was the guest of honor last night at the annual dinner of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States held in the Waldorf-Astoria.

The newly elected Board of Governors and the associations they represent are as follows:

Metropolitan Association—Hon. James E. Sullivan, Hon. Bartow S. Weeks, F. W. Rubien, Terence Farley, Capt. F. J. Walsh, E. J. V. Delany.

AUSTRIAN ENVOY AMAZED.

Dr. Herschman Marvels at Perfection of American Athletic Plants.

The great interest evidenced by Continental nations and others abroad in American athletics, and the desire for instruction in the best ways and means to further the competitive sides of the foreign teams which have only until recently taken a seemingly passive concern in the Olympic games, has taken a decided step forward with the appearance here of Dr. Otto Herschman, the emissary of the Austrian Government, who is studying American methods in track and field and kindred sports.

Realizing the wonderful progress made by the Swedish athletes through the medium of the adoption of the system of athletic training which obtains here, and which has been, since the revival of the games in Athens in 1896, marked by recurring successes, the Germans, who will have the honor of staging the next Olympic games in Berlin in 1916, have but recently been made aware of the conditions here which argue for such excellence by the German Imperial Commission, the members of which left for the fatherland a short time ago.

With the desire in view of being prepared for that time when Austria might be called upon to stand sponsor for the world's championships in all the sports in the Olympic catagory, that nation by its intention to take time by the forelock is now represented by Dr. Herschman, who was one of the contestants for his country at the first revival in Athens, his forte at that time being swimming.

Dr. Herschman is enthusiastic in his ideas of the possibilities of his country in regard to its absorption of the American scheme for betterment, and while he admits that his countrymen are only in the kindergarten stage as concerns their knowledge of the proper methods of perfecting themselves for such top-notch contests as occur in the athletic battles which concern the world, he feels that the time is not far distant when Austria's track and field men will put their country on the athletic map.

The Austrian envoy, who has been for a week past kept on the jump in his viewing of the various playgrounds, recreation centres, and similar projects of the city, under the mentorship of James E. Sullivan, the American Olympic Commissioner, Dr. E. W. Stitt, Daniel J. Ferris, and others, has marveled at the wonderful hold all kinds of sport have on the youth of the city. That it was this foundation work which almost aided in the telling of the story for the reason of American supremacy was not overlooked by the visitor was attested by his assertion that immediately upon his arrival home he would urge the establishment of similar schemes, which he was sure would aid in the physical betterment of the youth of his country.

While he admitted that Austria did not have athletes in such numbers as exist in some of the other continental nations, their sports being soccer football; swimming, and fencing, he is of the opinion that, with the rendering of his report to his Government, he will be able to awaken what he states is just a dormant condition, and one which only needs such a system as has been lauded, to show that his countrymen have the making of champions in those games which now attract the world to successive Olympiads.

Dr. Herschman has stated that that wonderful phase of collegiate athletic interest which exist here is practically unknown in his country, and that it will only need the right sort of practical example, through which the correct and easiest means of arriving at the end of athletic excellence is demonstrated, for the intent desire for track and field supremacy to become awakened.

As a practical athlete, and one who has continued some sort of exercise since his first introduction to competitive sport, he views the possibilities of his countrymen, and particularly the university men, as second to none of the nations on the Continent who have been similarly handicapped up to date, because of the lack of proper tuition along the lines best calculated to develop them.

Lehigh Eleven Goes Stale.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Nov. 17.—The first day of the last week of football practice at Lehigh University saw the orders of resident Coach Keady carried out in full, viz.: that for the next two days the 'Varsity is to forget that there is such a thing as football and that the men, as predicted yesterday, have been told to abandon the training table until Wednesday. A change of diet and absolute rest from practice are the heroic measures that the coaches have adopted to take the edge off the 'Varsity. Meanwhile the regulars are finding diversion in various ways, a popular one being an effort to catch up in their studies; also to digest a new code of signals to be used against Lafayette. To-day the coaches had the full second-string squad out in an effort to develop men needed for substitute material, principally ends, and with this end in view there was an extensive punting practice, when Crawford doing the kicking. It has been rumored that among the coaches who will be on hand to help whip the 'Varsity into shape this week will be Frank Cavanaugh, the coach at Dartmouth, and a friend of Tom Keady, Lehigh's coach. Both are Dartmouth men.

Middies Out to Cheer Navy Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 17.—The brigade of midshipmen occupied the stands during practice this afternoon and encouraged the Navy team by giving the songs and yells that will be used at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 29, when the game against the Army is played. The presence of the midshipmen caused lots of enthusiasm, and undoubtedly did the squad a great deal of good. They will be present at all the remaining practices on the home grounds. Nichols was at quarter back, indicating that he is the probable choice of the coaches to begin the Army game, unless something unforeseen happens. He ran the team with great speed and smoothness in signal drill this afternoon, attention being devoted to the plays which will be used for the first time against West Point. The coaches and friends of the Navy team fear overconfidence more than anything else, and are calling the attention of the players to the big scores made by the Army team in its last two games, against Albright and Villanova, respectively. They point out that the West Pointers have steadily improved and may be expected to be at their highest standard when the final game is played.

Penn Eleven Has Day Off.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—With nearly two weeks ahead in which to prepare for the final game of the season with Cornell on Thanksgiving Day the coaches decided to give the University of Pennsylvania football eleven a rest to-day, and the entire 'Varsity squad spent the afternoon in lounging about the training house. All of the men, with the exception of Chester Minds, the full back, came out of the Michigan game in the best of shape. Minds is still carrying his arm in a sling as a result of the injury to his shoulder sustained in the Dartmouth game, and grave fears are being held out that he will be lost to the team for the contest with Cornell. The coaches plan to work the team at an easy pace for the next few days, and it will likely be Thursday before another scrimmaging is given the regulars.

Michigan Football Captains.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 17.—James W. Raynsford, '15, engineer of Detroit, was to-day elected Captain of the University of Michigan football eleven for 1914. Raynsford has been playing left end this Fall.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 17.—George E. Julian of Rochester, N. Y., was to-day elected Captain of the Michigan Agricultural College football eleven for 1914.

YALE MEN ALL FIT TO PLAY HARVARD

Elis Go Through the Princeton Game Without Showing a Physical Mark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—"Every Yale player who faced Princeton last Saturday will be in shape to go against Harvard," said John Mack, the Yale trainer to-night.

Mack returned to-day from Fairfield, where he went with the regular squad Saturday night, and looked after the two elevens that fought out two hours drill to-day in order to give the substitutes who will be used Saturday some practice with the Harvard formations.

Two players who were in the Princeton game, Nate Wheeler and "Bud" Wiser, were on the 'Varsity eleven that was marshalled. Wheeler caught punts perfectly and Wiser was the stellar ground gainer of the afternoon, crashing through centre for 40 yards at one time. Russell Cooney returned to the game and is apparently in prime condition. He was tried as snap-back today, and if he gets into the Harvard game, it will be as understudy to Henry Marting. Harold Pumpelly was given an afternoon of scrimmage routine, his first day to drive through the entire practice. He was placed at fullback and exhibited ragged form in defensive play, although he improved toward the close of the afternoon.

"Red" Brann, who has featured in quick recoveries of fumbles all the season, furnished the fireworks for the practice by snatching a poor pass from centre Miller to half back McDonald of the scrubs, and racing 40 yards for a touchdown. This closed the first 20 minutes practice which was devoted to testing the 'Varsity line with Harvard formations, which the scrubs used.

Taking the ball at their own 10 yard line, the 'Varsity drove back 90 yards in eighty plays, long dashes by Wiser and MacLeish covering half the distance.

Wheeler kept the eleven on the high gear and the regulars were never held till the third down. Arnould's smashing through and Loughridge's open field play stamped for the rush line members. The coaches present included Howard Jones, Spalding, Bomeisler, Gaisuer, Bull and Heffelfinger and the practice was secret.

The regulars returned to-night in time for supper at the training table, every table apparently in the pink of form. Captain Ketcham said that he believed every member would be able to get into the Harvard game.

By way of variety to-night the Yale football eleven relaxed training hours and attended the entertainment in the Prospect Hill residence of Major Louis Stoddard. Several players from the Polo Circuit appeared before the players, who were allowed considerable liberty in their diet for the evening.

TO BRACE HARVARD RUSH LINE

Trumbull's Return to Centre Expected to Improve Team Greatly.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 17.—Harvard began its last week's work to-day in preparation for the Yale game, all hands being in good shape, and the Crimson is now assured of being able to send its best and strongest team against the Blue. Hitchcock wrenched his ankle in the Brown game, but the injury did not amount to much, and he will not be handicapped, except that he will not work too hard until the middle of the week. The next four days will be spent in getting the team in shape on the offensive, and in inspiring the eleven with "ginger," which was more apparent at the beginning of the season than it has been lately.

Yale's showing against the Tigers has inspired the Harvard, 1912, champions with the belief that only their best football will suffice to beat them, and that the result of the game will depend largely on the fighting qualities of the eleven as much as on the football the elevens have to put on.

The Harvard coaches are not yet satisfied with the work of their rush line, and every effort will be made to get the players together. The return of Trumbull to play centre will be a great asset in the week's work, as Trumbull not only is the best fighter on the team, but also is a leader on the field on offense. He is ready to play, but at the same time there is grave doubts of his being able to remain throughout the game. He attended the Yale-Princeton match at New Haven, and was much impressed with the New Haven rush line.

The week's work will include considerable defense, although it is doubtful whether the players will be allowed to scrimmage.

On attack there are also many plays to get running smooth, and all week the punters and drop-kickers will be busy, for, more than ever, it looks as if the kicking game would figure largely on Saturday.

The team will go to the country probably on Friday, as it is understood that the Faculty is inclined not to favor an earlier departure. The betting on the game has fallen off since Harvard refused to continue the 10 to 6 odds that were offered so profusely a couple of weeks ago. Yale will not give even money, and Harvard, with its veteran team and last year's record as well as that of this Fall, probably will have to return to at least 10 to 8 odds to do business.

Lafayette Seems Overtrained.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Nov. 17.—This afternoon on March Field Lafayette eleven started its preparation for the game with Lehigh, the biggest game on the schedule of each team. There are mingled feelings of rejoicing and sorrow among the coaches and those who are close to the team—rejoicing because there is not a serious injury on the team and, barring accidents, Lafayette will present her strongest line-up on Saturday; sorrow because there are evidence that Lafayette is not in the best of condition as a team. There are evidences of overtraining. This was seen in the game on Saturday, especially in the case of Scheeren. To-day when the men worked on March Field there were still further signs of this unfortunate state of affairs. The men tried their best, but there was a certain slowness and artificiality in their spirits which showed that they were not just on edge as they should be in a crisis like this. However, there are four more days to go.

The practice this afternoon was confined strictly to signal work on the new plays. The team has had these plays for some time, but they have never been used in public. The purpose of this practice was to get the stiffness out of the men. After supper there was a gathering of the whole squad in Brainard Hall, where they discussed the plays to be used against Lehigh. These meetings will be held every night this week.

CORNELL PRIMING FOR PENN.

Coach Sharpe to Stand Pat on Present Team Combination.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The Cornell football team began its practice this afternoon for the final game of the year with Pennsylvania. The Ithaca scouts who had seen the Pennsylvania-Michigan game at Ann Arbor returned with a full report on the Quaker style of play and the formations that Coach Brooke's team used against Michigan, and for an hour this evening Head Coach Sharpe explained these plays to the Cornell eleven in a blackboard demonstration, and from now until the team leaves for Philadelphia the 'Varsity will be sent against the scrubs in a series of scrimmages, with the second team employing the Pennsylvania formations.

The eleven came out of the Lafayette game in good shape, although a few of them were injured. Barrett suffered a leg bruise that put him out of the game, but it was said to-day that it was not serious, and that Cornell's star would be back in the line-up to-morrow. The coaches expect to get the players in tip-top physical condition for the contest with the Quakers, and they feel that they can do this and still drive the team hard throughout the week.

"The men need a pile of work," declared Dr. Sharpe to-day. He said that he was firmly convinced the newly organized eleven was stronger than the old, and that he intends to stand pat on it. On the other hand, he does not feel that the eleven did itself justice in the game against Lafayette, and was displeased at the ragged team play which the game brought forth.

CORNELL'S $50,000 APPEAL.

That Sum Needed to Complete New Athletic Field by Next Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—According to a report of the Cornell Alumni Field Committee, football games may be played on the new Cornell field next Fall, if a sum ranging between $50,000 and $60,000 is forthcoming in a short time. This sum would complete the football field and running track and build the stadium and inclosure around the field in time for the 1914 football season. The Alumni Field Committee has practically exhausted its resources. It will have spent about $220,000 on the grading of the track, the erection of the baseball cage, and the Schoelkopf Memorial Clubhouse by the time the latter structure completed next Summer.

In addition to the sum required for the football field and stadium, about $45,000 more will be needed later for laying out and equipping the baseball field.

The committeemen present, who include Col. Henry W. Sackett and Willard D. Straight, voted to designate the new baseball cage the Bacon Practice Hall, in honor of George W. Bacon of New York, Chairman of the Alumni Field Committee, and one of the most active men in the movement.

ARMY TEAM IN GOOD SHAPE.

Benedict and Huston the Only Cripples—Navy Game In View.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The Army team came through the Villanova contest in fine shape. Benedict and Huston are now the only real cripples. The former is expected to return to the squad this week. He has been idle since the Tufts encounter three weeks ago. Huston's last workout was for a few minutes in the Notre Dame contest, but he, too, is expected to get back in time to play a portion of the game scheduled for next Saturday with Springfield.

The squad got their usual Monday curtain lecture from the coaches and were then sent through a fast and snappy signal drill. Head Coach Daly and his assistants will work hard with the team during the half-dozen scrimmages that are planned before the Navy game. The line men will continue to come in for special instruction, and Coach Albright and Villanova games the forwards showed greatly improved form, but their playing is not yet entirely satisfactory to the coaches, and there may be one or two shifts in the line this week. All the practices from now until the navy game will be secret.

Indians Won't Be Caught Napping.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 17.—The Carlisle Indians are looking toward the Syracuse game at Syracuse on Saturday with more apprehension than would be generally expected of the team which defeated Dartmouth so decisively. Coach Warner's men feel that superhuman effort will be made by the New York football team to catch them off their guard, as they did two years ago, when the red skins, in sublime confidence of their powers, ran into a slump in the Syracuse game. Carlisle will not be taken by surprise this year. To-day the dusky aborigines had a light practice. Notwithstanding permission was given the 'Varsity men to lay-off, nearly all appeared in togs so as to refute any ideas that they were banged up. Usual fundamentals were run through, and after comprehensive signal drill, in which the scrub teams followed the formations used against Dartmouth, a twenty-minute scrimmage closed the day's work.

The Carlisle officials this afternoon decided to decline the deluge of offers received from more than forty towns and institutes from the Far West and South for post-season games. The authorities feel that they cannot allow the Indian students to be absented from their studies, as would be necessary by a long trip.

Plan to Foil Ticket Speculators.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—By a change in the manner of marking the tickets for this year's Harvard-Yale football game, the Harvard Athletic authorities hope to be able to prevent ticket speculation. On each ticket is stamped the name of the individual applicant and he alone will be allowed to use it. If a ticket is presented at the Stadium by a person other than the one whose name appears on the card it will be confiscated and the one to whom it was issued will be deprived of the right to apply for tickets to future games. Frederick W. Moore, graduate Treasurer of the Harvard Athletic Association, to-day began the distribution of about 27,000 tickets to Harvard graduates and undergraduates.

Morristown School's Fine Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 17.—Morristown School is still happy over its victory of Saturday, when it defeated the strong Hackley School team 20 to 8. This game ended the season for Morristown in what proved to be the best the school has ever had. Seven games won was its record, and one it could well be proud of. Young Wendell, brother of Percy Wendell, Captain of last year's Harvard team, was the star of the team, and showed his mettle in every game. His friends expect him to make good at Harvard as well as he did at Morristown.

HOPPE RETAINS 18.2 BALK-LINE TITLE

Champion's Billiard Skill Too Much for Demarest in Match at Astor.

William Hoppe, the 18.2-balkline billiard champion, playing as he always does in championship play, with rare skill and cunning, successfully defended his title against Calvin Demarest of Chicago in the Ball Room of the Hotel Astor last night. Victory came comparatively easy to Hoppe, and he won by a score of 500 to 294. The champion's average was 21 17-23, and his high runs were 121, 81, and 57. Demarest started poorly, but made a great rally in the fourteenth inning, when he made a fine run of 115 and passed Hoppe. This rally by Demarest was the incentive which awoke Hoppe to his best game, and after that he clicked off the carroms in rapid succession, the balls responding marvelously to the wizardry of his technique.

The Ball Room of the Astor was crowded with enthusiastic spectators, including several hundred women. Even the tier boxes were filled. Both players were uncertain at the start, Demarest being very slow in getting started. Hoppe played with the same easy, careless skill which makes him a cue master. His conception of angles was wonderful. He played fast, chosing his shots with good judgment and seldom erring. The champion's high run of 121 saw him at his best. He showed a great versatility of play and a certainty of execution. Both players were at times daring and their intricate solution of many shots was greeted with genuinely enthusiastic applause. Hoppe had seven zero innings, an unusually large number of misses for him, while Demarest failed to score in six innings.

Demarest won the bank and chose the white ball. He missed the first shot, and Hoppe followed suit. The Chicago youth was perceptibly nervous, and missed a natural carrom after tallying 4 in the second. Hoppe rolled up 4 in the third, but, after resorting to three cushion shots, failed to gather the balls. In the fourth, after Demarest seemed to be in his stride, he missed an easy draw on his ninth shot. The champion had the balls under good control in the sixth and clicked off 39, when his run terminated on a miscue. In this collection of tallies Hoppe found the balls lined up closely on his twenty-first shot. He got out of the difficulty by playing a beautiful bank shot. He registered his thirty-sixth point by a collection with a daring follow, which brought forth a round of applause.

Hoppe continued his skillful cue work in the seventh inning, chalking up 57 carroms before succumbing to an easy natural on the lower rail. The champion's twenty-seventh point of his run was tallied on a difficult massé, in which the cue ball spun more than a foot to the second object ball. Hoppe gathered another bevy of 55 carroms in the eighth inning. On this visit to the table Hoppe carried the balls from one panel to the other until he had carried the balls all the way around the table. After showing a deftly played nursing game, the balls spread out over the table on a too vigorous shot, and the champion then showed his skill at three cushion, gathering the balls again in the lower rectangle, where he fell down on a draw shot on his fifty-fifth attempt.

Up to this inning Demarest was still nervous and failed to get the balls under control. In the eighth inning Hoppe had piled up a commanding lead of 172 points over the challenger.

Demarest overcame his timidity in the twelfth inning, and after a dazzling exhibition of open and close billiards, he executed a pretty run of 58. After adding on a score of carroms, the balls were spread widely over the table. With two vigorous three-cushion strikes Demarest brought forth a storm of applause by collecting the ivories at the upper rail, on two unusually clever draw shots of great length. Then he nursed the balls short, and the balk line closely. His fifty-sixth shot was a long bank and a beauty.

This run of Demarest's came to an end when he missed a long follow shot on the side rail by a hair. After making a foolish miss in the fourteenth inning Demarest then gave as fine an exhibition of nerve as has ever been seen in an important billiard match. The challenger went to the table in the fourteenth inning, 107 points behind Hoppe. With great skill and rare judgment Demarest gradually climbed up on the champion until he tied him on the two hundred and first point. Demarest was cheered wildly for his feat.

He executed a run of 115 before he failed on a difficult three-cushion attempt, which he missed by a narrow margin. Demarest suffered a bit of hard luck on his one hundred and fourteenth shot, when he found his cue ball frozen close to the lower rail. The balls were spotted for the challenger, and he registered his one hundred and fifteenth carrom, but the balls were left widely spread out. The only solution of the intricate situation was a three-cushion shot, and Demarest missed it.

The challenger made 3 points in the next inning, but failed to get the balls out of balk.

Hoppe, undismayed at his opponent's great spurt, took the lead again in the fifteenth inning with a dazzling run of 81. Hoppe failed to get the ivories out of balk on his eighty-second shot.

The champion gave a wonderful display of the balk line game in this inning, his nursing at the lines calling a delicacy of stroke and a remarkable finesse, such as only Hoppe is master of. With the lightest imaginable contact of cue tip and ball, the champion kept the balls rolling to and fro over the balk lines, the kiss of the spheres being only faintly audible.

Following this run with cleverly earned clusters of 19 and 38 Hoppe reached a total of 339 points in the seventeenth inning, with a lead of 120 over the challenger. Demarest collected 48 points, when he was again the victim of a hard three-cushion shot.

Hoppe, in the nineteenth inning, tolled off 121 caroms, the high run of the game. The playing of the young master in gathering this generous collection was at times uncommonly brilliant. He showed a wide variance of play, the most spectacular shot of many being a six-cushion carom, which netted him his one hundred and twentieth point. Hoppe played open table billiards, and a close nursing game, as pleased his fancy. He collected the balls with marvelous skill, and the ivories gathered after each shot as if by magic response. This brought the champion's total to 462. Another pretty run of 32 brought Hoppe within half a dozen points of victory in the twenty-first inning. An unfinished run of 6 carried him to the 500 mark in the twenty-third inning. The score by innings:

Hoppe—0 10 24 2 0 39 57 55 0 0 3 7 4 0 81 19 38 2 1 121 0 32 0 6—500.

GIANTS WIN IN RAIN.

Oregonians So Keen for Game It Was Played in a Storm.

By JOHN J. McGRAW,
Manager of the New York Giants.

Special to The New York Times.

MEDFORD, Ore., Nov. 17.—Wiltse had the White Sox at his mercy here to-day in a rainstorm game and the Giants shut out the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 0, in six innings. When Umpire Klem called the game the fans, who had paid $2 a seat, cried for more, but the work of Jupiter Pluvius was too much for the players and the fans too. The game was a farce, by no means, though Magee, our left fielder, did make a spectacular one-handed catch with an umbrella over his head. Jack Sheridan umpired in an overcoat, but it wasn't a cold rain.

When we arrived here rain was falling, and Mr. Comiskey and I wanted to call the game off, but the committee begged us to play, as Oregonians were keen for the contest. It was a pretty game, the first inning, particularly, when the Giants got the two-run lead. Then it rained for what might have been good for four innings, and it was some time before the game could continue.

Lobert and Merkle pulled out a couple of two-baggers and scored. Another run came in the fifth inning. Joe Rader, who was a member of the White Sox training camp here last Spring and a resident here, played third base for Schaefer, who has an injured back. Following the game a banquet was tendered us, and then we started for Portland, where a game will be played to-morrow, and a banquet will follow. The score:

GUNBOAT SMITH WINS BOUT.

Sam Langford Defeated in Twelve-Round Battle in Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Gunboat Smith of New York received the decision over Sam Langford of Boston at the end of a twelve-round bout here to-night.

Smith led clearly during the early rounds of the bout, scoring repeatedly on left jabs to Langford's head and body, while the Boston negro made no serious attempt at defense. But as the bout went on Smith, the California heavyweight, wearied, and Langford assumed the aggressive, sending his left and right to Smith's body at short range, while the latter swung unsuccessfully at Langford's head. So many and so strong were Langford's blows in the closing rounds that many of the spectators expressed surprise at the decision of Referee Dick Fleming.

Smith at the start jabbed away with his left, supplying nearly all the action. Langford did not seem to be bothered by the long-range blows, turning many away without great effort and standing up under others without defense. Occasionally he interlected a right or left on Smith's body, but not until the seventh round did he make any apparent attempt to maintain the battle. Then Langford started a short-range fight, which in the eighth round resulted in opening Smith's cheek under the left eye.

Smith, by reputation a strong right-hand fighter, relied on his left jabs throughout. Several attempts to land right swings met with varying success, the Californian's best efforts in this respect getting only three swings partially inside Langford's defense in the last four rounds. But his jabs were continuous.

Smith's cheek bled freely as the fight neared the end, the blood getting into his eye and blinding him. Smith seemed fatigued, and hung on to his opponent, while Langford, although apparently carrying more weight than at any time in his career, appeared the stronger. Langford escaped unmarked.

Italian Cycle Team Sails.

Maurice Brocco and Francisco Verri, who will make up the Italian team in the coming six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, sailed from Havre Saturday on the French liner La France for this city. On their arrival here the pair will go to Newark and work out at the Velodrome in preparation for the event. The other European contestants will sail from Havre next Saturday on La Lorraine. Verri, who holds the Italian championship, has never figured in a six-day race in this country, but he has established a big reputation in European cycling circles. Brocco has appeared here before and is one of the most popular riders who has figured in the long races. Walter Rutt, German champion, will be a member of the party which sails from Havre this week.

Water Polo at Columbia.

Water polo practice for Columbia's 'Varsity team began yesterday. Montgomery Maze, Captain, issued the first call for candidates. Twenty men reported in the pool in the university gymnasium to Dr. George E. Holm and Frank Kennedy, the coaches. They were put through a half hour's tackling and scrimmaging. The sophomores outplayed the juniors in a rough and scrolling game in the pool yesterday afternoon by a score of 10 to 5.

Boxer Coulon Heard From.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Friends of Johnny Coulon, the bantamweight champion, who feared that he had met with harm during the recent storm on the Great Lakes, were reassured to-day when a letter was received stating that he would remain hunting in the Canadian wilds for another month.

Mt. St. Mary's to Play Fordham.

The request of Mount St. Mary's College of Emmitsburg, Md., for the Thanksgiving Day game with Fordham has been granted by the Maroon football management. The game will be played at Fordham Field, and it will mark the first appearance in New York of the strong Mount St. Mary's eleven. It was expected that New York University and Fordham would clash on the open date, but the Violet eleven winds up its schedule with the Navy on Saturday and did not care to continue in training. The poor tackling of the Fordham wing men and the secondary defense in recent games has caused the use of the tackling dummy, and for the rest of the week the eleven will return to the fundamentals. After the Holy Cross disaster last Saturday at Worcester, Mass., Head Coach Tom Thorpe is sure to make a shake-up in the Maroon eleven.

BROOKLYN RELEASES MANAGER DAHLEN

Jake Daubert Most Likely to be Selected as Superbas' New Leader.

William F. Dahlen, manager of the Brooklyn baseball club for the past four seasons, was released unconditionally yesterday by President Charles H. Ebbets. The Brooklyn club owner declined to name the man who will succeed Dahlen, but declared he is well known to baseball followers. The name will be announced during the latter part of the present week, President Ebbets declared.

The release of Dahlen did not occasion much surprise to close followers of Brooklyn baseball. It has been rumored since the closing weeks of the past season that Dahlen was to be deposed, but President Ebbets refused to admit that such a thing was under consideration. Ebbets has always been a strong admirer of "Bad Bill," as he was named during his career as an active player, and he has continually voiced sentiments of his high regard for Dahlen as a manager. This feeling was not general, however, among the stockholders of the Brooklyn club, and it is understood that pressure was brought to bear on Ebbets which brought about Dahlen's release.

Jake Daubert, the Brooklyn Captain, and Harry Smith, who piloted Newark to a championship in the International League, have been mentioned prominently as Dahlen's successor since the rumor first gained circulation that he was to go. The Newark team is controlled by Ebbets and the McKeever brothers, and this fact lent weight to the Smith story. At the close of the regular season Daubert took charge of the Brooklyn team for a series of games in Cuba, and he is expected to reach Brooklyn this week. This fact, coupled with Ebbets's declaration yesterday that he would introduce the new manager Thursday, leads to belief that Daubert is the man.

The name of Wilbert Robinson of Baltimore was added to the list of managerial possibilities yesterday. Robinson is alleged to have mentioned recently to a Baltimore man that he was in line for the Brooklyn management, and the news came out during the recent Federal League meeting at Chicago. The Federal League at that time was angling for Robinson's services. Robinson has held the position as assistant to McGraw for the past few years,

TACTICS OF CURRENCY LEGISLATION.

There was no mistaking the disapproval of the House Currency bill by the banking sentiment of the country, regardless of geographical situation or financial proportions. As the bill left the House it was too bad to be possible. As the Senate Committee made the necessary changes the bill gradually became too good to be Democratic. The Democratic conference put a stop to this process of amendment only to bring it into operation in another quarter. It is now the Republican turn to pander to the ignorance and prejudice of the politicians, rather than to enact the best bill they know how to frame. A Republican suggestion of a guarantee of bank deposits is a fair offset to the Democratic proposal of making the banknotes legal tender. At this rate there is not a single nostrum which the country has condemned which the bill will not contain. Congress seems to think that this is the year of the Lord and of financial folly of four or five Presidential campaigns ago.

If the bill takes the form now indicated those responsible for its crudities and follies will undergo another painful process of education like that which taught the country that sound finance is the only policy that carries elections. The Republican plan, apparently, is to make the bill so bad that it will divide the Democrats, and give the Republicans a partisan advantage. The Republicans should know that this is not the time nor the topic for that sort of manoeuvre. The Republicans should support what is good in the Democratic programme rather than rival what is bad. The Republicans have the better record on this class of legislation, and are therefore more to blame than the Democrats for the affront to the country's intelligence in their present policy. If the Republicans have the patience to wait the Democrats are in the way to present them with this issue as the Republicans presented the Democrats with the tariff issue. But by yielding to the Democratic dementia they may disorder at once the politics and finances of the country.

Both parties act as though the country had no escape from accepting whatever Congress chooses to enact. The country no more has to accept fiat legislation than fiat money. Unless the bill embodies the sterling value of what the country knows through bitter experience the taint of the fiat will cling to it in spite of all the politicians may do. There are more ways than one of rejecting fiat legislation or fiat money. The banks are under threat that if they will not accept the bill they will be made to suffer loss through their bonds. There is no way to make the banks suffer through their bonds without the country suffering worse. What would it profit the Democrats to enact legislation containing within it the sure seeds of party defeat and national discredit? Let them put value into the bill and the banknotes, and there will be no need of fiat for either. If they put the fiat in instead of the value there can be no doubt of penitential days for themselves and for the country.

FORFEITABLE MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT POLICIES.

Suppose the automobile accident policies issued by the casualty companies should contain a clause providing that, if an accident occurred during the commission of a misdemeanor, such as that of driving while intoxicated or while violating the speed law, the policy should be forfeited. The suggestion has been made that such a measure would serve to reduce the numbers of killed and injured in the public highways.

In Manhattan alone, according to Coroner's Clerk LE BUCK, there were 123 deaths in automobile accidents during the first nine months of 1913. The killings on "Death Avenue" by the New York Central cars never averaged more than ten a year, yet the tracks at grade are to be abolished. The injuries and fatalities due to reckless driving of automobiles are increasing both actually and relatively to the increase of cars. If a man sets fire to his own house or barn his fire insurance policy is immediately forfeit. Why should not an automobile policy be made forfeitable in case of an accident incidental to a violation of the State laws?

President F. A. BROWN of the Casualty Claim Men's Association of Detroit declared in a recent issue of The Spectator that more than 95 per cent. of automobile accidents are due to carelessness, and that the "condition has reached a point where it "has become serious." Could anything be done that would meet this serious situation more directly and effectually than a statute requiring the insertion in accident policies of a clause such as that suggested? The objection may be made that an owner while responsible for the negligence of his agent—in this case a reckless chauffeur—should have the right to transfer his penalty of civil damages to a casualty company. On the other hand, if the owner might not waive damages he would be extremely careful in selecting a driver and in instructing him not to violate the laws. His life would be safer, and the lives of the public would be safer. We publish the suggestion for what it may be worth.

THE OPERA TICKET SCANDAL.

The deplorable scandal caused by the withholding of tickets for the opera, which had been bought through an agent and paid for, has not been silenced by the compromise through which this week's tickets have been released to their owners. It is likely that there will be many weeks of bewilderment and that litigation may be necessary, even if criminal prosecution is not had. Some dissent has been expressed to the opinion offered here the other day that all this trouble would be avoided if subscribers to the opera would take the little extra trouble required to get their seats directly from the box office of the Opera House. Yet that plan is perfectly feasible, and a general agreement of all the regular subscribers to get along without the aid of the agent, who saves them very little trouble at any time, would soon deprive those middlemen of any share of the profit on season subscriptions.

Of course, the agents would still subscribe, but only for as many seats as they felt sure of disposing of to chance buyers. We can scarcely hope at present for any such general public movement as would be required to suppress speculation in opera or theatre tickets. It was a great boon to get rid of the troublesome sidewalk speculator. The services of the various agencies are too useful to people who do not care to make up their minds too far ahead when they want to see a play or an opera. But in the case of most of these opera subscriptions the agent does nothing more than take over the vouchers for seats held from year to year in the names of the same persons and hold them for delivery. He performs a service which any clerk could perform as easily. Many subscribers have always preferred to get their seats directly from the box office, and they have been as well served.

WHO GOT THE MONEY?

For the people of this city there is one point of absorbing interest in the investigation begun by Mr. WHITMAN into the levying of blackmail in the form of campaign contributions upon the contractors for highway and canal work. It is, Who got the money? Into what receptacle or reservoir did these contributions find their way? The exceeding great solicitude of MURPHY to retain his hold upon the Democratic organization up-State, all through the State, has seemed to be a fact not wholly unrelated to the policy of highway and canal improvement under which the State is spending more than $200,000,000. The relation of political control to contracts has been made known in a thousand ways.

September and October are harvest months not for the husbandman alone. It has long been believed that in those two months the revenues of Tammany are customarily swollen by multitudinous contributions for campaign expenses. That the money is all spent for speakers, for the hire of halls, literature, postage, and election workers, would be believed only by the credulous. There is a very great probability that the graft trail which Mr. WHITMAN is following will, if he follows it far enough, lead him into Tammany Hall.

The District Attorney is having trouble with his witnesses. One of them almost collapsed under the strain of examination. Another, it appears, has reconsidered his half-formed resolve to become communicative. Is it fear that restrains their tongues, or is there some other motive? We should suppose that every honest contractor who has submitted to these extortions would make full disclosure to Mr. WHITMAN. Conceivably, a contractor who is not honest might submit to the levy in consideration of a promise that his specifications should be made to his liking, or that inspection should not be too rigid. But no honest contractor would be actuated by that motive. Now is the time for all of them to come forward with their testimony and be rid, once for all, of the extortioners and blackmailers. Large financial institutions in this city formerly had to submit to similar demands, most of them from Albany. Bills would be advanced, or held in committee, for a consideration. The Insurance Investigation, more than any other one thing, put an end to that. It is singular that the contractors should hold back, when by giving all possible aid to the District Attorney they might destroy the system which compels them to give up so much money.

Whatever the contractors may elect to do, the people of the State can have but one interest. It is that the graft in the highway and canal work may be completely exposed. The money comes from them, not from those who actually pay it over to the collector. It is paid by the people, either in the form of higher prices for contract work, or in the still worse form of fraudulent specifications or skimped performance. No investigation since Mr. TILDEN'S exposure of the canal frauds almost forty years ago has been so rich in promise of punishment for the guilty and benefit to the people as the work which Mr. WHITMAN has now undertaken.

ABOLISH SING SING.

The State Prison Association points out the fact that since 1906 this State has been committed to the principle of doing away with Sing Sing Prison. The whole system under which this institution is conducted, for the reform of those undergoing for the first time a felon's sentence, is pernicious. The principle, first and last, is that of confinement, not of reform. Confinement breeds disease. As a disease-breeder Sing Sing has a record almost unequaled in the history of contemporary prisons. The physical infection is a sign, also, of lasting moral infection. The prisoners are not reformed. They are merely penalized, and in the worst way.

The State Prison Association has ed Gov. GLYNN to discountenance the pleas made for the renovation of the old prison and to expedite the plans for doing away with it altogether by building a prison industrial farm. The only plausible argument in favor of retaining Sing Sing is that the cell block may be rebuilt and amplified. That is, the principle of confinement may be extended, and it will cost the State less to extend it than to build a convict farm that could be run in the interest of really reforming the prisoners.

Such reformatories are sure to be healthful, since they require work in the fields, and not a life within dark walls. New Jersey has bought 1,000 acres for such a farm, Pennsylvania 500 acres for its central prison, the District of Columbia is building a house of correction on 1,000 acres, and Ohio is looking about for a farm site with broad acreage to replace the old State penitentiary at Columbus. In the Western States the prisoners are being transferred to the roads and fields, and cell blocks with their high prison walls are being abandoned. It is time we had more prisons like that at Great Meadow, where the inmates are locked in their cells only while asleep.

GOV. GLYNN.

It is a very practical beginning of economy in the State service which Gov. GLYNN makes by cutting the expenditures of the executive office in two. Seventy thousand dollars is not a large sum in the monstrous total the State spends, but the ratio of reduction is a striking one. The principle on which the reduction is made is also a sound and promising one. To stop the endless drains, to do away with extravagant show, to keep the appropriation so low that those who expend it will have to be careful at every point, and especially to leave no margin for pilfering and plunder, that is setting an example that gives the Governor authority and influence with his associates and subordinates. It sets a gait which he can, with great effect, demand that they also shall adopt and maintain.

Of still greater importance and cheerful significance is the offer Gov. GLYNN made of appointment to the Public Service Commission to Democrats of high standing. Unfortunately the offer was not accepted, but the standard was announced. It may be taken as notice to the Senate and to the party leaders generally that the Governor is not to be their humble servitor, also that he is not disposed to trade in State appointments, but will consider primarily the interests of the public. Doubtless at first the Senate majority will meet him in a chastened mood, and that will be his chance to establish good working relations with them on the basis of the standard of fitness for appointments which he has already adopted. Neither the Chief nor the Sub-Chiefs of Tammany can just now care to challenge further condemnation by resisting the Governor's plan to raise the level of the public service. They will for some time yet be too much engaged in escaping the meshes of the net which Mr. WHITMAN is spreading to the remotest corners of the State. The Governor has made a good start, and has a wide field opening hopefully before him.

ART, LETTERS, AND THE SENSE OF HUMOR.

The communion of our self-appointed guides in literature and art in Chicago was doubtless satisfying to all the participants. There were no disturbances. If the proceedings were not inspiring, they were assuredly not annoying. The beauty about this Institute of Arts and Letters and its allied Academy is that they make no attempt whatever to deceive. Even the members are not deceived. They do nothing corporately or individually to dissuade their contemporaries from seeking such comprehension of art and letters as they may derive from any accessible sources. They make no claim to a monopoly of all the art and all the letters to be discovered between longitude 67 and 124 west and latitude 25 and 49 north. They have, as we infer from the all too imperfect reports of their proceedings, all they need in their business and they do not care who knows it.

That the country at large does not indicate any increase of pride in its aesthetic development because of their incorporation does not disturb the Institute or depress the spirits of the Academy. The fact of their joint corporate existence is established beyond dispute, and what more could reasonably be asked? To exist and to dwell together in harmony, felicitating each other, and avoiding the foolish dissensions which of old disturbed communities of the elect—these blessings satisfy our self-appointed guides. It is a pity, therefore, that although the annual love feast was held without a hint of bickering, there should be a controversial sequel.

To the utterly undebatable suggestion that the constitution of the corporation should be changed to admit women to membership, the adroit reply was made that the women might form an Academy and an Institute of their own. As that is precisely the plan followed by the self-selected "immortals" and their associates, the reply was certainly sufficient. There is no earthly reason why any Americans, male or female, should not form an Institute and Academy of their own, to establish as best they may their ante-mortem fame. Some of the members, however, seem to have been "talked to" since they came home. They are trying to hedge. What ought to be an end of the controversy, however, may be found in a pertinent remark of Mr. ROBERT W. CHAMBERS, one of the Founders of the Institute. He, like the others who have spoken, believes that there should be "no distinction in art because of sex," but, he declares, "This sort of thing does not interest "me. You see, I have a sense of "humor." We do not believe that Mr. CHAMBERS intends to imply that his associates generally lack a sense of humor. On the contrary, he must believe, as the rest of us do, that they are all very much alive to the humor of the present situation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Happiness Outweighs the Pain.

Fox hunting has been defended before on the plea that to all concerned—the men, the horses, the dogs, and even the fox—it gave a large amount of innocent pleasure. This plea, because of its inclusion of the fox, has generally passed as a rather cruel jest, invented by somebody who didn't really care whether or not the object of the chase enjoyed a heart-breaking flight before savage enemies or its usual termination in a death hardly to be called calm. Now, however, that the Archbishop of York, in dedicating a memorial to a clergyman who had indulged in this sport, felt compelled to use practically the same argument, and to do it seriously, the theory of cynical jesting must be abandoned, at least for once, and one must give the case of the hunted fox more careful attention than it ordinarily receives.

Evidently the Archbishop admitted that the burden of proof rested on the fox hunters, and the best he could, or the most that he would, say for them was that their amusement was not necessarily or absolutely wrong, and for its excuse he suggested the undeniable possibility that "the balance of happiness" outweighed the pain inflicted, not only for the man, the horses, and the dogs, but also for the fox.

This is not easy to see, at first, but one can, and perhaps the Archbishop did, figure out the fox's balance in this way: Were it not for hunting, certainly few foxes, and probably none, would be allowed to live in such a country as England. To hunting, therefore, the English foxes owe all the joys they have, which are presumably as many, till the end comes, as they are capable of having, and that a violent death ends their existence is a fact not to be viewed from an anthropomorphizing standpoint, but with a clear remembrance that for animals violent death is natural death. With hardly an exception they all perish that way, and it is no worse to be killed by a dog than by any other animal.

The suspicion that there may be an element of sophistry in this argument must of course be dismissed for the reason that it is presented by an Archbishop. His logic simply must be sound.

His Last Service to Science.

That the brain of Prince KATSUSA, the "Elder Statesman" who has just died in Japan, was heavier by some 300 grams than that possessed by the often mentioned, but extremely rare, "average person," is, of course, an interesting fact. It puts the Prince, in that particular respect, in a group containing some very eminent men, but it no more explains his eminence than it tells why they were great. A vastly greater group could be made of people with big brains who did with them nothing at all notable, while fame has very often been both obtained and carned by those the material contents of whose heads would have made a rather poor showing if put on the scales.

That in man the size of his brain, in comparison with the rest of his body, has a lot to do with his place among the animals nobody could deny, but none the less, a brain more than ordinarily large may be a poor one, while a brain of less than average weight may make up in quality for lack of quantity. But Prince KATSUSA had a good brain as well as a big one, and not least convincing of the ways in which he proved this is revealed by the fact that before dying he gave careful directions as to the making of a thorough examination of his body after he was through with it.

In other words, himself the victim of an obscure internal disease, the Prince was not only willing but desirous that a careful necropsy should be held in order that the doctors could gain information for the benefit of other patients similarly afflicted.

The too common refusal to permit such post-mortem examinations forms one of the most serious obstacles to medical science. It rests on a sentimental objection to "mutilation" that is comprehensible enough, and is felt in some degree by all, but its emptiness and harmfulness must be apparent to anybody who is willing to think about the subject, instead of simply feeling about it. What the surgeon does, even when he does most, is trivial as compared with what happens to the body when buried or incinerated.

Prince KATSURA rose above the ancient fear, and he had accomplished the even greater triumph of convincing his relatives that the execution of his orders was right and commendable. The ceremonies that marked this necropsy were a curious mingling of ancient ideas with those thoroughly up to date, and therein they were characteristically Japanese.

Researchers Called to New Tolls.

Latest of the many young girls more or less directly connected with "manifestations" that have passed for supernatural, or at least mystical, is one whose name, as cabled from France, has taken the rather incredible form of RAYMONDE BEEDLARD. Her specialty is a sufficiently ingenious variant of the familiar "stigmata" so well known to the student of psychiatry.

RAYMONDE, however, is not a neurotic of the class most given to the production of signs and symbols on the skin. Her miracles are more after the fashion of common fortune telling, for she is what may be called an epidermal writer who offers to the searchers after wondere whole words that appear on her body as a result of some trickery not yet discovered, and she is said to be an adept in thus disclosing the names of people met for the first time.

Of course RAYMONDE has caused a great excitement in the village of Picardy where she lives. Soon, doubtless, she will be in Paris, and later, unless detection comes too soon and in a manner too convincing, she will presumably be the subject of solemn investigation over here.

Those who like to believe in the supranormal—they sidestep the word "supernatural," nowadays—will say, plausibly enough, that to assume deception in a case like this is unscientific. So it is, in a way, but the innumerable past exposures of girls like RAYMONDE almost excuse the opposite assumption—that they are all frauds, either conscious or unconscious.

There is no more obligation on anybody to explain what they do than to detect the secrets of professional magicians.

APATHETIC GARDENERS.

American Owners Show Little Personal Interest in Plants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, Mr. M. C. Ebel, in answering Mrs. Martineau's article about American apathy toward gardening, evidently knows little of the interest taken in this subject in England, and his remark that foreign visitors agreed that our great international show last Spring surpassed anything of the kind which can be seen abroad has nothing to do with the point. That show consisted entirely of greenhouse grown plants, and under glass Northern Europe cannot compete with us, because there is not enough sun.

American apathy to matters horticultural seemed clear enough to me when I found the international show nearly empty on the morning I went, although only 25 cents admission was charged. At the Holland House show in London last Summer it took half an hour to reach the entrance because there was such a crush of carriages, and nearly $2 admission was charged.

How many people in New York does Mr. Ebel think would go to a flower show at that price? Then he goes on to say that instead of leaving their gardens too much in the hands of gardeners the American owners of estates do not leave them enough, because they employ so-called landscapers and other "experts." But what I feel sure Mrs. Martineau meant was that the owners took so little personal interest. Whether the gardens are left to gardeners or "landscapers," they can't have the individuality or express long years of loving care and thought, like English gardens, and to any one fond of gardens it is truly sad to see how few owners of fine estates about New York know the difference between an annual and a perennial, or recognize plants when they see them.

I agree with Mr. Ebel that the landscape architects are doing a very great deal of harm because of their often complete ignorance of the requirements of plants. They seem sometimes to imagine that living trees and shrubs can be used by the yard like wood or stone, without considering whether they are to grow in sun or shade, in a sheltered or in an exposed position. And of stone, walls, balustrades, statues, &c., they use far too much, because stone is beautiful in Italy, where the mild, damp climate softens it with moss and ivy. The fact that moss and ivy die on a sunny terrace in this country seems to be ignored. If only their rich patrons knew more about gardening, some of the landscape architects would be unable to continue their ugly and expensive constructions.

What a great public blessing it would be if some one would start a crusade against the dreadful planting in front of our new library at Forty-second Street. Among other horrors, weeping forsythia has been planted at the foot of the wall. It should only be planted on top of a wall or bank where it can hang down. There are erect varieties of forsythia, and why are there no evergreens to gladden our hearts?

Tuxedo Park, Nov. 17, 1913. C.

Thanksgiving Clubs for Strangers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The spirit expressed by "W. J. L." in his letter concerning a "Thanksgiving Club" for homeless persons, where they may enjoy a dinner with "pleasant company on the side" is good, and I must take issue with your article regarding it under the caption of "Unhappiness Largely Imaginary."

There are residents of the city as well as strangers in it whose circumstances compel them to provide for the inner man away from a home, and, while you say "the faces seen in our restaurants are not often streaming with tears," it seems to me that some, though not visibly weeping, have hungry hearts and are craving for just such congenial companionship while partaking of the gallinaceous bird.

It is not an "unhappiness," methinks, but a lonesomeness, that confronts the compelled diner-out, and a feasible suggestion or plan that will contribute to eradicate that and make the life of a fellow-creature brighter and happier, even though for an hour or two, on a festive (or any other) day is commendable. CHARLES E. LAWYER.

Credit to Merchants' Association.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article on the "Free Port of New York" in the Magazine Section of THE TIMES yesterday evidently was placed under the wrong caption. The article referred entirely to work done by the Merchants' Association, mentioning it by name, but the heading gave credit to the Chamber of Commerce.

As a member of the Chamber of Commerce, I am always ready to give it credit for what is its due, but in this case it is unfortunate that the Merchants' Association did not get the full credit in the headline as well as in the body of the article.

CITY COLLEGE PRESIDENCY.

Prof. Downer Urged as Fit Successor to Dr. Finley.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a recent meeting of the Associate Alumni of the College of the City of New York resolutions were unanimously passed to urge the Board of Trustees to choose the next President of that institution from among its alumni. The object of this letter is not to defend this worthy course, but to suggest for President an alumnus, the mere mentioning of whose name, it is felt, will arouse enthusiasm and support among all who know him, Prof. Charles A. Downer.

When President Finley decided to accept the call to a higher field in the world of education, the fitness of Dr. Downer to succeed Dr. Finley, whom we are reluctantly giving to the service of the State, became apparent to the writer. The manner in which many of his fellow-alumni to whom he has spoken have approved has confirmed him in his belief.

In Dr. Downer we have exemplified many of the characteristics which have contributed to the success of Dr. Finley: Scholarship, affability, devotion to the college and its ideals, leadership, and administrative ability.

The French Government has delighted to honor the head of the Department of Romance Languages by electing him a member of the Legion of Honor. For over twenty-five years he has taught in the public schools of this city, as well as in the college. The Board of Trustees has shown its high esteem for the man and his ability by repeatedly elevating him from one position to another in the Faculty. As the administrator of one of the largest and most successful departments of the college he has proved his ability. Imperceptibly, yet surely and forcefully, he has impressed those who have been fortunate enough to come under his influence as students by the strength of his character and the breadth of his erudition and wisdom. Surely no one is more in touch with the ideals of our city and its college or understands better the youth of our metropolis and how to influence it for efficient civic service. JACOB FLATOW.

INACCURATE STATISTICS.

A Protest Against Loose Quotation of Figures.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the window of the headquarters of a woman suffrage organization is a placard reading: "Are you aware that a baby dies every eleven seconds throughout the civilized world?" As nothing is added, it seemingly implicates the anti-suffrage people of both sexes in the gentle art of murder by neglectfulness of the young. I plead not guilty; nor do I entertain the most remote suspicion of any acquaintance so addicted.

As a contributing member of the Brooklyn Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, I find in its last annual report the names of 961 others, of which 587 are men and 374 are women. A man sufficiently interested in the welfare of the young to contribute money for its preservation or attainment will willingly subscribe in the name of his wife if her interest is equal to his in the object. It seems not "By their fruits shall ye know them."

The above statistics of infant mortality may have been based on the atrocities of the recent Balkan war, in which, according to reports, the warriors of all the nations involved engaged in the slaughter of the innocents as a diversion. The promiscuous utterance of statistics of late years has passed from guesswork or carelessness to almost crime. Those issued by Government, hospitals, banking or insurance institutions are generally dependable because officially and conscientiously collected for important ulterior objects. The exact figures of infant mortality are simply unprocurable, because it is known that many of the so-called civilized countries have no national bureau of vital statistics.

The unreliability of quoted statistics is exhibited in that so-called average of human life which is variously published at from 34 to 46 years. The writer has seen reports from suffragette advocates that the number of females above the age of 20 who are engaged in gainful occupations ranges from 41 to 57 per cent. of the population of that sex. A local preacher recently declared that 70 per cent. of the males of the locality are affected by a certain ailment, whereas the annual report of the Surgeon General of the United States Army exhibits that only seventeen per thousand of applicants for enlistment are rejected for such cause.

Hence, if the principle of accuracy is involved, as it may be for important reasons, when statistics are offered as items of argument, it should be in order to demand the authority and next seek confirmation before acceptance. ACCURACY.

INDUSTRIAL PRISON FARMS.

Outdoor Life Would Benefit Convict's Health and Morals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read your comments and the letters about the whipping post in Delaware. Almost any form of punishment has its objections. Imprisonment is an economic loss, and hurts both the mind and body, while the whipping post is brutalizing.

Why this slow progress in the development of the prison farm idea? Wherever it has been tried uniform success has been met. A convicted criminal needs both mental and physical upbuilding. Many have tuberculosis already, and all are exposed to the disease by contact with sufferers and the insanitary prison conditions. Why not have a farm of 1,000 acres in central New York State? A building with iron bars, especially for the new arrivals, would have to be constructed, but on the lines of a hospital rather than a prison.

At first the convicts would work in a restricted or walled area, but on good behavior and toward the termination of a commuted sentence more liberty would be given. A five-year sentence spent in outdoor work and sleeping in quarters as nearly outdoors as conditions permitted would place the offender back in the world with a sound physique. A healthy mind in a body weakened by cell and workshop life cannot be expected. R. G.

The "Scotch-Irish" of Ulster.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are a good many people besides Mr. Wall who would like to know why the term Scotch-Irish is so frequently applied to emigrants coming from Ulster, Ireland, and the question that confronts me is, How much Scotch and how much Irish is there in the composite?

History tells us that during the reign of James I. several counties of Ulster were escheated to the crown, and the lands parceled out to Scotch and English colonists, and I think it is safe to say that the people known as Protestant Ulsterites are the descendants of these settlers. But why call them Scotch-Irish, leaving the poor English out?

Any person who has lived in Ulster knows that the descendants of these English and Scotch settlers have, on account of religious differences, never mixed with the Irish, and I think it safe to say that they are almost as free to-day from any trace of Irish as when Sir John Perrot started his colonization scheme in 1586. Mother and Children in Want.

A young mother is in need of money with which to buy food for herself and her three little children. Her sister can give them shelter, but no more. The father died recently—just before the birth of the baby—after a long period of unemployment had already drained their resources. None of the children is old enough to go to school, and their mother cannot for the present do more than care for them. Five dollars a week will allow her to meet her expenses. The Charity Organization Society asks for $450 to pay this during the Winter.

Gifts may be sent to the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be acknowledged.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions sent in response to previous appeals in THE TIMES: Miss Sarah A. Holt, $2; Cash, $1; A Thank Offering, $25; "Gay Time," $20; H. R. C., $1; Anonymous, $03.76; Mrs. Helen D. Poets, $2; Cash, $2; Cash, $1; Mrs. E. S. S., $1; Anonymous, $10; L. H. Scelye, $1.

PATENT MEDICINE MEN

Abraham Flexner Styles "Progressives" in School Board.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The difficulties surrounding the Mayor in the matter of appointments to the Board of Education are very largely due to the unjustified use of a single term utilized to conceal the objects and disqualifications of those who hide behind it. I refer to the use of the term "progressives" by people who, in everything but this deceptive name, are educational reactionaries, bent upon introducing into the school system of New York a species of mongrel control that has failed and been discarded everywhere throughout the country except in a few backward districts. How long are the people of this country going to allow themselves to be duped in this fashion?

I use plain words, but I use them deliberately. In all the negotiations and agitation attending the discussion and ultimate failure, first, of Mayor Gaynor's charter, and, next, of the McKee bills, I was in position to obtain a close view of many of those who are now seeking reappointment and of some of their main backers. My amazement grew at every encounter; nor am I yet able to decide which is the more remarkable—the presumption of men seeking to exercise a power and responsibility for which they possess no competency whatever or the folly of a community which intrusts its interests to the men who compose the present Board of Education of Greater New York!

The recent municipal election meant, if it meant anything, that the people of this city are determined to try specialized competency in public office. Will any one in his senses maintain that most of those whose terms are expiring represent anything remotely resembling specialized competency in education? What is there in their training, experience, temperament, professional or business careers, associations, or performances that suggests special fitness to deal with education—any more than with sanitation, engineering, or any other problem on which study, observation, and experience may throw some light? Out of the millions of men and women from whom the Mayor may choose, who will contend that these eager seekers after tasks for which they are unfit are the best choices that can be made?

I hold no brief for the present educational administration of the New York schools. But the transfer of educational authority to reckless and incapable laymen is not the way to cure its defects. To keep an educational system going, to extend, adapt, and improve it, is one of the most difficult tasks that can be imposed on human intelligence. The situation, the needs, the opportunities change and shift faster than old teachers can remake themselves, faster than new teachers can be introduced and made effective. Thoughtless persons who promise through administrative machinery and petty devices to triumph over inherent difficulties arising from such causes are, on the kindest interpretation, misguided patent-medicine men, be they inside or outside the board.

The remedy must be sought not through the ministrations of self-styled "progressives," but through bringing into the schools the most vigorous and resourceful trained intelligence. There is, to be sure, a pedantic type of school master and school marm whom the modern world has outgrown; they can neither help us nor serve us. The "progressives" talk and act as if there were no other type. As a matter of fact, modern education has developed a strong race of men and women, impatient of convention and tradition, and in thorough sympathy with all the needs of modern society. The real need of the New York schools is to fill every fresh vacancy on the educational side with a man or woman of this sort, constantly infusing new blood into the system, constantly drafting into its service the best talent procurable, in a continuous effort to renovate and improve. Any such policy will be frustrated in advance if the Board of Education is kept in the hands of those who are now in control.

NO BRYAN-MOORE FRICTION.

Secretary and Counsellor Deny Rumor—Talk of Latter Quitting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—The revival of a report of friction between Secretary of State Bryan and the Counsellor of the department, Dr. John Bassett Moore, was promptly denied to-day by both officials. Mr. Bryan said that he did not know on what basis of fact the report was framed. The best of relations, he said, had always existed between him and Dr. Moore.

When the Counsellor was asked regarding the report that he was to sever his connection with the public service, he gave out the following signed statement:

"There does not appear to be any occasion for a statement by me at the present time, concerning what it is alleged I contemplate doing at a date so remote as the 1st of March. There has been no friction between Mr. Bryan and myself."

TROOPS TO TAKE INDIANS.

Cavalry Will Be Sent After Eight Navajo Outlaws.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The United States Marshal for New Mexico to-day asked for two troops of cavalry to take eight Navajo Indians, who fled from charges of rioting and horse stealing and have fortified themselves in the mountains near Shiprock.

Major Gen. Carter, in command of the border patrol, has authority to send the troops, and the request was turned over to him.

AT THE SHOW.

I do love to look at fine horses!
Of course that is why I am here.
(Oh, there are the Blakes on the boardwalk!
Isn't Anabel's blue toque just dear?)

In the saddlers' classes, the entries
Are really superb, don't you think?
(Now, there's an idea for refreshing
My mauve silk, with touches of mink!)

The stewards have truly done wonders
In making this show a success.
(Quick! look in that tier box! Ben Clayton!
How swagger that bold beau will dress!)

Those judges have something to do, eh?
(Odd's bodkins! Behold Gladys Towne!
How daring! To think she would venture
Parading in that X-ray gown!)

You thought I came here to see ponies?
To sarcasm now, please, a truce!
I came to see women and men, too!
(The Horse, Sir, is just an excuse!)

PANKHURST TOUR SHOWS GOOD PROFIT

English Suffragette Says She Has Made Money to Take Back for British Cause.

HERE FOR FLYING VISIT

Holds Conference on Outlook for Circulation of Vice Books—Plans Triumphal Homecoming.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffrage leader, made a flying visit to New York yesterday. For a short time she was at the suffrage headquarters of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, and later held a council meeting with representatives of The Medical Review of Reviews. This conference, Mrs. Pankhurst said, was to consider whether it would be possible to circulate books upon vice questions.

"We want to find out whether a layman like Anthony Comstock," she explained, "will be allowed to suppress them at will."

Mrs. Pankhurst came from Boston, where she said her meeting at Tremont Temple on Saturday night was so large that the management made several hundred dollars more than the seating capacity of the house called for, partly due, she said, to the unsuccessful attempts of the anti-suffragists to suppress the Pankhurst publications, in this way advertising both them and the meeting.

Later in the day Mrs. Pankhurst cabled to England to contradict statements made by David Lloyd George, the English Chancellor, that she had been allowed to enter this country under certain conditions.

"I came in entirely without conditions," she said, "as to what I was going to do here or as to how long I was going to stay. When I was released I asked if there was anything for me to sign and they said there was nothing, that I was entirely free. The cable sent to English suffragists to the cable address of the militants, read:

"'Contradict statement Lloyd George that my admission to United States was conditional. Entrance entirely unconditional.'"

Mrs. Pankhurst said that she would have much to say at her meeting in Carnegie Hall on Nov. 24 of the social evil and the white slave traffic.

"It is because of these things that many women are becoming suffragists," she asserted. "They feel that not until we can help make the laws will these things be suppressed. I am not interested now in the fallen woman, but in the fallen man. Most of the women who lead an evil life are driven to it by necessity, and where there is one fallen woman she represents at least twenty-five fallen men.

"If a man steals your purse in this country and goes into another State he can be extradited, but if he betrays a girl with a promise of marriage he can go into another State and she has no redress. The whole status of women must be raised, and something must be done that she will not be held so cheap. At the root of all is the subjection of woman and her inferiority."

Asked if she had heard from Sylvia Pankhurst since she had been freed from prison she said:

"Yes, and she was vigorous enough to be ready to challenge a rearrest, if not in Hackney, then in Manchester."

Speaking about the army organized for the suffrage militants in England, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"Sir Francis Vane is organizing an army to protect the suffragettes. They are doing the same thing in Ulster for another cause."

Concerning the proposed truce with the suffragists in England she explained:

"There can be no truce with us. The only overtures for peace that will be accepted will be those from the Government, and the only thing we will take is the vote. Edward Carson and George Bernard Shaw are preaching sedition, and the Government had better settle with the women, for it seems to be in the way of having a great deal of trouble on its hands.

"I shall leave here on Nov. 26 on the Majestic, and the series of meetings has been arranged for me when I reach England. I shall land in Plymouth, where there will be a delegation from the union to meet me, and my first large meeting will be one in London to raise money for the war chest for the coming year. The members are already arranging their subscriptions. It remains to be seen what action the Government will take in this country.

"My trip has been most satisfactory, both from an American and from an English point of view. Many Americans who were not suffragists have come to hear me and have been converted, I think, and it has been financially successful, and I have made money to take home to support the English work."

WILSON SEES SUFFRAGISTS.

Good-Humored Invasion by Jersey Women Wins an Audience.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Tired of waiting for President Wilson to receive them, a delegation of seventy-five suffragists from New Jersey invaded the Executive offices to-day by a good-humored show of force. Their determination seemed to please the President, for, as soon as Secretary Tumulty, after a consultation with two of them, explained the situation to him he ordered the doors thrown open and the women admitted. He then listened to their plea for a Constitutional amendment giving women the vote, spoke of recent conferences he had had on the subject with Congressmen, and shook hands with each delegate before they went away.

Representative McCoy of New Jersey had been sent early in the morning to the White House to arrange for a visit by the delegation. For over an hour the women waited for him to return at the headquarters of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage. Becoming impatient, they were about forming a procession to go in search of McCoy when he called up on the telephone to say that the chance of an audience with the President would be decided in the course of the day.

The suffragists decided at once. Under the leadership of Mrs. E. F. Feichert, President of the New Jersey Suffrage

DOLLAR SHOWS FOR STRAND THEATRE

Playhouse Being Built at Broadway and 47th Street Leased by Anderson Gaiety Co.

LESSEE A MOVIES MAN

Owner of "The Candy Shop" Entered Musical Comedy Producing Field Last Year—Once an Actor.

The long-discussed and much-expected invasion of the Broadway theatrical district by "dollar shows" culminated yesterday when the Anderson Gaiety Company arranged to take over the new Strand Theatre now in course of construction at Broadway and Forty-seventh Street.

And incidentally the leasing of the theatre by the Anderson organization for the purpose of giving that company's dollar shows a New York home is William Anderson's way of squaring things up with the managers of high-priced theatres who are preparing to enter the moving-picture field. William Anderson, known to every moving-picture theatregoer as "Smiling Billy" Anderson, has made a fortune out of the moving-picture business. Anderson, who was formerly an actor, has made a specialty of producing Western pictures in which he appeared himself in the leading cowboy hero rôle.

Last year Anderson was persuaded to enter the field of musical comedy production by J. J. Rosenthal, an advance man and theatrical manager. The Anderson Gaiety Company was organized and a musical comedy called "The Candy Shop" was produced on a lavish scale to play at dollar prices in the West.

The venture was an instantaneous success and the piece, which is now playing in San Francisco, has made a lot of money for its owners.

Rosenthal who has been in New York for several days, completed the plans for the invasion of Broadway by the Anderson concern and left last night for the West.

The Strand Theatre, which is to be one of the largest in New York, has been surrounded by considerable mystery ever since its construction was begun, although it was generally believed that the house would be given over to burlesque. There were rumors, too, that Oscar Hammerstein meant to take over the place for opera.

The date of the opening of the Strand has not been fixed, but every effort is being made to get the theatre part of the building completed as quickly as possible, and work on the building is going on at night as well as in the day time.

MR. HARRIS'S RECITAL.

Songs of Gentle Melancholy Heard in Aeolian Hall.

There was in somewhat too pervasive atmosphere of gentle melancholy enveloping large portions of Mr. George Harris's song recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. A considerate and cultivated audience enjoyed the evidence of taste and discrimination that his programme showed; but the injection of other and more vivid emotion expressed in music would have avoided something of the monotony that made itself felt on this occasion.

Nor was Mr. Harris himself wholly to be absolved from a share of the responsibility in it. His style rather emphasized the prevailing mood than varied it; and there was too much of arduous searching after the ultimate refinements of delicate feeling. When he came to something of a more vigorous nature, or that invited from him a more vigorous expression, as the air from Massenet's "Werther," the results were more invigorating. There were interesting songs on the programme. Those by Grieg, "An einem Bache," and Wolf are among their composers' less-known ones. Besides several representing American composers, Mr. Harris sang songs by Arensky and Tschaikowsky in Russian, and two by Moussorgsky, in German and English, respectively.

Mr. Harris's light tenor voice has sounded better at some of his previous appearances than it did yesterday. It suggested that he would do well to consider his tone production and forestall the occasional throatiness and even unsteadiness and false intonation that made themselves heard. It would be a pity if these things were more than a passing infelicity of Mr. Harris's delicate art.

Behman Show at the Columbia.

The Behman Show, one of the largest of the burlesque organizations in the theatrical world, began a week's engagement at the Columbia Theatre yesterday. Two one-act travesties are presented, one being "The Most Contented Man on Earth," and the other a satire on Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah." The Behman company includes Lew Kelly, Eileen Sheridan, Fred Wycoff, Vic Casmore, Lon Hascall, George Douglas, Tom Martelle, Freda Florence, Laura Haydon, Ameta Lynes, and Gertrude Lynch.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Donald Brian and "The Marriage Market" will end their run at the Knickerbocker Theatre in two weeks and will move on to Boston. Another Frohman production will be brought into the Knickerbocker on Dec. 3.

The Mexican War pictures shown at the Hippodrome Sunday night will be put into the Playhouse, and beginning Thursday afternoon the pictures will be shown whenever possible without conflicting with "The Family Cupboard." These four performances are now announced: Thursday and Friday afternoons and Sunday afternoon and evening.

"The House of Glass," a comedy by Max Marcin, is to be the next play produced by Cohan & Harris. Rehearsals of "The House of Glass" will begin immediately under the personal supervision of George Cohan, and the initial production of the piece will be made on New Year's Day.

The Drama Society will hold a meeting of its members and associate members on Friday afternoon at 2:15 at the Hudson Theatre. An address will be made by Canon James Owen Hannay, author of "Gen. John Regan," and Mrs. E. R. Hewitt, President of the Drama Society.

Montgomery and Moore of "The Pleasure Seekers" company and fifty chorus girls from the same organization were the guests of the Simpson Crawford Company yesterday noon at a luncheon in that concern's store.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR'S GIFT

Silver Tray for Miss Wilson—Bridemaids' Gowns White and Pink.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Among the gifts received at the White House to-day was a large silver tray from the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, a Louis Quinze pattern, much appreciated by the bride-elect. According to Miss Wilson's wishes no list of guests or gifts will be given out by the White House authorities. All the Ambassadors have sent gifts, although thus far only those of Italy, Russia, Germany and, and now France, have become known outside the family circle.

The silver service which Senator Martine of New Jersey has announced as the choice of the Senate, has not yet been definitely selected, much less presented to the bride, while many extravagant articles mentioned in the local prints as gifts for the White House bride are still unappropriated at the local silversmiths.

The bridesmaids' gowns, it is now definitely stated, are of white crepe, with the new net tunics with accessories of pink, the latter to give the color note to the entire wedding party. The gowns of Miss Eleanor Wilson and Miss Scott of Princeton will show the pink tone in a delicate hydrangia shade, those of Miss Brown, cousin of the bride from Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Mary White of Baltimore, will show a deeper coloring, while Miss Margaret Wilson, who is to be maid of honor, will have the color deepened into a real deep rose. The coloring is along the new pink, which shades from a delicate peach to American Beauty. The hats are of silver net, faced to match the gowns.

At least a dozen rooms have been reserved at a hotel near the White House to accommodate the large family connection of bride and bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson of Baltimore, the former the President's only brother, will arrive at the White House on Sunday to remain over the wedding.

MISS SHERLOCK A BRIDE.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Sherlock Married to A. Spadone.

The wedding of Miss Estelle Elizabeth Sherlock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reginald Sherlock of 316 West Seventy-ninth Street, and Amedee Spadone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Spadone of 141 West Seventy-second Street, took place yesterday at 4 P. M. at the residence of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and intimate friends.

The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and Autumn leaves. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Paul Plunkett. Miss Blanche Spadone, a sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. The best man was E. Stanley McHaig of Philadelphia, a classmate of the bridegroom at Princeton. Paul Plunkett and Constantine C. Galli were the ushers. Masters Reginald Mitchell Sherlock, brother of the bride, and Howard Sherman, Jr., of Montclair, N. J., acted as pages. The flower girls were the Misses Betty and Alice Spadone, little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Spadone.

The bride wore white satin with a panier of tulle and duchesse lace and bertha and a duchess lace veil, worn with a spray of lilies of the valley. The veil was a family heirloom. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The attendants wore dresses of yellow satin with lace overdresses trimmed with edgings of brown fur and tulle sashes of yellow. Their black hats had gold lace brims. All carried bouquets of yellow roses and lilies of the valley. The flower girls were in white frocks, Watteau pattern, with girdles of yellow and poke bonnets and carried baskets of lilies of the valley on their arms.

A small reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Spadone on return from their honeymoon in December will reside at 251 West Ninety-eighth Street.

WEDDED IN PLAZA BALLROOM.

Miss Hazel Carleton Married to Allen Tobey by the Rev. Dr. Hall.

The wedding of Miss Hazel Carleton, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. B. G. Carleton of 75 West Fiftieth Street, to Allen Tobey took place at 9 o'clock last night in the large ballroom of the Plaza. The Rev. Dr. Frank Oliver Hall, rector of the Church of the Divine Paternity, officiated.

The bride's gown was of white satin cut round length. The court train which fell from the shoulders was lined with silver cloth and was draped with silk tulle with silver leaves embroidered. Her veil was of lace and was caught up with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids.

The maid of honor was Miss Mabel Forsythe, who wore old rose chiffon draped over shell pink and carried an arm bouquet of bridesmaids' roses. The bridesmaids were the Misses Marion Shaw, Anne Bridgman, Martha Birnie, Greta Woodward, Lucille Smith, Margaret Peters, and Lillian Ulich, all of this city, and Marian Stephens of New Orleans. They wore gowns of green chiffon over shell pink, and carried bridesmaids' roses.

Harold Tobey was his brother's best man, and the ushers were J. Allan Bertolet of Reading, Penn.; Gray Bryan, Brantz Bryan, Edward Griffith, Deam Mathey, William Carpenter, Frederic Seggerman, and Arthur G. Thompson of this city, all classmates of the bridegroom at Princeton.

A large reception and dance was held after the wedding ceremony. After their honeymoon Mr. Tobey and his bride are to make their home in this city.

Miss Murphy Weds To-morrow.

The wedding of Miss Helen Murphy, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Edward Murphy, Jr., of Troy, N. Y., to J. Norris Miller of this city will take place to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride in Troy. Only the immediate families will attend the ceremony owing to mourning for the bride's father, the late United States Senator Murphy. The engagement of the couple was announced recently.

'STRANGE WOMAN' NOTABLY FINE PLAY

Not Flawless, but Develops Character and Story in Telling Strokes.

MISS FERGUSON BRILLIANT

Henry Arthur Jones and a number of other estimable gentlemen have made strong pleas for the printing and distributing of plays before the first night, which, for the weary critic, supposing that he did his duty and read them, would in most cases mean a mere duplicating of misfortune. But occasionally a play comes along that we wished we might have read before we saw it. Such a play, indeed, is William Hurlbut's "The Strange Woman," an exceptionally interesting and able piece of work exhibited last night in the Lyceum Theatre.

The reason we should have liked to read Mr. Hurlbut's play before writing about it, is that it presents with a very considerable facility and happiness of expression a number of arguments for that state of love which involves complete sympathy in ideals rather than the supposed sympathy generally held to result from the utterance of set forms.

Arguments of this sort are rather elusive things, and though one may get the drift of them in the theatre their reproduction without the printed page to guide is rather a difficult matter to attain. However, this much may be said unreservedly: Mr. Hurlbut, in spite of some rather overdoing of the domesticated types and incidents, has turned out an unusually fine piece of work.

The conflict of old and new ideas and the clash that follows an effort to press a doctrine of self-development in place of the time-honored one of self-sacrifice are the dominant resident impressions of the play. And its chief value lies in the fact that the conclusion is worked out in a woman's soul rather than in the outward conflict that results.

The latter, indeed, is obvious and natural enough once Inez de Perrefond, beautiful, exotic, intellectual, and idealistic, is brought from Paris by her devoted lover and set down amid the constraining, narrow, worse than Puritanical surroundings of conventional Delhi, Ia., where 12 churches are "carrying on most of the Lord's work for him" and where the Rev. Mr. Meggs is a wonder and delight since "he can pray for twenty minutes without calling the Lord by the same name twice." And where Inez, pressed to name her religious denomination, must admit that she "isn't even a 'piscocalian."

Why under the circumstances John Hemingway has brought her into his mother's household, knowing as he does that Inez and himself have decided to live their lives on the "freer, higher plane" is one of those questions which will not down. But passing that by the developments, when they are serious, are reasonable enough. Inez has been once married, and, for very good reasons, left her husband.

She refuses to consider the idea of being legally tied again. And she and John are merely deferring the moment when they shall inform Mrs. Hemingway of what they intend their life to be. In the meantime, however, John's uncle, the village Don Juan, tries to make love to Inez, and the various female hypocrites of the place make discoveries about her. They have heard of "free love," and they charge her with it. And she—in a splendidly written scene—confounds the Sabasbos on them. Then, when she is herself about to tell the truth to the mother, the latter's simplicity, humility, and gentleness work a spell.

The curtain to the second act, with the old woman wrapping a scarf about Inez's shoulders, the latter confessing that she is wearing "sackcloth," represents a fresh and exquisitely contrived treatment of a tender, appealing moment. Here, as in several other notable passages, Mr. Hurlbut has widely skirted the conventional path to a period, with a result that his play gains immeasurably in depth and feeling and sincerity.

Mr. Hurlbut has been notably happy, also, in the writing of two or three passages, in which John and Inez at first voice their complete understanding, then are forced to feel the difference in their viewpoints. For John, once he is in the old Delhi home—he has met Inez in Paris while studying art—comes to realize how much the old ideas mean to the mother whom he loves. And Inez on her part voices the motive of consecrating her freedom to the betterment of the lives of others. But they are lovers, and there is no bitterness; only a mute consciousness of a cloud upon the blue.

There will be those ready to urge that Inez's ultimate conversion to the conventional idea weakens the character, but to our mind it gives her strength, and conveys, indeed, the only argument in the play to actually suggest that with her the other path, too, might have led to happiness. For Inez realizes ultimately the perfection of self-sacrifice, and so, much to John's surprise, instead of a revelation, she comes forward with a plea to the mother to come and see them quietly married in the church.

That is so much that is fine in the play that one can but wonder why it has been cheapened with such antique and obvious artificiality as is represented in the sudden conversions of the Delhi-ites in the opening scenes of the last act, and what such overacting of most of the character parts should have been permitted as to almost throw the opening act into the realm of the drama trooly-rooral. But in spite of these things there is much to be thankful for—a play of thought and depth and much cleverness in writing.

Moreover, the acting achievement on the part of Miss Elsie Ferguson is exceptionally brilliant, true, and pleasing. Conveying, to begin with, a completely illusory suggestion of Inez de Pierrefond's foreign environment, with a delightful suggestion of a real accent, Miss Ferguson sounds every note in the character completely and sincerely. In the clashes with the women who are her inferiors mentally and socially she never once transcends the limits of good taste. Always there is the suggestion of breeding, authority, and the comprehending mind.

Bulletin No. 2

Reducing the Human Scrap Heap

"The Right and the Wrong Way"

¶ The first cost of heart charity is small.

¶ The ultimate expense is large.

¶ Its results are almost always negative, and always unsatisfactory.

¶ The danger of its effect—pauperism—is great.

¶ The food John Jones asks for costs only a dollar.

¶ If his enforced idleness, due to illness, continues a year, the cost of one day's supply is multiplied many times.

¶ At the end of the year he and his family are just as poor as when aid was first sought.

¶ The first cost of heart and head charity is much more than a dollar.

¶ Besides the food for his family, Jones receives medical treatment and care, his old employer is asked to hold his job open for him, his family is moved from the unsanitary home and his wife is taught how to reduce the household expenses and at the same time to live better.

¶ Soon Jones is working again and supporting his family.

¶ He is no longer a burden to society, but is able to share society's burdens.

¶ Material relief—food, clothing, shelter and other necessaries of life—without personal service, is only a palliative.

¶ Such relief is necessary, but it alone will not foster self-dependence.

¶ With such relief must go treatment—the personal service, advice, direction and friendship of a trained social worker.

¶ Adequate relief+adequate service=efficient charity.

¶ The social ills of 7,778 families in our care last year were treated in this way.

¶ Nearly 10,000 generous men and women contributed last year towards the support of this kind of work, but their contributions fell far short of the sum necessary to do for the needy families all that the circumstances required.

¶ Your help to provide this relief and service, and our experience, will ameliorate distress and rehabilitate broken, sick and wayward humanity in the pinch of poverty.

HER FORTUNE GIVEN TO RELIGIOUS WORK

Miss Sarah B. Hills Left $150,000 to Presbyterian Erection and Sunday School Union.

$1,000 FOR FREE TRACTS

Missionary Societies and Bible Teachers in Heathen Lands Provided For in Small Bequests.

Miss Sarah B. Hills, who died on Nov. 9 and whose will was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogates' Court, left the bulk of her property, valued at $150,000, to the Board of Church Erection of the Presbyterian Church in America and the American Sunday School Union of Philadelphia, instructing both institutions to use the funds in work in the rural districts of the West. The Board of Church Erection in addition to half the residuary estate received realty known as 213 and 215 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn.

In explanation of these two bequests the testatrix stated:

"I have made these legacies in fulfillment of a most sacred trust received by me from my beloved brother, James R. Hills of New York City, who made me his sole heir that I might enjoy the use and benefit of his estate and dispose of his property in accordance with his wishes. It is to his love and generosity, and to his wife and to their faithful care of my property that I am indebted for nearly all I possess."

The other charitable bequests under the will comprised $1,000 each to the American Tract Society, to be used in free distribution of reading matter in the rural districts of the West; the Children's Aid Society, to be used in placing its wards among country families; the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute, for scholarships; the Women's Union Missionary Society of America for Heathen Lands, to be used in paying the salaries of native Bible teachers; the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in America, to be used in work in China, and the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

SUES ARTHUR HAMMERSTEIN

Wm. Pettibone, Asking $10,000 Damages, Says He Was Assaulted.

Charging that Arthur Hammerstein, general manager for his father, Oscar Hammerstein, in the latter's grand opera ventures, had struck him and thrown him out of the Victoria Theatre, on Oct. 14, William Pettibone yesterday filed suit in the County Clerk's office against the younger Hammerstein for $10,000 damages.

Pettibone, who is a dealer in millinery goods at 21 West Thirty-first street, said yesterday that he went to Hammerstein's office last month to collect a bill for goods which he had supplied to the Victoria Theatre. Instead of getting any money he was struck in the face by Arthur Hammerstein, he says, and then ejected from the building at Mr. Hammerstein's orders.

Arthur Hammerstein is out of the city, but employes at the theatre said last night that Pettibone who was abusive, was ordered to leave the theatre and left without being unduly urged.

REV. ALEX. IRVINE AS ACTOR.

Ex-Minister Appears in a Socialistic Sketch at Hammerstein's.

Before a large audience at Hammerstein's yesterday afternoon the Rev. Alexander Irvine, former night preacher at the Fifth Avenue Church of the Ascension, made his debut in New York as an actor, appearing in a sketch which he wrote himself, "The Rector of St. Jude's." The ex-minister appeared on the programme following Van Hoven, "The Mad Magician," and was followed by Van and Scheck, cabaret singers.

The Rev. Mr. Irvine lost his position with the Fifth Avenue church on account of his socialistic tendencies. His vaudeville play is announced as showing what actually took place in the church when he was dismissed, and in the little play the scene is laid in the vestry room of St. Jude's Church. For preaching socialism the rector is ordered to leave by one of the rich vestrymen, who also has intercepted a love letter from the minister to his daughter. The girl arrives and admits her love for the preacher and sides with him in his fight for the workers, the rich man's employes, who are on strike. One of the workmen whose daughter has been shot by the armed guards of the rich man's property also arrives, and there are several violent arguments for and against socialism. The minister finally brings the two men together, both agreeing that the way to settle the social question is to vote right at election time.

The Rev. Mr. Irvine is far from being a bad actor, and, although his sketch is tiresome, it has many lines which appealed to the audience yesterday. After the fall of the curtain he was forced to make a speech, in which he explained that he had done a great many different kinds of work in the twenty-five years he had spent in this country, from "driving a milk wagon to acting on Hammerstein's sage." He went on to say that he found the people in the vaudeville world as human and as splendid as the people in any other walk of life.

WM. O'B. MACDONOUGH DEAD

Noted Horse Breeder Stricken on His California Ranch.

William O'B. Macdonough died on his ranch at Menlo Park, Cal., on last Saturday, from a stroke of paralysis. He was in apparent good health up to the time of the attack.

A student of many subjects and with a mind trained for investigation, Mr. Macdonough gave many years to the study of thoroughbred breeding and tried intelligently to discover the general causes producing the horse which goes the fastest on the race course; and shows the best stamina and courage in cavalry use, in the hunting field, and in general service. He collected a mass of statistics which he was analyzing, and up to the last believed that his studies would reveal the cause of the variation in results when the best strains of blood were mated.

Mr. Macdonough had acquired a minute knowledge of blood lines and of the stud book and spared neither time nor means in putting his knowledge to the practical test. In 1892 he brought to his ranch in California the English stallion Ormonde, supposed then to represent the highest development of the thoroughbred racer.

Col. Telemaque E. d'Apery.

Col. Telemaque E. d'Apery, who was at one time Treasurer of the Ottoman Empire, died on last Saturday in Philadelphia, aged 88 years. Col. d'Apery served for more than forty years as an officer in the Turkish Army and rose to the post of Imperial Treasurer through the rank of civil engineer in chief of the Turkish Sultan. He was a son of Count Helie d'Apery, one of the staff officers of Napoleon. Miss Olive Harper, the writer, whose name in private life before her marriage was Ellen Burrell, was Col. d'Apery's wife. She died several years ago, leaving a son, in whose home Col. d'Apery died. Mme. d'Apery was the writer of sixty-eight books. One of her novels is "A Lotus of the Nile."

MONEY BILL MAY GET TO SENATE SATURDAY

Meantime There Is Talk of Adjourning Present Session Sine Die on That Day.

MEANS MILEAGE CHECKS

Mann to Oppose Appropriation If Adjournment Is Taken So Near Regular Session.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—There were many indications to-day that Congress might adjourn sine die on Saturday. It has already been tacitly agreed that adjournments would be taken for Tuesday, the day Miss Jessie Wilson marries Francis B. Sayre, and on Thursday, which is Thanksgiving Day. Leaders feel that nothing can be gained by keeping Congress nominally in session for the broken week, while adjournment would facilitate the distribution of $226,000 in mileage, of which Senators would receive $57,000 and House members $175,000.

It now looks as if the Currency bill will be formally reported to the Senate by Saturday. If a caucus of the Democrats is then called to consider it, there would be no objection to adjourning the session, according to a statement by Senator Kern. Senator Owen, the Administration spokesman on the Banking and Currency Committee, said he thought adjournment would be taken, and his remark is construed as meaning that the President does not object. All hope of passing the Currency bill at this session vanished long ago.

In spite of the willingness of the party leaders in the Senate to put an end to the session there are many chances that something will intervene. The House is without a quorum, and should a motion be made to adjourn the objection of a single member would kill the proposal by disclosing the absence of a quorum. Many Democratic members of the House fear that adjournment will lay the party open to the serious charge of collecting mileage by subterfuge. Such a charge, they think, would not sound well after Democratic preaching for economy.

Representative Mann, Republican leader, has announced that if adjournment is taken with only a week remaining before the regular session begins on Dec. 1 he will oppose the bill appropriating mileage on the ground that few members would make the homeward trip, the expenses of which the mileage was intended to defray. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic whip, also said to-day that he would oppose adjournment for the sake of collecting mileage.

There was an informal meeting of the Banking and Currency Committee to-day, at which the two groups decided to meet again on Thursday and attempt to frame a report to the Senate. But as the two factions are widely divergent in their views on the fundamental points of the bill, it is thought that it will take until Saturday to draft a report embodying an agreement, even on just the unimportant details. Senator Owen said he hoped the Senate would get the bill by Thursday, but his associates on the committee feel this will prove impossible.

The Democratic half of the committee, though its labors were considered complete, made some changes in the reserve provisions of the proposed law. They feared that the requirement for the transfer of a part of the reserves from the vaults of the member banks to the vaults of the regional reserve institutions might cause a temporary stringency that would start the new system under bad auspices. They therefore liberalized the provisions.

The Republican half of the committee, under the Democratic leadership of Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, made good progress in finishing their bill, which was amended so that a gold reserve of 45 per cent. should be kept behind the proposed notes instead of the 33 1-3 per cent. of the House bill measure. But the amendment allows for a reduction of the gold reserve to 30 per cent., the tax increasing as the reserve diminishes.

The Republican faction also adopted an important amendment intended to prevent the depreciation in the 2 per cent. bonds. The amendment provides that the regional banks shall buy up the 2s to an amount equal to one-half of their capital stock. These bonds may either be used as a basis for currency issue as the national banks now use them or they may be exchanged for 3 per cent. one-year Treasury notes. These notes would be taken by the regional banks under a contract requiring the banks to renew them every year for twenty years.

The Rev. Dr. Richard Lewis Howell, who died on Feb 1, 1910, at the Hotel Aberdeen, left $405,261, according to an appraisal filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. The entire personalty of $362,496 was left to his wife, now Mrs. Gwendolyn Haughton of Charles River, Mass. The realty was left in life trust to his wife, with the remainders vested in his two daughters.

When he died Dr. Howell owned an equity of $15,196 in the Hotel Aberdeen, a third mortgage on Bretton Hall, Broadway and Eighty-sixth Street, amounting to $343,375, and a second mortgage on the Hotel Regent, which sold for $37,908. His personal effects were appraised at $1,669, and his stocks at $490. Dr. Howell had held pastorates in Philadelphia and Washington.

STOVER SENDS NO WORD.

Mayor Is Ignorant as to His Whereabouts, but Does Not Worry.

Mayor Kline has had no word from Park Commissioner Stover since Mr. Stover went on his vacation more than a month ago. The Mayor's secretary, Robert Adamson, was asked yesterday about a report that the missing Park Commissioner had written the Mayor a letter.

"The Mayor does not know where Mr. Stover is," replied Mr. Adamson. "All he knows is that a letter mailed in Philadelphia last Tuesday was recognized on Wednesday by a clerk of the Park Commission at the Arsenal. So far as I know that was the last communication received from Mr. Stover. But those who know Mr. Stover are not worrying about his welfare."

Mr. Adamson said that Mayor Kline was not at all uneasy about the absence of Mr. Stover. The Park Commissioner, he said, had not had a vacation in four years and was entitled to one.

C. & E. I. DEFICIT $942,000.

Receivers Say This Is Aggregate of Old Items Held in Suspense.

The annual report of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, operated by receivers since May 27, shows a deficit for the year ended June 30 of $942,000, after the payment of $192,000 in dividends on the preferred stock. The C. & E. I. separated from the St. Louis & San Francisco following the appointment of receivers.

In explanation of the deficit the receivers say that various items aggregating $250,000 were being carried in suspense or in other accounts up to the time of the appointment of receivers, with a view to charging these amounts to operation in monthly installments during the current year. The receivers stated upward of $75,000 to be charged to operating expenses for May and $275,000 to be charged to profit and loss.

RARE NAPOLEONANA SOLD.

$500 for Copy of Marriage Certificate —Belasco Gets Several Items.

The official copy of the marriage certificate of Napoleon Bonaparte and the Empress Josephine, dated Paris, March 10, 1796, was knocked down for $500 to John Gilbert at the opening session of Part II. of William J. Latta's celebrated Napoleon collection. A letter signed Bonaparte, written in 1796 and relating to the campaign in Italy, was bought by Rosenbach & Co. of Philadelphia for $100. Two leaves of the memoirs dictated to Gen. Gourgaud by Napoleon at St. Helena, with interlineations and corrections in Napoleon's autograph, went to L. C. Harper for $32.50. Another letter signed Bonaparte and addressed to Marshal Berthier was obtained by Dr. Rosenbach for $95. A document conferring the title of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor on Louis Hubert, dated Saint Cloud, Aug. 29, 1810, and signed "Napoleon," went to W. H. Hoffman of Providence, R. I., for $102.50.

Five lines of verse in the handwriting of Bonaparte's son, the Duc de Reichstadt, went to Mr. Harper for $48. Dr. Rosenbach paid $55 for a letter of the Empress Josephine, written in 1804. Two letters of Edmund Burke were bought by P. F. Madigan for $41.50

At last evening's session E. F. Bonaventure gave $125 for a portrait of "Le General Buonaparte," by P. M. Alix, and $122.50 for busts of the Three Consuls, Bonaparte Cambacérés, and Le Brun, by the same artist. J. E. Barr & Co. paid $125 for another portrait of Napoleon by Alix.

W. H. Hoffman obtained for $330 a miniature of Napoleon by Isabey, full bust, in uniform. David Belasco paid $160 for another Napoleon miniature after the Levaches portrait and $185 for a miniature of Marshal Ney by V. Saintes. Mr. Belasco also gave $90 for a lacquer snuff box with portrait of Napoleon and Frederick the Great, $215 for a tortoise shell box with miniature of Napoleon by Mennsier and a lock of hair said to be that of the great Emperor, and $80 for a picture of Napoleon crossing the Alps by Jacques Louis David, appointed first painter to Napoleon. It was found hanging on the walls of the refectory of an old French abbey many years ago.

William Patten paid $80 for a fan presented to Napoleon for his marriage with Josephine, and containing a medallion portrait of Napoleon crowned by Victory and Abundance. Mr. Patten also paid $750 for a gold snuff box presented by Napoleon to his sister, Caroline, Murat's wife, and set with his miniature by Isaberg. A tortoise shell and ivory box with cameo relief of Napoleon was bought by H. H. Rogers for $80. W. Silvia gave $500 for a gold snuff box presented by Napoleon when First Consul to Citizen Decouxrosse, Mayor of Givet on the Meuse.

The total for the two sessions was $6,204.50. The sale will be continued to-day.

Two more sessions of the Warren C. Crane collection of Napoleon and French Revolution material were held at the American Art Galleries yesterday. A letter signed by Ferdinand and Isabella brought $18. T. S. Norton gave $21 for a letter of Gen. J. N. Gobert. W. H. Hoffman paid $15 for a letter of the Marquis de Gouchy and $21 for a letter of Gen. Henri Jomini, aid to Marshal Ney. W. R. Benjamin bought a letter of the Empress Josephine for $41. Mr. Norton paid $23 for a letter of Marshal Jourdan. Maggs Brothers of London obtained for $41 a manuscript of the Come de las Casses, with correction in Napoleon's autograph, and Mr. Hoffman gave $95 for four pages of the manuscript of Napoleon Memoirs in the autograph of Las Cases, with corrections in Napoleon's handwriting, St. Helena, 1815.

The total to date is $4,796.50. There will be two more sesssions to-day.

WANTS BAIL TO GET MARRIED

Mrs. Ida von Claussen Demands Release from Justice Seabury.

Mrs. Ida Von Claussen, who is in the Tombs on a charge of blackmail, complained bitterly to Supreme Court Justice Seabury yesterday because he refused to admit her to bail, which Judge Malone had fixed at $5,000, and declined to permit her to visit the City Hall to get a marriage license. She resisted the efforts of the court officers to restrain her and declared that her brother's accusation that she was insane was unjust.

Randolph M. Newman, her counsel, at length persuaded her to leave the courtroom with the officer. Justice Seabury suggested that Mr. Newman and Assistant District Attorney Perkins ask Judge Malone whether he wished to revoke the provision for bail in the commitment. The court thought that the report of the Lunacy Commission should be specially returned.

Mrs. Von Claussen once threatened to sue Col. Roosevelt for $5,000,000 because, when he was President, he would not have her presented to the Swedish Court.

HOWARTH PLEADS GUILTY.

Connecticut Lawyer Admits Arson and Gets Long Sentence.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Nov. 17.—Frank E. Howarth, a young Putnam attorney, who has been on trial in the Superior Court here for two weeks charged with arson on fifteen counts, pleaded guilty to three of the counts this afternoon, and Judge Miller sentenced him to State's prison for from eight to fourteen years.

Lindley Caine, a youthful court messenger, who was arrested with Howarth, pleaded guilty on two counts, and he was sent to the State reformatory. Caine turned State's evidence.

Much of the State's evidence was given by Mrs. Zola Bennett, a State detective. According to her testimony, she requested Howarth to burn a mythical mine shaft in Colorado for her, and the lawyer then boasted of the fires he had set in Putnam. Detectives in adjoining rooms used a telephonic device to record the conversation.

SEASIDE HOSPITAL WORK.

St. John's Guild Will Take It Up at Its Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of St. John's Guild at the Republic Theatre in Forty-second street, next Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, will be attended by representatives from the hospitals, churches and other social agencies interested in the new convalescent service at Seaside Hospital, New Dorp, S. I. Almost immediately after the opening of the Seaside Hospital buildings for the treatment and care of convalescents, solicitations came from all of the large general hospitals of the city for the admittance of patients who were being discharged from city hospitals.

The hospital service of St. John's Guild is non-sectarian and its service for the poor convalescing from acute diseases is free.

NEW FLYING BOAT LAUNCHED

Inventor, Capt. Batson, Plans to Try a Trip Across the Atlantic.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 17.—The Batson hydroaeroplane, the new flying boat in which its inventor, Capt. M. A. Batson, expects to fly from America to Europe, has been launched in Herb River and has demonstrated its ability to maintain perfect equilibrium on the water and draw a depth of only a few inches. Capt. Batson is well satisfied with the showing made.

The thirty-two-foot lifeboat and the two pontoons rested on the water as lightly as a small rowboat. Though the machine's total weight is more than three tons, it drew less than twelve inches of water. The balance was perfect. The weight of four men standing together on one of the pontoons failed to disturb the equilibrium. The engines had a complete tryout, but no attempt was made to drive the machine down the river. The inventor will cruise on the waters for some time before attempting to navigate the air.

SOCIETY TO AID POOR HAS 70TH BIRTHDAY

Big Annual Meeting in Charities Building Closes Organization's Anniversary Celebration.

PLAN TO SELL FOOD AT COST

Welfare Director Tells of Need for Public Laundry Plant—10,000 Families Aided Yearly.

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor held its annual meeting last night in the assembly hall of the United Charities Building, 105 East Twenty-second Street, bringing to a close a four-day celebration of the organization's seventieth birthday.

The hall was crowded to capacity, and the celebration programmes bound in brown vellum, were the gift of Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins "in memory of her grandfather's services to the cause of humanity in founding the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor." They contained portraits of Robert Milham Hartley, with a brief sketch of his career. Mr. Hartley founded the organization in 1843, and served as its chief executive officer until 1876. He originated public activities to obtain improved housing, instruction in hygiene and nutrition, pure milk, care of neglected and wayward children, prevention of truancy, systematic care of the sick and crippled, better sewerage, cleaner streets, and sanitary markets.

Among the institutions maintained by the organization which he founded are Sea Breeze Home and Sea Breeze Hospital, Surf Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, Coney Island; Caroline Rest, Hartsdale, N. Y.; the Home Hospital, Seventy-eighth Street and John Jay Park, and the Milbank Memorial Bath, 325 East Thirty-eighth Street.

All the organization's activities and the results obtained were illustrated in striking fashion by a series of interesting "movies." One of the most impressive of the pictures showed the right and wrong ways of assisting needy families.

President Cutting's Address.

President R. Fulton Cutting made the opening address, and reviewed the social and economic changes which had taken place in New York City since 1843. In 1843, he said, New York civilization was primitive. There was no municipal police force, each one of the seventeen wards in the city maintaining order through the services of two constables during the day and several night watchmen. These functionaries were selected from the ranks of the unemployed. The citizens drew their own water from wells and vagrant pigs rooted in muddy streets.

"At that time," said Mr. Cutting, "industry had not yet recovered from the financial panic of 1837 and 1838. The sudden distress had given rise to many temporary expedients to relieve distress. Most of these were organized for particular and circumscribed phases of poverty. They were conducted without concert of action and with little information. There were between thirty and forty such relief agencies, but despite their apparent solicitude for the welfare of the poor, the streets were crowded with beggars, and the homes of the benevolent were besieged with importunate appeals."

Bailey B. Burritt, director of the Department of Social Welfare of the organization, told of some of the studies which had been made by that bureau, which is supported by the gift of $250,000 made last Spring by Mrs. Elizabeth Milbank Anderson. He laid special stress upon the movement to improve and extend the public baths, and asserted that there existed a pressing need for a public laundry plant. He next told of the cheap lunches in the schools, which have made it possible for poor children to obtain a nourishing meal at the cost of three cents.

To Open a Foodstuff Store.

The speaker announced also that the association had decided to establish a foodstuff store, where poor families might buy their supplies at cost.

John A. Kingsbury, the general director, told of "the great social vision which came to Robert M. Hartley," which he said had resulted in a cleaner, healthier, and better city which the prosperous were seeking through organized effort to uplift the less fortunate. Mr. Kingsbury said that by systematizing its business affairs it had been able in spite of the high cost of living to make a dollar go further than ever before, and had actually reduced the cost of maintenance at Sea Breeze, Caroline Rest, and the Home Hospital nearly 16 per cent.

Mrs. Helene Ingram, Superintendent of the Bureau of Relief, compared the work of the early days with that accomplished to-day. From a small corps of paid workers in 1879, she said, the work had expanded so that now in the course of a year nearly 10,000 families are visited and helped. The following persons were elected to the Board of Managers for the ensuing year:

R. Fulton Cutting, T. Franklin Smith, M. D.; De Witt J. Seligman, Robert Shaw Minturn, Percy R. Pyne, John Greenough, Henry G. Barbey, Charles Wisner, John Seely Ward, Eugene Delano, George S. Brewster, Leonard E. Opdyke, B. Ogden Chisholm, Albert G. Milbank, George Blagden, Charles C. Burlingham, Linsley R. Williams, M. D.; R. Bayard Cutting, Frederick P. Moore, Franklin B. Kirkbride, Amos R. E. Pinchot, Harry Pelham Robbins, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr.; Philip Van Ingen, Livingston Farrand, M. D.; Willard D. Straight, A. J. Sheldon, Acosta Nichols, and Ernesto G. Fabbri.

The Women's Advisory Committee tendered a reception to the members and guests of the association after the meeting, in the course of which a collation was served.

CONSOLS CALLED FORGERIES

Suit Over Lot That Caused Col. Cornwell to Kill Himself.

A suit for the possession of $23,000 in consols was begun before Justice Blanchard in the Supreme Court yesterday on the ground that the signatures authorizing their transfer in the Spring of 1908 were forgeries. No accusations were made against any person in this proceeding, the only question involved being whether or not the signatures were genuine. It was intimated, however, that this particular transaction was mainly responsible for the sensational suicide on Aug. 6, 1912, of Col. Gibbons Gray Cornwell, commander of the Sixth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, and one of the conspicuous men in that State.

The consols were issued by the Securities Company of this city and are now in the possession of the Equitable Securities Company. They were formerly part of the Anna W. Roberts trust fund that aggregated $100,000, of which Capt. R. T. Cornwell, the Colonel's father, was executor. They were registered in the name of the Chester County (Penn.) Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company.

It was charged that the transfer signatures were forged and that the bonds were used as collateral to bolster up the speculative stock account that Col. Cornwell carried in Philadelphia.

The Colonel was arrested in this city on Aug. 5 on the charge of having swindled Col. George R. Dyer, former commander of the New York National Guard, by selling him bogus bonds. Then it was charged that he had been guilty of swindling operations to the amount of $200,000. He was turned over to Constable William Mullen of West Chester, Penn., who started home with him. Just as the train was pulling into the Broad Street Station in Philadelphia the Colonel sent a bullet into his brain.

Among the witnesses yesterday was the widow of the Colonel, who told of having found a receipt from the broker to whom the consols were given by her husband. Two sons of R. S. Walton, former President of the Trust and Safe Deposit Company, testified that their father had not written the signature on the bonds which purported to be his.

The case will be continued to-day.

PEARL CASE ENDED.

Sealed Verdict Will Settle Its Ownership To-day.

A sealed verdict in the suit for possession of the now famous $13,000 pink pearl will be handed up to Supreme Court Justice Donnelly at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Jules Vatable, who asserts that it belongs to her and not to Ludwig Nissen & Co., was certain yesterday when the case closed that the jury would find a verdict for her. But S. Stanwood Menken, the lawyer for Nissen, was as sure that Mrs. Vatable would lose the pearl.

Mrs. Vatable was greatly provoked at the delay. She confidently expected to get a verdict before nightfall yesterday in order to be able to wear the pearl to a reception last night and feel that no one could challenge her right to it. She said she would wear it anyway. This determination worried her counsel because they feared the jury might call for it in the jury room. Finally she consented to permit Mr. Anderson of her counsel to take it on his solemn promise that it would not go out of his possession.

Mrs. Vatable was recalled to the witness chair yesterday to answer the single question whether she had bought two pearls of 26 grains each at any time prior to 1908. She replied that she had not. The pink pearl weighs twenty-five and three-quarters grains. She again asserted that the pearl she has been wearing as the centre piece of the necklace is not the one stolen from Nissen & Co

WITTPENN NOMINATION IN.

New Jersey Should Be Represented In New York Customs, Says Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—H. Otto Wittpenn, former Mayor of Jersey City, a candidate in the Jersey Gubernatorial primaries against Gov. Fielder, and later his ardent supporter, was nominated to-day for Naval Officer at the New York Custom House.

President Wilson issued a statement pointing out that as several counties of New Jersey had been made part of the New York customs district in the recent reorganization, it was appropriate that New Jersey should be represented.

CHARLES LAMB is authority for the statement that, according to Confucius, the art of roasting or broiling was discovered by the accidental burning of a litter of nine new farrowed pigs when a Chinaman's dwelling caught fire.

Yet today, 8,000 years after, it is no easy matter to get a good roast or a perfect broil.

Not that the art is lost, but rather that, in the rush and roar of the modern minute, it has fallen by the wayside, neglected and forgotten.

That is why it is worth your while to patronize the Claridge, where the culinary art has been revived, and where the delights of dining are not confined to the French idiom on the menu.

COAL TERMINALS UNDER SCRUTINY

First Phase of Anthracite Road Inquiry Taken Up by Commerce Commission.

SIFT BURNS BROS.' LEASES

Trestles and Coal Pockets on Jersey Central Land—Manhattan Lighterage Co. a Railroad Subsidiary.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The groundwork of the investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the anthracite coal roads, to determine whether their rates are reasonable and whether they are observing the interstate commerce laws, was laid to-day with the calling of witnesses before Commissioner John H. Marble to testify as to the facilities of the roads for handling coal.

It was the object of the commission's attorneys to learn how these facilities compared with those for the transportation of other commodities, the labor costs involved, and the methods of operation, with a view to their relation to the freight rates charged. This testimony will be supplemented later with that of accountants and other officials who will be called to show the cost of the investment of the roads devoted to the transportation of coal. These costs will be checked up with the commission's own figures.

The witnesses who testified to-day were division Superintendents and yardmasters of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Reading. They described in detail the methods of handling coal and the amount shipped at the various tidewater terminals.

The commission's attorneys laid considerable stress on the facilities afforded at the terminals of the Jersey Central for the delivery of coal to retail dealers in New York, particularly the firm of Burns Brothers. This concern, it was brought out, leased land from the road valued at from $8,000 to $10,000 an acre for its trestles and coal pockets. It was intimated that the relations of the firm with the Jersey Central and other railroads would be a subject of further inquiry.

Edward E. Kerwin, Division Superintendent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, described the methods of lightering freight at the tidewater terminals, New York Harbor. He said that much of it was handled by the Manhattan Lighterage Company.

"We will admit," said Jackson E. Reynolds, attorney for the Central Railroad of New Jersey, "that the Manhattan Lighterage Company, for the purposes of the commission, is a creature of our road. Its stock is owned by the Jersey Central and I am a dummy Director."

William Sweeney, Assistant Division Superintendent of the Jersey Central, told of the difficulties in distributing cars to the various mines.

"It would drive you insane to try to get empties enough to satisfy everybody," he said.

PACKARD TRUCKS

2, 3, 4, 5, and 6-Ton Capacity

By investing in Packard trucks you get vehicles into which the maximum service quality has been built. You avoid experiments.

Packard trucks have made good. Four million dollars' worth have been sold within the past year.

A uniform standard of quality and workmanship is found in every Packard truck. Each Packard is the absolute equal of any unit of its size. There is no speculation. Any purchaser can get the same uniformly good Packard truck that the biggest corporation can buy.

The first cost of Packards is little if any higher than that of trucks inferior in workmanship or design. The final cost of Packards is lower than "bargain" trucks.

FOOTBALL

Every college man in the United States, as well as a few hundred thousand other followers of the gridiron game, is interested in the subjects of excellent photographs to be reproduced in an ILLUSTRATED FOOTBALL SECTION of The New York Times next Sunday. This section will be a handy magazine of football, containing sixteen pages, printed on calendered paper, and in a size convenient for keeping as a souvenir.

AMONG THE CONTENTS:

The cover design—an action photograph, which is one of the most remarkable camera records ever made on a football field.

Photographs and records of the West Point and Annapolis players who will meet at the Polo Grounds Saturday after next.

Stars of the Harvard and Yale teams, whose game will be played in Cambridge at the end of this week.

The Captain of Princeton's eleven, which tied Yale last Saturday, and the story of Eli and Tiger gridiron feats.

Latest photographs of Captains of leading teams in North, East, South, and West, with records of their elevens.

A concise history of the game, by Parke H. Davis, member of the Rules Committee and well known as a writer on gridiron tactics.

Brief reviews of football's development at West Point, Annapolis, and at colleges and universities of North, East, South, and West.

WHO WILL BE INTERESTED:

Among those who will find photographs and articles that appeal to them in the ILLUSTRATED FOOTBALL SECTION will be students and alumni of

TO ISSUE BULLETIN ON ACCOUNTANCY

National Retail Dry Goods Association Preparing Resume of Puzzling Questions.

LIGHT ON STORE PROBLEMS

Will Tell Way to Figure Stock Turnovers, and Even How to Sell Tailored Waists.

The National Retail Dry Goods Association will issue an eight-page bulletin on the subject of acountancy for retail dry goods stores early next week. It will contain a number of answers to questions arising from practical merchandising problems. A few of the more important questions and the association's answers follow:

Question 1.—" We wish you would submit us your method of figuring stock turnovers. We are herewith inclosing you figures of one of our departments for the year 1912. We wish you would use these figures in submitting us your method."

Answer—In figuring turnover, divide the merchandise cost of sales by the amount of average stock carried at cost. Using your figures, we arrive at the turnover as follows:

To arrive at average stock carried:
Total of 13 inventory balances	$28,294.00
Divided by 13	2,175.69
To arrive at cost of merchandise sold:
Inventory Jan. 1, 1912	$1,667.00
Add purchases year 1912	11,522.78
Total	$13,219.78
Less. Inventory Jan. 1, 1912	2,717.00
	$10,502.78
To arrive at turnover:
Merchandise cost of sales	$10,502.78
Divided by average stock of	2,175.69
Turnover	4.8 Times

Question 2.—Will you please advise us what, in your opinion, is an average yearly percentage of loss on credit accounts in department store experience?"

Our experience with stores doing a considerable volume of charge business places the average loss at between one-fifth and one-third of one per cent. of the total amount charged. In cases where the loss has run higher than the limits cited above, there has been some special reason for the high loss, and should not be given consideration in arriving at a proper limit.

Question 3.—"One of the problems that has arisen in keeping stock at cost and retail is the transfer of merchandise from one department to another. In our ordinary transactions we take off both the cost and retail of the one department and add the same items to the other department, but we have one or two instances where we wish goods transferred to one department, but wish the first department to make the profit. To be more explicit, we have a dressmaking department which we are satisfied to furnish with findings and small items at cost and retail stock, but on laces, trimmings, and silks, which are used in the dressmaking department, we desire that the original department make their regular profit."

The merchandise transfer form, on which goods are transferred from one department to another, should show columns for the price and amount under the following headings: Cost transferred at; retail transferred from, and retail transferred to. In case of the items which you wish to transfer at retail the amount under the heading "cost transferred at" and "retail transferred from" would be the same, and we suggest that in these cases the "cost transferred at" columns be left blank. When these transfers are regularly made for the month's work the total of these transfers will be a credit to the original department's sale, or whatever department may be affected.

Question 4.—"Please advise us if freight and express and traveling expense should be charged to the merchandise or the expense accounts of a department. How is the help of a soda-fountain and luncheonette department charged, such as waitresses, cooks, etc., to expense or merchandise?"

This question is answered in our Accounting Bulletin, Jan. 1, 1913—Volume I., Special, No. 2.

Question 5.—We have been at a loss to known just how to treat customers with reference to taking out approval such goods as ladies' tailored shirtwaists. We have many times been asked by some of our best customers to be allowed to take out on approval as many as half a dozen tailored waists which are laundered in the very best style and fitted in the store with a pasteboard which makes them very attractive and salable. Usually these waists come back badly mussed, because of being tried on, and it is necessary to sell them at a big reduction. The thing we wish is a consensus of opinion as to what is the proper course to follow in selling this class of merchandise.

Every store than we know of is having more or less shrinkage in the waist department on account of soiled goods, which are returned by customers after having been out on approval. One store has been able to reduce this condition very greatly by placing a sign in the department to the effect that tailored and linen waists are not returnable. They do not enforce the rule strictly, but it tends to reduce the quantity returned.

The association has had an accountancy bureau for more than a year, under the direction of a well-known local firm of public accountants, and the foregoing questions and answers have been selected, with several others, from the large number of queries the bureau has received as the representative of problems confronted by the owner of the average retails store.

The legal department of the association, which was organized about two years ago and which is under the direction of Harold Remington, will also issue a bulletin shortly. According to Secretary Pinkham of the association, it will probably be ready to send out by week after next.

INSTALL 200 FIRE DRILLS

But Report of Cloakmakers' Board Says There Is Still Much to Do.

The Fire Prevention Bureau of the Joint Board of Sanitary Control of the cloak and suit and waist and dress industries reports its work to date as follows:

During October one squad, consisting of Mr. Rosenblatt and the two firemen, have succeeded in introducing fire drills into 200 shops, which gives an average rate of about 11 drills per day in view of the short month we had in October. During the first two weeks of November we have introduced drills into 75 additional shops, making a total of 275 new drills introduced during October and November. We have also made the first monthly redrill in 124 shops.

The Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, and the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, through their managers, have given very valuable co-operation and assistance in the establishment of this division and its success. The managers of the two associations have sent out letters to their members urging them to make application for fire drills. A letter was also sent out from the office to all independent manufacturers having shops above the fifth floor. The result of this activity was that we have received so far 245 applications, as follows:

Members of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, 106; members of Dress and Waist Association, 95, and independent manufacturers, 44.

It appears, therefore, that all members of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, 191 members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, and 473 independent manufacturers, who have shops above the fifth floor, or 815 firms, have not as yet responded to the appeal, and have not as yet made application for fire drills. Some method of procedure as to how to deal with these owners should be devised by this board in view of the fact that the board decided to revoke the sanitary certificates of all those firms who have made no applications for fire drills before Nov. 1.

This department was established by the board some time ago in anticipation of the fire prevention provisions of the State labor law, which became effective on Oct. 1.

WOMEN TO RAISE $150,000.

Plan Four Weeks' Campaign for Washington Heights Hospital.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Washington Heights Hospital was founded eight years ago and in celebration of the anniversary a luncheon was held yesterday at Delmonico's, when plans were made for a four weeks' campaign to raise $150,000 for a new hospital building on the grounds on 165th Street near Broadway. This hospital takes care of all the sick poor on Washington Heights. The district has grown so rapidly that the present buildings are greatly overtaxed.

During the campaign there will be a meeting at the Hotel Savoy twice each week, on Tuesday and Friday mornings, between 10 and 12 o'clock, to report on the subscriptions to the fund. At the same hours and on the same days there will be meetings at the hospital on Washington Heights, where reports by the uptown members of the auxiliary will be made. A committee of fifty men will meet to-morrow night at the Hotel Savoy to make plans for helping in the work.

The Women's Auxiliary was organized by Mrs. Adolph Heller, with a nucleus of twelve women. The auxiliary now has more than 625 members. The officers of the auxiliary are: Mrs. Adolph Heller, President; Mrs. Jeremiah C. Lyons, First Vice President; Mrs. Ernest A. Limburg, Second Vice President; Mrs. S. Marcus Harris, Treasurer; Mrs. Elek John Ludvig, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Henry E. Wise, Financial Secretary; Mrs. Henry Wolf, Recording Secretary.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The general strength of the local cotton goods market is shown by the fact that recent price advances have in no way interfered with distribution. Some grades of gray goods are already sold up for the season.

Orders for the holiday season are now increasing the already heavy demand for women's neckwear. A feature of the present season is the discontinuance of boxing holidays, which has been in view of the fact that the board decided to revoke the sanitary certificates of all those firms who have made no applications for fire drills before Nov. 1.

The early confidence shown in velvet as a feature fabric for Fall and Winter is fully borne out by the current fashions in women's clothing. Velvet has proved so far to be about the most popular fabric of the season.

CITY CLUB'S YEAR.

Congratulates Itself on Amendment No. 1 and Popular Opera.

At the annual meeting of the City Club, held last evening in the clubhouse in West Forty-fourth Street, these trustees were elected: For one year—Lincoln Cromwell, Joseph M. Price, Francis D. Pollak, and Henry C. Wright; for two years—George W. Alger, Richard S. Childs, Edward Kellogg Baird, Joseph G. Deane, Norman Hapgood, Alexander H. Spencer, Nelson H. Spencer, and Charles H. Strong.

The annual meeting was the occasion for the Board of Trustees' report on the work of the year just past, showing that year to have been the most successful in the club's history. This was true internally as well as in the club's civic work. Although $2,800 has been set aside for depreciation, the operating profit of the clubhouse has amounted to $4,863.22.

Attention is called to an amendment to the club's constitution, adopted within the year, which expressly imposes the limitation, always recognized in practice, that the City Club should not participate in any way in the nomination, election, or appointment of any one to office. Under the amended constitution, says the report, the club has been able to concern itself not merely with the machinery of city government but with the various economic and social problems affecting the city's life. The extent of the club's activity in one respect alone is indicated by the fact that during the last regular session of the Legislature at Albany the Legislation Committee considered in all 615 separate measures, favoring 84 and opposing 147.

The City Club regards Amendment No. 1, voted on at the last election, as its own, and speaks with gratification of the fact that it appears to have passed.

A special section of the report is reserved for the popular opera movement launched by the City Club and now in full swing at the Century. Says the report:

"No enterprise ever undertaken by the club has made it so widely known. It is no exaggeration to say that through this the City Club is known in every substantial town in the United States."

ARRAIGN GIBSON AS FORGER.

Cleared of Killing Mrs. Szabo, He Must Explain Her Affairs.

Burton W. Gibson, who several weeks ago was released after two trials for the murder of Rosa Szabo in Greenwood Lake, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Crain in the Court of General Sessions on four indictments, growing out of the handling of Mrs. Szabo's estate. Gibson pleaded not guilty to all four indictments, three of which charged grand larceny and one forgery in the second degree.

Gibson told Judge Crain that he had no funds and the court designated Louis Hymes as his counsel, and gave Gibson until Nov. 21 to make motions or change his plea.

Mexico Railways Pays Notes.

Through arrangements made in Paris last June, the National Railways Company of Mexico was enabled yesterday to pay $13,000,000 of 6 per cent. notes which matured Nov. 15. Funds were provided for this purpose by the sale of $26,730,000 of 6 per cent. two-year gold notes. The Railways will have no further obligations to meet till Dec. 1, when a half-year's interest must be paid on the new notes.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Board of Directors of the National Retail Dry Goods Association will meet in this city on Dec. 4. The board will consider Elizabeth Gannon's preliminary report on conditions existing in the department stores of the country, and will discuss plans for promoting instruction in salesmanship in public schools. It will also discuss Secretary Pinkham's tentative profit-sharing plan for employes.

A recent report that a number of small concerns, backed by Dutch capitalists, had been lately incorporated in this State and would compete in the local condensed milk trade is declared to be little interest among producers and dealers.

Max G. Conn & Co., Incorporated, were recently appointed American selling agents for the Rhenish Rubber and Celluloid Company of Mannheim-Neckaran, Germany.

Imports of silk fabrics at New York in the week ended Nov. 8 were valued at $951,038, against $669,564 in the week before. Withdrawals from bonded warehouses were valued at $102,484, or a loss of $38,714 from the previous week.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Chemical and Mineral Substances Subject to Different Rates of Duty.

The United States Court of Custom Appeals has decided that chemical substances and mineral substances are distinguished for dutiable purposes under the tariff act. This was determined in an appeal by the Government from a decision of the Board of General Appraisers in favor of Kraemer & Co. This firm imported a patented plate powder, which was assessed by the Collector of Customs at New York at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 95, Tariff act of 1909, as an article composed wholly or in chief value of earthy or mineral substances.

The board sustained the protest and decided that the merchandise was properly dutiable at ¼ of 1 cent a pound by similitude under paragraph 54, as whiting and Paris white, dry. The Government then asserted that the powder was dutiable under paragraph 3 at 25 per cent. ad valorem as a chemical compound. The court in affirming the board's decision, held that, as the powder contained 94.89 per cent. of mineral substance, it did not fall under the provision in the law for chemical mixtures.

The court, in passing upon protests by Meyer Lange and others, decided that appeals taken by petition, omitting names of importers, but giving the protest numbers of the cases, were insufficient. All such appeals, the court rules, must contain the names of the protestants as well as the protest numbers. The merchandise involved in the case consisted of dried plums in hermetically sealed tins. The goods were assessed at 1 cent a pound and 35 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 274, act of 1909, as fruit preserved in syrup or their own juices. The importers demanded a rate of 2 cents a pound under paragraph 273, as plums. The board's action in finding against the importers was affirmed by the court.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday copper was weak and unsettled. Tin was steady. The close bid and asked prices follow:

	Monday.		Friday.
Stand. Copper	Bid.	Asked.	Bid.	Asked.
Spot	14.25	15.25	14.20	15.25
November	14.25	15.25	14.25	15.25
December	14.25	15.25	14.25	15.25
Lead	4.25	4.35	4.30	..
Spelter	5.20	5.30	5.20	5.30
Zinc	5.20	5.30	5.30	5.30
Tin	40.75	40.25	39.90	40.10

London prices yesterday for copper and pig tin, compared with Friday, follow:

	Monday.	Friday.
	£ s d	£ s d
Copper, spot	67 15 0	68 0 0
Copper, futures	66 15 0	67 7 6
Pig tin, spot	180 0 0	181 2 6
Pig tin, futures	181 5 0	182 10 0

The market ended quiet. Spanish pig lead, £13, unchanged. Spelter, £20 12s 6d, unchanged. Cleveland warrants, 48s 10½d, down 6d.

MISCELLANEOUS MARKETS.

BEEF.—There were no wholesale price changes yesterday for Western beef cuts.

SUGAR.—No change was reported in the local refined sugar market. The raw sugar market was firmer yesterday, and, although no sales were reported, buyers were willing to take supplies at Saturday's price levels, which were $3.67 for centrifugal, $3.17 for muscovado, and $2.92 for molasses testing 89 deg. The London beet sugar market was steady and unchanged at 9s 5¼d for November, 9s 6d for December, and 9s 10½d for May.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.—Molasses prices were firm yesterday owing to the strike in the Southwest, which may somewhat retard the movement. There was a fair demand from local jobbers, but prices showed no change. The demand for syrups was light and prices were unchanged.

RICE.—The demand for rice was small yesterday and prices were as last quoted.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—The flour market was inactive and buyers were inclined to hold off because of the feverish undertone in the wheat market.

OILS.—No price changes were reported in the oil market.

NAVAL STORES.—The turpentine market was firmer as a result of the higher prices at Savannah. The demand, however, was small and prices were unchanged. Resin was steady and tar was dull and unchanged.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

A report from Greece says that a French syndicate with a capital of $6,000,000 is studying the possibilities of agricultural development in Macedonia and Thessaly, and that a Graeco-French company is about to apply for a concession of the numerous and valuable Grecian medicinal springs in that locality.

A recent Nanking dispatch says that a syndicate comprising numerous merchants of that city has been formed to rebuild as rapidly as possible the houses and factories that were destroyed in the last revolution.

Coupons Not Trading Stamps.

An important decision favoring the United Cigar Stores Company of America was handed down recently at New Orleans by Judge King of the Civil District Court, in which he held that the coupons distributed by the company with its sales could not be classified as trading stamps. The decision was rendered in a suit brought against the United Company by the Louisiana Tax Collector, through which the State sought to collect the heavy tax levied on trading stamp companies operating there. The opinion of Judge King was based partly on the fact that the United Company redeemed its coupons without their being used in general trade. It is said that the decision will probably be appealed.

Co-operative Investing Plan.

A new plan for encouraging thrift among its employes has been put into operation in a prominent Ohio department store. It is a co-operative investment scheme, the object of which is to promote saving and to assist employes desirous of making investments on small capital. The movement is being carried on under the head of a Savings Bureau, and it began work with a pledged deposit of $4,100. This amount consisted entirely of pledges made by the buyers of the store. This money, together with other deposits received from the employes, will be deposited with a trust company at 4 per cent. interest until it has grown large enough to be invested. In addition to the interest paid, it is planned to pay dividends semi-annually, on deposits of three months or more, from the future earnings of the fund. A regular weekly or monthly deduction from the salaries of the employes making use of the bureau may be arranged by them if desired. The store paymaster will apply the deducted amounts direct to the employe's account in the bureau.

A Record in Returned Purchases.

What is considered to be the acme of the return purchase evil has been brought to light in a story told of a well-known department store. A certain woman brought a smoking jacket into the men's furnishing department of this store, said that she had bought it there, and that she wanted to return it. Her husband had died, she explained, and she had no use for it. The salesman to whom she brought the coat examined it carefully, and then told her politely that she must be mistaken in her claim that the coat had been bought there. She insisted that she was right, however, and a department head was called. He was skeptical also, but finally agreed to accept the coat and give credit if the customer could show that it had come from his department. He thought that he had disposed of the matter diplomatically enough, but the next day the woman came back. With her she brought a bill which showed that the coat had been bought in that department—but fourteen years ago. The husband had died about the time of the purchase, she said, and his estate, including the coat, had been involved all that time. Though almost overcome with surprise, the manager kept his word and made out a credit slip.

Spring Styles in Neckwear.

Advance Spring advices regarding women's neckwear indicate a continued popularity of fichus and long-sleeved guimpes. New styles in collars are cut narrow in the back and circular in the front, with a very low neck. Both deep and shallow points are featured. Favored materials for collar and cuff sets are radium cloths, snowflake voiles, embroidered nets, and chiffons. The trend toward colors in embroideries is likely to be reflected in neckwear. Paris reports regarding silk collars are attracting attention here. None of these collars has yet been shown in New York, and they are not likely to gain much headway before Easter. Neckwear generally will be as rich and lacy as ever. Ruchings and plaitings will be much in evidence.

A suggestion was made recently to local corset manufacturers that an identification mark, designating what type of figure each corset was intended for, should be put on corset boxes. It was said that such marks would save saleswomen's time in fitting customers properly, and would also be more satisfactory to the customers. A prominent corset manufacturer said yesterday that he considered the plan impractical, and that the demand for goods marked in that way would be to the larger cities, where the women were constantly adopting the newest corset styles. He said also that style changes made it impossible to gauge any particular style to any one woman, citing the fact that the corset styles this year often required stays that were two sizes larger than formerly. "Such a plan for markings," he went on, "would cause considerable trouble to the retailer. It was recently brought to the attention of the Directors of the Corset Manufacturers' Association of the United States, and was condemned as impractical."

(About Investments)

It is often assumed that a security which returns a high yield carries with it a proportionate amount of risk. This is not always so. Some securities are selling at low price because they were not thoroughly distributed, or for reasons which similarly do not affect the real value of security. Stocks and bonds in this position are desirable, and discriminating investors look for them. Correspondence is invited.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Move Little in Dullest Full Day's Trading in Five Months.

Trading on the Stock Exchange fell yesterday to the smallest volume in five months. It is necessary to go back to July 15 last to find recorded as slim a full day's business on the Exchange. Barring a few exceptional cases the net effect upon prices was commensurate with the smallness of the dealings. Some traders after reading the morning's news regarding the Mexican situation were prepared for a sharp break. Our relations with Mexico, they thought, had reached a sufficiently critical stage to cause a good deal of unsettlement on the Stock Exchange. Nothing of the kind happened. It is true the opening transactions were made at fairly large concessions from Saturday's final quotations, but without show of activity at any time the great majority of stocks recovered most of their first loss soon after the opening. Thereafter the market drifted idly to its close, which showed a small decline in the general level.

The fact of the matter was that the Mexican situation appeared no more critical than it had on one or two previous occasions and the stock market had already adjusted itself to the possibility of such news as was contained in yesterday morning's dispatches. The relative firmness of the market in the face of more or less alarming suggestions in respect to our relations with Mexico was all the more worthy of note for the reason that some important banking interests profess to see no other outcome than this country's intervention for the re-establishment of peace in Mexico. But this thought is by no means new to the stock market. Its action yesterday indicated that it would take something unexpected in the news to lift the market from the apathy into which during recent days it has been sinking deeper and deeper.

Saturday's bank statement which was more favorable than had been counted upon, assurance of continued, and, perhaps, increased ease in money. This was a sustaining influence in the face of the more or less unfavorable Mexican news, but the Stock Exchange did not seem consciously awayed by money market considerations. There was a disposition in some quarters, however, to lay greater emphasis on the probable relation between the forces now at work in the money market and the future of the bond market. That market at present is very quiet, but an increasing number are anticipating for the not distant future a broadening of the investment demand which will apply in the first instance to bonds of high grade, which yet yield relatively large returns.

Much interest attaches to the investigation into the rates and practices of the anthracite roads, in which hearings were begun by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday. This is an inquiry in which, when it was first announced, the market found cause for some concern, but traders seemed more or less indifferent to it yesterday. The fact that the market has been engaged in a process of discounting adverse possibilities offers one, and, perhaps, the best reason why continued discussion of such possibilities, is currently exerting less influence upon prices as a whole and upon the volume of Stock Exchange dealings than it was exerting some time ago.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2½@3½ per cent., with the last loan at 3 per cent. The renewal rate was 3½ per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Too Much Politics.

On Dec. 1 the National Railways of Mexico must pay $800,000 interest on its new two-year notes sold abroad last June, and one month later it will have its regular semi-annual bond interest, amounting to about $2,000,000, to meet. Preparations have been started to finance the Dec. 1 charge, but it was said yesterday by bankers familiar with the situation that much depended upon the political developments of the next fortnight. Given half a chance, the National Railways can earn its fixed charges, and given a few years of peace it could pay dividends on its preferred stock again, but outside capital is reluctant to make further advances to the Railways while unsettled conditions continue.

The Backbone of a Strike.

When the copper miners of the Lake Superior district went out on strike three months ago it was said in quarters familiar with conditions in the region that many stopped work against their will. Only the insistence of those of their number who were already members of the Western Federation of Miners that the union should be recognized was believed to have made a general strike possible. The continuance of trouble for so long a period was not looked for except by the employers, who knew how great would be the influence of the union, and were cognizant of the resources of the men when it came to meeting living expenses through a long lay-off. The union lent some assistance in this line, but the miners were well prepared with "sinews of war" on their own account. An officer of one of the companies said yesterday that shortly before the strike began the savings banks of Houghton County, Mich., alone contained about $9,000,000, which represented, for the most part, the savings of miners, while there was on deposit in all the banks of the county something like $15,000,000.

Minority Fight to the Courts.

The refusal of the Directors of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company to postpone the annual meeting of stockholders for a week to allow time for a conference with a committee of the minority is likely to result in an appeal to the courts, according to a member of the committee. Plans are under way for suits against the Directors for an amount in excess of $1,000,000, the committee alleging extravagant expenditures during the past year. The self-appointed minority committee, consisting of W. Bourke Cockran, Thomas Read, and L. Napoleon Levy has obtained a digest of the company's accounts from Haskins & Sells.

Realization Shares Fall.

Stocks of the Assets Realization Company slumped 20 points in yesterday's market, following a break of 14 points last week. In contrast with a high point of 120 for the year, the shares were quoted yesterday at 40. The Street has become familiar with declines in inactive stocks, but so extensive a contraction in market value as 34 points in a few days could not be passed over without much comment. An officer of the company was quoted as saying that some of its investments in real estate were "slow" because of the dull state of the real estate market, but this explanation was partly offset by the assertion that the company's business was still good. In market circles the assumption was taken from the action of the stock that the next dividend would show a reduction from the usual 7 per cent. annual basis. No intimation of an official sort was given, however, that earnings were such as to necessitate a smaller return to shareholders.

A New England View.

"During the past month there have been marked evidences of a general business recession throughout the United States," says the First National Bank of Boston. "A contraction in business, similar to that which took place in New England several months ago, has now made itself apparent throughout the country. There has been a general shrinkage in production, consumption, and orders for forward business. The waning production of such an immediately consumed staple as pig iron, in connection with the subnormal volume of steel orders, and the curtailment in production of the Steel Corporation itself, are surface factors indicating decreasing business activity. In New England, however, in the past thirty days, conditions have a little more than held their own. It is true that in certain lines, especially those entering into building operations, there has been a severe falling off in business, which has not yet been checked. On the other hand, shoe manufacturing, contrary to the expectations of those in the business, has held up well, and compares favorably with 1912. It may be fairly said that there is a good volume of business moving in New England, and, while in general the profits are not sufficiently large at the present time, the chief industries—with conservative stocks on hand—are thoroughly prepared to meet future trade conditions."

Steel Wage Cuts Far Off.

Business will have to get a great deal worse than it is, steel men say, before wages begin to come down. They say positively that the pay of the men will be the last factor to reflect a straightened condition of income; drastic economies may come in other directions, but the present wage level will be maintained as long as possible. This expression of opinion was given with the possibility in mind that the steel trade was facing a depression of some months, and that a curtailment of wage costs might come into serious consideration before dullness had run its course. Talk of general reduction of wages is as yet a more or less academic proposition, for, as a matter of fact, many steel workers are not getting now as much money as they did two months ago. Their pay has come down without being cut, because the price of steel has been lowered. And the sliding wage scale, having its basis in the price of steel or iron bars or some other commodity, will continue to fall to a lower level as steel declines, provided it does decline, automatically reducing the pay of workers in a number of departments without bringing about formal wage recessions.

BIG EXTRA OIL DIVIDEND.

Ohio Company's Quarterly Payment Amounts to 32 Per Cent.

FINDLAY, Ohio, Nov. 17.—Directors of the Ohio Oil Company, a former subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company, declared to-day the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share and an extra disbursement of $6.75 a share. As the stock has a par value of $25, the extra payment was equivalent to 27 per cent.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Oil Shares Advance in Curb Market, but Tobacco Issues Close Lower.

Trading in outside securities was on a rather small scale, and the movement of prices was irregular, with strength in the oil stocks and a heavy tone in the tobacco issues. Among the latter Tobacco Products preferred closed with a net loss of a point, while United Cigar Stores fell off 1⅝. Standard Oil of New Jersey gained 2 points on the day, with the closing price at 377. Riker-Hegeman shares opened off 20 points, but recovered the decline, and closed unchanged at 160.

CONNECTICUT CAR LINES.

Annual Reports Show Increased Earnings for All Companies.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 17.—The street railway companies in Connecticut to-day filed with the Secretary of State their annual reports for the year ended June 30 last. All the companies showed increased earnings.

The Connecticut Company, the largest line in the State, had net earnings of $3,082,923. It has 400,000 shares of stock outstanding, representing $40,000,000 at par. The company has 478,325 miles of trackage.

Three persons were killed during the year and 377 injured. On the four smaller trolley lines three were killed and twenty-nine injured.

STIRS UP GOV. GLYNN ON LOUISIANA BONDS

Counsel for Repudiated Baby Bondholders Gets Promise of Action on Carmody Opinion.

FIGHT ON THE NEW CONSOLS

Attorney General Said to Have Reversed Himself in Admitting Them to Savings Banks.

Gov. Glynn has taken official cognizance of complaints regarding the action of Attorney General Carmody in reversing himself, as well as his predecessor, Attorney General O'Malley, in regard to defaulted bonds of Louisiana. E. L. Andrews of 25 Broad Street, counsel for holders of the repudiated "baby" bonds, received a letter yesterday from the Governor's secretary expressing the Governor's thanks for bringing the matter to his attention and saying that he would take it up with the Attorney General.

The "baby" bonds—so-called because they were issued in denominations of $5—differ from the repudiated obligations of several Southern States in that they are not "carpet-bag" bonds, but were issued in 1880, long after the reconstruction period. Louisiana contends, however, that they are not general obligations of the State, but were issued against certain revenues, which proved insufficient to meet them.

The banking law in this State forbids the investment of the funds of savings depositors in the obligations of any State that has been in default within ten years, and Attorney General O'Malley ruled that under this provision the present consols of Louisiana were not legal investments for the savings banks of the State. After George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., became Superintendent of Banks, he asked Attorney General Carmody for a ruling and Mr. Carmody upheld his predecessor.

The result was that the savings banks were required to sell their Louisiana bonds, and it is understood that many of them were taken back by the bond dealers who had sold them to the banks. The consols will fall due on Jan. 1, and Louisiana is preparing to make a new issue of $11,000,000, from the proceeds of which it intends to pay the consols. The new bonds would have been equally under the ban, and if they could not be sold Louisiana would be unable to pay the maturing consols, which would be left on the hands of the bond dealers who had taken them back.

This was the situation a few weeks ago, when Gov. Hall of Louisiana spent some time in New York and Albany. After an ex parte hearing of Gov. Hall's side of the case Attorney General Carmody reversed his former ruling, and held that the present and prospective bonds of Louisiana were legal investments for the banks. In doing so he necessarily had to hold that the baby bonds were not legal obligations.

Mr. Andrews protested vigorously to Mr. Carmody against his opinion invalidating the baby bonds, but Mr. Carmody refused to reopen the matter except at the instance of the Banking Department, which tacitly took the position that its sole duty in the matter was to conform to the opinions of the Attorney General.

Mr. Andrews then wrote to Gov. Glynn, invoking his interest in behalf of the depositors in savings banks, whose funds, he argued, were about to be opened up to a defaulting State, and asking an investigation to disclose who were the "interested parties" in the proceedings, speaking of "the struggle by defaulted debtors and parties interested in their securities for the possession of the funds in our savings banks."

"It is a curious situation," said Mr. Andrews, "that the hundreds of thousands of savings bank depositors seem to be without protection against these defaulters engaged in the effort to dispose of their obligations. The Bank Department has exerted every effort to guard the deposits against the schemes of these defaulted applicants. It obtained the opinion of Attorney General Carmody excluding these applicants. But that decision was hardly cold when the same Attorney General, acting at the instance of the defaulters themselves, now declares that the savings banks' doors are open to their paper promises.

"In pursuing this course he has attacked other obligations of the same debtor. In order to excuse the default and to admit some of this debtor's obligations to investment, he holds that the issue belonging to my clients is not valid. We are thus forcibly enlisted for the protection of the savings bank depositors—we are so enlisted for our own protection.

"After all, in this exigency, the sole direct protector, for the time being, of these depositors is the Governor of the State, charged with the duty of safeguarding the execution of the laws."

After reviewing the earlier rulings, Mr. Andrews said in his letter to Gov. Glynn:

"This financial condition continued until the 22d day of last month. At that time the whole status of this business was suddenly changed, and Louisiana consols became apparently transformed into eligible purchases by Trustees of savings banks. How was this feat accomplished? There was no change in financial conditions—the defaulted bonds of Louisiana had not been paid. The Constitution and laws of Louisiana remain the same as they were on July 3, 1912, when Attorney General Carmody ejected Louisiana consols from our banks, because that State did not pay her baby bonds.

"At best, does not this financial kaleidoscope present a peculiar—not to say a startling—condition in its bearing on the security of savings banks? As far as we are aware, this practical self-reversal by an Attorney General in reference to bank investments is unique. It is not based upon any change in the laws of New York. But the Attorney General now claims that the bonds held by my clients—which he had pronounced to be valid debts, and to be in default, by his opinion of last year—are not debts of Louisiana; that they are mere agreements to pay the interest and sinking fund out of certain tax collections; that Louisiana is under no obligation to pay the baby bonds from her Treasury.

"Incidentally it may be noted that the officials of Louisiana concede that the State has misappropriated the special funds provided as security for our bonds.

"Every sanction known to our system of Government is back of these bonds—a constitutional convention, an act of the Legislature, and an audit by a funding board. (see Attorney General Carmody's opinion of July 8, 1912.)

"In the face of these records, what could be presented to countervail them? If defaults upon these bonds do not disable Louisiana from receiving credit from our savings institutions, the statutes become the merest gossamer.

"We submit that this business has reached a point where it should be presented to the Chief Executive of the State, unless our savings bank system is to be subjected to an irruption of obligations of defaulting States."

MARK PACKAGES PROPERLY.

Merchants' Association Suggests Rules to Expedite Shipping.

Illegible or improperly executed bills of lading or shipping orders or improper marks on packages lead to erroneous billing, improper classification and ratings, and also cause delay and losses expensive alike to the shipper and carrier.

The transportation companies, combating laxity on the part of shipping clerks in the preparation of legible and definite bills of lading or shipping orders, have asked the Merchants' Association for co-operation in bringing about an improvement in the situation. The members are therefore urged in the association's bulletin to-day to aid by having their shipping departments observe the following suggestions:

"The bill of lading or shipping ticket should be typewritten when practicable, and when not should be written legibly in ink or indelible pencil. All abbreviations, wherever practicable, should be avoided. Name of consignee and destination should be shown in full. The number of packages and weight, routing where specific routing is desired, and prepayment where shipment is to be prepaid should also be noted. Care should be taken to have articles described as provided for in the classification (avoiding trade names) as to the definite name of the article offered for transportation, and the character of the packages should be indicated.

"Packages should be marked to show plainly the consignee's name and destination in conformity with the bill of lading. As additional precaution for the recovery of goods should they go astray or arrive at destination and be uncalled for, the shipper's name and the point of shipment preceded by the word 'from' should be marked on each package. The proper marking of packages also aids in obtaining correct loading, prompt forwarding, and proper delivery."

Taking Over Surety Co.

It was learned yesterday that the American Surety Company had arranged to take over the surety business of the Title Guaranty and Surety Company of Scranton, Penn. The agreement between the companies calls for the payment to the Scranton company of a commission of 30 per cent. a year on the surety business on its books as well as on the business which comes from its customers for a period of five years. The Scranton company will in the future confine its work to the guaranteeing of titles.

A. C. A. MAY TAKE OVER NEW GARAGE

Lease of Former Car Barns on 88th St. Is Contemplated—After Auto Thieves.

Negotiations are under way for the leasing by the Automobile Club of America of the Fifth Avenue Garage, formerly the car barns, which runs from Eighty-eighth to Eighty-ninth Street, and from Madison to Park Avenues. This building is being largely reconstructed and elaborately fitted by the New York Transportation Company as a garage of the most modern sort. It is understood that no lease has yet been closed, but that the A. C. A. is looking on the property with a favorable eye. The club has great difficulty in taking care of enough cars at the garage in connection with the clubhouse in West Fifty-fourth Street, in spite of the fact that it has accommodations for as many as 700 machines. It is, therefore, interested in obtaining a supplemental garage, and has been looking for one on the upper East Side.

The American Motorists' Protective Association has arranged with a detective agency to establish a special department at its headquarters in twenty leading cities for the detection, apprehension and prosecution of motor car thieves. The association is offering a cash reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of any person "holding up" a car belonging to a member, and a reward of $25 for the arrest of any person stealing tools or other articles of value from a member's car.

During the recent heavy snow storm in Akron, while the street car lines were tied up by drifts and their snow plows could not operate, heavy motor trucks from one of the big rubber factories of Akron, many of whose 15,000 employes were snow bound, were used as improvised snow plows and soon had the car lines clear.

The Weather

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—With the exception of local snows and rains in New England and local rains in the Middle and South Atlantic States Sunday night, there was no precipitation of consequence east of the Rocky Mountains. It is considerably warmer over the great central basin of the country and colder in the South Atlantic States and the extreme Northwest. Over the latter section there was a sharp fall in temperature, accompanied by rapidly rising pressure.

Unsettled weather, with local rains, will prevail Tuesday in the great central valleys, probably continuing Wednesday, and extending into the southern upper lake region and the lower lake region, the northern portion of the Middle Atlantic States, and probably Northern and Western New England. In the South and the Southwest the weather will be generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday, while in the Northwest it will be unsettled, with probably local snows.

It will be warmer Tuesday in the lower lake region, the upper valley, and the Atlantic States, and colder in the central plains States and the Northwest. It will be colder Wednesday in the upper lake and western lower lake region and the great central valleys.

The winds for Tuesday and Wednesday: North Atlantic, moderate southwesterly and southerly; Middle Atlantic, moderate southerly; South Atlantic, light to moderate northeasterly to easterly; East Gulf, light to moderate easterly.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

New Jersey—Fair and warmer Tuesday; Wednesday increasing cloudiness; probably rain by night; moderate winds, becoming southerly.

Eastern Pennsylvania and Eastern New York—Fair and warmer Tuesday; Wednesday unsettled; probably rain; moderate winds, becoming southerly.

Western Pennsylvania and Western New York—Increasing cloudiness and warmer Tuesday; rain at night or Wednesday; moderate to brisk southwesterly winds.

New England—Fair and warmer Tuesday, Wednesday increasing cloudiness; probably rain by night; moderate southwesterly to southerly winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

1912.	1913.		1912.	1913.
6 A. M.	35	35	4 P. M.	42	40

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Automobile Club of America Preparing to Lease Big East Side Garage—Purchase for Mercantile Improvement in West Fifty-second Street—Long Beach Club Rumor.

It was ascertained yesterday that negotiations are nearly closed for the leasing by the Automobile Club of America of the former garage used by the New York Transportation Company, which operates the Fifth Avenue stages, in Eighty-eighth and Eighty-ninth Streets, between Park and Madison Avenues. The property runs through the block, having a frontage on Eighty-eighth Street of 153.4 feet and 102.3 on Eighty-ninth Street, being 82 feet west of Park Avenue.

The property belongs to Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, and was leased by the New York Transportation Company a few years ago for a long term of years. The transportation company recently completed a new two-story garage on 102d Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, and that is now being used for the stage service.

The Automobile Club of America conducts a large garage for its members in connection with its club house in Fifty-fourth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue, but the need of more room for the storage of members' cars has long been felt, and many members are anxious to secure for the club use a large garage in the eastern part of the city which would be readily accessible to residents in that locality. The Eighty-eighth Street garage is a four-story building, and is admirably equipped for the accommodation of several hundred cars.

Big Sale in 52d Street.

The two-story stable at 306 to 312 West Fifty-second Street, covering a plot 100 by 100, has been sold by I. B. Wakeman for the Dongan Investing Company. The buyer is said to be an investor who is planning a mercantile building for the plot. The property, which is 100 feet west of Eighth Avenue, was held at $50,000.

Church Use for Theatre Site.

The People's Pulpit Association has taken title to the property 22 to 28 West Sixty-third Street, 100 by 100, between Central Park West and Broadway. The recording of the deed shows that the new owners foreclosed it, subject to a $300,000 mortgage from Frederick H. Robinson of Cleveland, to whom it was transferred in 1910 by the buyers of the property at foreclosure. This is the plot on which Butler Davenport intended to erect a four-story theatre, but the plan collapsed soon after the building had been started.

Recent Buyers.

Edward M. Wald, member of the cotton brokerage firm of Stephen M. Wald & Co., is the buyer of 22 East Eighty-second Street, to which he will remove from his present residence, 49 East Eightieth Street, as soon as alterations he desires are completed. The property was sold last week by Joseph S. Ulman for about $100,000.

Bronx Borough.

Kurz & Uren, Inc., have sold for a Mrs. Walther, a plot of ground 75 by 150 on Edgewater Road running through to the Bronx River, to a client of F. S. Loewenthal, Esq.

Harry B. Davis has purchased from William Gundlach, the five-story flat, on plot 44x95, at the northwest corner of Franklin avenue and 170th street. The property was given in part payment by the seller for the two flats at 2939 and 2941 Jerome avenue. Frederick Fox & Co., negotiated the transaction.

Morris Fine has purchased for investment Nos. 1879 to 1883 Crotona avenue, two five-story flats on plot 76.8 by 100, 41 feet north of 176th street.

Club Rumor at Long Beach.

A rumor was current yesterday that a syndicate of business men was negotiating for a large plot at Long Beach for the purpose of establishing a country club with golf links and other sporting features. Lex-Senator Reynolds, who controls the Long Beach estates, on a portion of which the proposed club would be located, admitted that such negotiations had been in progress for some time, but said that nothing definite had been done. The plan was in such an embryonic condition that Mr. Reynolds did not care to mention the principals in the matter.

Staten Island.

The site of the old tennis court of the Harbor Hill Golf Club on Brighton Heights, Staten Island, has been sold by Thomas Kieran, through Cornelius G. Kolff, to C. E. Gremmels, of Westerleigh. The same buyer has also purchased through the same broker two plots each 20 by 114, on Portland place, Brighton Heights.

Commercial Leases.

A lease has just been closed by Daniel Birdsall & Co., Inc., and Johnson, Adams & Greacen for the store, basement and sub-basement at 8 Washington place, running through to 15 and 19 West Fourth street, on the corner of Mercer street, by C. H. Tenney.

This lease is of importance as it assures the permanency of the Washington square district to the hat trade for some time to come.

J. G. White & Co., have leased for the Fabian Construction Co., the store and basement at 151 and 153 West Twenty-sixth street, to E. P. Lawson, of Seybold Machine Co., for a term of years at an aggregated rental of $50,000.

Daniel Birdsall & Co., Inc., have rented the first floor and basement at 85 Franklin street, to D. Matchack & Co., and the first floor and basement at 102 Franklin street to Ireland Bros., Ltd.

George Neiman has leased for A. F. Jammes (Midville Realty Company) to William Bernstein, dealer in ladies' slippers and shoes, the store and basement at 5 West Thirty-seventh Street for ten years.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has negotiated a $20,500 mortgage at 5 per cent. interest on property at 74 Pearl Street, corner of Coenties Slip, purchased by a client through the same office. The same company has also placed a loan of $13,000 at 5 per cent. on 205 Front Street. Both loans were for five years.

Gaines & Drennan Company has placed a loan of $20,000 at 4½ per cent. on 158 West Twenty-second Street; also placed a loan of $25,000 on Westchester County Farm.

New Washington Heights Theatre.

Plans are being prepared by Louis A. Steinart for a fireproof moving-picture theatre to be erected on the west side of Fort Washington Avenue, 250 feet north of Broadway, to cost $20,000. The structure will seat 1,300.

$100,000 Apartments for Brooklyn.

Shampan & Shampan have filed plans for two apartment houses on a plot of 100 by 100 on the north side of Greene Avenue, 350 feet east of Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, for the G. & M. Improvement Company. The cost is estimated at $100,000.

Real Estate Notes.

The Dinsmore Estate Corporation has been organized with a capital of $200,000 for the purpose of handling the realty of the late William B. Dinsmore, who was succeeded as President of the Adams Express Company by the late John Hoey.

The property was left by Mr. Dinsmore to his three children—William B. Dinsmore, Madeline I. Dinsmore, and Helen Dinsmore Huntington, the latter of whom is engaged to marry Vincent Astor.

The property involved in the new corporation consists of 7 East Forty-seventh Street, a new six-story business building; 302 Fifth Avenue, northwest corner of Thirty-first Street; the adjoining house, 3 West Thirty-first Street; 43 Sixth Avenue, and 136 West Fiftieth Street, the private stable of the Dinsmores.

A loan of $55,000 has been made by Max Kobre to the Levy Dairy Company on the new building to be erected on the southwest corner of Avenue B and Nineteenth Street, a plot 84 by 120.

TUNNEL HIGHWAYS TO JERSEY LIKELY

Joint Commission Will Ask New York and New Jersey Legislatures to Take Action.

WORK PRACTICAL AND CHEAP

While It Would Cost $42,000,000 to Span the North River, Traffic Tunnels Are Figured at $11,000,000.

Huge tunnel highways under the North River between downtown New York and Jersey City seem to be a somewhat definite project now. The plan at present seems to be in high favor with the joint New York and New Jersey Bridge and Tunnel Commission, which has been studying the transportation problem for the past seven years. Such a highway, it is said, is not only practicable, but, as such engineering feats go, cheap. To construct the tunnels with a capacity of 5,000,000 vehicles each year would cost only $11,000,000. A bridge, it has been estimated by engineers, would cost in the end approximately $42,000,000.

With immediate action in view, it is the intention of the commission, so it was said yesterday, to take the matter before the State Legislature next year. In New York State the Legislature will be asked to consider the project at its next session, which opens in January. A meeting of the sub-committee of the commission, of which A. J. Shamberg is Chairman, was held yesterday at the offices at 115 Broadway, and the question was thoroughly discussed. The sub-committee will shortly report to the joint commission. W. H. Noyes, Chairman of the commission, said last night that there would be as little delay as possible after that.

"We are going to have some action," he said, "and as soon as the sub-committee makes its report steps will be taken to give the movement for better traffic conditions between New York and New Jersey an added impetus."

Mr. Noyes was asked if a tunnel would be recommended and the plan for a bridge condemned.

"I wouldn't say that," he replied. "The question of both bridge and tunnels will be brought up."

A comprehensive description of the proposed tunnels was given in THE TIMES in the edition of May 5, 1912, showing just how the scheme could be carried out with the present engineering facilities at the disposal of the builders. The present plan is to have the tunnels extend from the foot of Canal Street to the extended line of Twelfth Street in Jersey City. It has been recommended that the tunnels be built in pairs, one for eastbound traffic and one for westbound traffic, with roadways seventeen feet in width. In illustration of the fact that highway tunnels are practicable it has been pointed out that several are now in operation in other countries, including the Blackwall and Rotherithe tunnels under the Thames in England.

Investigations by engineers for the commission have shown that it would be practically impossible to build a bridge further downtown than Fifty-seventh Street, while a tunnel could be placed at any point where the people want it. Another investigation has shown that the number of vehicles crossing the Hudson daily is 19,660 and that all except 2,000 cross below Twenty-third Street.

On April 21 last the "Interstate Commission," as it has been termed, filed a report with the Legislature at Albany setting forth the results of its investigations. In that report the cost of a bridge was given as follows: River span, $27,160,000; approaches, $1,900,000; engineering and contingencies, $2,900,000; real estate, $4,800,000; interest during construction, $5,300,000. In the same report it was estimated that each pair of tunnels would cost not more than $11,000,000. The report did not flatly recommend tunnel construction, but its conclusions seemed to hint that tunnels were considered more advisable from many standpoints.

Charles M. Jacobs and J. Vipond Davies of 30 Church Street, who built the present Hudson tunnels to Jersey City and Hoboken, are the engineers who prepared the plans for the proposed highway tunnels. In speaking about tunnel construction as opposed to bridge construction, Mr. Jacobs has said:

"Every condition is against the construction of a bridge; every condition is favorable to the construction of tunnels. Favorable conditions for a long span bridge require the combination, if possible, of high shores with a comparatively shallow depth to bedrock for intermediate supporting piers. Here we have flat shores, deep water, and great depth to bedrock.

"The uniqueness of tunnels is that they can be placed where the people want them. Now, then, people, it is safe to say, want their first highway tunnel where the highways of the land meet in a common point. The map shows that so far as the highways from Elizabeth, Newark, Paterson, and Passaic are concerned they all merge in Jersey City and Hoboken, opposite the southerly portion of Manhattan."

COPPER STRIKE SHOOTING.

Deputy and Striker Wounded in Exchange of Pistol Shots.

CALUMET, Mich., Nov. 17.—Six striking copper miners were arrested to-day as a result of a shooting at the Quincy mine this morning, in which Deputy Sheriff Edward Barker and one striker were wounded. Sheriff Cruse believes that two other strikers were wounded, but were taken away by friends before their identity was learned.

The fight started when a parade of strikers on their way to Hancock met non-union men going to work. The parade stopped and deputies along the route ordered the strikers to move on. They refused, and a shot was fired from the strikers' ranks which struck Barker. He returned the fire, the bullet hitting John Trocia, who is alleged to have fired the first shot. A general fight ensued.

Both the Quincy and the Copper Range mining companies are preparing to mount deputies to replace the cavalry relieved from duty. Some of the members of the Detroit and South Haven cavalry are expected to return here to take positions as mounted deputies.

The Volturno Fund.

The fund for the relief of those left destitute when the Volturno burned at sea, continues to grow. The American National Red Cross Society reports that these contributions were made yesterday: Miss Lily L. Bach, $3; W. F. Mott, $10; Charles Mathé, $2; C. B. Barnes, $2; the Rev. Dr. John Henry Hopkins, $2.50; Temple Beth Sholom, Bath Beach and Bensonhurst, $112; W. Appleton Lawrence, $5; Selmar Hess, $25, and F. J., $2. This makes a total of $6,552 collected to date.

The France Delayed in Sailing.

The French Line received cabled information yesterday that the steamship France, which was scheduled to sail from Havre for New York last Saturday, did not get away until Sunday. Rough weather at Havre was the cause of the delay. The France is due to arrive Saturday instead of Friday, as a result of the delay.

Cup Yacht Keel to Weigh 84 Tons.

BRISTOL, R. I., Nov. 17.—Eighty-four tons of lead to be used in the keel of the Vanderbilt syndicate seventy-five-foot sloop for the America's Cup defense trials next season was landed here to-day. Preparations for actual construction work on the boat are going forward rapidly. The marine railway down which the yacht will slide was completed to-day, and an examination of the keeling board for the boat's frame showed it to be satisfactory.

L. FRANKEL A SUICIDE.

Well-Known Hotel Man Despondent Over Recent Reverses.

Despondent because of business reverses, Louis Frankel, 60 years old, formerly manager of the old Gilsey House, and for many years a well-known hotel man and restaurateur in this city, shot and killed himself late yesterday afternoon in a secluded spot on the brow of Lookout Hill in Prospect Park, Brooklyn. The shot was heard by Patrolman James F. Kierney of the Prospect Park precinct, who was on duty near the Ocean Avenue entrance. Kierney found Frankel lying face downward upon the ground with a bullet wound in his right temple. An ambulance was summoned from the Seney Hospital, and Dr. Tilden, who answered the call, said that death had been instantaneous. The body was taken to the park police station.

There were no papers or other means of identification on the dead man, except a small card upon which was penciled this request: "Please notify Mr. Lesvinier, 450 Nostrand Avenue, head of the American Sample Shop." The police communicated by telephone with Mr. Lesvinier, who, upon hearing the description of the suicide, said that he was probably Mr. Frankel, whose adopted daughter, Mrs. Hattie Petersen, was employed by his concern. Later Mrs. Petersen visited the police station and identified the body as that of her foster father, and it was removed to the family home at 365 Sterling Place, where Frankel lived with his adopted daughter and his wife, Elia.

For eight years past the dead man had been associated with Frederick Schwartze in the restaurant and café business. Under the firm name of Schwartze & Frankel, they ran the bowling alleys and café at Franklin Avenue and Fulton Street, which was formerly the headquarters of the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club, and at one time was owned by Charles Ebbets. Four months ago Frankel and his partner opened the Montague Grill at 200 Montague Street, Brooklyn, of which Frankel acted as manager.

Friends of the dead man said last night that his business reverses began about fifteen years ago, when he gave up the management of the Hotel Albert, at University Place and Eleventh Street, Manhattan, which he had managed successfully for fourteen years, to take over the management of the Old Gilsey House, at Twenty-ninth Street and Broadway. Frankel ran the Gilsey House for two years, and lost considerable money in the venture. Later he embarked in the Summer hotel business and took the management of the Kaaterskill Hotel at Kaaterskill, N. Y., which proved a failure in two seasons. His next enterprise was the Lakewood Hotel at Lakewood, N. J., a Winter resort. Half a season sufficed to compel him to abandon this also.

Frankel visited the Montague Grill yesterday morning as usual, but left the place before the head bartender arrived at 10 o'clock. The latter found only a small amount of money in the cash register together with this note:

Mr. Charles Werner.

Dear Charles: I can only leave you so much money in the drawer. Kindly pay the help. You will hear from me later in the evening.

On a separate card was written the combination of the safe. The note was signed with Frankel's full name. Werner stated last night that Frankel had been despondent and morose for several days.

DANA SUES E. D. MORGAN.

Demands Return of Commissions on Mexican Business.

Ex-Assemblyman Charles A. Dana, as executor under the will of Charles Dana, began suit yesterday in the Federal District Court to set aside certain contracts which the Corralitos Company of 100 Broadway, a Mexican ranching concern, entered into with its former President, Edwin D. Morgan. These provided for the sums to be paid to Mr. Morgan, who is a resident of Rhode Island, as compensation for his services as general agent. It is contended that these were excessive, and that Mr. Morgan should restore to the company the difference between the amount he received and the fair and reasonable value of his services.

The Corralitos Company, a Colorado corporation with $1,500,000 capital, was organized on Feb. 1, 1889, partly as a ranching and partly as a mining concern in the State of Chihuahua, Mexico. Charles Dana at the time of his death owned 1,920 shares of the preferred stock and 2,000 shares of the common stock. The Corralitos Company transferred all its mining interests to the Candelaria Company, which was owned by the same group of individuals, and on Dec. 7, 1910, the defendant, Mr. Morgan, resigned the Presidency of the Corralitos Company and made a contract with it to act for ten years for it as an expert agent in the ranching business.

This contract was modified on May 8, 1911, in such a way as to make Mr. Morgan's compensation depend on the amount of the dividends on the preferred stock, but it is complained that even under this arrangement it was possible for Morgan to receive as much or more than was paid out to the owners of 4,000,000 of preferred stock.

The complaint alleges that the Corralitos Company never earned enough money to pay any such commission or salary, and that in 1911 and 1912 Mr. Morgan received more than $32,000, although his services were not worth more than $2,500. Further complaint is made of the large commission which Mr. Morgan was to receive on sales of stock in 1911, and it is alleged that that was a subterfuge to compensate him for his services as President in 1910, for which he was entitled to no pay.

Mr. Dana also objects to the alleged contributions by the Corralitos Company in 1908 of $60,000 toward the $100,000 capital of the Leon Mining Company, to which the Candelaria Company had transferred its mining properties. Moreover, when the Leon Mining Company was reorganized, it is asserted, the Corralitos Company made a further and larger contribution. Upon these grounds Mr. Dana, in behalf of the estate of Charles Dana and all other stockholders who did not consent to the contracts with Mr. Morgan, asks for the cancellation of the contracts, the return of such sums as have been paid to Morgan in excess of the value of his services and the enjoining of the Corralitos Company from paying out any more money to him under the contracts.

FINDS REAL SEGREGATION.

Effect Is "Startling," Says Investigator in aWshington Departments.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People made public yesterday the report of a special agent sent to Washington to investigate the segregation of white and colored employes in Government departments. The investigation followed many complaints and inquiries. The association has twenty branches throughout the country. Moorfield Storey of Boston is President. Oswald G. Villard of New York is Chairman of the Board of Directors, which includes, among other members, Miss Jane Addams and Miss Lillian D. Wald.

"The effect of segregation," says the report, "is startling. Competition has been eliminated. Those segregated are regarded almost as lepers and get what no one else wants. Segregation in work has been effected so far without official orders. Generally the excuse is a readjustment of work to increase efficiency."

Taking up individual departments, the report says:

"In the Miscellaneous and Examining Division of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing workers have been paired according to race. In the Dead Letter Office of the Post Office Department colored employes have been segregated back of a row of lockers in a corner of the room.

"In fact, in this department segregation practically amounts to elimination. In the Treasury Building colored clerks have not yet been segregated, but it seems to be understood that as many as possible are to be segregated in the Registry Division.

"In the office of the Auditor for the Post Office segregation seems to have been most skilfully worked out. In one room colored men operate what is known as the 'gang punch,' and in another room the force working at the 'assorting machines' is entirely colored."

ACCUSES REALTY CO. OF LARGE FRAUDS

State Insurance Department Asks District Attorney to Begin Criminal Proceedings.

ASSETS FOUND WORTHLESS

Monaton Realty Investing Company Sold "Participating Certificates" in Form of Insurance Policies.

According to an announcement made yesterday at the New York office of the State Insurance Department a verified complaint has been filed with District Attorney Whitman against the Monaton Realty Investing Company, with general offices at 220 West Forty-second Street and several out-of-town branch offices, with a view to instituting criminal actions against the corporation and its officers.

This matter was taken up by the State Department at a conference held in this city between William T. Emmet, State Superintendent of Insurance, and James J. Hoey, second Deputy Superintendent. In explaining the department's action Supt. Emmet said:

"A complaint having been made to the State Insurance Department by a holder of a participating certificate in the Monaton Realty Investing Corporation, the conditions surrounding the methods used by this company to defraud the public have been investigated, and it appears that although it is not an insurance matter, their methods are such that the citizens of the various localities where this and similar concerns are operating should be advised of their true character.

"The situation, as it has been presented to the Insurance Department, shows that the above company, which was incorporated under the General Business law of this State in 1907, with a stated capital of $1,000,000, has sold a large amount of its securities in the form of bonds and preferred stock, with the proceeds of which they stated their intention to conduct a general real estate business. The company also issued so-called accumulative participating certificates, which were made up in such form as to give them all the appearances of an insurance policy, and their rate cards and illustrations of payments and maturity values, were also made upon forms customarily used by legitimate insurance companies.

"These certificates call for payments on an annual, semi-annual, quarterly or monthly basis, with the privilege of withdrawal of the accounts paid in 'on the second or later anniversary,' together with 4 per cent. interest. The complainant in the case, who had made thirty monthly payments, the last receipt being dated Nov. 10, of this year, demanded of the company the 'cash payment,' in accordance with the terms of the certificate, and was advised by the officer of the company to whom he made his demand, that, as he had not presented his claim on the day of the second anniversary, it would be necessary for him to wait until the day of the third anniversary.

"The officers of the company are: President, Pierre M. Looker; Vice President, Curtis M. Doolittle; Secretary, Walter E. Pratt; Treasurer —— Hargraves.

"The company has maintained offices in New York, Brooklyn, Buffalo, and Rochester, N. Y.; in Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.; in Providence, R. I.; in Philadelphia, Penn.; in Washington, D. C.; in Boston and Springfield, Mass., and Chicago, Ill., from which centres their agents have not only disposed of bonds and stock of the corporation itself, but have sold upward of a $1,000,000 of certificates.

"Although this corporation purports to engage in the real estate business, the character of its certificates, cards, and other literature made it appear as though it was some form of insurance.

"The assets scheduled in the last annual report to the Controller have, to a certain extent, been investigated, and it has developed that the company possesses no real interest of any value in any of the properties contained in this report. As an example, it was found that 37 parcels of land, reported by them as owned in the Borough of Brooklyn, were not only mortgaged, but mortgaged beyond their value, and are now in process of being foreclosed. Three pieces of property in Manhattan, which were investigated, were found not to be owned by the corporation at all.

"The State Banking Department lately investigated a complaint against this company, but found that it was unable to proceed on account of lack of jurisdiction, as the bill which passed the last Legislature, giving to that department the same supervision of fake banking propositions that is now given to the Insurance Department in the case of fake insurance companies, was vetoed by the Governor on May 17, 1913.

"The Attorney General's office has commenced a civil action looking toward the cancellation of this company's charter, but in view of the fact that there are many concerns of a similar character operating throughout the country, the Insurance Department has felt that immediate action should be taken to protect the citizens of this and other States.

"The Insurance Department therefore had a verified complaint filed with the District Attorney of New York County, and it is expected that he will at once proceed criminally against the corporation and its officers. As a result of this investigation some legislation will be no doubt presented to the forthcoming Legislature looking toward the protection of the public in matters of this kind. The postal authorities will also be requested to make an investigation into the activities of certain other concerns operating along the same lines in different parts of the country."

Attempts to reach Pierre M. Looker, President of the Monaton Realty Investing Company, and Curtis M. Doolittle, its Vice President, and Walter E. Platt, its Secretary, proved fruitless last night. No one was at the office of the company, 220 West Forty-second Street. This was the only address given in the City Directory and telephone book for Looker, Doolittle & Platt.

EDNA HARDENBERGH HOME.

Had Taken a Job as a Nurse—Byrne Sure His Daughter's Safe.

Miss Edna Hardenbergh, the 16-year-old daughter of Louis V. D. Hardenbergh, a reporter for the New York City News Association, who disappeared from her home, 31 Lake Street, Gravesend, on Thursday morning, came yesterday to the County Court House in Manhattan looking for her father. A general police alarm had been sent out for her, in the belief that she had been kidnapped.

She told her father that she had grown tired of going to school and had secured employment as a nurse, under an assumed name, in the home of Joseph Hare, a shoe dealer, of 218 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, and had been in charge of his three small children. She read no newspapers and knew nothing of the search for her. But at last she got homesick and went to the Court House, where her father is employed, to look for him. He investigated her story and found that she had been at the Hare home from Thursday.

Joseph Byrne, father of three-year-old Winifred Byrne, who disappeared on Saturday evening from before her home, 243 East Thirty-eighth Street, said last night that he was satisfied his little girl had wandered away and was not kidnapped. He denied the statement in afternoon newspapers that a Japanese was suspected of stealing the child. Byrne is a florist in moderate circumstances, and has, he says, no known enemies.

He cannot imagine that any one has any motive for kidnapping the little girl, and he has himself traced her through neighbors as far as Thirty-fourth Street and Third Avenue, two blocks away. He expressed the belief yesterday that she had been picked up by persons who did not read newspapers in English, and who were taking care of her.

SCHOOLBOY MISSING.

Parents Distracted by Harry Butts's Disappearance—Behind in Studies.

Harry Butts, the fourteen-year-old son of Stephen H. Butte, whom many persons know as the proprietor of the barber shop at the St. Regis, has been missing for more than ten days. For a week detectives have been seeking a clue to his disappearance. Every morning for a week his mother has got up at daybreak and gone to Riverside Drive and scanned the shore for a long distance, in fear lest the answer would be there.

Young Butts, who was a pupil at the public school at Eighty-ninth street and Amsterdam avenue, left his home at 66 West Ninety-third street at 8 o'clock on Nov. 7 to go to school as usual. He carried his books with him. Detectives have traced him as far as the school, where he was seen in front of the building a little after 8 o'clock by several of his schoolmates. There he disappeared, or at least, there is no record of his having entered the school building, and nobody has been found who saw him after that.

The boy, who has dark brown hair and brown eyes, and is about five feet three inches tall, was wearing a blue serge knickerbocker suit, with a cap of the same material, and a gray sweater under his coat, black stockings, black laced shoes, and yellow gloves. So far as his parents knew, he had no money in his possession. He had an allowance of a quarter a week, did not smoke and read a great deal. He had been singing for some time in a church choir.

When the boy did not come home the first night, his parents remembered that he had not turned in his school report of the day before to be signed, and upon investigating, they learned that that day's report had not been up to its usual standard. It was thought that this might be the reason for his disappearance.

Some of the schoolboy friends of Harry told the detectives that a well-dressed man had been in the habit of distributing dimes and quarters in the park of late, and engaging them in conversation. The police are looking for this man. Mr. and Mrs. Butts, who are distracted by Harry's disappearance, have two other children, a daughter, who is older, and a son, younger than Harry.

PLACE FOR JEWISH FARMERS

None Like This Country, Says Convention Speaker.

The greatest opportunities for Jewish farmers is in America, according to Abraham Rostow of Hartford, Conn., a tobacco grower, who addressed the fifth annual convention of the Federation of Jewish Farmers of America at its first day's session yesterday at the Educational Alliance, East Broadway and Jefferson Street.

"You can go from Argentina to Canada and nowhere will you find such opportunities for Jewish farmers," he said. "This country is the best place for Jewish farmers the world over."

Lipman Lakovitz of Nassau, N. Y., said that the children of the farmers deserted their parents who had tilled the soil for years and left them in their old age to finish the battle of life alone. He made a plea for the training of children so that they would stick to the farms. Without such training for the youth, he said, the Jewish farmers' movement would be a failure. Mrs. L. Busker, a delegate from the Ladies' Auxiliary, said that the wife of the Jewish farmer should be taught to help her husband.

"The woman on the farm has not had the proper education or the social and moral help she should have," she said. "We want lectures on agriculture and other topics. There is not a single wife of a farmer who would not be willing to help her husband if she only knew how. If we are not going to have Jewish farmers made out of our children we do not want to be farmers at all."

During the session a silver loving cup from Jewish students at Cornell Agricultural College was presented to the Directors of the Jewish Agricultural and Aid Society.

Chi Phi Annual Congress.

The annual congress of the Chi Phi Fraternity will be held at the Hotel Astor on Nov. 28 and 29. The dinner will be held in the ballroom on the evening of the 28th. There are about 800 members of the Chi Phi Fraternity in and about New York.

That's What They All Say!

"That is the smartest Derby Hat I have seen in years," remarked a Mr. Goodresser in one of our Broadway Stores yesterday, as he tried on a University Club.

It was the drooped brim effect and the rakish way in which the University Club sat down on the head that was so pleasing to this customer. But his experience is the same as every Mr. Goodresser who buys this new Derby. You will find the University Club at the Truly Warner Stores only—only $2.00.

L. C. Wallick Buys Out Brother.

Louis C. Wallick, President of the Cadillac Hotel Company, operating the Hotel Wallick and Wallick's Restaurant, at Forty-third street and Broadway, and the Secor Hotel Company, operating the Secor Hotel in Toledo, Ohio, bought yesterday the interests of his brother, London I. Wallick, in these two companies, representing $165,000. Mr. Wallick is now sole owner of the two companies. He has just signed a twenty-five-year lease for the direction of the Deshler Hotel, in course of construction in Columbus, Ohio.

Book and Lyrics by C. M. S. MacLellan. Music by Ivan Caryll.
Yes, and There Are GIRLS—GIRLS—GIRLS—and Then Some!
The Exhilarating Punch
of "The Little Cafe" is intoxicating all New York! With its morceaux of wit, its atmosphere of gaiety, its sparkling, champagne-like melody, all served so brilliantly to tempt the jaded appetite, where can one spend three happier hours? Its intimacy with gay Paree, its charming femininity, its quips and jests, and unflagging air of youth and abandon transform this particular "Little Cafe" at the New Amsterdam Theatre into an elysium:
"Where the nights are filled with music,
Where the cares that infest the day
Fold up their tents like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away!"

MAY PLACE BAGMAN UNDER NEW CHARGES

Every Alleged Threat Likely to Mean New Indictment for Fowler.

SEARCH FOR BIG CONSPIRACY

Grand Jury, It Is Prophealed, Will Make "Blanket" Accuaation—To Hear McGuire To-day.

It is quite likely that more indictments will be found against Everett P. Fowler of Kingston, who figures throughout the Hennessy graft charges as one of the "bagmen." These indictments, it is expected, will follow Assistant District Attorney John Kirkland Clark's latest trip up-State. Two process servers left the Criminal Court Building yesterday under orders from Mr. Whitman, and it is expected that they will serve subpoenas upon contractors whom Mr. Clark has questioned regarding Fowler's activities as a money collecter.

The practice of piling indictments on a man already under indictment is not a new one with District Attorney Whitman. Tais always has been his custom in cases where the men under indictment have been defiant and where confessions were desired to implicate others higher up. The most noteworthy example of this was the case of Police Inspector Sweeney, against whom nearly a score of indictments were found. Sweeney was defiant to the end. Finally he was sent to the penitentiary. His co-conspirators in the Police Department also rested under several indictments. One of his graft collectors was indicted six times.

Mr. Whitman, because of assurances he had received, was certain that Fowler would tell him everything he knew about the "sandbagging" of contractors. Now that Fowler has decided to stand trial, Mr. Whitman has concluded to let events follow their natural course in his case. The men upon whom Mr. Whitman is relying for further evidence against Fowler are the six contractors who stood outside the Syracuse office of William H. Kelley when Seneca P. Hull, the complainant against Fowler, left Fowler on Oct. 31, 1911. It is thought that Hull told Mr. Whitman the names of some of these six contractors, and that Mr. Clark went up-State to search for them.

Every new complainant against Fowler will be asked by Mr. Whitman whether any threats were made by Fowler. For each threat, it is expected, the District Attorney will seek a new indictment.

Blanket Indictment Expected.

In the meantime it is expected that a blanket indictment, charging conspiracy to bleed contractors on State work, will be found by the General Sessions Grand Jury. This Grand Jury now is devoting practically all of its time to the graf investigation. Secrecy has been maintained, but it was reported that three witnesses from up-State testified yesterday. The appearance of District Attorney Alexander T. Blcssing of Schenectady at the Criminal Court Building gave rise to the belief that the witnesses had come from Schenectady County.

Mr. Clark has obtained the names of more than 300 highway and barge canal contractors. His process servers, it was said, would serve subpoenas on most of the 300 men. Any of the contractors who have stories of "hold ups" to tell certainly will be placed on the stand in the John Doe investigation or before the Grand Jury. It will require at least three weeks to serve all the subpoenas, and few of the contractors will be heard by Mr. Whitman until after the Thanksgiving recess.

In the weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas it is expected that many State contractors will be called to Mr. Whitman's office. Each one will be asked if he made any contributions to a political party. The questioning will take much time, but in this way Mr. Whitman will get at the culprits. It was to carry out this investigation that Mr. Whitman asked the Board of Estimate for $10,000. The board will consider this request to-mororw.

To Hear McGuire To-day.

The John Doe inquiry will be resumed at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Criminal Court Building. It will be the first session since the collapse on Nov. 11 of George H. McGuire. McGuire again will be the principal witness. McGuire has been in hiding since his breakdown, but his attorney, Henry A. Wise, said yesterday that he again was in good physicial condition. Mr. Whitman has not been informed as to how far McGuire's admissions will go, but he believes that McGuire will tell all he knows. An indictment charging perjury, it is believed, is hanging over McGuire's head.

Mr. Whitman was asking McGuire about his conference with John A. Hennessy at the Hotel Utica in Utica when he was compelled to suspend the examination. Mr. Whitman will try today to get an admission from McGuire that it was he who gave a list of 43 "sandbagged" contractors to Hennessy. If he makes this admission it will remain for McGuire to tell what he knows about "sandbagging" methods and he will also have to explain why he himself collected funds from certain contractors on the Barge Canal.

Henry P. Burgard of Buffalo, the man who beat William H. Fitzpatrick, Murphy's man, at the last primaries, will also appear before Chief Magistrate McAdoo at the hearing to-day. He will testify if time permits. Burgard has had one conference with Mr. Whitman and left the impression that he was willing to testify, but that he could give nothing but hearsay evidence as to the holding up and shaking down of contractors. Since Burgard left the city, it is said, Mr. Whitman's men have been skirmishing in his territory and Burgard will not be among the favored ones who will not have to sign immunity waivers. It has also developed that Burgard will appear under subpoena.

Martin W. Littleton, Fowler's counsel, said yesterday that he expected to attend the John Doe inquiry. Littleton already has attacked the jurisdiction of Mr. Whitman in the Fowler case and it was inferred from his talk that he questioned the constitutionality of the

MARCONI IS CONFIDENT.

Says Before Long He Will Telephone by Wireless Across Atlantic.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—In reference to the reports about transatlantic telephoning, William Marconi said today:

"I have not yet attempted to telephone across the Atlantic. Important experiments are now being carried on, and before long such a feat will be accomplished, but up to the present we have not succeeded in telephoning by wireless more than 200 or 300 miles."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Prof. F. A. Rogers, Instructor of Physics and Electrical Engineering at Lewis Institute, said today in regard to Mr. Marconi's experiments in wireless telephoning:

"Ever since the invention of the wireless telegraph the wireless telephone has been regarded as a possibility. The whole idea is the same. A high frequency wave is secured and maintained continually. The telephone transmitter circuit taps the high frequency wave and by breaking it makes conversation possible. Every one has been looking forward to talking by wireless, and it seems quite natural that Marconi should discover it, as he is, of course, first in this field.

"The whole problem has been to obtain a proper instrument for reducing the high frequency wave so that conversation can be possible. No one can hear above a vibration of 45,000, so the wave must be toned down a bit for human ears. I understand that no real conversation has been tried as yet. It may mean that we will have to invent a new language, a sort of wireless Esperanto, so that the whole world can join in the conversation."

GOETHALS'S ANSWER READY

Smiles When Asked About Possibly Becoming Police Chief Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Nov. 18.—When Col. George W. Goethals was seen here to-night by THE TIMES correspondent relative to Mayor-elect John Purroy Mitchel's intention to offer him the Police Commissionership of New York, he stated that no overture had as yet been received by him. When asked if he would accept if such an offer was forthcoming, he smiled and said:

"Should the offer be made me, I have my answer ready."

Later, when Col. Goethals was speaking on the subject of his leaving Panama, he said:

"I want to sec the finish of the work which I began here."

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 18.—A telegram was sent to-day to Col. George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, offering him the city managership of Dayton under the new commission form of government.

The City Commissioners told Col. Goethals in their telegram that "Dayton wants the best-equipped man in America," and assured him that that city was "willing to pay a larger salary than the Federal Government pays its army officers."

There is no assurance that Col. Goethals will consider the offer.

MANY BEQUESTS BY GATES.

His Own and His Wife's Relatives Remembered, with Others.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Dellora R. Gates, mother of the late Charles G. Gates, is named as executrix in the will of her son, which he made Aug. 2, 1912, in New York, and provision is made that if she is unable to serve, the Equitable Trust Company of New York shall act.

The will makes these bequests: Frank P. Hopwood, father of Mrs. Florence Hopwood Gates, $50,000; Warren J. Hopwood, brother of Mrs. Gates, $10,000; Robert G. Hopwood, brother of Mrs. Gates, $10,000; Mrs. Frank P. Hopwood, $10,000; Dellora F. Angell, St. Charles, Ill., a cousin, $100,000; Henry W. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., a cousin, $100,000; Charles E. Jones, New York, a friend, $10,000, and release from all or any notes testator may have held; Edward J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., an uncle, $50,000; Elizabeth S. Gurney, New York, widow of a former business associate, $10,000; Wayne C. Bogue, Detroit, $10,000; George C. Scott, Rye, N. Y., $35,000.

BANDIT HER EASY PRISONER

Surrenders to Girl in Presence of Ten Scared Men He Held Up.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—After trying to hold up a street car, Michael Reilly, a wild and woolly Westerner from Seattle, entered the saloon of Patrick Eagen in Penn Avenue early this morning and in a voice that made bottles and glasses rattle and Eagen and nine of his customers jump half out of their shoes ordered the men to line up and raise their hands.

The order was emphasized by the flourish of a big revolver and the men tumbled over each other in their haste to obey. Then admonishing them to "be good," the intruder proceeded to help himself to the contents of the cash register, while the row of cowed and silent men looked on.

Eagen's daughter, Elizabeth, who is a school teacher, was in the kitchen, from which she could see what was taking place. The next minute she walked into the saloon.

"Here, you, quit that!" she ordered, leveling a revolver at Reilly.

"Yes, ma'am," said the big man meekly.

"Now hand over that gun!"

Reilly did as he was told.

Five minutes later he was on his way to the lockup between a couple of policemen, followed by Miss Eagan and nine sheepish looking men, whose names were wanted as witnesses. Eagen stayed behind to shut up shop.

At the Police Station Reilly was recognized by John Crouse, a North Highland Avenue car conductor, as the man who had attempted to rob him earlier in the evening, and who had quietly dropped off the car when Crouse commanded him to go.

YOAKUM ADMITS FRISCO DEAL GAINS

Tells of the Ventures Which Finally Brought About the Failure of the Road.

ROCK ISLAND'S BIG LOSS

Land Held at Millions as Collateral for Small Loan—Dream of Vast Railroad Empires.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 18.—The alleged partnership of officials of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad in syndicates that promoted small railroads which later were sold to the Frisco was inquired into at the hearing before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Clark here to-day as to the causes of the present receivership of the line. D. E. Brown, examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, made public data which he had compiled showing that in the ten years prior to the receivership Frisco securities had been sold for $32,000,000 less than their par value.

Benjamin F. Yoakum, Chairman of the Frisco Board of Directors when the road went into receivership, was the only witness.

The syndicates that built various subsidiary lines were promoted by the St. Louis Union Trust Company, and in answer to many questions Mr. Yoakum referred his interrogators to the records of the trust company.

Among the subsidiary lines concerning which questions were asked were the St. Louis & Oklahoma City, the Iberia & Northern, the St. Louis, Oklahoma & Southern, and the St. Louis & Gulf. As to the Iberia & Northern syndicate, Mr. Yoakum testified he transferred his interests in that road to the Frisco for what it cost him, plus 6 per cent. interest.

Mr. Brown said that the record showed $212,000 was paid to Yoakum. Mr. Yoakum replied that if that were true it represented no profit over the 6 per cent. interest. On several other roads, Mr. Yoakum could not remember the profit. He said he had an interest in the St. Louis & Gulf, but did not remember whether his profit was $38,000, as Mr. Brown said the record indicated. This record as cited by Brown, showed that Yoakum invested $75,000 and received $113,000.

Other syndicates concerning which Mr. Brown questioned Mr. Yoakum were the Oklahoma City & Western, on which, according to the records, a syndicate had made $39,000 on an investment of $2,097,000, and the Arkansas Valley & Western, in which a "Frisco official without a voice in the acquisition of new lines" made $23,000 on a $118,000 investment. It was stated that fifty-one men were in the first syndicate and sixty-one in the second. On the St. Louis, Oklahoma & Southern, accoding to the record quoted by Mr. Brown, the promoters made $719,000.

Mr. Yoakum gave his reasons for the receivership as follows:

1—The failure of the road to sell Arizona and New Mexico lands for $6,000,000 or $7,000,000. By this deal the Frisco hoped to get enough money to meet pressing obligations. Mr. Yoakum testified that James Campbell of St. Louis, a director of the Frisco and head of the North American Company, insisted on the land as collateral for a loan which the North American Company had made to the Frisco. At the time the demand for the additional collateral was made, Mr. Yoakum said, the loan had been over $40,000,000.

2—The loss suffered by the Frisco on an investment in Texas and Louisiana pine lumber properties.

3—A loss of more than $150,000 each year on the ownership of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois. This ownership extended over eleven years. The two roads have been severed under the receivership. Before the receivership the Frisco failed in an effort to sell a half interest in the road.

Mr. Yoakum explained the lumber deal at length. By this deal the Frisco acquired a large interest in the Kirby Lumber Company of Texas. He said:

"These were the days of combines and mergers. The Santa Fé and other roads had carried out such deals successfully. It was important to get control of the last big patch of pine timber in the United States, and it was part of a big plan to make the Mississippi Valley the highway of a great traffic to the Gulf. Other railroads had their eyes on the same opportunity. Several things combined to prevent our success. If we had met success the receivership never would have been necessary."

Mr. Yoakum told also of another great scheme of which he had dreamed. This, in substance, was a water grade line from St. Louis to Colon on the Panama Canal, a line with such imperceptible grades that trains carrying a tonnage as great as any of the steamships leaving New Orleans could move over them easily and swiftly.

Mr. Yoakum explained how the Frisco with the Mexican National Railway had built a bridge across the Rio Grande at Brownsville, connecting that point with the Mexican National, and of the survey south from that point to Tampico, and of the proposition that the Secretary of State of Mexico, Limantour, had agreed to by which the Mexican National was to build a line from Honey to Tuxpan, and the Yoakum line was to be continued on Colon, almost due south, tapping the resources of seven republics and reducing the mileage more than 200 miles to the City of Mexico. He declared that this project would have materialised but for the revolution in Mexico.

Following are some of the questions put to Mr. Yoakum, and his answers thereto:

Q.—Was the difficulty with the road one of finances or of operation? A.—Mainly of finance.

Q.—Was there any effort to get aid from banks other than those interested in the Frisco? A.—I don't think so.

Q.—Have the Frisco and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois not suffered by their relations with these bankers? A.—Well, the bankers paid all they could afford to for the securities.

Q.—Could you have obtained higher prices from other bankers? A.—I don't know. We were not in a position to go outside bankers.

Q.—Why not? A.—The system of banking looks to the directing influence of the railroads in making investments, and it is customary for a railroad corporation to stay as near the bankers interested as possible.

Q.—Who is this directing influence which allots the securities to bankers? A.—I didn't mean to convey the impression that the securities are allotted to banks. But as a matter of custom railroads usually deal with certain banks.

After Mr. Yoakum had explained that the original collateral for a loan from the North American company was the New Mexico and Arizona land, he was asked why it was necessary for the North American to call for a "few additional millions collateral" when the loan had been reduced to $400,000.

"Few millions, you say?" queried Mr. Yoakum. "Well, I don't know why Mr. Campbell called for them unless it was to get all the collateral he could."

Mr. Yoakum said that the Rock Island and Railroad lost heavily by the deal through which it acquired control of the Frisco in 1903.

By this deal the Rock Island exchanged $120 of its own stock for each $100 shares of Frisco stock. Six years later the Rock Island sold its Frisco holdings to Yoakum, Edward Hawley, James Campbell, and a syndicate for $37.50 a share. Mr. Yoakum said that the Rock Island securities that entered into the $120 payment were not worth par, but that the Rock Island lost money nevertheless.

THINK STOVER SAFE AND DEEP IN BOOKS

Associates Recall Two Occasions When He Went Into Seclusion for Study.

Friends of Park Commissioner Charles B. Stover, who departed from this city on Oct. 15 without giving any notice of his plans, believe that he decided suddenly to take a vacation for the first time in the four years that he had held office and that he will be surprised on his return to find that his absence had caused anxiety and alarm.

It was learned yesterday that within recent years Mr. Stover had on two occasions disappeared in similar fashion for several weeks. Robbins Gilman of the University Settlement at 184 Eldridge Street, where Mr. Stover lives, said last night that shortly before he took office four years ago, Mr. Stover, without telling any of his friends that he meant to take a vacation, dropped out of sight for six weeks. When he came back he appeared to be amazed to learn that his disappearance had caused any concern. Mr. Stover explained that he had become very deeply interested in Italian landscape gardening and that, when he got ready to take a vacation, he had procured a number of books on the subject and gone off into the country to study them. Mr. Stover did not on that occasion say where he had spent his vacation and his manner discouraged questions.

J. K. Paulding, who has been associated for more than twenty years with Mr. Stover in the work of the University Settlement, said last night that seven or eight years ago Mr. Stover took another unannounced vacation and his friends were perplexed greatly by his failure to communicate with them. At this time Mr. Stover, Mr. Paulding, and many others were in the midst of a campaign to have Delancey Street parked. Mr. Stover was the leader of the movement, and a number of meetings at which he was to speak had been planned when he unexpectedly absented himself. On his return, after several weeks, he made no explanation of his disappearance, but took up his work on the parking of Delancey Street with renewed zeal.

Louis F. La Roche, Secretary of the Park Board, and Ira H. Patchin, private secretary to Mr. Stover, said in the offices of the Park Department yesterday that they were convinced that Mr. Stover was only taking a vacation. Their theory is that, to take his mind entirely off the subject of his work, he has made it a rule during his absence to avoid reading the newspapers, and for that reason he had failed to assure his friends of his safety.

The Board of Aldermen took official notice of the absence of Commissioner Stover yesterday, when Alderman Dowling introduced an amendment giving the Mayor the power to make the senior officer of any department, when there is no officer in effect, the acting head of that department, if the President is absent for ten days. This assignment, according to the ordinance, shall last for thirty days.

Alderman Dowling said, in asking for the immediate passage of the ordinance, that it had been recommended by Mayor Kline and that it was an absolute necessity. He said that the business of the Park Department was at a standstill for the want of an executive officer. Aldermen Curran and Dowling asked for a postponement of one week, but the amendment was passed by a vote of 8 to 7.

It was said at the City Hall that unless Commissioner Stover returned to his duties by the early part of next week, Mayor Kline would appoint a successor. As President of the Park Board, Commissioner Stover had to approve all contracts, and his absence has delayed the routine business of the department.

On Oct. 23 Mr. La Roche received a telegram sent by Mr. Stover from Philadelphia, saying that he had decided to extend his vacation. The telegram did not give his address. On last Tuesday Mr. La Roche received a letter from Mr. Stover. The envelope was postmarked Philadelphia, but the letter gave no address. Mr. La Roche said that Mr. Stover spoke of matters regarding the Park Department in his letter and that he said nothing at all by way of explaining his absence.

"The letter did not say when he would be back," said Mr. La Roche, "and I have no way of guessing when he will return. I have not the slightest doubt that he is safe. Mr. Stover is accustomed to doing things without consulting others. He has not had a vacation in four years. I imagine that he decided he was about time to take one, and that he started off without delay. He is a great student. He was in the habit of reading till 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning. When he became interested in a new tree, for instance, he would get all the literature he could obtain on the subject and read it through. He was deeply interested in scientific and historical subjects, and read a great deal on architecture.

"When he returns I think it will be found that he took a sudden fancy to some scientific matter and buried himself in books on the subject. Mr. Stover never went on hunting or fishing expeditions. He told me once that he had not caught a fish since he was a little boy. It could not have been on account of his health that he went away. He had been very well for three years. The only sickness he has had since he took office was a touch of rheumatism nearly four years ago."

Mr. Paulding also thought that Mr. Stover had gone into retirement to study up some subject that interested him. As an instance of how Mr. Stover would take infinite pains over trifles, if they happened to strike his fancy, Mr. Paulding told how Mr. Stover had shut himself up in his library with a vast pile of historical lore when he wished to dig out appropriate names for three lion cubs that were born at the Central Park menagerie. After about two days of research he named one Akbar after the Mogul Emperor, another Jumna after a river in India, and a third Sheba after the land of the Biblical Queen.

Mr. Stover's friends all agree that he never indulged in intimate conversations, and that, while he had many friends, no one was especially in his confidence.

H. B. Semple, Jr., a cousin of Mr. Stover and proprietor of a drug store at Easton, Penn., said over the long distance telephone that none of Mr. Stover's relatives had heard from him.

"The last time that I saw him," said Mr. Semple, "was last June when he came to Easton on a short visit during Old Home Week. It is certain that he has not visited Easton since he disappeared in October. The last two conversations that I know of his taking were at Ocean Grove, N. J., and at Milford, Del."

Mr. Stover was born at Riegelsville, Penn., which is six miles from Easton. His parents died in his youth, leaving him considerable property. He came to this city about twenty-eight years ago and for a while was a student at the Union Theological Seminary. Instead of remaining to graduate, however, he became interested in settlement work and joined the University Settlement when it was organized twenty-seven years ago. Most of the time since then he has lived at the University Settlement at 184 Eldridge Street.

GIRL-DRIVEN AUTO KILLS 1, INJURES 4

Miss Elsie Faas of Hotel Cecil Speeds on Sharp Turn Near White Plains and Upsets.

A high-powered touring car driven by Miss Elsie Faas of the Hotel Cecil, at St. Nicholas Avenue and 118th Street, turned turtle on the Mamaroneck Road a mile south of White Plains at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, tossing its occupants, four women and a negro chauffeur, into the roadway. The negro, Arnold Taylor of 194 West 134th Street, Manhattan, sustained injuries of which he died a few hours later in the White Plains Hospital. The four women were badly hurt, but all will recover.

According to the story obtained at the hospital Miss Faas invited her chum, Miss Marie Straub of East Amherst, L. I., her mother, Mrs. Sophia Faas, and Mrs. Henrietta Fairchild, who lives at the Cecil, to go for a ride after luncheon yesterday in her automobile. They went as far as Greenwich, Conn., and on the return trip Miss Faas took the wheel and the chauffeur sat in the other seat in front.

As they reached the strip of hard roadway leading down grade from Sound View Avenue in White Plains to the old Mamaroneck Road Miss Faas sent the car along at a high speed. The turn in the old road is a sharp one, and as she reached it Miss Faas, instead of shutting off the power bore down hard on the feed pedal while turning the wheel.

The heavy machine swung around the curve with the wheels on one side lifting clear of the ground. The machine swung across the road, running off the edge, and turned completely over between the roadway and a stone wall. The machine was badly wrecked.

Miss Faas and Taylor were hurled over the wind shield, landing on their heads. Mrs. Faas landed on her head and shoulder. She and her daughter were badly bruised. Mrs. Fairchild's left arm was fractured and her nose was broken. Miss Straub landed on her back on a rock, causing a severe strain. It is also feared that she may have sustained internal injuries. Taylor's liver was ruptured, and it was that injury which caused his death. The women were so dazed by the accident that they found it difficult to tell how it occurred.

Nathaniel C. Reynal, who lives near the scene of the accident, said that he had heard the crash when the accident occurred and ran to give assistance. Coroner W. H. Livingston of New Rochelle happened to come along at that time, and he summoned Drs. C. O. Zacharie and R. B. Hammond of White Plains. An ambulance was also summoned from the hospital and the women and the negro were taken there.

The wrecked automobile was taken to the Tri-State Garage at White Plains. The windshield was broken off, the tires torn to shreds, the front wheels crushed, and the steering gear twisted and broken.

All information about the automobile party was refused at the Hotel Cecil last night. L. F. Faas is the manager of the hotel.

RICHARDS AUTO UPSET.

Justice and Wife Injured Returning from Hunting Trip.

Municipal Court Justice Richards of Brooklyn and Mrs. Richards were brought to their home, at 147 Barbey Street, East New York, yesterday from the residence of a friend in Port Jefferson, L. I., still weak from injuries they sustained on Sunday afternoon in an automobile accident. Their automobile skidded and overturned on a steep hill between Wading River and Shoreham while they were on their way back to Brooklyn after a week's hunting trip on Shelter Island.

Mrs. Richards was pinned under the car and sustained a fracture of the right wrist, many bruises, and a severe shaking up. Justice Richards fractured his collarbone, and received many painful bruises.

WANTS FAST MAIL WAGONS.

Stewart Opposes Plan to Check Speed in City Streets.

The Aldermen decided yesterday to hold a public hearing on Friday morning at 10 o'clock on the resolution to amend the speed ordinance and prohibit United States mail wagons from going through the city streets at reckless speed. James Stewart, Second Assistant Postmaster General, sent a letter to the Board of Aldermen opposing the plan to have the mail wagons conform to the regular traffic rules and asking that a public hearing be held on the matter.

Mr. Stewart wrote that all transportation schedules had been based upon the latest possible closing of the mails; that a reasonable running time to the railroad terminals had been established, and that as a rule the running time did not exceed nine miles an hour. He wrote:

"It would be impossible to maintain these schedules if the mail wagons are subjected to the resolution in all respects applying to ordinary traffic. Any material change in the schedules would necessarily result in an impaired mail service for New York City and the patrons of the mails generally, as mail would be delayed in the delivery and also in its dispatch."

The hearing will be held in the Aldermanic chamber at the City Hall.

TAKE HODGE FROM BRIDE.

Released on Bail She Gave, He Is Arrested on New Charge.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 18.—George C. Gifford Hodge who was arrested here last week for passing a worthless check, drawn on the Dominion Bank of Montreal, upon Mrs. Ellen Lockhart of the Lockhart Hotel, was arrested again to-night when he appeared for a hearing on the first charge. The later charges accuse Hodge of passing worthless checks in Sewickley and Greensburg, Penn., and in Canada. Hodge was held in $500 bail, and was taken to jail.

Hodge met Miss Virginia Rouzee in New York about three weeks ago, and she followed him to this city. She gave cash bail for him last Friday and obtained his release from jail. They were married on the following day. The bride of four days is heart-broken at the turn affairs have taken. Hodge says he belongs to a good family in England.

CANADIAN PREACHER KILLED HERE BY AUTO

Rev. Dr. James Ross of London, Ont., Struck on Fourth Ave. by Undertaker's Car.

CAME HERE TO BUY BOOKS

Was Director of Library in His Home City and a Leading Presbyterian Pastor.

The Rev. Dr. James Ross, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of London, Ontario, and one of the best known members of that church in Canada, died in Bellevue Hospital at 6:45 o'clock last night from injuries he received an hour earlier when he was struck at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third Street by an auto owned and operated by Leon T. Stowe, an undertaker of 307 West Fifty-first Sirect.

Dr. Ross, with Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Jeffery, also of London, arrived in the city yesterday morning and registered at the Grand Union Hotel. Dr. Ross and Mr. Jeffery are Directors of the Public Library of their native city, and came here to purchase books for it. All three went downtown on this business yesterday afternoon, and when it had been transacted Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery left Dr. Ross at Madison Avenue and Twenty-third Street. Dr. Ross, who was interested in old books, told his friends he wanted to visit an old book shop in the neighborhood, and arranged to meet them at dinner in the hotel.

At the time of the accident Dr. Ross was crossing from the east to the west side of the avenue. It was at the rush hour, when the traffic at Twenty-third Street and Fourth Avenue is particularly heavy. Stowe was driving his auto through Fourth Avenue. He said that Dr. Ross stepped from the shadow of another vehicle directly in the path of his machine, and that it was impossible to avoid hitting him. Dr. Ross was hurled several feet and landed on his head on the asphalt, fracturing his skull. The police account of the accident holds the undertaker blameless.

Dr. Ross was picked up unconscious and carried into a neighboring store. Traffic Policeman Reilly summoned a New York Hospital ambulance, which took the injured man to Bellevue, where he died without regaining consciousness. At the hospital a card bearing his name was found in one of his pockets and a baggage check of the Grand Union Hotel. Detective Barber of the East Thirty-second Street Police Station notified the hotel and the clerk there informed Dr. Ross's traveling companions of the accident.

When Mr. Jeffery arrived at the hospital Dr. Ross was dead. He identified the body as that of his friend, and took charge of it. Mr. Jeffery said last night that Dr. Ross was one of the best-known divines of the Presbyterian Church in Ontario.

"We came on here," he said, "to attend to the purchase of some books, and incidentally to see something of the city. When my wife and I parted from the doctor he bade us a cheery good-bye, saying he was going to visit a favorite old book shop, and that he would not take us along with him, as he supposed we were tired and not interested in old books. I suppose that at the time of the accident his mind was on books, and that he did not see the approaching auto. His death will be a great shock to his wife."

Dr. Ross was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, sixty-two years ago, and was graduated from Queen's University, Kingston. He was Professor of Practical Theology at the Presbyterian College, Montreal, from 1892 to 1904, since which time he has been pastor of St. Andrew's Church, London. He was a Director of the Canadian Bible Society, and in 1905 was elected President of the Ontario Bible Society. He had been outspoken against political corruption in Canada.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—The Rev. James Ross ten years ago was appointed an St. Andrew's, one of the most important charges in the Presbyterian Church. He was a member of the Board of Governors of Knox College, and was next in line for the moderatorship of the Presbyterian General Assembly. He was a very able man, large physically, of fine presence, and strong mind. He leaves a wife and three sons.

TROOPS TO COERCE INDIANS.

Will Escort Gen. Scott, Sent to Effect Arrest of Navajos.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—In the hope that the excited Navajo Indians, who are now defying the Government authorities at Beautiful Mountain, N. M., may be induced to yield peaceably and surrender the eight renegades sought to be arrested, the War Department today ordered Gen. Hugh L. Scott, commanding the Second Cavalry Brigade at Fort Bliss, Texas, who has great influence with them, to proceed to confer with the Indian chiefs.

To back Gen. Scott's mission with a show of force, orders were also sent to Fort Robinson, Neb., to entrain and dispatch to the Navajo agency a full squadron of the Twelfth Cavalry, which will serve as Gen. Scott's escort.

Major McLaughlin, the Indian agent, reported to-day that to defer longer the arrest of the decalcitrant Navajos, who have been defying the law for the last two months, and to whom every reasonable opportunity for surrender has been given, was "liable to bring them supporters from among those Indians who are now friendly."

PANNONIA IN WITH RESCUED.

Cunarder Here with 103 Passengers Taken Off the Burning Balmes.

The Cunard steamship Pannonia arrived at Quarantine at 9 o'clock last night with the 103 passengers, who were transferred to her in midocean last week from the burning Spanish steamship Balmes, which is now in Bermuda undergoing repairs. In addition the Pannonia had on board thirty-nine cabin, seventy-nine second class, and 1,437 immigrants from Mediterranean ports.

After the immigration officials board the Pannonia this morning they will decide whether to have the 103 passengers from the Balmes remain on the Pannonia until she sails on Saturday for Naples and Trieste, or send them to Ellis Island to wait for the next steamer leaving for Cadiz. They were mostly from Cuba and bound for Cadiz or Barcelona. Capt. Robert Capper expects to dock the Pannonia at her pier about 9 o'clock this morning.

Chevillard Establishes a New Record in Aerial Acrobatics.

BUC, Nov. 18.—The aviator Maurice Chevillard established a new record today for turning somersaults in the air by carrying a passenger in his machine.

Chevillard accomplished an aerial loop twice in brilliant fashion, going through the performance apparently with as much ease as if he were alone.

Beachey Loops the Loop.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 18.—Lincoln Beachey to-day succeeded in doing the aerial trick of looping the loop in his aeroplane. He also performed evolutions that far outdid those of Pegoud.

Ascending to an elevation of 3,500 feet at North Island, Beachey turned the front of his machine downward. At the 1,000-foot level he brought the machine up with a swoop, and a moment later was flying head downward. The loop was completed at a 300-foot level, but instead of continuing on an even keel, Beachey went into the vertical again, and while in that position turned the aeroplane around twice on its own axis.

When Beachey landed he was asked how he did it, and he could not tell. It was all an experiment, he said.

SAVED FROM SHIP ABLAZE.

Passengers and Crew Picked Up at Night in English Channel.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 19.—Just before 1 o'clock this morning flames were seen to burst from a vessel on the horizon about 15 miles out in the English Channel, off Ventnor, Isle of Wight. The flames grew bigger until from the land it seemed as if the vessel were completely enveloped.

Later a British warship was seen hastening to the ship and playing searchlights upon her. Preparations were at once made for launching the lifeboat at Brightstone. Tugs were telephoned for from Southampton. The ship on fire was right in the fairway and several steamers hastened toward her.

She turned out to be the steamship Scotsdyke of Glasgow. She had been abandoned. Apparently all of her passengers and crew have been picked up.

BARS RHODES SCHOLARS.

Oxford Athletic Club Takes Action to Stop Them from Competing.

OXFORD, England, Nov. 18.—A meeting of the Oxford University Athletic Committee was held to-night to consider the question of Rhodes scholars competing in the freshmen's sports. Two resolutions were adopted: First, that residence at any time in any other university or similar institution shall disqualify a student from competing in the freshmen's sports, and, second, that in the Oxford University Athletic Club's sports, as distinct from the college sports, no competitor shall be allowed who is over 24 years of age.

The resolutions will go into effect in October next. They are undoubtedly the outcome of the recent success of the Rhodes scholars in the freshmen's sports, held last October.

This action by Oxford practically bars all Rhodes scholars from competing in athletics, for most of them are over 24 years old.

It is pointed out that the rules will in practice extend to the Queen's Club sports between Oxford and Cambridge, because the winning competitors in the Oxford University sports are chosen to represent Oxford against Cambridge.

STOP CUBAN WITH MONEY.

Immigration Officials Question de Blanco on Account of His Eyes.

Herbert de Blanco, Jr., son of the director of the Grand Opera House in Havana, Cuba, arrived yesterday on the Ward Line steamship Havana to consult a specialist with the hope of saving his sight. When the immigration officials boarded the steamer at Quarantine and saw the young man standing at the rail with a shade over his eyes they informed him that he would have to go to Ellis Island unless some responsible person would take charge of him in New York. He said that he had a sister, Mrs. Rosina Tabermela, who lived at the Felix-Portland Hotel in West Forty-seventh Street, and she was to meet him at the pier. He had $800 in cash and a letter of credit besides.

Mr. de Blanco, who is 20 years old, injured his eyesight a little over two months ago by shooting himself through the left eye with a revolver, it was said. He was taken to a hospital, where he remained two months, and when he came out, just before sailing for New York, he could see a little out of that eye, but the right eye became affected, and he lost the sight of it almost entirely. After the Havana had been at her pier for half an hour Mrs. Tabermele appeared and was allowed by the immigration officials to take her brother away to her hotel.

EXPLOSION KILLS MINERS.

Nine Dead Taken Out of Alabama Colliery—Fatalities May Exceed 20.

ACTON, Ala., Nov. 18.—Nine miners are known to havs been killed and at least a dozen others are still missing at a late hour to-night as the result of an explosion this afternoon in the Alabama Fuel and Iron Company's mine No. 2, near here.

Five men had been taken out of the mine alive by rescue crews up to 11:30 o'clock to-night. At that hour mine officials expressed the belief that the death toll would not exceed fourteen, although estimates of the number of missing varied from twelve to tairty. It is stated that forty-three men, the majority of them white, went into the workings early to-day, but there was no means to-night of ascertaining the number who had left before the explosion occurred.

Experienced miners expressed the belief to-night that many of those still entombed had been killed by the force of the explosion, which is believed to have been caused by ignition of dust, set off by a miners' shot.

Rescue work was undertaken in a systematic manner. The new Federal automobile ambulance made a quick run of 34 miles from Birmingham, arriving here simultaneously with the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company's rescue car, dispatched by special train. The mine fan, which was not damaged by the blast, was set in motion at once, so as to restore the air and enable the rescuers to work freely. Those in charge of the rescue work hope to penetrate the mass of rock and coal jarred loose by the explosion before morning.

The mine was comparatively new and was said by officials to have been provided with modern equipment throughout.

the streets of the capital with mobs of the lower classes, led by students, who shouted against everything American. Mexicans explain the difference of sentiment on the present occasion as due to the character of the controversy, which fails to enlist the sympathy of most of the people.

No announcement has yet been made of a successor to Manuel Garza Aldape as Minister of the Interior. The removal of Querido Moheno from the Foreign Ministry to that of the Interior and the appointment of Pedro Lascurain to the post of Foreign Minister, which he filled under President Madero, have been discussed.

WANTS HALE'S CREDENTIALS.

Carranza Seems to Demand Recognition Before Negotiating.

Special to The New York Times.

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 18.—That there is little hope of the present series of Hale-Carranza conferences resulting in any real good is shown by the statement of Francisco Escudero, the rebel Minister of Foreign Relations, in which he said to-night that Gen. Carranza's Cabinet had asked President Wilson's envoy to present his official credentials.

"We have to-day asked Mr. Hale to present his official credentials from the President of the United States," said Señor Escudero. "Heretofore our negotiations with Mr. Hale have been extra-official. We purpose to make them strictly official. On the presentation of Mr. Hale's credentials to me I shall introduce him formally to the other members of the Cabinet, and negotiations will then assume an official character.

"Previously the conferences have been but unofficial chats, wherein we met with Mr. Hale, not as officials, but as individual Constitutionalists. The fundamental purpose of our former conferences was a token of friendship to Mr. Hale, as we knew of his former activity in Mexico, and also through friendship with Mr. Bryan and Mr. Wilson. His credentials have not been presented."

On being told of Señor Escudero's statement Dr. Hale said:

"I am sure you must have misunderstood Señor Escudero, for this is a complete misrepresentation of what occurred to-day."

While it was understood at the close of to-day's conference that there would probably be another to-morrow, it was also reported that it would wait upon President Wilson's reply to Dr. Hale's messages to Washington this afternoon. But little hope is entertained that anything by way of agreement can be accomplished to-morrow, and it would not be surprising if the present negotiations were altogether broken off before another nightfall.

The representations of the head of the Carranza Cabinet are taken to mean that the rebels have abandoned the hope of an agreement, either because Washington refuses their request, or because they have refused the conditions which Mr. Wilson has imposed. It is probably the latter. It is also officially stated that a manifesto is being prepared by the Constitutionalist leader, which will be a declaration to the world of Constitutionalist principles. This is probably intended to defend the position which the rebel negotiators have taken in the series of conferences with Mr. Hale. It will be a long document, it is said, but will be ready to-morrow or Thursday. Gen. Carranza is already preparing to leave for the south within a few days, although the day of his departure is not yet fixed.

Mexican officials said that Gen. Carranza was in communication with Gen. Pancho Villa this morning. The latter is reported to have declared that he, as well as other officers in the field, is in complete accord with Gen. Carranza's plans and purposes, and is determined to make any sacrifice necessary to serve his country.

On the Mexican side of the international boundary much interest was manifested to-day in the arrival of Brig-Gen. Hugh L. Scott from Fort Bliss. He declined to state whether or not his business here was more than that of the regular routine of inspection.

The announcement of the Constitutionalists' demand for Dr. Hale's credentials was a surprise. No one on the American side expected a request for formal recognition of the insurgents, even in the event that permission to import war munitions from the United States should be granted.

At the beginning of the negotiations Gen. Carranza asserted that the Constitutionalists were not seeking for recognition—in fact, did not desire it—and wished only the embargo on the importation of arms lifted.

A change has been noted in the demeanor of the Constitutionalists since the capture of Juarez and the subsequent successes of the revolutionists that have been reported from different parts of the republic.

The only credentials Mr. Hale presented at his first meeting with Carranza and his provisional cabinet are said to have consisted of a personal letter from President Wilson, saying that Mr. Hale was a friend of his and an unofficial investigator for the United States.

NO BLOCKADE, SAYS BRYAN.

He Also Denies That He Is Investigating Villa Executions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The press reports from Nogales that Dr. William Bayard Hale had experienced a check in his negotiations with Gen. Carranza, reached here late to-night, so late that it was impossible to get either a confirmation of the statement that Carranza had made a demand for Dr. Hale's credentials or official comment on the news. But the general opinion here is that such a demand must ultimately have been made, and unofficial comment is made upon the similarity between the course now followed by Gen. Carranza's Minister of State toward Dr. Hale and that pursued by Gen. Huerta's Ministers toward Mr. Lind.

The strict reticence of the State Department regarding Mr. Hale in the last few days, considered in connection with press dispatches from Nogales, has tended to create the impression here that Dr. Hale's mission has been far from successful. Its most striking result has been Gen. Huerta's declaration that he felt impelled to reiterate Gen. Carranza's announcement that neither of them would brook foreign interference.

Steady Gains of Rebels.

While many of the claims put forward by the Constitutionalists to victories over the Mexican Federals have been subsequently disproved or shown to have been exaggerations, there is no doubt that in all the northern tier of States they have been making steady gains for the past few weeks. These advantages would naturally increase their expectations from the United States, and their demand for recognition, instead of a mere demand for the right to purchase munitions of war in this country, would not be unprecedented.

There is some speculation here as to how long the policy of the United States will receive even the passive approval of the European powers. At the request of the United States they recently decided to withhold all action until a statement of the American policy could be formulated. Since that time there have been intimations from high authority that the expected statement has been indefinitely postponed—as a result, first, of the hope that through Señor Aldape Gen. Huerta might be induced to yield, and, more recently, of the failure of that hope.

But with the possible exception of the English concessionaries there is no particular reason why foreigners in Mexico should now be urging their Governments to press the United States. Their lives are not imperiled, save in the rarest cases, and their property has been destroyed only when there has been a general devastation of towns captured by the rebels. As to their claims against the Mexican Government, they have in many cases been promptly paid, while not an American claimant has received a centavo.

The State Department this afternoon had received no official information that Gen. Huerta had succeeded in completing the organization of both houses of the new Congress, and reference to unofficial dispatches on the subject were received with a calm that bordered upon indifference. The situation is officially regarded as unchanged, while communications with Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé d'Affaires at Mexico, and Dr. William Bayard Hale, the State Department's emissary to the rebels, continue unbroken.

Bryan Denies Blockade Rumors.

Secretary Bryan this afternoon denied positively that there was any basis of fact for the statement attributed to the German Minister to Mexico that an American blockade of the Mexican ports would be established within three days. Mr. Bryan added that the denial would apply equally to the blockade, even without reference to the time limit, so far as any present instructions were concerned. In the same way, he said, the denial would apply to all reports of time limits, whether they referred to the blockade or not.

Mr. Bryan's statement tends to confirm the suggestion repeatedly made in these dispatches that no fixed, coherent policy toward Mexico has yet been evolved by the Administration. None of Mr. Lind's demands was accompanied by threats, nor has Gen. Huerta's refusal to accede to any of them been followed by punishment. It appears plain now that the demands have been presented without any definite plan of making them good, and that the enforcement of any particular demand was left out of consideration when the demand was made.

Diligent inquiry at the State and War Departments to-day met only denials that any investigation of the reported Constitutionalist outrages at Juarez had been undertaken. Even at the White House, where it was said on good authority yesterday that the President was investigating the reports, it was admitted that the investigating agency was unknown. There are signs of extreme reluctance to add to the publicity which the execution of Villa's prisoners of war has already received.

The embarrassment occasioned to the Administration by reports that Constitutionalist methods in Mexico were not far different from those of Gen. Huerta has not served so far to break off the conversations between Dr. Hale and Gen. Carranza; but in the past few days the strictest secrecy has been observed at the State Department on the subject. While the Administration has undoubtedly been chagrined by the reports from Juarez, the news of the executions there differs from previous reports of the rebels' punitive measures only because of the nearness of Juarez to the American frontier and the ease of disseminating the news in this country.

In a less degree the same kind of embarrassment has resulted from the high-handed methods of President Yuan Shih-kai in China, who has dissolved his Parliament and imprisoned the opposition, just as Provisional President Huerta did in Mexico. But so far there has been no intimation that the recognition of President Yuan would be withdrawn, and, in view of the remoteness of Asia, such action is not expected.

John Lind, the President's personal representative, to-day sent a long report to the President from Vera Cruz. It discussed in detail the significance of Señor Aldape's retirement from the Cabinet. The State Department is closely watching developments affecting communications between Vera Cruz and Mexico City, but no further information on that subject is forthcoming.

State Department advices made public to-day indicated that the insurrectionary movement was spreading rapidly, not only in the north of Mexico, but to the south and east. This last development is regarded here as very important, because the success of the Constitutionalists in obtaining possession of the rich oil fields in the east, and some deep water ports of the Gulf coast would enormously strengthen them from a military point of view, the former insuring them a full treasury, and the latter an easy means of supplying themselves with munitions of war from European ports or the West Indies.

The State Department was advised to-day that the German cruiser Bremen arrived at Tampico yesterday. The Bremen will probably remain there to render relief in case of an attempt on the part of the revolutionists to loot stores of German merchants.

Telegraphic communication between Laredo and Monterey was opened Sunday night, according to a dispatch to-day from Consul Hanna at Monterey.

Consul Alger at Mazatlan advised the department to-day that Teple and Culiacan had been captured by the revolutionists, and there was an expectation that Mazatlan would be attacked soon, with the prospect that it would be taken by the revolutionists.

Saltillo to-day reported that no trains had arrived there for a week because of the destruction of the track near Monterey.

REBELS CAPTURE VICTORIA.

Capital of Tamaulipas Taken in Bloodiest Battle of the War.

Special to The New York Times.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Nov. 18.—Victoria, the capital of Tamaulipas, was captured by the rebels under Gen. Pablo Gonzales at 2 o'clock to-day, after nearly three days of constant fighting. The battle is said to have been the bloodiest of the present revolution.

The Federal garrison was killed to the last man, according to a report telegraphed from a town this side of Victoria. The city has a population of 15,000.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 18.—Federals are advancing north from Chihuahua City in the direction of Juarez.

A battle took place between the advancing Federals and the rebels' rear guard at Laguna, midway between Juarez and Chihuahua, last night. Gen. Villa, commander at Juarez, admitted that the rebels lost five men killed, but said that the Federals lost thirty-five.

Villa had no details as to the number of men engaged on either side.

Joseph H. Francis, former Chicago Alderman, who was reported to have been killed in the Juarez battle, is still in Terrazas, Chihuahua, rebel officers in Juarez said to-day. They said that several Americans at Terrazas wished to board the train which brought Villa's rebels to Juarez to attack the city, but the commander would not permit them, and they believe Francis was one of this number.

Gen. Luis Caballero probably will be named Military Governor of Tamaulipas in the reorganization of the State by the Constitutionalists.

Gen. Gonzales, who commanded the besieging Constitutionalists, made his report by courier to Jiminez and by telephone thence a rebel headquarters at Matamoras. No definite estimate was given of the loss of life, but it is said that bodies of the dead littered the streets and lay thick through the courtyard and halls of the Government palace, where a portion of the Federal garrison made a last stand after being driven from a Catholic sanctuary, where they took refuge yesterday. Every one of these defenders was slain.

The greater portion of the garrison of 3,000 men, however, evacuated the city at 8:30 o'clock this morning, after forty-nine hours of continuous fighting. They retreated to Tuala, several miles away, where they were overtaken by the Constitutionalists and again decisively defeated at 1 o'clock this afternoon. They fled demoralized into the hills. Gen. Rabago, Arzamendi, and Eugenia Aguilar commanded the Federals.

The attacking Constitutionalists were reported to number about 5,000 men.

Terrible destruction to property was done in the two days' battle which raged through the principal streets of the city, and many handsome buildings not razed by shells were burned during the hand-to-hand fighting.

Before the Federals abandoned the city hundreds of guns were piled in front of the arsenal and burned, but the Constitutionalist leader reported that many of these were saved. In addition 300 horses, as many saddles, four cannon, and much ammunition were captured. Some prisoners were taken.

REPORT TAMPICO TAKEN ALSO.

Carranza's Brother One of the Generals in Command.

Special to The New York Times.

NOGALES, Sonora, Nov. 18.—Official reports have just been received here of the capitulation of Victoria and Tampico, both in the State of Tamaulipas. Gen. Pablo Gonzalez and Gen. Jesus Carranza, are in command of the Constitutionalist forces.

REBELS LET AMERICANS GO.

Women and Children Reach Tampico—54 More at Vera Cruz.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 18.—The United States battleship Nebraska, now at Tampico, reports that all the American women and children recently held by the insurgent leaders at Tanguije have been allowed to leave that place, and have arrived at Tampico.

The rebels are in strong force in the oil regions, but are maintaining order, and paying for all supplies taken. They are still threatening Tampico.

Fifty-four Americans, mostly women and children, arrived here to-day from Mexico City. Some of them have booked to sail for the United States on board the steamship Morro Castle, which will leave this port Nov. 20, but the others intend to remain here awaiting developments in the situation.

VICTIMS NOT TRAITORS.

Reports from El Paso Discredit Villa's Excuse for Executions.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 18.—The statement of Roberto V. Pesquiera, agent of the Constitutionalists in Washington, defending as legal the executions of Federals by Pancho Villa since the taking of Juarez, is characterized here by Mexican Federal officers as at variance with facts. Pesquiera is quoted as saying that the rebels are executing only men found guilty by court-martial of treason in participating in the uprising in Mexico in which Madero was killed.

Col. Enrique Portillo, one of the men executed, was on the field with Orozco at Casas Grandes, only 100 miles south of Juarez, at that time, and José Cordova was secretary to Pascual Orozco at Chihuahua. Pablo Ybave, one of the Juarez policemen, was in Juarez at that time.

It is generally known here that at least five of the fourteen men whom the rebels now admit executing were not in Mexico City at the time of the uprising, and Mexican Consul Diebold asserts that not one of the officers executed was in Mexico City.

DOUBTS BLOCKADE RUMORS.

German Foreign Office Has No Information Justifying Them.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The Foreign Office doubts the accuracy of the report that the German Minister to Mexico has definitely announced an impending blockade of Mexican ports by the United States. The officials say that the Minister assembled the Germans resident in Mexico City to warn them to be prepared for all eventualities, and probably mentioned a blockade as among the possibilities but it is unlikely that he declared that it would certainly come or set a time within which it might be expected, for he had no information justifying such a statement.

Germany's official advices from Mexico are to the effect that the possibility of an agreement between the United States and President Huerta is further off than ever, and that it is very likely that the United States will resort to more drastic measures in the immediate future. Germany's attitude is unchanged.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The retirement of Gen. Huerta from the Provisional Presidency of Mexico is now the surest way to restore order in that country, where German interests are very great, according to an editorial article in the Tageblatt, which heretofore has steadily attacked the policy of the United States in Mexico.

The newspaper greets with sympathy the report that Admiral Paul von Hintzo, German Minister to Mexico, has advised Gen. Huerta to accept the American proposals.

The Tageblatt's previous hostility to the United States is explained in the concluding paragraph of the article, in which it speaks of the possibility of the Monroe Doctrine, whose political power is now, it says, stronger than ever before, assuming an economic aspect, and urges Europe to be on its guard against any attempt to introduce it into the Mexican business field.

TWO MADEROS FREED.

They Are Released on Bail While Awaiting Trial for Sedition.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 18.—Evaristo and Daniel Madero, relatives of the late President Francisco Madero, and Leandro Aguila and his son, who have been confined for several weeks in the fortress of San Juan de Ulua, charged with sedition, were released to-day on bail. They have taken quarters at a hotel here.

The Maderos were arrested in October at Monterey, and brought to Vera Cruz. The United States Government notified the Mexican Government that it would regard with displeasure any accident to the two prisoners.

SEES CHAOS IF HUERTA GOES.

Mexican Banker Predicts a Reign of Terror in the Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Nov. 18.—That the United States, if it succeeds in driving Huerta from power, will merely plunge the entire nation into anarchy, was the assertion made to-day by Juan Espinosa Reyes, a merchant and banker of Mexico City, en route to New York.

"It is plain to anyone who knows anything of the condition in Mexico City," said Senor Reyes, "that the deposition of Gen. Huerta will be the signal for the outbreak of anarchy—such anarchy as no civilized city has seen since the French revolution drenched the streets of Paris with blood.

"Consider the fact: in the neighborhood of Mexico City, it is well known, there are many bands of roving bandits. These men, mere highwaymen of the same stripe as those who made for the Spanish mountains a terror to the traveler in the early part of the last century, call themselves Federals or insurrectos, just as the mood strikes them or policy advises them. In reality, they care nothing for either side, or for any side. They are buccaneers of the present day, and there are thousands of them.

"In the city itself there are miles of rabbit-warrens of tenements filled with the Apache element. These are far worse than the Apaches of Paris, and in proportion to the population, far more numerous. There are thousands of them, ranging in well organized bands about the slums of the towns. Only strict police watchfulness keeps them from constant outbreaks, and even this is not always successful.

"The downfall of Huerta—unless he was instantly succeeded by a government powerful enough to enforce order, which is unlikely—would mean that these Apaches and bandits would join forces to raid the city. I believe that Huerta's resignation or overthrow would be instantly followed by one of the worst outbreaks the civilized world has ever seen, and that the United States Government would be powerless to protect the victims or punish the criminals."

PRAISES "HANDS OFF" POLICY.

Chilean Says It Wins Friends for Us in South America.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 18.—The "hands off Mexico" policy of the United States was commended to-day by David Montt, Chilean representative to the Latin-American conference at Clark University, as one of the most important that could be announced by this country for the promotion of more cordial relations between the United States and the States of South America.

Señor Montt declared that President Wilson's policy was causing the greatest admiration among the countries south of the border, and that, if a similar policy had been pursued in the past, it would have prevented the misunderstanding and the misapprehension that the people of Latin-America now have of this country.

The work of the conference, which is intended to bring about a closer relationship between the students of North and South America, was praised in letters from President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, and the latter wrote that if he could possibly arrange his affairs in Washington so as to do so he would attend at least one session of the conference before the end of the week.

MRS. TOWER ASKS $200,000

Suing ex-Ambassador for Alienation, Says She Is Son's Wife.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Damages in $200,000 is claimed by Mrs. Georgenna Burdick Tower, who declares she is the wife of Charlemagne Tower, Jr., and who has sued Charlemagne Tower, Sr., for alleged alienation of the affections of his son. The complainant began her suit against Mr. Tower, Sr., who was formerly American Ambassador to Germany, on Oct. 9, but did not file a statement of damages until to-day. She declares in her suit that she was married to young Tower in New Haven, Conn., in June, 1911, while he was a student in a New England University, and she alleges that since then Mr. Tower, Sr., has induced young Tower to leave her and has alienated the son's affections from her.

The amount of damages asked is said to be the largest ever filed in this city in a suit of this character.

ARTIST A SUICIDE.

A. B. Schultz Inhales Gas After Long Despondency.

Albert B. Schultz, 45 years old, an artist formerly connected with Puck and The Motion Picture Story Magazine, committed suicide yesterday in a furnished room at 29 Vandam Street by inhaling illuminating gas. Mrs. Mary L. Carpenter, janitress of the building, found the body when she went to his room early in the afternoon to deliver a postcard from Schults's daughter, a girl of 9 years, who has been living at St. Joseph's Home, at 47 East Eighty-first Street.

Mrs. Carpenter said that Schults had been suffering from despondency for several weeks. A letter from his daughter was found on a table in Schults's room. His wife died about nine years ago.

Dog Leads Search to Dead Priest.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, ALA., Nov. 18.—Father Velasquez of the monastery at Rosaryville, La., was found dead early to-day in the woods near there. He had been missing since Saturday. Death is attributed to heart failure. Father Velasquez was accompanied by two dogs, Nero, the larger, returned to the monastery and appeared much agitated. The dog led the searchers to the woods. The smaller dog was in the arms of the dead priest.

Father Velasquez was 58. He was the first rector of the University of Manila after the Spanish-American war.

Mrs. Upton Sinclair Operated On.

Mrs. Upton Sinclair, the second wife of the novelist, was operated on yesterday in the Woman's Hospital at 141 West 109th Street by Dr. J. Riddle Goffe. It was said last night at the hospital that the operation was a complete success. Mrs. Sinclair slipped on the deck of the steamer on which she was returning from Europe three months ago, and the fall affected her spine. She underwent treatment for some time, but it was decided some days ago that permanent relief from her injury could be obtained only by an operation.

Suffrage Breaks Into Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—A precedent was broken at Harvard to-night when Miss Helen Todd of San Francisco, Chairman of the League of Western Women Voters, spoke in Emerson Hall on woman suffrage before students of the university. It was the first time that a "votes for women" propagandist had been allowed to speak in a college hall. The privilege was refused to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst two years ago when she wished to address the students in Harvard Union.

To Investigate Sunshine Society.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The State Board of Charities at its meeting in the Hotel Statler this afternoon appointed a special committee to investigate the affairs of the International Sunshine Society. The committee is composed of William R. Stewart and Herman Ridder of Manhattan, and Dr. J. Richard Kevin of Brooklyn. It has authority to examine witnesses under oath.

SEE INTIMATION OF HIGHER RATES

Statement Made by Commerce Commissioner Marble Held to be Significant.

"TRYING TO HELP ROADS"

Commission Will Hear Railway Heads Monday In Support of Increase—Revenues Fall Off.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—What has been construed as a strong intimation that the Interstate Commerce Commission would grant the 5 per cent. freight-rate increase asked by the Eastern railroads was given to-day by John H. Marble, a member of the commission, who is in this city conducting the Government's investigation of the anthracite roads. Should a favorable decision be given by the commission, a Pennsylvania Railroad official said millions of dollars would be applied to needed improvements to the transportation systems of the United States.

Only by implication did Commissioner Marble forecast a favorable finding. He said no decision had been reached, and could not be until all the evidence had been heard. Then, in reply to a question whether, with so much regulation, it was possible to conduct the transportation business profitably, Mr. Marble made this significant reply:

"We are trying to make private ownership of the railroads profitable."

"President Rea of the Pennsylvania Railroad," the questioner went on, "said a few days ago that the laws and regulations affecting public carriers would soon result in driving away private investors and lead to Government ownership of the railroads. Is Mr. Rea's belief sustained by the facts?"

Thinks Fears Are Ungrounded.

"Both Mr. Rea of the Pennsylvania and Mr. Mellen of the New Haven recently expressed the belief that the trend was that way, but I do not think their fears are well grounded," Mr. Marble replied. "We are seeking to bring about a condition that will be fair and equitable and that will make the railroads successful under present ownership. Of course, the appointment of the Interstate Commerce Commission was an experiment. If we fail in the work we set out to do the country will find some other way to solve the problem."

To an official of the Pennsylvania Railroad this question was put:

"Should the freight rate increase be granted what would be the effect upon the company's business?"

"Our freight receipts last year from the lines of the Pennsylvania system," he replied, "were $240,000,000. In a single year an increase of 5 per cent. on the tariffs would be $12,000,000. The extra cost to the individual shipper would be very little, but the benefit to the public would be very decided, for most of this additional revenue would at once be put into improvements."

To Hear Railroads Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Announcement was made by the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day that George Stuart Patterson, General Solicitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, would make the opening statement next Monday, the beginning of the commission's inquiry into the reasonableness of the proposed general advance of 5 per cent. on all interstate freight rates in Eastern territory. At the same time Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and Frederick D. Delano of the Wabash system will make statements to the commission in justification of the tariffs recently filed by roads in the region north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers and east of the Mississippi proposing the general advance of 5 per cent. in freight rates. The commission suspended the 23,000 tariffs in which these higher rates were embraced until March 12, 1914, pending investigation.

Messrs. Patterson, Willard, and Delano will speak in behalf of all the railroads in the territory affected. They will offer evidence to show that there has been a slump in revenues, that wages have been materially advanced, and that the cost of material has been raised since the present rates were established. They will argue that the railroads are entitled to a general advance of 5 per cent. in rates, and that unless such advance is granted extensions and improvements that are necessary to enable the roads to take care of their business will have to be postponed indefinitely.

Revenues Falling Off.

At the same time that the commission announced that these gentlemen would appear Monday advance figures were made public at the offices of the commission from the bulletin soon to be issued showing the revenues and expenses of the steam roads of the United States for the month of September. It is expected that this bulletin will prove a valuable argument in favor of the contention of the railroads that their net earnings have been decreasing.

The bulletin shows that there was a falling off of about $5,000,000 in the net operating revenue of the leading interstate railroads during September, as compared with the same month in 1912. The total operating revenue was $277,558,806 in September, 1913, as compared with $268,423,703.19 in September, 1912. The total operating expenses in September, 1913, aggregated $186,711,084.10, as compared with $172,583,106.25 during September, 1912.

The revenue from outside operations during September, 1913, was $8,544,908, compared with $5,960,304.13 in September, 1912, and the total cost of outside operations in September, 1913, was $5,778,230, as compared with $5,294,432 in September, 1912. Accordingly, the net revenue derived from outside operations in September, 1913, was only $103,920.68, as compared with net revenue aggregating $665,871.37 from outside operations during September, 1912.

Net Operating Revenues.

The net operating revenues from rail operations and outside operations combined during September, 1913, was $90,951,642.96, as compared with net operating revenue from rail and outside operations during September, 1912, aggregating $96,506,558.31. During September of the present year the large railroads were required to pay accrued taxes aggregating $11,017,987.83, as compared with accrued taxes during September, 1912, amounting to $10,250,946.18. Deducting the taxes from the net revenue the operating income of these roads during September, 1913, was $79,933,655.13, as compared with $86,255,612.18 for September, 1912.

These figures are for 224,446 miles of railroad operated during September, and includes 1,946 miles of Canadian connections. The total net revenue of these roads during September, 1912, showed an increase of $20.90 per mile of road operated. During 1913 the same roads showed a decrease of $28.22 per mile of road operated. Taxes increased $3.05 per mile of road operated in September, 1913, as compared with September, 1912, which showed a tax increase of $2.27 per mile of road operated as compared with September, 1911.

The net operating income, from both outside and rail operations, after making due allowances for accrued taxes, showed a decrease of $31.27 per mile of road operated during September, 1913, as compared with September, 1912. The net operating income, from both outside and rail operations, after making due allowance for accrued taxes, in September, 1912, showed an increase of $20.03 per mile of road operated as compared with September, 1911.

NINE FALL IN GUN FIGHT.

Gangsters Battle at the Robert Veloc Club in James Street.

Three men were perhaps mortally injured and at least half a dozen others wounded in a gun fight between gangsters late last night at the Robert Veloc Club at 83 James Street. More than fifty shots were exchanged before the police reserves of the Oak Street Station were able to restore order.

Th three severely wounded men were taken to the Hudson Street Hospital, where all were reported early this morning as in critical condition. These three gave their names as Frank Fallypadrone of 134 Fifth Street, Brooklyn; Frank Moore of 4 Oliver Street, and Tony Genario of 17 Catnarine Street. Genario's left eye was shot out, and Moore was so badly shot in the legs that it will be necessary to amputate both limbs. Two shots struck Fallypadrone in the back.

The police were unable to find out what started the fight. When they arrived on the scene one band of gangsters had taken possession of the clubrooms while the opposing band was firing shots from the street. A crowd of several hundred men watched the fight from a safe distance.

For several minutes even the police were afraid to venture within the line of fire, but finally they charged down James Street, headed by Lieut. Reed and Detectives Moore and Lochin. When the gangsters heard the police whistles, they fired a final volley and fled. Men armed with revolvers could be seen at all of the windows of the clubhouse.

The police quickly formed a cordon about the building and guarded all of the doors with drawn revolvers. They found the clubhouse filled with smoke. The three men, later taken to the hospital, were found lying on the floor of a front room neglected by their companions. As the police broke into a rear room four men made a dash for liberty, but were placed under arrest. None of them would say a word about the cause of the gun fight.

Lying in the puddles of blood on the floor of the front room the policemen found six revolvers, all but one of them of forty-four calibre and all of the latest make. They found six more revolvers later in front of the clubhouse.

Will Borrow $200,000 on Submarine Contracts, Patents, and Ship Yard.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 18.—Capt. Simon Lake, submarine torpedo boat inventor and President of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, said to-day that the company recently had paid up all its outstanding debts and would reorganize with an increased capital by the issue of $200,000 of 6 per cent. three-year notes. The surety for the issue would be the Government contracts for three submarines of the L type, amounting to $1,655,000, his patents, and the ship yard. Mr. Lake said he purchased the ship yard in this city to save the profits that ship yards enjoyed when he had to sublet his contracts, also to go into the building of all kinds of submarine craft for Government vessels, and the investment had crippled the company at a time when there was a financial stringency.

At the present time the Lake Ship Yard is in charge of the Navy Department, which is completing two submarines of the G type. Secretary Daniels agreed to take the contract off the hands of the Lake Company, but refused to take over the work on the three L type boats, preferring to give Mr. Lake time to get the necessary money or to hold his bondsmen responsible.

ANNUAL BALL OF "BIG 6."

7,000 Printers to Have 64th Reception Thanksgiving Eve.

New York Typographical Union No. 6, the largest organization of printers in the world, will hold its sixty-fourth annual reception and ball in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, on Thanksgiving Eve, Wednesday, Nov. 26. Twenty-eight journeymen printers assembled in Stoneall's Hotel in Fulton Street on Saturday evening, Jan. 12, 1850, and there formed the organization, which to-day has 7,000 members. Horace Greeley, founder of The New York Tribune, was the first President of the printers' union.

"Big Six" contributes $12,000 annually to the support of the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, and nearly $100,000 a year for other beneficial features.

"Big Six" also contributes to the support of the School for Printers' Apprentices at the Hudson Guild, 436 West Twenty-seventh Street.

The proceeds of the annual reception and ball are devoted to the maintenance of beds in several city hospitals. Music for the evening will be furnished by Eben's Seventy-first Regiment Band, Quigley's Concert Band, and the "Big Six" Band, composed of members of the union.

NEW COURT HOUSE TO BE A PRISON, TOO

Ten Plans Under Consideration for City Skyscraper at 2d Ave. and 2d St.

McANENY TO MAKE CHOICE

Building Will Supplant Essex Market Court and Prison and Ludlow Street Jail.

Comparison of the plans for a new Court House at Second Avenue and Second Street began yesterday. The selection of the architect rests with Borough President McAneny. By courtesy of the Court House Board the drawings sent in are placed for judging in its rooms at 115 Broadway. Walter Cook, the consulting architect of the board, will serve as professional adviser to President McAneny without compensation.

The new Court House will take the place of the old Municipal Courts in Madison Street, the Essex Market Magistrates Court, the district prison connected with the latter, and Ludlow Street jail. It is expected to cost about $500,000, and as it will be erected on a plot 100 feet square, it will be of the skyscraper type.

The ten architects who were invited to send in drawings and did so are A. L. Harmon, E. D. Litchfield, Hopplin & Koether, Beverly S. King, Alfred Hopkins, Donn Barber, William Emerson, Grosvenor Atterbury, William A. Boring, and Griffin & Wynkoop. Their designs are being judged by a jury of three, consisting of William R. Mead and Austin W. Lord of this city, and Paul T. Cret of Philadelphia.

To each of the ten architects competing a fee of $500 will be paid; to the author of the design which the jury of award considers most meritorious, in case President McAneny shall not consider it the best, the sum of $5,000, and to the successful architect 6 per cent. on the total cost of the building, exclusive of the furniture and the lighting fixtures. The architect, however, will have to pay out of his compensation certain expenditures incurred for expert advice, and if for any reason it be determined to dispense with his services he will get $10,000.

The Magistrates' Court, which is to take the place of the frequently condemned Essex Market Court, will be situated on the lower floors of the new building, probably the first, second, and mezzanine, and will have a separate entrance on Second Street. Particular care has been exercised in drawing up the specifications to introduce all the latest improvements in the part of the courtroom set apart for the prisoners. There is to be on the ground floor a room with eight temporary reception pens, each big enough for several prisoners, and another room with a block of ten reception cells, five for men and five for women. These pens will be so arranged that persons who have been discharged will be able to leave the building without rushing through a mass of prisoners. In the Magistrates' Court will be provided also quarters for an Assistant District Attorney and for the taking of finger prints.

The next division of the building above will be devoted to the Municipal Court. It is expected to spread over the third, fourth, and fifth floors of the building, and will provide courtrooms for five parts, each of which will have its own robing and jury rooms. The sixth floor will contain the private chambers of the Magistrate and the nine Municipal Justices, as well as a law library.

The city prison, which will be run in connection with the Magistrate's court, is to be placed on the seventh floor. Here care will be taken to separate the accommodation for men, women, and youthful prisoners. It is expected that forty cells will be needed for the men, thirty for the women, and twenty for the children. Three outdoor galleries, or loggias, are to be erected to enable each class of prisoners to take exercise separately in the open air. A library and a Protestant and a Roman Catholic chapel will also be included in this prison, and there will be an emergency hospital and emergency cells which can be used either for the city prison or the county jail, as required.

The County Jail, which will occupy two stories at the top of the building, is to take the place of the present Ludlow Street Jail, famous for its Alimony Club. About ten cells are to be set aside for women prisoners and forty for male prisoners, and these will occupy the floor immediately above the City Prison. The reception room and lobby for prisoners, the Warden's office, and the other common rooms are to be placed on the topmost floor. As in the City Prison, loggias or galleries are to be provided for the separate exercising of the men and women prisoners in the open air.

It is not yet decided whether the cells for prisoners shall be arranged in two rows, back to back in the centre of the building, as has generally been done in this country, or whether they shall be placed along the exterior walls of the prison, as is more common in Europe. It is intended, however, to make the new Court House Prison as sanitary as it is possible to make it and a model for such a building in every way.

INVENTOR WANDERS AWAY.

A. F. Cooper of Flushing Found Here and Sent to His Home.

For the second time within three months A. F. Cooper, a wealthy retired inventor who is more than 80 years old, and who lives with his daughter, Mrs. John M. Moe, at 59 South Parsons Avenue, Flushing, was found wandering about the streets of Manhattan yesterday in a dazed condition. He slipped away from his nurse early yesterday morning and boarded a trolley car for New York. He was taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station, where the Lieutenant notified the Flushing police. Mrs. Moe was then told of her father's detention in New York, and took him home.

Cooper's last escape from his nurse and home was on Aug. 21, when he was found at Third Avenue and Fifty-third Street. At that time he said he was 110 years old, and was celebrating his birthday.

DEFEAT FOR PINCHOT.

Conservation Congress Committee Condemns Government's Policy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The defeat of Gifford Pinchot in a preliminary skirmish was the important event of the first day's session of the fifth annual session of the National Conservation Congress. By a vote of three to six the Conservation Committee on Water Powers crushed Mr. Pinchot's opposition and presented a report to the Congress condemning the present policy of the Government toward water powers and urging rapid development commensurate with the public interest.

Besides condemning the present policy of the Government, which is largely the outgrowth of Mr. Pinchot's crusade, the committee recommended the adoption of a policy intended, while safeguarding public interests, to invite investment of capital in water-power projects coming under Federal jurisdiction.

In addition to the majority and minority reports, there will be a third enunciating certain general principles on which the committee was unanimous.

The committee as a whole agreed that compensation for privilege of water power use "shall be resolved to the Government, State or Federal, from whom the privilege comes." In making its united report the committee said that, while "finding a difference of opinion among its members as to certain details of the subject," it felt "keenly the consequences which would follow a failure to agree upon a constructive programme of progress."

Advocates of State's rights contended that the Government by its policy was usurping the rights of the States to regulate their own possessions. That this contention will meet with

CONFERENCE PLANS TO CUT LIVING COST

Farm Commissioner's Report Laid Before City Club Meeting Called by Gov. Glynn.

FOR LAND MORTGAGE BANK

Committees Appointed to Work for Co-operation Between Producers and Consumers.

A conference to discuss means of reducing the cost of living in this State by bringing about more economical methods of production of foodstuffs, more economical facilities for marketing farm products in this city, and a system of co-operation between consumers and producers was called at the City Club yesterday at the instance of Gov. Glynn. To this conference came agriculturists, investigators in agricultural finance, transportation men, and experts in municipal marketing, to hear and discuss the report of the four New York State delegates of the American Commission to Study Agriculture.

This Commission, of between eighty and ninety men from thirty-six States of the country, was sent abroad last Summer under the auspices of the Government to study the conditions of agricultural finance, production, and distribution of farm products. It divided up into sections which visited Italy, Spain, Austria, Hungary, Germany, France, England, and Ireland before returning to report to this country. The four New York State delegates of the Commission were Frederick H. Allen, who called the conference yesterday and was its temporary Chairman; C. C. Mitchell, R. B. Van Cortlandt, and Prof George N. Lauman of Cornell University. They reported informally to Gov. Glynn on their findings at a luncheon in Albany last Tuesday, and it was at the Governor's suggestion that they arranged for the conference yesterday to organize permanently with a view to having carried out in concrete legislation the programme favored by them.

Gov. Glynn sent State Commissioner Calvin J. Huson of the Department of Agriculture to represent him at the conference, and Mr. Huson was introduced by Mr. Allen as Chairman of the conference. Others called to the conference were Prof. W. A. Stocking, Acting Dean of the College of Agriculture of Cornell University; William Church Osborn and Horace Grunce of the Markets Commission; William C. Brown, President of the New York Central; James J. Hill Northern Railway; Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad; Oscar S. Straus, Borough President, Cyrus C. Miller of the Bronx; R. S. Brinkerd of the City Club; Mrs. Julian Heath, President of the Housewives' League; Charles H. Sabin, C. A. Peabody, W. H. Vary, Master of the State Grange; W. N. Giles, Secretary of the State Grange; Paul Worth of Cornell University; Bailey B. Burritt, Director of the Department of Social Welfare of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor; Arthur J. Ham of the Sage Foundation, and Leonard G. Robinson of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid Society.

Good Teamwork in Europe.

Mr. Allen explained the objects of the meeting, and told of the conditions the commission had found in Europe. There, he said, they found a far better business organization of agriculture, the farmers, unlike those in this country, having learned to play teamwork and procuring resultant reductions in all phases of their expense.

"In this country," said Mr. Allen, "the railroad cost of transporting agricultural products is comparatively small. The heavy cost is after the food reaches the city."

He told how, under a well-organized system of delivery of milk, the City of Rochester could save to its consumers $500,000 a year in this item alone, or $2 per capita. The same waste, he said, resulted from the competitive system of milk delivery in this city, where five or six milk wagons can be found crisscrossing one another in a single block every day, where one could do all the business.

"The average price to-day of bottled milk in New York to householders is 10 cents a quart," he said. "Roughly, the farmer receives 3½ cents out of this 10 cents; the railroad receives ½ cent. Probably in New York the waste cost of distribution, which in Rochester has been shown to be 2½ cents, is 3 cents a quart. Then there is the cost of bottling, loss by breakage of bottles, expenses of dealers for rents, and other items of expense, together with the profit made by them."

For Municipal Markets.

Turning to the consumers' end of the question, Mr. Allen declared that the greatest work that could be accomplished from this end in respect to bringing about co-operation between consumers and producers would be the establishment of municipal markets. In France, he said, such markets were already under the supervision of the Deputy of Police; they were free markets, but the agents were required to send the money of each day's sales to the farmers the same day.

Mr. Van Cortlandt told how the question of agricultural short-time credit—for the raising of crops rather than for permanent improvement of the land itself—had been solved in Europe by land mortgage banks in Italy, Germany, and France. These, he said, formed in some cases with shares of stock and in some without them, paid out money which they raised by issuing bonds of fifty or sixty years' duration, on which there was a small interest and a gradual amortization payment. These banks, he said, were under the strict State supervision, and were looked upon as among the safest in the land, their bonds selling on nearly as good a basis as Government bonds.

Mr. Straus told how he had spent part of last Summer studying the English co-operative stores system in company with Earl Grey. He told how in England co-operative communities had been established with marked commercial success, with small expense owing to the elimination of show windows, salesmen, uneconomic delivery systems, and other items of expense in the ordinary stores, and with a reduction of cost to the consumer often of one-half.

Mr. Robinson explained how, for twenty-four years, the principle of co-operation among farmers has been successfully carried out in this country by the Baron de Hirsch Fund and his own organization, which sprang from it. The society has now seventeen co-operative credit unions of farmers in three States. In eight months these have acquired a membership of 600, a capital of $10,000, have extended loans of $75,000, and have made profits of $1,300, or 13 per cent. on their capital. Their loss has been only $24, sustained through one national bank which closed its doors.

The conference then adopted a resolution empowering Commissioner Huson to appoint a committee of five to work out a plan and scope for a marketing union or bureau, with power to effect such an organization in New York City.

On motion of Mr. Allen a resolution was passed for the appointment of a committee of five, or more to support legislation at Albany for the establishment of a land mortgage bank or banks. Mr. Bruce moved for the appointment of another committee to organize consumers in a co-operative system and extend existing organizations. The resolution was adopted. Chairman Huson appointed Messrs. Allen, Osborn, Straus, and Burritt, and Mrs. Heath on the first committee. The committee on rural credit was appointed as follows: Mr. Van Cortlandt, John J. Dillon, W. N. Giles, Marc W. Cole, and Prof. W. A. Stocking.

DR. MAWSON HEARD FROM.

Valuable Scientific Results Obtained —Hut Buried by Snow.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 18.—After a long interval of silence, further news has been received from Dr. Douglas Mawson's expedition. In a wireless message from Commonwealth Bay, Adelie Land, Dr. Mawson says:

"The first penguins of the season arrived on Oct. 17. A heavy southerly swell on Oct. 10 indicated that the pack ice outside the bay and along the coast eastward had broken up. At times icebergs of unusual size appeared in Commonwealth Bay, but they have now gone, being blown out by a strong wind.

"At no time last Winter was Commonwealth Bay frozen over. We experienced unusually heavy snowfalls in the Spring. On Sept. 27 southeasterly weather packed the snow so high that only the tip of the hut emerged, and the sledges and stores were completely buried under huge masses of snow.

"We are only now beginning to recover our stores. The fact that they were buried and thus unavailable caused us a certain amount of inconvenience.

"We have been able to send time signals to Melbourne, enabling the longitude to be obtained exactly. We are also making auroral observations. We possess valuable information regarding the aurora, and a considerable advance has been made in the scientific knowledge of the subject.

"All the members of the expedition are well, but anxious to return to Australia."

THINK STEFANSSON IS SAFE.

American Museum Men Doubt Seattle Report of His Loss.

Dr. Frederick A. Lucas, Director of the American Museum of Natural History, doubts the truth of the conjecture telegraphed from Seattle that the members of the arctic expedition headed by Vilhjalmar Stefansson have been lost, the confidence being based on the mere fact that nothing has been heard of Stefansson since August.

"Let us wait for further reports," he said, "before forming any conclusion, as to the probable fate of Mr. Stefansson and those with him. The story as published is not accurate. Dr. Rudolph H. Anderson, the zoologist, was not with Mr. Stefansson aboard the Karluk, as the report says, but had taken the Alaska, one of the four schooners in Mr. Stefansson's flotilla, and gone into the northwest, while the Stefansson party proceeded to the east after visiting Herschel Island late in August.

"The whole thing strikes me as being purely a rumor grown into a report. The mere fact that no word has been heard from Mr. Stefansson since Aug. 20 does not alarm me. I do not believe that the Karluk was equipped with wireless and it would have been an easy matter for Mr. Stefansson to have gotten out of touch with civilization.

"On previous trips Mr. Stefansson has been lost to civilization for several months and there is no cause for worry because of his silence of two and a half."

Dr. Lucas's belief that the Karluk has no wireless is sustained by fact. Mr. Stefansson had intended to carry wireless, but gave up the idea.

SEATTLE, Nov. 18.—While some anxiety has been felt of late for the safety of Vilhjalmur Stefansson and the Canadian arctic exploration expedition which he led into the North some months ago, it was reported here to-day that nothing had been heard recently which indicated disaster to the party.

SHIPPING MAN ACCUSES US.

Mr. Nairne Declares British Navy Must Keep the Canal Open.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—"I am voicing the opinion of large merchant shipping interests in saying that we rely upon our costly navy to prepare measures to keep the Panama Canal always open to British shipping," declared Charles Stuart Nairne, a representative of extensive Scottish shipping interests, in an address at the Royal United Service Institution here to-day. He added:

"It is upon such action alone that it will be possible in the immediate future for the taxpayers to maintain the British Navy in its high position as a fighting force, for, despite the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, the world is now faced by a fortified Panama Canal instead of one entirely for the benefit of the commerce of all nations.

"I regard the United States of America as a nation, and hope they may accept the term 'all nations' as including themselves. I see nothing to prevent the United States Senate from closing the Panama Canal at will against those having equal rights in its use if such a course appeared to them to be in their exclusive interests. I regard this as a serious situation, if not an entire breach of faith by the United States Government."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Washington officials do not take seriously the speech of Charles Stuart Nairne in London to-day.

Commenting upon Mr. Nairne's suggestion that the United States was guilty of a breach of faith in fortifying the canal, Secretary Garrison of the War Department said: "That water has passed under the bridge."

The Secretary added that a previous Administration had declared by enacting a law providing for the canal fortifications that the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty did not bind the United States not to erect defenses on the great waterway.

7TH AVE. SUBWAY AWARD.

Bids Opened for Queens Extension of Steinway Tunnel.

The construction contract for the section of the Interborough subway in Seventh Avenue from Sixteenth to Thirtieth Street was awarded yesterday by the Public Service Commission to the Canavan Brothers Company. Their bid was $2,901,306.75, and the next to them was that of the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company, the Interborough's subsidiary, which offered to do the work for $2,531,252.50.

Bids were opened yesterday for the construction of the Queens extension of the Steinway Tunnel from the Queens terminus of the tunnel over the north shore yard of the Long Island Railroad Company, through Davis Street and Ely Avenue to the Queensboro Bridge Plaza. It will be a two-track line, mainly elevated. Bidding was close, and the unofficial figures were:

Degnon Contracting Co.	$557,775
Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation	558,282
Litchfield Construction Co.	566,877
Soare & Triest Co.	595,000
Oscar Daniels Co.	628,077
Rapid Transit Subway Construction Co.	678,000
E. E. Smith Contracting Co.	694,000

Bids for the construction of the Jerome Avenue elevated line from 155th to 182d Street will be opened on Nov. 26.

STRIKE OF HINDUS IN NATAL GENERAL

May Spread Throughout South Africa and Tie Up All the Industries.

RIOTING AT LADYSMITH

Townsmen Form an Armed Force, but the Indians Later Depart—They Say a Man Was Flogged to Death.

DURBAN, Nov. 18.—The strike of East Indians spread to-day as far as the South Coast, and practically every Hindu workman in Natal had laid down his tools this morning.

The atmosphere was not so much disturbed as it was yesterday, the white women and children having overcome their first paroxysm of fear. The authorities, however, consider it possible that disorders may occur at any moment, as serious allegations are being made concerning the ill-treatment of the Hindus in their compounds, all of which stories are believed by the other East Indians.

An East Indian recently died in the coal mining town of Dundee, some twenty miles north of Ladysmith, and it is alleged that the man's death was brought about by flogging. This, with the arrest of about 2,000 Hindus for defiance of the Federal law prohibiting the emigration of Asiatics from one State to another of the Union of South Africa, greatly excited the East Indians.

In order to draw the attention of the Imperial Government to their grievances Hindus marched across the Transvaal border from Natal, and most of the marchers refused to pay the poll tax of $15 per head imposed on East Indians in Natal.

The East Indians do practically all the labor in Natal, including that of the farms, the railroads, the sugar and tea plantations, and the mines, and most of the mechanics and domestics are East Indians. A general strike of the men of this race throughout South Africa would tie up all the industries. In Natal alone there were, according to the census of 1911, over 140,000 East Indians and other Asiatics, while in the other colonies there are many thousands more.

The Government is disinclined to declare martial law, as the employment of imperial troops for the suppression of the trouble would be likely to cause a movement of discontent in British India, where the people are already considerably irritated over the treatment of East Indians in the British colonies.

LADYSMITH, Nov. 18.—About a thousand East Indians started rioting here this afternoon, claiming, as British subjects, equal rights with the white men. Mounted police finally dispersed the mob.

The disaffection was regarded as so grave that a force of armed townsmen was enrolled and the police were provided with revolvers.

The Indians, however, returned to-night to Elandslaagte, one hour's distance from Ladysmith, and the fears of a renewal of the outbreak were so far dissipated that the volunteer police disbanded.

CAPE TOWN, Nov. 18.—While 5,000 East Indians are on strike at Durban alone, and the strike is extending continually, the chief leaders repudiate any resort to violence or intimidation.

Conflicting reports are current as to what is happening on the sugar plantations. While in some cases the coolies have tried to burn and destroy the crops, in many other cases they have kept order and have even assisted in extinguishing the fires

It is feared, however, that the strike will involve a tremedous loss, as the cane crop is ready for cutting.

Apparently the Government might be willing to remove the poll tax on the Indians, but for fear that to yield this point would lead to a similar rising by the Kaffirs against the poll tax. The situation thus is an exceedingly difficult one.

TRIAL OF COUNTESS BEGUN.

Matrimonial Agent Accused of Fraud —Princess an Alleged Victim.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—"Pussy" Uhl, daughter of a penniless journeyman tailor of Frankfort, and now Countess von Treuberg, was put on trial to-day on charges of fraud and usury.

The case has attained the dimensions of a cause célèbre owing to the fashionable persons concerned. Princess Alexandra of Ysenburg, among others, will be called as a witness by the defense in support of the allegation that she was concerned in the negotiation of marriages between clients of Countess von Treuberg's Berlin matrimonial agency and wealthy Frankfort women.

Countess von Treuberg after various matrimonial adventures obtained her title in a way which is apparently not uncommon in Germany. It is alleged that she purchased it from Count Ernst von Treuberg, who in 1911 was agent for a Hamburg shipping firm in London.

"Pussy," as she was generally known in gay Berlin, offered the Count $6,250 for the right to call herself his wife. The Count says he did not know her past career, and has petitioned for an annulment of the marriage. The defendant to-day admitted that after her marriage, which took place in London in January, 1911, she had not the means to pay her "husband."

Besides the matrimonial agency, the defendant managed a money-lending agency. Among her clients was Princess Louise of Belgium, on whose credit libraries to the value of $50,000 were purchased and sold. Princess Louise asserts that she never saw anything of either books or money.

Among the charges against Countess von Treuberg is one of fraud in connection with the alleged matrimonial designs of a Government architect, for whom, it is stated, the Countess agreed to find a wife with a dowry of not less than $75,000.

CLUE IN YUSHINSKY CASE.

Perpetrators of Crime for Which Beiliss Was Tried May Be Found.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 19.—The Daily Mail's Odessa correspondent telegraphs:

"It is reported on good authority from Kieff that the police have found an important clue in the Yushinsky murder case, which will not improbably lead to the arrest of the actual perpetrators of the crime for which Mendel Beiliss was recently tried.

"Pending developments the police observe a rigorous silence."

CRITICS SLASH SHAW PLAY

But Public Seem to Like It — Is About Catherine the Great.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 19—George Bernard Shaw's "thumbnail sketch of Russian Court life of the eighteenth century," entitled "Great Catherine," was produced at the Vaudeville Theatre last night.

The author again finds the critics in an unfavorable mood. They accuse him of lacking originality, of resorting to many tricks of old-fashioned farce, and of persisting in his favorite prank of casting gibes at Englishmen.

One critic describes the play as a series of scenes which, if they had been better written, might have served as "comic" front scenes to a melodrama while the big scenes are being got ready. Another critic regrets that it was such an effort to laugh, because it seemed ungrateful when the author had gone so far out of his way to play the light-hearted buffoon.

But despite the critics' failure to be amused, the audience at times laughed hysterically, and gave the piece a reception which suggests that it will become popular.

The story centres around the Empress Catherine's attempts to gain the affections of an Englishman, Capt. Edstaston, who is visiting St. Petersburg. Potemkin, in his desire that Edstaston should become one of Catherine's "official lovers," carries him to the Empress' apartments, where the Captain is much embarrassed by Catherine's familiarity. He rejects her advances because he already has a fiancée and has no intention of climbing to riches and power as one of Catherine's lovers.

There is much genuine fun when the Captain, with a British middle-class sense of decency, lectures the Empress on the joys of married life and children, advising her to relinquish her "exaggerated" way of life.

Then comes a torture scene, when Catherine, offended by the Captain's coldness, has him trussed up so that he cannot defend himself and then tickles him in the ribs with her toes so that he rolls about in fits of uncontrollable mirth. Then follows the intervention of the Captain's fiancée. The Empress relents, and her final remark as she sees the Englishman depart is: "Oh, that I had such a man!" "For your lover, your Majesty?" ask the courtiers. "No," replies the Empress, with heavy German emphasis, "for my museum."

The play is handsomely staged, and much of its interest consists in its local color.

$1,075 FOR A COIN.

Big Prices Obtained at the Carlyon-Britton Sale in London.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—In the sale at Sotheby's to-day of the Carlyon-Britton collection of coins of the British, Roman-British, Anglo-Saxon, and Norman series, a halfpenny, weight 9.4 grs., struck at York in the year 875, in perfect preservation, and probably unique, brought $400.

Another Northumbrian penny, struck in the reign of the Danish King Alwald, A. D. 901-905, weight 18 grs., extremely fine and of great rarity, sold for $380. Only two or three specimens are known. The Rashleigh specimen realized $305.

A penny of the reign of Regnald, another Danish King of Northumberland, A. D. 943-4, a fine specimen of an apparently unpublished variety, and excessively rare, was knocked down for $300.

A Mancus of Mercia, reign of the Saxon King Offa, A. D. 757-796, an extraordinary and unique gold coin, which was first brought to the notice of English numismatists in the year 1841, realized $1,075. In diameter it is 19.5 mm., and its weight is 66 grs. It agrees in weight with the well-known Arabic Dinar, which at that period largely formed the gold currency of Europe and furnished Offa with a prototype for the only gold coinage bearing his name.

A penny of the time of Egberht of Kent, A. D. 765-79, 18.2 grs., found at Stamford Hill in 1906, went for $500. This was a comparatively low price for this fine specimen of an extremely rare coin, Rashleigh's much inferior example having sold for $765.

A penny of Aethelred, A. D. 870-889, weight 20.5 grs., fine and believed to be unique, sold for $305.

A penny of Aetheiberht of East Anglia, A. D. 794, who was murdered by Offa, realized $855. Its weight is 18.9 grs. This coin is of the highest interest and rarity, only one other being known, which is in the National Museum. It was found in the year 1908 at the foot of the walls of the City of Tivoli, the ancient Tibur.

Tango in Disgrace in Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Although a denial is given of the report that the Emperor has issued a ban against the tango in a formal manner, it appears that his Majesty expressed the wish that officers of the army and navy should participate neither in that dance nor in the one-step nor two-step. At a big charity ball given here last night there was no tango on the programme, and it was noticed that the one and two steps were danced by none of the officers present.

BOLDLY RIDICULED PHILIPPINE POLICY

In Farewell Talk Dean Worcester, Retiring Commissioner, Criticised Wilson's Plans.

CAN'T TRUST NATIVES YET

Speaker Draws Gloomy Picture of Filipino Rule, Based on Aguinaldo Regime—What Americans Have Done.

Dean C. Worcester, ex-Secretary of the Interior in the Philippines, who arrived in San Francisco on Monday last, where he gave an interview to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, which was printed yesterday, in this newspaper on our new policy in the islands, made a farewell address in Manila before leaving, which was published in The Manila Times of Oct. 14, copies of which recently reached New York. In this address, Mr. Worcester held up President Wilson's new policy to ridicule. He quoted from the writings of Woodrow Wilson to show that the latter, as a historian and political philosopher, had demonstrated theoretically that self-government could come to the Filipinos only after a long apprenticeship in self-mastery, obedience, and reverence for law, and he prophesied that President Wilson's policy necessarily would bring about a curtailment of the privileges so far granted to the Filipinos, and asserted that it was fraught with the gravest danger.

In his speech, which was delivered the night of Oct. 13 at a banquet given in honor of himself and two other ex-Commissioners, Mr. Worcester painted the Filipino as he knew him, reverted to conditions that had existed during the insurgent government, and warned his hearers, in effect, that a repetition of them would follow a premature bestowal of independence. Mr. Worcester first took up the subject of his "unpopularity," which charge, he admitted, was true with respect to a certain element of the population.

Not in a Popularity Contest.

"Charged at the outset," he said, "with the ultimate responsibility for the enforcement of modern sanitary regulations and the stamping out of epidemic diseases among an ignorant and superstitious population; for the long and discouraging contest against the plagues which were decimating the horses and the cattle of the Islands; for the prevention of lawless despoiling of the public forests; for checkmating the highly ingenious schemes of wealthy citizens who attempted illegitimately to acquire great tracts of public land; for defending little property owners who sought to retain titles to their holdings from the machinations of rich and powerful neighbors who tried to prevent their owning land in order the more easily to hold them in peonage. I have felt myself too hopelessly handicapped to make it worth while to enter any of the several popularity contests which have occurred in these Islands."

Prof. Worcester paid a warm tribute to the heads of departments who had been under him, most of whom have been long years in the service. He named especially Father José Algué, S. J., head of the Weather Service; Major Ahearn, in charge of the Forestry Bureau; Capt. Charles H. Sleeper, head of the Bureau of Lands, and Dr. Victor G. Heiser, head of the Bureau of Health, who rid the Islands of bubonic plague and isolated leprosy, stamped out a cholera epidemic, reduced smallpox to a minimum and made Manila a healthful city.

"If men like those whom I have mentioned are to be removed from the service to make room for political appointees of whatsoever nationality," declared the speaker, "let it be done promptly. The sooner it is over with the sooner the inevitable day of reckoning will come."

In discussing the Civil Service law, Prof. Worcester enumerated cases of Americans who had laid down their lives in the Philippines in the effort to do their duty. Of the vast work done by Bishop Brent and others, among the non-Christian tribes, Prof. Worcester declared it "would go down like a house of cards if American control were prematurely withdrawn."

American Achievements.

"We have been told," went on the speaker, "that this Government of ours is a 'toy Government' because of the nature of the present organization of its legislative body. It has brought justice within the reach of the poor, a thing which in former days could be had only by the rich, and at a price. It has given the advantages of education to hundreds of thousands of children and youths. By the construction of splendid roads and good trails it has put thousands upon thousands of individuals who previously could not dispose of the products of their labor within easy reach of a market. It has surveyed and lighted the main lines of water communication and thus made safe the lives of those who go down to the sea in ships. It has established law and order throughout the length and breadth of a land hitherto harried by the Tulisan, the ladrone, and the Moro, bringing to it peace, and with peace has come her twin sister, prosperity.

"You business men," Mr. Worcester told his hearers, "know by experience what American government of the unchangeable sort means. Some of you know, also by experience, what Filipino rule means. The slump in real estate values and customs receipts and the withdrawal of funds about to be invested in Philippine commercial enterprises, which so promptly followed Mr. Wilson's expression of hope that the frontiers of the United States might soon be contracted, conclusively demonstrated your opinion as to what would happen under Filipino rule.

"Specific assurance that the United States would not surrender sovereignty over to the archipelago until its inhabitants had demonstrated both ability and inclination to maintain a stable, just, and effective Government would be followed by a steady, healthful commercial development which would bring in its wake a degree of prosperity hitherto unknown and undreamed of. . . . Turn the country over now, or ten years from now, to the Filipinos to govern, and the reputable business men of Manila, mindful of Aguinaldo's demand for his share of the war booty when Manila was taken, of the attempted confiscation of the lands of the religious orders and of Spanish citizens generally, of the proposal to tax foreigners as such, of the torturing of friars, other Spaniards and Filipinos as well, in order to extort money from them; of the widespread brigandage, the officially authorized and directed murdering and the burying alive which prevailed during the period of undisturbed Filipino rule, will fold their tents like the Arabs and quietly steal away.

One Radical Mistake.

Prof. Worcester said he would decline at that time to discuss the probable result of President Wilson's new policy.

"One thing is certain," he prophesied; "there will soon be a plethoric crop of new, interesting, and important data available for study. I can use them in my business, which for the present will be to endeavor to bring home to the people of the United States the truth about the Philippine Islands.

"In my opinion our Democratic friends have already made one radical mistake. They seem to have started out with the idea that it would be a fine thing to give the Filipinos something substantial at this juncture. Nothing could be further from the truth. In the past the clamor of politicians has not infrequently resulted in concessions granted in the vain hope of arousing their gratitude and bringing about a state of friendliness the advantages of which would outweigh certain clearly foreseen resulting difficulties. In no single instance has this proved to be the case, nor will it ever be the case until the present generation has been replaced by the coming one, trained, in part at least, by Americans.

"The Filipino politicians are like the horse leech's daughters, crying 'Give! Give!' They will not cease constantly to demand powers which they are as yet wholly unfit to exercise until something has been taken away from them. It would be a novel and instructive experience for them to discover that this could be done. We may comfort ourselves with the reflection that the policy adopted during the past week has paved the way for such a lesson by creating a probable early necessity for it.

"The way to stimulate real, substantial progress among the Filipinos is to let the apples hang high and make them climb for them, instead of telling them to hold their hats and shaking the tree."

Prof. Worcester referred to the fact that appeals had been made to the Americans of Manila to support the Philippine policy of the present Administration "because it is the policy of an American Administration."

The Valor of Ignorance.

"Americans, and even American Presidents, have been known to make mistakes," he commented. "I yield to no man in my loyalty to my country and its institutions, but I see no reason why the views which I entertain, based on knowledge gained during eighteen years of residence in these islands, should be summarily abandoned in favor of those of a very distinguished and able gentleman who is just now entering on the eighth day of his sojourn here, even though his present views represent the conclusions of a still more distinguished and able gentleman who has never been here at all. There is such a thing as the valor of ignorance, and it is sometimes the duty of a loyal American to sound a note of warning, uncongenial as that task may be.

"After all is said and done, the real Philippine question is not what path the Filipino people shall take. That has been determined for all nations alike by a Divine Providence that is all-seeing, all-wise, and inexorable. It is not whether they shall travel the old, old road a little faster or a little more slowly. That will ultimately be settled, for them and for us, by the unanswerable logic of events, and we need not worry over it. The real question is, Shall they make their long and adventurous journey guided, helped, and protected by the strong and kindly hand of the United States of America, or shall they be left to stagger along alone, blind in their own conceit, to reap the bitter and woeful eye of another powerful nation hungrily awaiting their first misstep?"

Englishwoman Whose Husband Came Here in 1888 Gets Divorce.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Samuel Boat, a resident of Philadelphia for the past twenty-five years, was divorced by his wife in London to-day on the grounds of desertion and misconduct.

The marriage took place in England in 1884. Four years later Boat left his wife and went to Philadelphia, taking their only child, a girl.

The evidence of witnesses, one of whom was from Philadelphia, showed that Boat had been living in Philadelphia practically ever since then with another woman, and has five children.

ROME, Nov. 18.—The American Ambassador and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page returned to-night to Rome from Naples, where they were the guests of Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger.

The Ambassador said that, considering the large contingents of bluejackets landed from the battleships—from 1,500 to 2,000 daily—the behavior of the men was highly satisfactory to the Italian authorities, although there were a few disagreeable incidents, chiefly through misunderstandings.

NAPLES, Nov. 19.—The battleship Wyoming, flagship of the United States Atlantic fleet, with Rear Admiral Badger on board, left here at noon.

The Admiral expressed the utmost gratification at the cordial reception given to the American officers and bluejackets by the authorities and citizens of Naples.

EITEL'S WIFE IN PARIS?

But Officials in Berlin Deny Rumors of a Possible Divorce.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The Leipziger Tageblatt reports that in Court and military circles of the Duchy of Oldenburg a rumor has been in circulation for some time of Prince Eitel Friedrich's possible divorce.

The Vossische Zeitung to-night declares that on inquiry in official quarters here the report was flatly denied.

Rumor here suggested that the Princess had fled to Paris.

PAN-AMERICAN MASS VEXES PROTESTANTS

Say Catholics Make Capital Out of President's Attendance Thanksgiving Day.

EPISCOPALIANS PROTEST

Object to Representing It as an Official National Function—Catholics Deny the Charge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Mutterings that have been heard privately for seven years against the increasingly official nature of the solemn high mass celebrated in St. Patrick's Church on Thanksgiving morning in compliment to the Pan-American Union found expression to-day in formal resolutions of protest by various Protestant organizations in Washington. Particular exception seems to have been taken to the President's acceptance of an invitation to the mass, though in the seven years of its institution members of the Supreme Court of the United States, Senators, Representatives, and diplomats have regularly made part of the distinguished audience at St. Patrick's.

The Pan-American mass was begun in President Roosevelt's time. Under President Taft's Administration Secretary Knox asked the Right Rev. Mgr. William Russell, rector of St. Patrick's, to make the mass an annual celebration. President Wilson recently promised to attend it.

To-day the clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church, meeting at the Raleigh Hotel, denounced the "effort by the Roman hierarchy to give this Roman mass the color of an official function."

The Episcopalian clergymen asserted that the Catholic priests sought to convey the impression that the President and his Cabinet officers wished the ceremony to be recognized as the official Thanksgiving. Yesterday similar resolutions were adopted at meetings of the clergy of the Lutherans, the Baptists, and the Disciples of Christ.

The resolutions of the Episcopalian clergy were introduced this morning by Dr. Randolph H. McKim, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, who recently retired from the Presidency of the Episcopal House of Deputies. It is expected that the Presbyterian ministers will adopt similar resolutions at their meeting on Monday. The resolution adopted to-day says in part:

"For the last three or four years there has been celebrated in St. Patrick's Church, in this city, on Thanksgiving Day, a solemn high mass at which the President of the United States and some members of the Cabinet, the Chief Justice, and several other Justices of the Supreme Court, with a number of Senators and members of Congress have attended as the guests of honor.

"This service is now called in the public press 'the official celebration of Thanksgiving Day,' and is described in the bulletin of the Pan-American republics as having an 'official' character, and every effort is made by the Roman hierarchy to give this Roman mass the color of an official function, as if it were generally recognized as a national service, and as if the President and his Cabinet by their presence wished it to be so recognized, which we are sure is not the case.

"This fact has been understood, both in the United States and in foreign countries, to give the Roman Catholic Church a position and prominence over all other churches, and has even been believed by people in Brazil and Italy to show that America is not a Protestant, but a Roman Catholic country."

The formal resolutions read as follows:

That we protest against the presumption of the Roman Catholic press in putting forward the claims that the Roman mass is the official celebration of Thanksgiving Day in the capital of the Republic.

That we protest against the attempt to convert our National Thanksgiving Day into a Roman Catholic festival, in a service entirely out of harmony with the history or the genius of our country and the spirit and purpose of the day.

That we desire to give voice to the widespread feeling of indignation among the millions of Protestants in America against the efforts of the Roman press and the Roman hierarchy to exploit the attendance of our Chief Magistrate and some of his Cabinet (which we are convinced has only been intended as an act of courtesy and good-will) for the purpose of glorifying the Roman Catholic Church and giving this service an official character which it does not and can not possess.

"I am very sorry that exception is taken by any one, especially by ministers of the Gospel, to a celebration which has for its object peace and good-will," said Mgr. Russell this afternoon. "The purpose of the Pan-American celebration is to bring together prominent men of the American republics for the purpose of fostering friendly sentiments among them. It is not a diplomatic celebration; neither is it official.

"I cannot understand why exception should be taken to the President attending services in a Catholic church, any more than to his attending services in any denomination to which he does not belong. He has attended services, as he has a perfect right to do, if he wishes, in other churches than his own, and I am not aware that any one presumed to find fault with his action.

"Because he is President of the United States Mr. Wilson does not forfeit the right guaranteed to him by the Constitution to worship God as he sees fit. I cannot understand how men who profess to preach peace would go so far as stir up strife as to dictate even to the President of the United States his mode of worship and try to prevent him from enjoying the right of the poorest American citizen."

WILL FACE SENATOR LEWIS.

Moulthrop Consents to Go Back, Denying Pindell Letter.

Sidney Moulthrop, the ex-secretary of Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, who has been accused of fabricating the "Pindell letter," which purported to be an offer from Senator Lewis to Lewis Pindell of Peoria, Ill., of the Russian Ambassadorship for the term of one year, was brought yesterday before Commissioner Shields in extradition proceedings. He waived examination and consented to be sent back immediately to Washington to face the charges against him.

According to Detective Thompson of the West 125th Street Station, who arrested him, he denied having written this letter, and has also asserted that he did not send any threatening letters to President Wilson or Senator Lewis. As for the charge made against him of passing a check he told the detective, the latter says, that he could explain that.

Indicted for forgery in Washington, Moulthrop was arrested on Monday night in the lobby of a downtown hotel and was locked up for the night. He was taken to the Federal Building yesterday morning and turned over to Marshal Henkel, who arraigned him before Commissioner Shields. The warrant for his arrest was based on an indictment charging that he had forged Senator

ALBANY, Nov. 18.—Examination of the statement of receipts and expenditures made by Philip F. Donohue as Treasurer of the New York County Democratic Committee for the late Tammany campaign shows that the Treasurers of the thirty-one Assembly Districts received sums on Nov. 1 ranging from $640 to John J. Dongan in the First to $2,840 to Martin Wallace in the Twenty-third District. The other large sums were to Joseph Gordon in the Fifteenth, $1,160; Harry Wildfeurer, $1,160, in the Seventeenth; J. Fred Stubbs, $1,720, in the Nineteenth; George W. Grote, $1,360, in the Twenty-first; Thomas J. Shelby, $1,120, in the Twenty-ninth; Oliver Lyon, $1,180, in the Thirtieth, and —, $1,120, in the Thirty-first. The sums in the Ninth and Eighteenth Districts were divided into two parts, designated "N" and "S."

These expenditures were made for music and meetings: Oct. 7, $150; Oct. 9, $1,000; Oct. 10, $1,259.50; Oct. 17, $290; Oct. 18, $1,100; Oct. 22, $1,200; Oct. 23, $1,000; Oct. 24, $945; Oct. 27, Brooklyn meeting, $1,500; Hungarian meeting, $1,000; Oct. 29, $500; Oct. 30, $6,088; Nov. 1, $2,785; Nov. 3, $2,780.

For kites $20 was expended on Oct. 10, while for flags the expenditures were $30 on Nov. 24, $1,795.50 on Nov. 7, and $308 on Nov. 8.

Big Expenditures for Postage.

The Brown Company received Nov. 8 $46,160.71 for postage, printing, and circulars, and Oct. 23 $17,000 for postage. Dr. Joseph L. Kohn received $75 as "speaker" on Oct. 17.

These entries are made for advertising, besides amounts to newspapers: Philip F. Donohue, $515, $2,445, $921, $1,924, $2,762, $3,336.60, $4,362.52; T. C. Quinn, $2,000; Progress, $2,000; Ward & Gow, $1,500.

Only three payments were made for "campaigning." They were $22 each and were to J. Weissinger, L. Pvonick, and M. Weissinger.

Two deaf-mute meetings cost $350 and Greek advertising $225. To J. A. Foley was paid $65.97 for "fares and telegrams." H. Rogan received on Nov. 7 $536 for "Heralds."

The receipts, which began on Oct. 6 and ended on Nov. 7, number 504 entries. THE TIMES printed this morning a list of all who contributed $250 and over. The other subscribers are:

CALL ON M'COMBS TO OUST TAMMANY

He May Reply After Conference with President Wilson, Set for To-day.

REFUSES ANOTHER PLACE

Asked to be President of National Democratic Club—City Court Judge O'Dwyer Is Elected.

William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and pioneer of the movement that made Woodrow Wilson President, has been asked to assume the leadership of the fight against Tammany Hall. Mr. McCombs will go to Washington to-day for a conference with the President—the first since his return from abroad a week ago. At this time the New York situation will be discussed at some length, and it is expected that upon his return to this city, Mr. McCombs will be in a position to announce definitely, one way or the other, whether he will lead the anti-Tammany fight.

"I do not think the elections here will have any detrimental effect on the future of the Democratic Party," said Mr. McCombs at the Hotel Vanderbilt yesterday afternoon.

Mr. McCombs has declined the Presidency of the National Democratic Club because, he said, he was too busy to take on this new responsibility.

"Would you consider an offer to lead an independent movement in the Democratic Party against Tammany Hall?" Mr. McCobs was asked.

"I would be compelled to give serious thought to that question before venturing an opinion," said Mr. McCombs.

"Have you been asked to lead such a movement?"

"The subject has been discussed in my presence since my return from Europe," Mr. McComba admitted. "But I have been away so long and I have returned so recently that I have not had an opportunity to familiarize myself with what has been going on during my absence."

George Gordon Battle and other Democrats who are identified with the reorganization plans would not discuss the probability of Mr. McCombs becoming the leader of the anti-Tammany movement, intimating that no announcement would be made until the movement here assumed more definite shape.

It is known that the Wilson Administration is anxious to see Tammany wiped off the political map as an entity in the Democratic Party. No man could be selected closer to the President than Mr. McCombs to lead the fight. For that reason, it was said, Mr. McCombs might not accept the leadership. It would involve the President in the fight on Tammany and it ha salways been regarded as more or less a breach of party ethics for a national leader of a party to take part in any local fight except in his own State.

The Nominating Committee of the National Democratic Club announced yesterday that they had nominated these officers for the ensuing year.

For President—City Court Judge Edward F. O'Dwyer; First Vice President—Ex-Senator William A. Clark; Second Vice President—Herman A. Metz; Treasurer—Milo I. D. Einstein; Secretary—William H. Jasper; Corresponding Secretary—John J. Quinlan; John B. Hasslocher, John M. Riehle, Thomas F. Smith, John H. Campbell, John F. O'Brien, and Charles S. Oppenheim, members of the Board of Governors. The only new officer will be Judge O'Dwyer, who will succeed Supreme Court Justice Thomas F. Donnelly, who has been President for twko years.

Counuty Clerk William F. Schnelder received a cablegram from Mayor-elect John Purroy Mitchel yesterday in which the latter accepted an invitation to be the guest of honor of the Cleveland Democracy—one of the Fusion organizations—at a dinner to be given at the Hotel Savoy on Dec. 29. Judge Richard H. Smith of the City Court will preside at the dinner, and the topic of afterdinner discussion will be the proposed reorganization of the Democratic Party in city and State.

BARNES WILL NOT REPLY.

Young Republican Attack, He Says, Involves Deep Questions.

William Barnes, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, will make no formal reply to the attack made upon him in the report adopted on Monday night by the New York Young Republican Club. He expects to stay at the head of the Republican State organization until the primaries are held next year, when the enrolled Republican voters of his Congressional district will have an opportunity to put him out if they desire to do so. Mr. Barnes said yesterday that he was willing to leave the matter to them.

"The resolution and report of the Young Republican Club involve a discussion of the great principles underlying the organization of society," said Mr. Barnes yesterday. "It is a subject too big to be discussed in an off-hand way.

"The members of the Young Republican Club have failed to realize what these great underlying principles are. This is clear from a reading of the report. They say that I am the apostle of individualism as against nationalism. There can be no nationalism without the development of the individual. The individual is a real live thing, the nation is but a product."

The Young Republicans assailed Mr. Barnes because, like Jefferson, he was a believer in individual liberty and in a strict construction of the Constitution.

"It was not Jefferson who first propounded the truth of individual life," said Mr. Barnes. "It was Socrates. The citizen who looks to the State for his living, who does not develop his own character and his own efficiency simply is increasing the cost of living for himself. No manchine has been invented by which it is possible for a man to pull himself up by his own boot straps."

"Will you say something about the statement made by Albert Ottinger to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt has made overtures to you?" Mr. Barnes was asked.

"I am not privileged to talk about that—no, I must not discuss it," said Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Ottinger, who had referred questioners to Mr. Barnes, was in the room at the time.

White Hot Bar Coils Around Boy.

JOHNSTOWN, Penn., Nov. 18.—A white-hot bar jumped the "run" in the Gautier department of the Cambria Steel Company yesterday, and, writhing like a snake, entered the window of the weighmaster's office and entwined itself about the body of Herman Rabner, a fifteen-year-old messenger boy. Thomas R. Young, a foreman, rescued the boy. Both are in a hospital, the boy in a serious condition.

Y. M.-Y. W. C. A. FUND HAS ITS WORST DAY

Only $33,650 Obtained Yesterday, with Six Days Left to Get $1,410,000.

MANY SMALL DONATIONS

Nearly 1,000 Persons Represented In Yesterday's Total—One Gift of $3,000 and Several of $1,000.

There was a big slump in yesterday's contributions to the $4,000,000 building fund of the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations. The total amount reported by the leaders of the campaign at the noon day luncheon in the 25 Broad Street headquarters was only $33,650, as compared with the record of $172,291 announced at the meeting on Monday. This makes the grand total to date $2,590,076, with only six days left to raise more than $1,400,000 to complete the fund by Nov. 24.

Interest in the competition among the leaders centred yesterday in the friendly rivalry between Mr. and Mrs. Francis Louis Slade, each of whom holds the record for the individual teams of their respective committees. Mrs. Slade is Captain of Team 22 of the Women's Committee, while her husband leads Team 1 of the Kingsley Committee. The contributions reported yesterday enabled Mr. Slade to increase his lead to more than $7,000. His total to date is $69,246, while his wife's is $62,233.

Nearly 1,000 persons were represented by subscriptions in yesterday's total, and there were a large number of contributions of $1.000 or more:

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Achelis	$3,000
Seth M. Milliken	1,500
Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr.	1,000
Mrs. Richard S. Barnes	1,000

All day yesterday crowds besieged the show windows at the main entrance on the Broadway side of R. H. Macy & Co., which were occupied by life-sized figures illustrating the nine branches of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Mrs. James Stewart Cushman, President of the Y. W. C. A., gave some interesting facts yesterday of the work of her organization. "It was estsblished in this city in 1870," said Mrs. Cushman, "and twenty-one years later two branches were established—one in Harlem and the other on the West Side. The present values of these properties is about $250,000.

"Realizing that the great strength and effectiveness of our brother organization comes because it covers the entire city as one organization operating through branches, several attempts were made to organize the Y. W. C. A. in a similiar manner in order that its work might be developed and extended comprehensively. This was recently accomplished and we now have eleven centres, mostly rented and inadequately equipped.

"The Y. W. C. A. of this city has 5,970 members. In our educational classes there are 3,213 students who can choose any one of thirty-seven different subjects. Our total enrollment is 4,707 and our total class sessions is 4,787.

"There are nineteen Bible classes numbering 1,540 students and at 481 religious meetings outside of Bible classes last year there was a total attendance of more than 12,000. In our twenty classes in the physical department, 1,465 girls are being taught to lead healthy lives. Our dormatories have sleeping accommodations for but 319 girls, while there are thousands who earnestly desire to live in Y. W. C. A. buildings. We have obtained situations for 2,650 of our girls and the total attendance at our 660 social gatherings was 27,198. In our sixteen organized clubs there is a membership of 384.

"A new feature of our work is the gymnasium and recreation centre recently opened for all New York girls where they may find gymnastic classes, games and social good times."

WANT CHURCHILL NAMED.

Women Teachers Circulate Petitions Favoring Him.

The Interborough Association of Women Teachers, of which Grace C. Strachan is President, has started a campaign in favor of the reappointment of Thomas W. Churchill as President of the Board of Education by Mayor Kline. Petitions addressed to the Mayor are being circulated among the delegates of the association with the request to obtain letters from citizens indorsing Mr. Churchill.

The petitions say that the policies inaugurated and fostered by Mr. Churchill as lay member have borne most desirable results, which are shown by the fuller and better use of school facilities already available; that the part-time pupils have been reduced in number from 84,646 in May, 1913, to approximately 30,771, and that the cheerful and earnest co-operation in all branches of the school work is of great value and wortyn of being encouraged and sustained.

TAKES BICHLORIDE TABLETS

Young Woman Thought She Was Taking Headache Medicine.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 18.—Miss Lillian Radcliffe of 456 East Twenty-second Street is a private patient at St. Joseph's Hospital, having taken twenty-two grains of bichloride of mercury.

Miss Radcliffe awoke at an early hour this morning, went to the medicine closet, and took two pills which she thought were headache wafers. After she had taken them she thought they did not taste right and called her sister, Mrs. Vanderbee. It was then discovered that she had taken mercury bichloride tablets. She became hysterical and a hurry call was sent for Dr. J. V. Bergen, who gave her first aid and rushed her to the hospital. Dr Bergen to-night would not say what Miss Radcliffe's chances were, beyond that she was in a very critical condition.

C. W. MORSE TO SELL FARM.

Big Jersey Property, with Prize Stock, Up for Auction.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 18.—The big stock farm of Charles W. Morse at Camp Gaw will be sold at auction tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Morse has ordered everything to be disposed of, and the sale will probably take up the entire day.

The farm was one of the hobbies of Mr. Morse, who spent considerable time there. It was stocked with prize hogs, blue ribbon chickens, and had an expensive incubator system.

THAW FREE A MINUTE THEN REARRESTED

Fugitive Now Held on Extradition Warrant and a Supplemental Writ of Habeas Corpus Filed.

RECORD OF CASE CLEARED

Can Progress Without Complications to United States Supreme Court—Thaw Remains in Same Custody.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 18.—The legal status of Harry K. Thaw was materially changed as a result of a hearing to-day before Judge Edgar Aldrich in the United States District Court. The effect was to clear the record for the orderly progress of the case to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The personal status of the prisoner was not changed. Thaw occupies tonight the same apartments in a local hotel which have been his home since Sept. 17, and now, as then, he is in the joint custody of United States Marshal E. P. Nute and High Sheriff Holman A. Drew.

At the hearing before Judge Aldrich an agreement was reached between William T. Jerome, counsel for the State of New York, and Thaw's lawyers, Judge Aldrich assenting, whereby these steps were taken:

The writ of habeas corpus filed by Thaw at Littleton in September was temporarily suspended.

Thaw was arrested by Sheriff Drew under the extradition warrant issued by Gov. Felker.

A new and supplemental writ of habeas corpus under the extradition proceedings was filed by Thaw's counsel.

To this the State of New York has seven days to reply, with Thaw to have five days thereafter in which to make his reply.

Then all the documents in the case are to be printed and briefs filed by both parties.

This having been done, Judge Aldrich will fix a date on which final arguments will be made before him on the question of constitutional law raised in the petition for habeas corpus, viz.: Does Thaw's case come under the extradition laws?

An appeal may be taken from his decision by one side or the other, so that the case may progress to the United States Supreme Court.

Gov Felker granted the extradition of Thaw on the ground that he had been indicted in New York for conspiracy to escape from the Matteawan Insane Asylum, and the rearrest was necessary so that the court could deal with his case without facing endless legal complications

In accordance with this programme, Thaw was released from the custody of the United States Court and formally placed under arrest by Sheriff Drew, who arose in the courtroom and, placing his hand on the fugitive's shoulder, said:

"Harry K. Thaw, I arrest you on this Executive warrant of Gov. Samuel K. Felker."

Thaw acknowledged the arrest by bowing his head. His attorneys immediately went through the formality of filing their supplemental petition and the fugitive was once more remanded into custody of the United States Court.

The entire coterie of Thaw counsel was present at the hearing. The fugitive was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw. For New York there were present, besides Mr. Jerome, Assistant Attorney General Franklin Kennedy, Bernard M. Jacoba of this State, and Sheriff Fred Hornbeck of Dutchess County, who is named in the extradition papers as agent to receive the prisoner. The New York party returned on a late afternoon train.

CROWDS FLOCK TO HORSE SHOW---ROBINSON TO MANAGE BROOKLYNS

MOUNTED POLICE STIR HORSE SHOW

Mayor Kline Views Military Spectacle of "Finest" of Traffic Squad.

WALDO AND JOHNSON JUDGES

Capt. Parker Breaks Collarbone When His Hunter Falls in Taking a Fence in Garden Arena.

Sweeping along in the flood tide of success, the National Horse Show Association's sporting and society institution rolled along as smoothly as a coach and four on a sunny park drive. Day and night the patrons, attracted by fashion, a love of the horse, or to see and be seen at the function that is foremost for the moment in the city's whirl of gayeties, filled the boxes, seats, and the promenade about the ring at Madison Square Garden. There was entertainment in plenty for all sorts and conditions of the onlookers.

During one interval, at about 9:30 o'clock, the attention of all was arrested most thoroughly by the mounted police of the New York traffic squad. Led by Inspector Thomas Meyer as commander, and Sergt. John O'Keefe as bearer of the blue and gold guidon, a squad of twenty-nine enfiladed into the ring. Well mounted, trim in uniform, and bearing themselves like soldiers, the policemen went through a series of evolutions in a style not to be surpassed by the West Point cadets on dress parade or by Manhattan's First Cavalry of the National Guard. This was followed by the judging of the mounts for three prizes.

As reviewing officer, Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo occupied the chief position in the ring, supported by Fire Commissioner Joseph Johnson, representing the City Administration, and President Alfred G. Vanderbilt, with Reginald C. Vanderbilt, G. L. Boissevain, Robert A. Fairbairn, and R. Lawrence, members of the National Horse Show Association.

Mayor Kline and a party occupied an arena box during the evolutions of the mounted guardians of the city's traffic, also as an onlooker was William C. Eno, the father of the traffic squad.

France Wins Canadian Cup.

Amid the soul-stirring strains of "The Marsellaise" and the plaudits of two thousand enthusiastic spectators, Lieut. Baron de Meslon of the First French Cuirassiers won the Canadian Challenge Cup for officers and Government horses of all nations with the famous $30,000 jumper Amazone.

It was the third international jumping event of the show, and nearly seventy horses, representing seven nations, competed for the trophy, which must be won twice before becoming the absolute property of the winner. From a competitive standpoint the event almost equaled that of the previous evening, and it was midnight before the judges selected the French horse as the winner. The pick of the army jumpers of America, Canada, and Europe competed for one of the most coveted trophies of the show.

The horses were required to clear four jumps twice, and after the first round seven jumpers were left. These were sent around the ring a second time, and five of them made perfect scores. A third trial resulted in the elimination of two entrants, with Amazone, Lieut. Victor Nyssen's Vendetta, and Col. the Hon. Clifton Sifton's Skyscraper in final competition. France, Belgium, and Canada alone remained to contest the final round.

The Dominion with one leg on the cup needed but one more victory to carry the cup back to Canada. Each of the three horses tipped one of the four jumps, but the performance of Amazone was the best of the trio, and the award went to the French horse, which won the first international jumping contest last Saturday. Vendetta gave second honors to Belgium, and Canada was placed third with Skysmraper. The defeat of the Russian horses, which won the King George Cup at the last London Olympia international show, was a big surprise to the experts, who expected the representatives from the Muscovite nation to carry off the honors.

Variety of Classes on View.

There was a wide variety in the types on view in the long series of classes; the gamut ranging from tiny ponies to prancing hackneys, slimbodied trotters to stalwart hunters and thoroughbred sires; gently stepping saddle horses to jerkey-going high-steppers in single harness, with a stirring rivalry in each class—bar one. This was for road teams, which had but two entries in striking contrast to the muster of road coaches that not so long since would fill the ring, the speedy whirling of the teams around the circuit, and the tunes of the guards brining the spectators to their feet in enthusiasm. The small entry, perhaps, is because our leading amateur coachman now prefer that their road work should be wholly English. There was no competition, for one of Judge Moore's team was said by the veterinarians to be lame, the consequent elimination leaving G. P. Taylor's entry to win without opposition.

Mr. Taylor's team was of solid bays or browns, equal to a park team in elegance, to a gaudy yellow coach as true to the road in style as an old London sporting print. This was true, too, of Judge Moore's team, three grays and a bay, but his coach was as subdued in colors as a park drag. How the judges would have unwound this manifest tangle betwcen opposing types of horses and vehicles would have been an interesting sight, indeed, but the fates willed otherwise. But Judge Moore had successes in other classes to keep him in good humor. His appearance behind Lord and Lady Seaton in winning the appointment class for pairs to a phaeton was a grand display of the ultraperfect in this form of equipage, which until the world went motor mad, was the most distinctive one a clubman could appear within the driving hour.

Capt. Parker's Serious Spill.

Capt. Parker's cropper in the class for lightweight qualified hunters, from which he emerged with a broken collarbone, was the one incident to mar the different classes for hunters. The jumping in all was far above the ordinary, and American-bred horses carried off the lion's share of the ribbons. In many cases the riders were amateurs, and in one, as a proof of a versatility in sport that is a national trait, Gerald T. Hanley, an aviator for the fun of it, was "in the ribbons" on his first appearance with one of his own hunters.

There was a roadster class that brought out the tried winners of other years, such as E. T. Stotesbury's Ruby and W. M. V. Hoffman's Teneriffe, which means that the most beautiful and evenly stepping examples of the trotting-bred horse for pleasure driving circled the tanbark. Miss Loula Long tried hard to win the blue with the black mare Aspiration, which had won in the class for novice roadsters, but the company was too good for the nag. Aspiration did not score in good looks or good manners, for she carried her head with a list to larboard, besides being fretful on the bit. Ruby won, Aspiration second, and Teneriffe third.

Henry C. Phipps of Roslyn, L. I., as famous as a fancier of beagles as in the "galloping game," won both classes in which the polotats had a particular concern. Shown to halter his mare Anetralia won in the group of stud matrons judged to be of the best value in breeding polo ponies, while in the class for lightweight polo ponies his Lissette captured the blue. James C. Cooley of the Westchester family long famous in the Country Club sports. Master Sidney Preece was second with one of his father's ponies; next Edgar Clausen, who will only play gray ponies, was third with Freckles, and Earl W. Hopping, who has come with a string from Cincinnati, gained some glory for the Queen City Polo Club by being fourth on Spider.

Foxhall Keene Judges Polo Ponies.

There was nothing about this Spider to frighten any Little Miss Muffitt, instead it was a pony any little girl would yearn to have for a pet. Two men of renown wherever polo is known, Foxhall P. Keene and "Natty" C. Reynal, who took the place of William A. Hazard, were the judges. They had some fun out of their task by riding the ponies in turn, although handicapped for turning and twisting them by being in morning cutways and silk hats—proper for the park or Rotton Row, but too much dignity for an imitation of polo.

There were six fine thoroughbreds in that class, all led to halter and to be viewed with calmness, for the "hot-blooded ones" only provoke an agitation of the nerves and the guesswork faculties when they are saddled and aligned on a race course. Allowmaise, a nine-year-old bay that should have been more sedate, was as frisky as a two-year-old that needed "schooling for the barrier," to quote a sporty-looking gentleman on the rails, whatever he may have meant. The others were as glossy in coat and as nice in movement as a Kentucky five-gaited saddle horse. In noting that the winner was a chestnut named Yellow Crest, it should be stated that the racing caption was Captain John, and the new christening is a compliment to the steed's bushy tail; also, the owner is W. Sharp Kilmer of Binghamton, N. Y., who is a Boston terrier amateur known at all the bench shows and who now, by contrast, is to go in for raising hunters.

There was glee galore among her friends when Miss Hopetoun D. Atterbury secured the permanent ownership of Rufus L. Patterson's challenge cup for ladies' saddle horses, the riders to be of the fair sex, "on side saddles, not astride," to quote the mandatory conditions. Her winner was the gray gelding Nickel Plate, winner also last year. The victory had not been really expected, which made the success the more welcome, as Nickel Plate's career at the show has been a game of progression. Unplaced on Saturday, second on Monday, and now picked as the best among about the same saddle horses, the ups and downs of Nickel Plate's career indicated very thoroughly that show judges have the courage of their convictions and may change their minds.

H. K. Bloodgood, who judged the Morgans, admitted after the class, according to gossip, that if he had had it to do over again in the more typical Am Gates would have been first instead of second to the trotting roadster sort represented by Zephyr, which is further proof that a judge may change his mind. But all's well that ends well, is what Miss Atterbury and Zephyr's owner thought.

William H. Moore drove a novice pair in the heavy harness class which created a favorable impression among the spectators and judges, the blue ribbon going to his entry, Modoc and Allen. Miss Loula Long won the second prize with Hesitation and Consternation, a promising pair.

Avoca, entered by George G. Rohlig and ridden by George Karlowski, was adjudged the winner of the saddle horse class up to carrying 200 pounds. The winner is possessed of plenty of breadth, and performed his paces in a most approved manner. The second prize went to a promising mare, General Rosalie Jones, the property of Mrs. A. R. E. Pinchot.

Miss Loula Long was fortunate in securing second prize in the roadster class with Aspiration, as the entry lacked the class and quality of E. T. Stotesbury's Ruby, the winner, and W. M. V. Hoffman's Teneriffe, which was placed third. Ruby won the same class last year, and was far superior to the other entries.

From the first appearance of horses in the harness horse class for pairs driven to demi-mail or spider phaetons there was little doubt as to the ultimate winner. Judge Moore drove his international winners, Lord Seaton and Lady Seaton, in splendid style, while the appointments and harness were perfect. J. Sumner Draper's Killington Nimble and Nimbus earned the second ribbon, while the white rosette went to the second Moore entry, driven by George Chipchase.

Proud Prince repeated his victory of Saturday in the class for thoroughbred saddle horses. It was a difficult class to judge, and the entries were required to circle the tanbark many times before a decision was reached. Proud Prince made a splendid showing. Beau Broadway, a stylish black gelding, entered and ridden by William A. McGibbon, lacked the substance and quality of the winner, but was superior to the other entrants. Oakleigh Thorne's brown gelding Shortstreet made a commendable appearance and won the third award.

Moore Four-in-Hand Loses.

Judge Moore received a setback in the four-in-hand class, in which he has heretofore reigned supreme. Only two teams appeared for the trophy, and the Moore quartet appeared to possess all the qualifications of a good team. The two teams circled the track a number of times, when the judges requested Judge Moore to leave the ring. It afterward developed that one of Mr. Moore's wheelers was lame, and hence the disqualification. The ruling of the judges created a big surprise until the cause was known. G. P. Taylor's team of bays, with no other competitor, obtained the blue rosette.

Foregate Polly, which was placed first on Saturday in the class for ponies under saddle, received the fourth award after a keen competition in which Payne Whitney's Carlton Quality carried off the premier honors. The winning pony is a stylish chestnut mare and was well ridden by Jimmy Swigert. Miss Dorothy M. Flynn's gray mare, Donsy, a winner at the recent Piping Rock show, was placed second, and Godfrey Preece's Sweetheart landed the third award.

Three of the four ribbons in the class for officers' chargers open to all nations were captured by American Army horses in competition with those of Europe and Canada. The riders were in military uniform and presented a striking appearance in the ring. The first award went to Poppy, a chestnut gelding ridden by Lieut. J. F. Taulbee of the Second U. S. A. Cavalry, a splendid specimen of horseflesh, with plenty of substance and bone and exceedingly well behaved. Second ribbon went to Deceive, a bay gelding from the First Field Artillery, ridden by Lieut. Waldo C. Potter. It was a pronounced victory for America, and the foreign horses were outclassed in style, conformation, and handiness. England secured the third award with Col. P. A. Kenna's Harmony, a winner at the Garden during the past two years.

MANY SOCIETY NEWCOMERS.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McCombs and Lady Hadfield in Box Throng.

There was a large and interesting social side of the Horse Show yesterday afternoon and evening, and many newcomers were seen in the boxes and along the promenade.

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury had as her guests in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. William F. McCombs, (née Williams,) who were married recently in London; also Lady Hadfield and Miss Lota Robinson. Mrs. Stotesbury was in old rose broadcloth with a black velvet hat, Lady Hadfield and Miss Robinson were in black velvet, and Mrs. McCombs wore a black costume with touches of yellow.

Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas and Mrs. J. Stewart Barney were in a box last evening, and the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhemeteff occupied Box 49. Mme. Bakhemeteff wearing her superb jewels. Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt paid her first visit to the show at the afternoon session, being in Box 14, and last night she was with Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt. Mme. Havenith, wife of the Belgian Minister, was with Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean at the afternoon performance.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman's First Visit.

Mrs. E. Henry Harriman paid her first visit to the exhibition in the afternoon, occupying Box 58, which she has for the week. The Count and Countess Széchényi were with Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt during the afternoon.

A number of débutantes in girlish costumes promenaded the boardwalk in the afternoon.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman wore a simple black cloth tailored costume, the coat having narrow black velvet revers. Her small black hat was rolled high at the left side and had a short black ostrich plume.

Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt wore a tailored costume with gray furs, the coat opening to show a white lace blouse. Her flat black velvet hat had a single huge shaded red rose on the brim. With her were Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, who was in a tete de negre velvet coat and skirt, the coat having a short full skirt edged with fur. Fur also bordered the neck and sleeves. Her velvet hat having turn-up wing effect at one side was banded with Fitch, and her muff matched it.

Mrs. Josephine Pearson was also in the box in a dark velvet dress and cloth costume topped by a very large black hat wreathed with small shaded roses, sprays of the flowers running out over the brim's edge.

Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt wore a fawn-colored duvetyne skirt on straight lines, the front having a centre seam, with the corner rounded up in a six-inch opening. The coat had a belt of the material placed high and a patch pocket on the breast. The collars and cuffs were of leopard skin. Her large round black hat had deep blue quills running out from the centre front to the left, projecting beyond the brim.

The Countess Széchényi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, was in a reddish plum velvet coat and skirt, perfectly plain and straight, not a vestige of drapery or slash, the coat quite boxlike. Her hat was a huge sailor of black hatters' plush with an aigrette to one side of the back. She also wore a large gray mouffion collar and carried a flat muff.

Miss Gerry's Costume.

In the seats back of the arena boxes was Miss Angelica Gerry, in a dark cloth tailored costume topped by a black hat on sailor lines with a straight aigrette. She wore sable furs. Mrs. J. Lee Taller, next to Miss Gerry, wore a simple dark tailored gown with a small plumed black hat rolled high at one side. Miss Marie Taller wore a dark brown cloth costume with touches of one of the new shades of pink, a dull coral color, which formed triangular implecements on the cuffs and collar. Her hat was of pink, with sprays of brown aigrettes standing up from the narrow, slightly rolled brim to the top of the three-inch crown.

Several effective brown costumes were noted. Mrs. Hamilton W. Cary was in brown cloth and velvet trimmed with brown fur. Her small high hat had the crown of brown ostrich feathers, with the high rolled left brim of brown velvet.

Others seen were Miss Lentilhon Gilford, Miss Kate Carey, Miss Fleitmann, Mrs. Alfred Bell, Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn, Mrs. Henry Seligman, Mrs. Wilson Shannon Dunn, Miss Harriman, Miss Barbara Shedd, Miss Vieva Fisher, in a cerise costume with fitch furs and brown velvet hat; Miss Mai Watson, in light brown cloth, the coat having a collar and cuffs of skunk, and the flat toque matching the gown, having a border of skunk and two spiky feathers at the front; also the Misses Margaret Andrews, Audrey Osborn, Lydia Colt Butler, Marie Louise Emmet, Hilda Holmes, and Eleanor Lawrence.

ROBINSON SIGNS TO MANAGE SUPERBAS

Giants' Veteran Coach to Handle Ebbets Team Next Season.

Wilbert Robinson of Baltimore, for the last five years an assistant of Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants, was named yesterday by President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club as successor to Bill Dahlen in the management of the Superbas. Robinson's contract, which was signed in Baltimore Monday, reached President Ebbets yesterday, and Robinson is expected to reach Brooklyn Thursday morning for a conference with the club officials.

The new manager's contract is for one year only, but he has been promised a longer contract and an advance in salary if he can get better results in 1914 than Dahlen obtained while he was in charge of the Superbas. As the Superbas have not finished in the first division since 1902, Robinson's task is not such a difficult one. The terms of his 1914 contract were not made public.

As a coach and developer of young pitchers Robinson has no superior in baseball, and this fact played a strong part in his engagement to lead the Brooklyn Club. Besides the youngsters who were on the Brooklyn staff last season President Ebbets has several minor league pitchers for trial next Spring, and he figures that if Robinson can get two or three good slabmen out of the lot Brooklyn will have a first division team. Robby is credited with having developed Rube Marquard and Jeff Tesreau, whose work did so much to bring the National Laegue pennants to New York during the last two seasons. Another strong point in Robby's favor is that he has been McGraw's first lieutenant for the last five years and understands the McGraw system thoroughly. He was sure of a berth with the Giants as long as he cared to remain, but McGraw was anxious to see him better his position, hence the unconditional release a few weeks ago.

It is understood that Christy Mathewson will be in charge of the recruits at the Marlin training camp from the time of their arrival there next Spring until Manager McGraw returns from his trip around the world in March. Matty is now on the Pacific Coast with the tourists, and he will remain there until Feb. 20, when he will go to Marlin. McGraw is expected to pick out some veteran catcher to take Robinson's place as coach and assistant manager.

Mordical Brown for Federal League.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Mordecai Brown, the famous three-fingered pitcher of the Chicago and Cincinnati National League Clubs, may take the management of the Chicago Federal League team. In a story published here today, Brown is quoted as saying that a representative of the Chicago Federals had made him an offer, and President Gilmore of the local club said a question of terms only remained to be settled. Brown is said to have been promised his unconditional release from Cincinnati by President Herrmann, providing he could get a managerial berth. The pitcher said he was still able to take a turn on the mound occasionally.

TO OFFER GOV. TENER JOB.

National League Wants Pennsylvania Executive as Its Leader.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—The Presidency of the National Baseball League to succeed Thomas J. Lynch at the expiration of his term will be tendered Gov. John K. Tener to-morrow, according to an announcement here today by President Baker of the local National League club.

A meeting of the Presidents of the various clubs of the league will be held in Harrisburg to-morrow for the purpose of discussing a successor to President Lynch, and Mr. Baker said the Pennsylvania Governor would be urged to accept the position.

Gov. Tener in Harrisburg to-day denied reports that he had authorized a statement admitting that he was a candidate for the leadership of the league or that he would accept if it were offered him.

"I have made no such statement," he declared, "nor have I made any statement since the original one in which I said I was in no sense a candidate."

Mr. Tener has more than a year to serve as Governor of Pennsylvania, and it is not believed by his friends that he would accept such a position after serving as Chief Executive of a great State.

EAST AND WEST TO MEET.

Dual Swimming Events Planned—Intercollegiate Board Proposed.

If the present plans of college swimmers materialize, there will be a number of dual meets this season between the 'Varsity teams of the East and West after the individual league championships, to be held in this city on March 6.

Managers of the Yale, Princeton, and Pennsylvania squads, likely to prove the strongest in the intercollegiate tournament, have already opened negotiations for competitive tours through the Central States, and it looks as if they would be able to book dates with most of the conference teams.

The fact is particularly interesting, because the clashes between the leaders of the two major associations will decide the question of national supremacy in water sports among the colleges, even though the meets are not officially recognized as championship ones.

Furthermore, there is a scheme on foot to establish a national intercollegiate board to govern aquatics throughout the country where university men are concerned, and it is hoped that the coming events will bring it closer to fruition, if not to maturity. Easterners have for some time been considering it, and of late the Westerners have also begun to look favorably upon it. All now realize the advantages to be derived from it.

In the fight for honors this year the conference colleges will be hard to beat, for they have unusually good candidates for most of the events in sight, and they are exceptionally favored in breast and back stroke swimming, the branches of natation which are not featured on the Eastern league programme, therefore being neglected. H. Taylor, one of the fastest breast-strokers in the country, is at Wisconsin University, and several of his close rivals will compete on the other teams against the visitors.

Among the leading free-style swimmers who will represent the West are Kenneth Huzzagh, the fifty-yard record holder; William Vorsburgh, a member of the Illinois Athletic Club's champion relay team, and E. W. McGillivray, a brother to Perry, the all-round star, and himself a great sprinter.

The proposed meets will undoubtedly take place during the Easter vacation, so that the men may take the trip without missing their studies.

LUCKY RUNS FOR CHICAGO IN OREGON

Thorpe Falls Going for a Fly Ball Off Crawford's Bat and Giants Lose, 2 to 0.

By JOHN J. McGRAW,
Manager New York Giants.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 18.—Jim Thorpe slipped in the muddy outfield while chasing a fly from Sam Crawford's bat in the fifth inning to-day, and the White Sox got two runs before the ball was recovered, defeating us by the score of 2 to 0. It was one of the best games played on the present tour, although the weather was a trifle cold for baseball, and the grounds were not in the best condition.

A crowd of 5,000 fans turned out to see the globe trotters, and they were not satisfied until all of us had been introduced at the plate. At the close of the game we were guests at a banquet, and got many good wishes for our trip in foreign lands. One more day of playing completes our tour in the United States, and Thursday we sail from Vancouver for the Orient.

Despite the nine hits scored off his delivery, Fromme pitched a fine game, and would have shut out the Sox for nine innings anyway, only for Thorpe slipping in the muddy outfield. Egan and Rath were on the bases when Crawford came to bat, and Sam hit hard and low to right centre. Snodgrass ran over to back up Thorpe, and he finally recovered the ball, but not in time to stop the two runs. And these two runs beat us. Rummy Hearne pitched the last inning, and he retired the side in order.

Jim Scott, who has been our biggest enigma since the trip began, was on the mound for the Sox, and the Giants never had a real chance to cause trouble. He kept our seven hits well scattered, and was backed up by errorless support.

Doolan made two remarkable one-hand plays at short, and both Doyle and Merkle contributed spectacular plays. Wingo's throwing was another feature of the game. The score:

TO PASS ON HOCKEY RULE.

Amateur League May Use Only Six Men on Side in Game.

The proposed rule to reduce the number of players from seven to six in the local games of hockey will be finally disposed of to-night when the Executive Committee of the Amateur Hockey League meets at the St. Nicholas Rink. The committee is made up of the senior delegates representing the various active clubs in the league, and, as they are all former players with a practical knowledge of the game, the change will be discussed intelligently by men who are familiar with the subject.

The committee comprises R. L. Von Bernuth, St. Nicholas Skating Club; James C. O'Brien, Irish-American A. C.; Richard Condon, Wanderers Hockey Club; Stirling Martin, Crescent A. C., and W. C. Russell, Hockey Club. Under the amendment to the constitution adopted at the annual meeting, providing for the non-representation on the Executive Committee of any club not being represented by a team for two consecutive seasons, the New York A. C. will have no voice in the proceedings, and as President Russell will be an ex officio member, he will vote in case of a tie.

Sentiment is about evenly divided among the members, and the final disposition of the matter may devolve upon President Russell, who has not yet expressed an opinion on the subject. The Wanderers and Irish-Americans both favor the change, with Mr. Martin of the Crescents still open to conviction.

Practice periods for the various teams will be announced, but the clubs will not be required to file a list of players until thirty days before the date of the first game in the championship tournament.

Walthour Coming for Six-Day Race

Bobby Walthour, the famous pace follower and six-day cycle star, sailed yesterday from France on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie for this city to take part in the six-day race which will be held at Madison Square Garden in December. The blonde-haired Southerner has just completed a season of pace following that was one long string of victories. He met a lot of the stars of the European tracks at Paris and lowered the colors of them all. He announced just before sailing that he was to ride in the Garden race with Elmer Collins as a partner. He also is to ride a motor-paced match race on either Dec. 5 or 6 against the best man available. The race will be a ten or fifteen mile event.

New Athletic League Proposed.

Arrangements are under way for the formation of what is to be known as the Civil Service Employes Athletic League, and a meeting will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Room 311, 5 Beekman Street, for the purpose of organizing. The following departments are represented on the committee which has the matter in hand: Civil Service, Commissioner of Records, Sheriff's Office, Tenement House, Docks and Ferries, County Clerk, City Record, Public Recreation Commission, Department of Correction, Borough President of Brooklyn, Board of Water Supply, Borough President of Manhattan, Department of Charities, and Police Department.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL DRILLS NEARLY OVER --- ATHLETICS --- BOXING

YALE TAKING ON WEIGHT FOR GAME

Only Lightest Football Work Will Be Done Before Contest at Cambridge.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—The Yale football coaches have decided to stand pat on the line-up that they ordered against Princeton last Saturday. They began the final week's practice of the season to-day by using that identical make-up of the 'Varsity eleven, and this evening Head Coach Jones and Capt. Ketcham asserted that they have no idea of making a change before the Harvard game next Saturday. The two days' visit to Yale Field, which comprises the final week's practice, includes three objects, according to the campaign policy outlined to-day by the coaches. These are: First, defensive practice for the 'Varsity; second, development of several substitutes for part of the Harvard game, and third, winning back the lost weight of the team.

Some of the players lost nearly eight pounds during the Princeton game, and the average loss was between five and six pounds to each man. In some cases this has not been more than half regained, and this fact has led the coaches to make the work light this week. Capt. Ketcham said this evening: "There may be five minutes' scrimmaging to-morrow, but I doubt it."

To prevent any of the gridiron stars from reaching too fine an edge they will be taken to-morrow night to Ten Acres, the Prospect Hill home of Major Louis Stoddard, for dinner, and later to a vaudeville entertainment. The policy of frequently changing diet has been adhered to and the regulars have been taken alternately this Fall to different training tables, including the Hotel Taft, the Quinnipick Club, Major Stoddard's home, Meriden Country Club, Dr. Sanford's suburban place in Litchfield, and Oliver Jennings's estate in Fairfield.

Their first visit to Yale since the Princeton game was to-day, and the regulars were given an hour of signal rehearsal and defensive hammering, the scrubs driving against them with Harvard formation. With exactly the formation that withstood the Tiger attack the 'Varsity held in check the Harvard formation to-day.

The minor injuries received by several players Saturday were hardly in evidence to-day, the wrenched knees of Dunn, Martin, Pendleton, and Carter showing hardly any lameness.

The development of several substitutes whom the 'Varsity wish to start Saturday was undertaken to-day in half an hour's scrimmage between the second and third elevens. Two half backs whom the coaches wish to reserve until Yale reaches the Harvard twenty-yard line are Guernsey and Wiser. They are line forcers, and with Dunn should make up a trio which the coaches believe will be able to shatter the Crimson for a touchdown. Harbison's good play has been a feature for several days, and he is sure to get into part of the game. Wheeler at quarter back and Brann at end will certainly play in part of the game.

In the scrub practice, Thompson, substitute quarter back, wrenched his ankle, and has quit the squad for the season. To-day's coaches included Adee, Shevlin, Chamberlin, Heffelfinger, Flanders, Walter Camp, and Hutchinson.

To-morrow a remarkable demonstration is planned. It will be the last day's practice of the season. The squad goes Thursday afternoon to Auburndale, its training quarters for the Harvard game, and the occasion will probably be the farewell to the historic Yale Field, which will be replaced in another season by the "Bowl." The players will kindle their annual bonfire with bits of discarded uniforms, and hold their yearly Omega Lambda Chi dance around the blaze.

It was stated on excellent authority to-night that there is no doubt of the eligibility for another season of Nelson Talbott, for two year's left tackle. This fact being established, there is hardly any doubt of his election to the Captaincy. He has been a tackle of all America calibre all this Fall.

HARVARD'S LAST LONG DRILL.

Crimson Putting On Finishing Touches for Yale Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—There was no sign of a let-up for Harvard's eleven this afternoon, for, while there was little hard scrimmaging, the men were out on the field for more than two hours. It was their last long day's work before the Yale game, and the coaches had much that they wished to accomplish.

The first work was against the scrubs, both the 'Varsity and second string men putting on their respective attacks, but in the usual soft scrimmage. Following this drill the 'Varsity was taken in hand by a rush line comprising seven veteran coaches, and their attack was subjected to a very strenuous analysis. Two of the regulars were missing from this play, however, these being Gilman, the tackle, and Bradlee, the right half back. Bradlee hurt his leg in the Brown game and is not ready for hard football, while Gilman is down pretty fine, and the coaches think he has had about all the work he needs.

Cowen was in the line to-day, being at his old place at guard, while on what little defense there was Hitchcock and Storer were at tackles. Hitchcock had more life to-day than for a long time, and the coaches think he is aroused to play his best game at last.

Ham Corbett, P. and L. Withington, Harry Gardner, Crawford Blagden, Dick Wigglesworth, and Tom Campbell were the coaches who played against the 'Varsity this afternoon. They were not supported by any secondary defense, however, but gave about all they could do to the 'Varsity rushers. Harvard is spending time this week on forward pass plays, these having been used little all Fall. The kicking game is also receiving a lot of attention. Mahan is now doing very satisfactory punting, while Brickley is fast getting back to his best form in drop kicking. He tried for two goals from the 25-yard line this afternoon and made them both. Trumbull has strengthened the Crimson's middle line a lot, and apparently he is in better trim than at any time this Fall.

Percy Haughton took the men out to the Country Club to-night, and after to-morrow's drill will practically call the preliminary work off for the year.

Indians All in Good Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 18.—The Carlisle Indians turned out their full squad this evening for a thorough drill at rudiments in advance of the Syracuse game on Saturday. The redskins concentrated their efforts on perfecting the new formations at signal practice, and Garlow, Welch, Calac, and Bracklin took turns at goal kicking from placement.

The physical condition of the redskins is remarkable. To-day practically not a single Indian is on the injured list, although the season nearly completed has been marked by some of the fiercest contests Carlisle has ever had and more games have been played than by any other American team.

Yale Needs Funds to Build Bowl.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—Unless Yale can promptly raise about $50,000 work on the new "bowl" must be stopped on account of lack of funds. Fewer subscriptions than were expected have been received, and many of these have not been paid. David Daggett, Secretary of the commission in charge of the stadium construction, said to-night that $87,500 has been spent already, and half the work of construction completed. There is about $82,000 on hand, but this will be exhausted in immediate payments and work halted unless about $50,000 is speedily raised. The present contract does not include seats in the "bowl."

CORNELL FEARS INJURIES.

Coaches Get All Players Out for Scrimmage at Ithaca.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Drive the men as hard as possible, but avoid injuries, is the keynote of Cornell's final football practice for the game with Pennsylvania on Thanksgiving Day at Philadelphia. An injury to Barrett in the Lafayette game which is more serious than was at first supposed probably has made the coaches cautious, and the utmost care will be observed from now until the time the team leaves for Atlantic City, which will probably be next Monday night.

Barrett did not take part in the practice on Alumni Field this afternoon, and the coaches said that he probably would not be out until the end of the week.

A scrimmage was held late this afternoon, when the coaches finally got all of the men outdoors. The coaches have been handicapped all Fall by the restrictions of university work which have prevented the attendance of the full team more than two days a week. In to-day's scrimmaging the scrubs used the Pennsylvania formation, and they kept the 'Varsity on the jump. All Fall Cornell has been the victim of cleverly executed forward passes, detached passes, and the criss-cross plays, and so far there is no indication that the team will enter the Pennsylvania game much better prepared against this style of play than it has been all season.

TO AVERT OVERTRAINING.

Lafayette Eleven Not to Scrimmage Again Before Lehigh Game.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Nov. 18.—In the preparation for the Lehigh game next Saturday Coach McCaa stole a march on the falling darkness and provided the team with a white ball. They practiced until it was quite dark. To facilitate the work of the squad the third team was dismissed. They have served well and faithfully all season.

There was nothing but signal work this afternoon. The men worked steadily, but were not driven hard. It is not likely that there will be any scrimmage before the Lehigh battle. In this way Coach McCaa hopes to avoid the threatened overtraining without taking an actual holiday. The plays in the signal practice all went smoothly, although they are for the most part comparatively new. The full 'Varsity line-up was in the practice, and the slight injuries have become entirely negligible. Scheeren, Brown, and Gullck all worked with more snap than they did yesterday.

In connection with the preparation of the team the student body is eagerly getting ready to make themselves heard on Saturday. This afternoon there was a cheering practice in connection with the football practice on March Field. There is an event of this kind planned for every day of the week.

To-night the team went into executive session, and under the instruction of Coach McCaa took up the plan of attack against the team further up the Lehigh River.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Nov. 18.—Despite their eagerness to get back into practice to-day, the Lehigh 'Varsity football men were told to take another day of rest, with the promise that to-morrow they would be allowed to again don their togs and perhaps get into the last hard scrimmage of the season.

The unprecedented tactics of the coaches in ordering a complete two-day lay-off and absence from the training table less than a week before the most important game of the season, that with Lafayette, is regarded in high favor on all sides here. It indicates that the Brown and White will go into the battle on Saturday with no traces of staleness, and the coaches are sure that three days of work will again put the desired edge on the team.

Even though the second string men, numbering twenty, were ordered out to practice to-day, the work was done behind closed gates. The scrubs were rehearsed in plays to be used against the 'Varsity to-morrow, many of them being familiar Lafayette formations. In order to get up more enthusiasm, the dummy has been painted Lafayette's colors, and the scrubs, too, may be clothed in maroon jerseys.

The scrubs put forth their best efforts to-day, for among them the coaches are going to choose six men to-morrow to go back into the training table with the twelve 'Varsity men. Frank Green, Faherty, Good, Crawford, Ayrault, and Thornton seem to-night to be the most likely men to go.

Cahall, the 'Varsity quarter back and end, was the only regular man on the field to-day. He was drilled at some length in drop kicking, as the coaches believe this feature may play no little part in Saturday's contest.

The first string scrub men selected for the signal drill to-day were Brown and Franklin, ends; Donaldson and Johnson, tackles; Frank Green and Delaney, guards; Faherty, centre; Good, quarter back; Thornton and Ayrault, half backs, and Crawford, full back.

STAGG SEES VICTORY AHEAD

But Doesn't Want Chicago to Underrate Wisconsin's Eleven.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—A corps of coachers to-day began drilling the University of Chicago eleven for the game with Wisconsin next Saturday, with a view especially to eradicating any over-confidence in the Maroon squad. With the championship practically in their grasp, Coach Stagg is fearful lest his men rate the Badgers too low and slump just as Wisconsin hits its highest form.

One critic said the Chicago victory over Minnesota last week was due in a great measure to the superior work of the Chicago tackles.

In the Wisconsin game, the Maroon tackles will be opposed by Buck and Butler, perhaps the best pair in their positions in the conference, and the advantage Goettler and Shull had at Minneapolis may be lost.

Information from the Midway is that while extra endeavors will be made to put the men in good trim no scrimmages, hard or long enough to risk injury to the men, will take place. As an instance of Coach Stagg's care of his men, it was cited that Full Back Pierce has not taken part in a scrimmage since the Iowa game, and that Scanlon, a regular guard, has played in only two this season.

A special feature of the week's preparation will be the drill of second string men, for Coach Stagg is anxious to have a reliable bunch of substitutes. Some of them, who will be regulars next year, will be given a taste of battle in preparation for the 1914 campaign.

ARMY BRUSHING UP TO TACKLE THE NAVY

Several Shifts in Team as It Practices for Great Battle in New York.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The Army's secret work in preparation for the Navy football game was resumed this afternoon. The regular field was too heavy and treacherous for Daly's men, so a new gridiron was laid out just north of the present site, and, with guards stationed at all approaches, the men were driven through an hour and a half of strenuous work.

Herrick was used on the line to-day in Huston's place, Meacham being relegated to the scrubs. Wynne and Merrill at tackle and end, respectively, did good work. Capt. Benny Hoge was moved back to his old position at left end, exchanging places with Markoe, who was tried for a while in the back field.

That the coaches are still experimenting with the back field was evidenced to-day when Hocker and Boots were both tried behind the regulars' line. Hobbs's punting was good to-day, but the forward pass drill was once more disappointing to the coaches. Huston was in togs, but did not get in the scrimmage. Benedict participated in no rough work, but had a long drill at goal kicking from placement. The regulars showed considerable strength on the offense, Hoge and Hobbs each scoring touchdowns.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 18.—Any friend of the Naval Academy team who thought that the small score made against Penn State last Saturday indicated that the midshipmen had slumped would have been reassured by the speed and dash put into the practice this afternoon. For a large part of the practice period the regulars were given the ball and pitted against a strong scrub team.

Taking the ball near their own goal, time after time, the team carried it the length of the field for a touchdown. Nicholls continued his brilliant running and scored two of the touchdowns. The other players in the back field at the beginning of the play were Harrison at full back and McReavy and Falling at the halves. This is almost certain to be the combination which will start against West Point on Nov. 29 in New York. It is a very strong and heavy combination, 180 pounds. Mitchell succeeded Nicholls is the only back who weighs less than 180 pounds. Mitchell succeeded Nicholls at quarter back later in the practice, Miles going to full back and Leonard, Blodgett, and Nicholls to the halves. Practice was secret to all except Navy people, and the brigade of midshipmen was again present, stirring up enthusiasm by singing and yelling.

Penn in a Long Scrimmage.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Contrary to expectation, the University of Pennsylvania football team was given one of the longest scrimmages of the season to-day in preparation for the game with Cornell on Thanksgiving Day. It was said yesterday that the coaches would allow the squad a few days' rest after the hard contest with Michigan last Saturday.

Carter, the heavy guard, who has been playing on the 'Varsity line all season, and Russell, Griffith, and Mowrey, substitute linesmen, were relegated to the scrub team to-day, and the coaches announced they would be kept there "until they play better football."

In the workout to-day the 'Varsity was matched once against the freshmen and then the scrubs, the first string men scoring 1 touchdown against each of their opponents, while the freshmen crossed the 'Varsity goal line once.

New Football Captains Elected.

BRUNSWICK, Me., Nov. 18.—H. Alton Lewis, a member of the junior class and the left tackle of the Bowdoin College football team, was elected Captain of the eleven to-day.

LEWISTON, Me., Nov. 18.—Ernest Merrill Moore of the junior class was chosen Captain of the Bates College football eleven to-day. Moore played left guard this season.

ANOTHER A. A. U. ALLIANCE.

American Amateur Football Association Joins Governing Body.

That the United States will be represented at the next Olympic games in Berlin in 1916 by an American soccer football team became a certainty with the alliance which was formed at the annual meeting of the governing athletic body between the Amateur Athletic Union and the American Amateur Football Association.

The vast progress made by this sport in the United States, known on the Continent and British Isles and Ireland as association football, warrants the belief by its champions that it will become the chief Winter pastime of the youth of the nation within a period of ten years. It was this belief that created the desire for affiliation on the part of the footballers, who were represented at the session by Dr. G. R. Manning, President of the organization in command of the "soccer" situation, and who spoke at length at the banquet which followed the meeting, and in which he told of the benefits which must accrue to the youth of the country by the national adoption of the game.

According to the terms of the alliance entered into, each organization will recognize and respect the rights and controlling power of the other in and over its particular branches of sport, and each is to have a delegate on the Governing Board of the other association.

This alliance now gives the A. A. F. A. national and international recognition, as the association has been elected a member of the Federation of International Football Associations, which consists of the association football organizations of all the countries where "soccer" is played. It also assures the entry by this country of a team at Berlin after the trial games scheduled to be held in San Francisco in connection with the 1915 carnival in conjunction with the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Essex C. C. C. Tennis Champions.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 18.—Kenneth B. Gordon and H. F. Mecabe to-day won the doubles lawn tennis championship of the Essex County Country Club, when the pair defeated Hendon Chubb and Russell Colgate in three straight sets, 8—6, 6—0, and 6—3. The winners came through to the final round by besting L. M. Brigham and M. Ring, while Chubb and Colgate won their semi-final round match from A. B. Holden and I. Giffen. The championship tourney started on Columbus Day.

MINOR BOXING MATTERS.

Commission Holds Court—O'Rourke to Reopen National Club.

The complaint of Kid Ghette, a local lightweight, against the Vanderbilt A. C. of Brooklyn, charging that the club allowed another boxer to use his name at a recent show, occupied the attention of the State Athletic Commission during the greater part of yesterday's meeting. The substitute boxer was Harlem Tommy Hopkins, who was knocked out in five rounds by Frankie Callahan. The testimony developed the fact that Frank Lanzetta, manager of Ghette, is also manager of Hopkins, and he admitted yesterday that he persuaded Hopkins to box under the name of Young Ghetto. Several of the club officials were questioned, and all declared that they knew neither boxer and consequently were not cognizant of the fact that one boxer was impersonating another. The commission absolved the club from all blame, but reserved final decision until next Tuesday, when Hopkins is to be heard.

A complaint was lodged against the Atlantic Garden A. C. by D. A. Torti, who alleged that a ticket of admission, which he had purchased from Frankie Gould, a boxer, had been refused at the door. He inclosed the ticket in his complaint. The officials of the Bowery club will be summoned to appear at next week's meeting to explain the action. The case is a development of the so-called ticket shows, in which the various boxers on the bill are obliged to sell tickets before the show goes on. The commission has declared itself against the practice, and a more stringent rule is likely to result from this latest complaint.

A license was granted to the St. Stephen's Lyceum of 110 Carroll Street, Brooklyn. Four other applications for licenses were received, but no action was taken on any of them, as the necessary bonds had not been received from Albany. One of the applicants was Tom O'Rourke, who plans to reopen the National Sporting Club on West Forty-fourth Street.

NEWS FOR THE GOLFERS.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Officers of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests recently held at the Aldine Club, in this city, the following committees were appointed to take charge of the annual golf tournament to be held at Pinehurst, N. C., during the week of Jan. 12 to 17, 1914:

Tournament Committee: W. C. Freeman, New York, Chairman; R. M. Purves, Boston; J. J. Hazen, New York, and L. A. Hamilton, New York.

Entertainment Committee: W. S. Bird, New York, Chairman; A. H. Johnson, New York; Guy S. Pierce, Chicago; Don M. Parker, New York; C. A. Speakman, New York; George S. Oliver, Pittsburgh; Joseph H. Moore, New York, and Stephen C. Lowe, Boston.

Trophy Committee: Oliver H. Merrill, New York, Chairman; H. R. Reed, New York, and W. S. Kimball, New York.

Membership Committee: Richard R. Mamlok, New York, Chairman; F. A. Sperr, Chicago; E. F. Clymer, Buffalo; H. C. Milholland, Pittsburgh; W. H. Johnson, New York; A. K. Oliver, Pittsburgh; John H. Hawley, New York; Guy S. Osborn, Chicago; Irving J. French, Boston; Joseph A. Ford, New York, and W. McDonald, Chicago.

Organization Committee: Louis B. DeVeau, Chairman; George B. Oliver, Pittsburgh; Arthur S. Higgins, New York; W. L. Crocker, Boston; George H. Schofield, Chicago, and W. B. Conkey, New York.

The officers of the association for 1913-1914 are: President, Joseph H. Appel, New York; Vice President, Irving S. Robeson, Rochester; Secretary, Walter W. Manning, New York; Treasurer, Robert C. Wilson, Philadelphia.

When the annual meeting of the New Jersey State Golf Association is held on Jan. 27 at the office of Frederick T. Thomas, in this city, one of the matters that will come up for consideration will be the advisability of extending the tournament from three to four days. Fields have been so large in the last two or three years as to cause congestion and considerable difficulty in running off the tournament in the prescribed time. With an extra day added, it would allow for a qualifying round of thirty-six holes, as well as for a thirty-six hole final on the last day.

George Low, the professional of the Baltusrol Golf Club, who recently resigned, has withdrawn his resignation and will remain at his post. This change, however, will not prevent him from sailing for Scotland on Dec. 13, as he had originally planned.

During the Winter the Baltusrol members will hold shooting competitions, beginning Thanksgiving day, and every Saturday thereafter. A larger building and improved platforms have been erected.

Improvements are being made at several holes on the course of the Glen Ridge Country Club. Pot bunkers have been dug on the corners of the first green, and this method of stiffening up the links will be followed on several holes. Robert Thompson, the professional, has charge of the work, which will be continued until the cold weather forces a cessation of activities.

PHIL CROSS LANDS BLOWS ON MADDEN

Bowery Champion Makes Only a Target for Leach Cross's Brother.

Frankie Madden, the Bowery champion, received the severest beating of his career last night at the Atlantic Garden A. C. in his ten-round bout with Phil Cross, the latter being the leader in every round of the ten contested. The feature of the loser's work was his inability to land what proved to be the wildest of swings, and had he been trying purposely to miss his opponent he could not have been more successful.

Cross was continually on top of his man with jabs and left swings, most of which found a landing place on the Bowery title holder. The latter at the finish was badly used up, and some of the spectators at the end remarked that his friends would be unable to recognize him this morning. Madden aided in his staying through the required route by boring-in and covering-up tactics, followed by clinching, to the chagrin of his followers, who implored him to get "one over."

In the sixth round Cross ripped over a left hook which upset his opponent and sent him to the floor. In order to attempt to prove that he had not been seriously disturbed by the punch, Madden was almost immediately on his feet, only to race into a hurricane of rights and lefts, most of which counted.

The men came into the ring accompanied by the plaudits of their followers, who crowded the building. Cross was announced as scaling 142½ pounds and his opponent a half pound less. Madden started in directly after the bell rang, and got over weak lefts and rights which warranted a good mix-up. Cross soon showed his superiority and easily gained the round.

Early in the second both became too eager to get over heavy swinging blows, which resulted in each going down to his knees in turn, with Madden the first to meet with the temporary misfortune. Madden began to set himself for every punch he attempted, with Cross in the meanwhile showering him apparently at will. Toward the end of this session Madden seemed to tire from the effect of the pace in combination with the efforts he wasted in futile swings.

Cross began operations in the third by landing all over his man, Madden not seeming to fear jabs or swings, but apparently awaiting the opportunity to land a "haymaker," which chance never seemed to occur. Midway during the round Madden came through with what proved to be but a flash, as he failed to live the pace he had set himself, and toward the end was the receiver general.

Despite the fact that Madden bored in continually during the fourth, he ran into volleys of punches, which soon had him bleeding from the mouth. He came along to a bit better advantage at the latter stage, but was unable to overcome the lead his opponent gained during the early part of the session. From the fifth round on it was only a question of Madden's ability to stay the journey, as he was hopelessly outclassed, failing to land any of his well-meant swings. He made rallies at periods from that stage on, but was in no way effective.

In the semi-final at six rounds between George Fox and Ralph Rose, the latter started in to make short work of his opponent, but after the first round he was handed as hard a beating as he probably ever received.

Shugrue vs. Harvey at Fairmont.

Joe Shugrue of Jersey City, whose last appearance in a local ring was at Madison Square Garden, where he defeated Leach Cross, will oppose Johnny Harvey of this city in the ten-round feature event of tonight's show at the Fairmont A. C. of the Bronx. Harvey's work in his recent bouts with Willie Beecher and Young Brown stamped him as a "comer" among the lightweights, and the aggressive Jerseyite will have to be at his best to gain the honors. Harvey acted as one of Willie Ritchie's sparring partners when the champion was preparing for his recent bout with Cross, and Ritchie was much impressed at the New Yorker's showing. In the ten-round semi-final Battling Reddy and Young Marino will do the honors. The usual number of preliminaries will open the show.

TIM LOGAN NO WHITE HOPE.

Fat Philadelphia Heavyweight Beaten Easily by Levinsky.

"Battling" Levinsky, conceding twenty-eight pounds to Tim Logan, the Philadelphia heavyweight, who tipped the beam at 200 pounds, did all that could have been expected of him by soundly trouncing the heavyweight from the Quaker City last night in the main event of ten rounds at Brown's Gymnasium.

Levinsky was entitled to the honors in each of the ten tiresome sessions, and at times he did what seemed beyond human endurance when the carried the mauling Logan around the ring and sent stinging short left and right hooks to his body. Logan's scoring blows could be counted on the fingers of one hand, and none of them had the slightest effect on his lighter adversary.

What little action there was to the bout was entirely due to the unceasing efforts of Levinsky, and he at all times was willing to work under the severe handicap. Logan, with his advantage in weight, only used it to throw upon Levinsky, which he did with some advantage. Every time Levinsky led and scored Logan fell into a clinch and held until he was told to break by Referee Bill Brown.

For five rounds the contest was exceedingly uninteresting, and then Levinsky set sail to do all in his power and managed time and again to sting Logan about the stomach with his short jolts. Levinsky's nose bled in the eighth from a chance blow in a clinch, but it was not a damaging one. Each round was practically a repetition of the preceding one, with Levinsky doing all the work.

In the semi-final of six rounds Harry Braun, a former amateur champion, was outclassed by Johnny Baker, who was entitled to the verdict by a large margin.

Clothing ethics.

There are only a few makers of really high quality clothing, and those of us who maintain a standard are under constant pressure to lower it.

This comes both from retail competition and the desire of dealers, who use our product, to be able to offer the garments of a well-known brand at "popular prices."

The work of a lifetime in building reputation may be quickly destroyed by yielding to the impulse to get the last dollar out of every transaction.

We do not recall a time when so much poor raiment was being offered at retail in New York City—some of it under the guise of respectability. Nor was there ever a time when it was better policy to stick to sound principles, even at the cost of some immediate profit.

FOOTBALL

The old Romans played football on a rectangular field, with two goals. They had four halfbacks and three fullbacks on a team.

There have been football rooters from that day to this.

Every big game of the 1913 season has attracted tens of thousands to the gridirons, which still have two goals. But a team today has only one fullback and two halfbacks.

For the multitude of Americans who like the great sport, because of its thrills and scientific perfection developed through the centuries, an ILLUSTRATED FOOTBALL SECTION will be issued next Sunday by The New York Times. It will be a unique publication. The pictures will be the best and the newest. The concise reviews and team records will be of interest to every college man and every other follower of the game.

Among those who will want this handy magazine of football, printed on calendered paper and in a size convenient for keeping as a souvenir, are the students and alumni of

PERIL IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The statements of DEAN C. WORCESTER, for twelve years Secretary of Internal Affairs in the Philippines, demand respectful attention. He is an able and experienced man, trained in the severely impartial school of science, who has dwelt and worked in the islands for many years. He knows the country and its people from a period long before the war with Spain, and has seen intimately the many changes that have taken place in that time. Now he has returned home with the hope to spread here the knowledge necessary to prepare the American nation to deal justly and wisely with their island wards. He has to note at the outset certain acts of the present Administration that are fraught with grave danger to the rights and interests of the natives as a mass and that point to a policy that may multiply the difficulties of the future.

Two important changes have been made in departments of the Philippine Government which threaten to arrest the progress already made and to inflict on the islands evils of a continuing and increasing sort. One of these is the acceptance of the resignation of Capt. SLEEPER, Director of Lands, and his replacement by a young Filipino, of good character, but inexperienced and quite unfitted to deal with the problems of the department. The chief of these problems is the establishment in the islands of a system that shall secure to the poorer Filipinos the greatest practicable number of small landed properties on which they can earn their living. With this goes the problem of preserving the forests—a domain of incalculable value—while allowing their profitable use. The main obstacle to these two beneficent tasks is the desire of wealthy land owners to secure large tracts. For this purpose they have time and again secured action by the Assembly, which has been defeated only by the veto of the Commission made up of a majority of Americans. With the change in the head of the Land Department there has been a change in the Commission, giving a majority to Filipinos. The defense of the people's rights through the Commission is thus put in peril.

The second change, which is contemplated but not effected, is in the Department of Public Health, which has been offered to a surgeon who declined it. The present Director's record is thus described by Mr. WORCESTER:

> No living sanitarian has a better record for ability and efficiency in coping with great sanitary problems than VICTOR C. HEISER of the United States Public Health Service, who has been Director of Public Health in the Philippines for nine years. He has practically eliminated smallpox, bubonic plague, and cholera, and has excluded beri-beri from public institutions; has built the best general hospital in the tropics, and has isolated the lepers while arousing only a minimum of opposition by so doing. He has reduced the death rate of American officers and employes to less than five in 1,000, and among Filipino officers and employes to four in 1,000; he has made Manila more healthful than many of the larger cities of America and has materially reduced the death rate throughout the islands. His place simply cannot be filled for years. Should Dr. HEISER be transferred to make way for a politician, he doubtless would heave a sigh of relief, but it would be a sad day for the Philippines.

Here are changes that indicate a policy which, if carried out in the same direction, will inevitably undermine the whole system of administration in the Philippines, which has for its aim the preparation of the people for independence and self-government as fast as can be done with safety and real justice. We do not question the sincerity of the Administration of President WILSON in the desire to apply democratic principles to the work in the Philippines, but we venture earnestly to appeal to the President and to his advisers to try to measure the nature and value of their policy by its effects. It is not true democracy to turn the lands of the islands over to a relatively small number of favored natives, even if the natives themselves are deluded into aiding in the process. It is not true democracy to imperil the health of the people, even though the ignorant majority may unwittingly co-operate. It is not democracy to check prematurely the education of the people in self-government and to turn them over to demagogues, even though the demagogues should belong to some of the numerous varieties of their own race. The responsibility of the Administration is very great. It requires much caution and deliberation. It would be a terrible misfortune if in making too great haste to attain the end which all sensible Americans desire its full attainment should be defeated and the islands condemned to endless confusion.

REDEEMING THE 2 PER CENTS.

The Democrats propose to make the Government redeem the banknotes which are not, or at least which should not be, any concern of the Government. On the other hand the Republicans are proposing to make the new banks take over the Government's 2 per cent. bonds, which duty is no proper concern of the new system. It is anomalous to make the payee of a debt take responsibility for the debt, and thus remove the burden from the debtor. Moreover, the formulation of a new banking and currency system is a task of sufficient difficulty to make it undesirable to load upon it unnecessary bonds. No doubt the bonds should be taken care of, and it might be done in the pending bill if the plan were made acceptable to the banks. To propose a plan unacceptable to the banks is to whip the country over the shoulders of the banks.

At the very least the Government ought to underwrite any proposal regarding the bonds, by offering to take the burden upon itself if the offer to the banks should not be accepted, or so far as it is not accepted. The Government could take care of the bonds more easily and cheaply than the banks, and the capital of the banks to that extent would be freed for commercial use in the new system, where it is urgently needed. The separation of the tasks of the Government and the banks would promote clear and right thinking regarding both proposals. Nothing would so much facilitate a good banking bill, symmetrical in itself, and without excrescence due to embarrassments belonging to the past. The future ought not to be handicapped by loading upon it inheritances of that sort.

THE HUDSON WAGON TUNNEL.

The publication in THE TIMES yesterday of the maturing plans for a tunnel for wheeled traffic under the Hudson makes it desirable that New York should make up its mind about the project. The cost is moderate in these days of larger enterprises. A bridge would cost $42,000,000—some good authorities double that estimate—but it is said a pair of tunnels, enabling traffic to move in both directions, can be had for $11,000,000. Even if that were doubled, it would seem more practicable than the cost of the bridge. The attaching of Manhattan Island to the continent is a larger subject than the joining of Manhattan to Long Island, and the subject should be approached with an open mind.

The tunnels might accommodate five million vehicles if they could have free passage, but, of course, they would not have free passage through tunnels built with private capital. That private capital must build the tunnels is a necessary assumption. New York City built the bridges to Long Island to keep its population within its boundaries and increase its tax list. Bridging the Hudson would give an outlet for New York population to New Jersey, and would increase the New Jersey tax list at the cost of New York's. That New Jersey alone would contribute funds as New York did is more than doubtful.

The strongest hope for the "annexation" of New Jersey by either bridge or tunnel lies in the reproduction of the conditions which caused the construction of both to the easterly boroughs of New York City. When the congestion of Manhattan became unendurable there was the necessity for an outlet, and therefore for the accommodation of that overflow. New York has just obligated itself to an expenditure exceeding $300,000,000, largely for the accommodation of that easterly migration, and adequate to accommodate it for perhaps a half a generation or so. New Jersey's turn to profit by its nearness to the metropolis will come in time.

NO MORE OF THIS.

It becomes our duty to invoke public censure upon WILLIAM DUDLEY FOULKE, President of the National Municipal League, for a peculiarly odious offense of which he was guilty in his address at the meeting of that organization in Toronto on Monday last. Mr. FOULKE was discussing the influence of the press upon public opinion. After some observations upon the "loss of influence" suffered by the newspapers, a matter as to which he is entitled to his opinion, however little value it may have, Mr. FOULKE declared that the cause of this was the diminished public confidence in the sincerity and impartiality of the press. He continued:

> This is not confined to the mere party organ, nor to the so-called "yellow press." In quite a different class of newspapers there is a feature which inspires mistrust. The public does not know who is really in control. A large amount of capital is required for our great metropolitan papers, and the men who own them are usually connected with other large interests. They are often large stockholders, and, perhaps, Directors of railroads and banks and vast industrial concerns which are seriously affected by many public movements.

Plain words are best in this matter, and we must therefore describe Mr. FOULKE as a reckless falsifier. A falsifier because what he said is altogether untrue, reckless because the facts as to the ownership of the great metropolitan papers and all others are a matter of record, and he appears to have made no effort to ascertain the truth.

The ownership of newspapers is no longer open to conjecture. A Federal statute demands of them, under pain of exclusion from the privileges of the mails, that they publish twice annually the names of all persons owning as much as 1 per cent. of their capital stock. The publications required have been made during the last year by all the newspapers, as Mr. FOULKE very well knows. They are made on oath. If Mr. FOULKE will in any individual case charge that the real ownership was concealed, and that the statements made are perjuries, we have no doubt that he will be accommodated with an opportunity to prove his statement in a court of law.

The press of the country has long enough submitted to this ancient calumny. It has made no particular protest because the authors of these falsehoods were for the most part worthy of no attention. Mr. FOULKE is a person of some public note, and it is necessary to remind him that such gross misrepresentations as he permitted himself to make at Toronto can no longer be tolerated. The time has gone by for that. Now that the newspapers have in good faith complied with the statute requiring publicity, the charge that they are owned or controlled, and through such ownership or control unduly influenced by "the large interests," is one that no man can make without bringing upon himself the reproach of slander and falsehood.

We have felt that the rider to the Post Office Appropriation bill, which embodies the publicity requirement, is incomplete. It was intended to substitute knowledge for conjecture in respect to newspaper ownership. Logically, a penalty should have been imposed upon those who still resort to conjecture when knowledge is before them. We would suggest that the statute be amended to provide that when any man makes such false statements about newspapers as those made by WILLIAM DUDLEY FOULKE, he be compelled publicly to cat four copies of The Congressional Record containing JONATHAN BOURNE'S speech in support of the Appropriation bill rider.

MME. MARCHESI.

Mme. MARCHESI lived to an advanced age, but she did not outlive her world-wide repute. Her famous school in Paris for vocal training had been taken over by her daughter, and the Marchesi renown survived. Of course Mme. MARCHESI was never the only maker or developer of cantatrices of the first rank, and there is no doubt that she had her discouraging failures. But she was uncommonly lucky in having had such pupils as GERSTER, CALVE, EMMA EAMES, SIBYL SANDERSON, MELBA, and many others who won great fame. She taught a good method and she helped the naturally endowed pupil to develop her gifts to the best advantage. Hence an army of American and English girls besieged her doors, and it became as fashionable for a woman to have her voice trained by MARCHESI as to have her clothes designed by WORTH.

MARCHESI in time became a sort of tradition. As she had no trouble in obtaining a hearing for pupils with fine voices, her influence with impresarios was greatly exaggerated. Moreover, the fame of her pupils who won the world's recognition was naturally shared by their teacher. GERSTER and MELBA might have been just as famous in their day and generation if they had never known MARCHESI. But her pupils always esteemed her and always freely gave her credit for showing them the way to triumph. Perhaps it was to her possession of the uncommon ability thus to win the gratitude and hold the esteem of so many of the favorites of fortune afflicted with the artistic temperament that much of Mme. MARCHESI'S success was due.

THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS.

The world will little note what we say here, was the modest and sincere expression of Mr. LINCOLN, fifty years ago to-day, at the dedication of the national cemetery at Gettysburg. True, the world, as he said also, can never forget what the brave men there buried did on that decisive battlefield. But such is the subtle power of the human soul over the souls of men that the simple outpouring of LINCOLN'S all-dominating love of country and of justice on that Autumn day has stirred the hearts of millions then unborn and has strengthened the foundations of the "government of the people, by the people, for the people" to which he was devoted. Here are his immortal words:

> Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting-place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.
> But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow, this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that the government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.

FRANK P. GLASS of Birmingham, who has been appointed by Gov. O'NEAL to fill the unexpired term of Senator JOHNSTON of Alabama, is a Princeton man, graduated in 1877, two years earlier than WOODROW WILSON. He is also very much of a newspaper man. He founded one newspaper more than forty years ago, bought another, The Selma Daily Times, after that acquired an interest in The Montgomery Advertiser, which he still retains, and is now owner and editor of The Birmingham News. He is a man of real force and ability, very popular in his own State, and will be welcomed by the Democrats of the Senate as one qualified for Senatorial service.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Who Doubts the March of Progress?

According to Col. JOSEPH C. ACKLEN, the Tennessee man who out of love for birds and animals does without remuneration a lot of work for the United States as its Chief Game Warden, women are really and rapidly abandoning the ancient and therefore barbaric habit of decorating themselves with feathers and bits of furs. This change in feminine fashions he calls the most hopeful sign he has seen in his travels all over the country, and of course it does mean a good deal as to the preservation of wild life, for the hunting that is decreed by fashion and meets its demands is even more ruthless in its slaughter than that which gratifies man's lingering desire to "kill something," or the far from reprehensible yearning we all have for something to eat.

Fashion is willing to pay any price for what it wants, and when it selects this feather or that fur as the thing to wear, the bird carrying the one or the beast carrying the other, unless domesticated, like the ostrich and the sheep, is doomed to speedy extermination unless vigorous measures are taken for its protection. And even then it is by no means safe, owing to the above-mentioned indifference to expense. Hence the reasonableness of the gentle Colonel's rejoicing that the many recent appeals to the dear ladies to cease imitating the decorative custom of their remotest ancestresses in the wildwood have set them to seeking less gruesome additions to their charms—charms which, as a matter of fact, are dangerously potent without any additions at all.

And that they are thus rising in the evolutionary scale can be seen without traveling around as much as does Col. ACKLEN. No better proof of it is needed than was to be obtained by a glance over the orchestra stalls at the opera Monday evening. Feminine heads crowned with tall and complicated arrangements of feathers were, indeed, to be observed there, and they shut off all view of the stage for the unfortunates who sat behind them. But such illustrations of atavism, so interesting to the anthropologist as reminders of Tahiti and Papua, were conspicuous because they were very few in number and evidently destined soon to disappear with the advancement of civilization and the spread of good taste.

The Colonel is right—the world does move. In time the women will even stop sprinkling themselves with shiny bits of stone, and won't that be fine!

Heroism Better Than War's.

A more magnificent display of altruism, of readiness to incur risk of life itself in responding to another's need, is rarely made than was that of THOMAS PINKERTON, the young electrical engineer who gave a pint of his blood when he heard that Miss EDITH THOMAS, a Barnard student, might thus be saved, if at all, from death due to the exhaustion due to typhoid fever.

The transfusion operation is a decidedly dangerous one for the person who supplies the blood, and its after effects are almost always serious when the loss has been considerable, as it usually must be to be effective. Submission to it is usually by some one who as a close relative or otherwise is deeply interested in the patient in whose behalf it is performed. When that is not the case, a money payment customarily has to be made. In this instance, however, there was no "consideration," sentimental or financial—the sacrifice was on what might be called general principles.

A fellow-being was in desperate straits, and no more than that fact was required to bring to Miss THOMAS'S aid not only one of her friends, but three of that friend's friends, members of his fraternity, none of whom had ever met her. And for medical reasons, determined by tests of all four, one of these was chosen by the doctors as being in a state of health and strength that made the use of his blood, rather than that of any of the other three, give most promise of a successful result.

The delicate and difficult task of transfusion from vein to vein was successfully accomplished, from the surgical point of view, and something of the hoped-for improvement in the patient followed. That it was only temporary and that her malady ended fatally in no degree detracts from the recognition earned for courage and disinterested generosity by these four young men.

As each of them was equally prompt in answering the call for help, those to whom the opportunity desired did not come should also have their names set down with that of Mr. PINKERTON. The friend of Miss THOMAS who commanded the services of such friends is FRANCIS SCOTT, a recent graduate of Columbia's Law School, as is Mr. PINKERTON, and the other two are THOMAS E. HUSER and ASHLEY DICKINSON, undergraduates in the same university. Their fraternity is Phi Kappa Psi. University and fraternity must be alike proud of them.

Another Fine Old Teleologist.

Latest of the Englishmen to get his name into the London papers and cabled across to this side of the big water by lecturing the modern woman on her inferiority to her ancestors is one Dr. THOMAS CLAYE SHAW, a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians. Of him, in what may be disgraceful ignorance, some of us never heard before, but he is evidently a real noble man and a close observer, for he thinks that the woman of to-day is a poor creature who has ruined her complexion by playing out of doors and abandoned all the duties which "nature" intended her to perform.

Dr. THOMAS CLAYE SHAW is a great believer in "nature," and, being a teleologist of the fine old school, he knows just what "nature" is trying to do and is particularly indignant when she is "balked."

Just why it is worse for women to "balk" nature than for anybody else to do it is doubtless easily understood by Dr. THOMAS CLAYE SHAW, but it is something of a mystery to those to whom every act and effort of human beings, as such, is seen as a modification or emendation of "nature."

Some of us do not drink as much rum as "nature" commands, others escape by wearing glasses the partial blindness to which she condemns us. A good many use in their work tools which "nature" did not provide, change the food she offers by cooking it, and refuse to go cold, though she did fail to cover us with fur or feathers. Even the foxes "balk" nature by digging holes in which to live, and most other animals exhibit a like tendency to better as much as they can the gifts of the All-Mother.

How the Thomas Claye Shaws stand all these "balkings" is beyond comprehension. Can it be that in their hearts they know that the use of reason is just as "natural" as anything else that is or happens?

PLEDGED OPERA TICKETS

Violate the Provision That They Are "Not Transferable."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The pledged tickets contain the clause "not transferable," and the opera company may declare them void, without refunding the money, if sold to or used by a party other than the original subscriber. Therefore, the opera company may declare them void if used by a party other than Tyson. As collateral they are, therefore, worthless or of very doubtful value, and a trust company should not engage in such business.

Pawnbrokers sometimes try to obtain loans against collateral. The collateral may consist of their unquestionable property or of others persons' property pledged with them, or of stolen objects pawned by thieves. It is almost impossible for the lender to ascertain the facts, and trust companies should keep away from such and similar transactions of an unsavory nature.

The Metropolitan Opera Company prints on the tickets "not transferable," &c., and sells them by the hundreds to a party whose intention and purpose they know is to sell and transfer them—contrary to the stipulation, and then the theatre companies mostly pretend to do all in their power to suppress the ticket speculators.

Individual subscribers are obliged to pay for their subscriptions in full at the beginning of October against a receipt only, and the opera company refuses to deliver the tickets before Oct. 25. According to the newspapers, it seems that Tyson & Co. could obtain their tickets much earlier than Oct. 25 and pawn them. Why such arbitrary discrimination, which made possible the late scandal?

The correct way toward the public might be: To continue to print on the tickets sold to the public the clause "not transferable," &c., and enforce this rule wherever they can, so that the tickets will not find their way into the hands of the speculators. After the public has subscribed for everything it wants, allow any speculator to subscribe for anything which is left—without privilege for the next season, such tickets not to bear the above-mentioned clause. A. F.

A Dinner for the Homeless.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems very strange to me that our friend Bill Lampton doesn't know that every season the Ragged Edgers give a Thanksgiving dinner to the homeless ones of New York, of which, as he says, there are plenty. Last Thanksgiving Day we had a glorious party. More than 100 men and women, people who live in the city and strangers within its gates, sat about our board and had the time of their lives. It's a great idea, and so I have pushed it along.

This Thanksgiving evening at 7 we will give a Thanksgiving dinner to the homeless at Paul Henkel's Chop House, 38 West Thirty-sixth Street, at which Libby Blondelle will be guest of honor. Miss Blondelle will bring many artists of her company, who will sing for us and make us forget that we have no home ties or families or family turkeys, and make us glad of it, perhaps. At any rate, I have circulated this fact in my magazine, The East Side, which is now on the stands, and asked all those homeless ones who read to come and dine with us and let us make them gay. ZOE ANDERSON NORRIS.

Yates Thompson.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his "Sidelights on Joe Chamberlain," printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Nov. 16, a "Veteran Diplomat" inadvertently inverted the name of Henry Yates Thompson and called him Thompson Yates. Yates Thompson was the son-in-law of George Smith of the publishing firm of Smith & Elder, who founded The Pall Mall Gazette in 1865, of which Frederick Greenwood was first editor and my father, the late Henry Vizetelly, special correspondent in Paris from 1863 to 1873. In 1880 The Pall Mall, which had hitherto been a stanch supporter of the Conservative Party and a vigorous upholder of the Earl of Beaconsfield's foreign policy, was handed over by Smith to Yates Thompson, who promptly turned it into a Liberal paper, with John Morley (the present Viscount Morley) as editor in chief and William T. Stead as assistant editor. Stead became chief editor in 1883, when Morley entered politics, and had as his assistant Alfred Milner, better known to-day as Lord Milner. FRANK H. VIZETELLY.

Disease-Breeding Prisons.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article on the Delaware whipping post, confessing our similar guilt in the criminal condition of the places to which we sentence criminals, is admirable. It should stir to real action some of those good ladies of both sexes who weep about aigrettes.

In Dover Jail, where the whipping post is, and in cells just as bad as ours, unfortunate men and women, forgotten of us, who are responsible for their condition, are condemned to death by disease. One poor colored man awoke the jail at every dawn by crying aloud to the merciful God to deliver him from that death in life. If God did not answer his prayer with death our poor colored brother still lifts up his pitiful voice every sunrise for a testimony against you and me, who suffer such things in silence. Dover Jail is bad enough, but it is in a backward and neglected community. The Tombs and Sing Sing are blooms of American civilization. BOLTON HALL.

Liquor and Opium.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can any of your readers give a plausible explanation for the universal war waged so recently on the sale of opium, while liquor is allowed to be sold on three out of four corners, not counting saloons between corners?

The proportion of homes and lives sacrificed to the use of opium is indeed small, compared to the number sacrificed daily to alcohol.

It certainly savors of straining at a very small gnat, but swallowing a very large camel. E. C. DAVISON.

A Newspaper Count.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I rode on the Hudson tube train, leaving Park Place Station, Newark, 9 o'clock this morning. Largely through motives of curiosity I walked through the train and counted the New York morning newspapers there in the hands of passengers. THE NEW YORK TIMES easily led. I counted 41 copies of THE TIMES, 8 of the next newspaper, 5 of the next, 3 of the next, 2 of the next, and 1 of the next. Is this not an unusual showing? Have any other readers had a similar experience? COMMUTER.

MODERN RECORDS MUSEUMS

Founder of Association Welcomes Dr. Kunz's Project.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see in THE TIMES for to-day that under the leadership of Dr. George F. Kunz a movement is on foot for the "founding of a group of museums in this city consisting of twenty buildings, which will be known as The Museums of the Peaceful Arts," the initial meeting for the promulgation of the idea having taken place under the auspices of "The American Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English-Speaking Peoples."

I congratulate Dr. Kunz and the other incorporators associated with him in this inestimably useful and necessary undertaking, and have no doubt of its popularity and ultimate success. Several of the gentlemen on the list have been "training for the work," so to speak, in our long two years' labor to establish The Modern Historic Records Association, which, while not organized under the auspices of the American Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English-Speaking Peoples, was, absolutely and precisely, organized, to quote John A. Stewart in speaking of the new proposed museums, "to preserve the records of our industrial, mechanical, and scientific progress for posterity." Permit me to show an interesting parallel. It is from an article on the "Proposed Building of the Association" in the booklet of The Modern Historic Records Association, published in April, 1913:

> The evidences of changes in social life, of development of resources, of expansion of human activity, even of comparatively recent important historic events, of the growth of the arts and sciences [are most carelessly neglected] • • •. Particular things, first models, photographs, machines, are kept for a few years, perhaps for a generation or two, and then cast aside and are lost forever, so that when it is wished to trace the course of some changes from the past there is nothing to go on except scattered and obscure clues of little value.

The article above was read on Dec. 9, 1911, at the first meeting of The Modern Historic Records Association. It may be seen that our intention was then, as it is now, to use this great building then proposed for the exact purpose intended by the now proposed Museums of the Peaceful Arts.

As a proud parent I view these younglings with joy. May they grow and prosper, by all means.

ALEXANDER KONTA.
Director Modern Historic Records Association.

MUSEUM ILL-LIGHTED.

Natural History Collections Cannot Be Carefully Studied.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While visiting the American Museum of Natural History on Sunday afternoon for the purpose of studying the Mexican antiquities I found the hall in which they were contained to be wholly unlighted. It was impossible to see more than the dim outlines of the collection, and a careful examination was out of the question without the aid of a "bug light," which I saw one woman using, who evidently knew the habits of the place.

I found that only the central halls are illuminated, and the wings, comprising the greater part of the building, are dark. Those who, like myself, had come for a special purpose, were left without the necessary and proper illumination to pursue their studies. In answer to my inquiries the attendant replied that the expense of lighting the entire place was too great, and that besides there was not power enough in the building. These reasons are entirely inadequate. Such a state of affairs is only possible in a provincial city—which New York is continually shewing itself to be.

If the museum is for the use and instruction of the people, and I believe nearly 1,000,000 visit it yearly, why is it the authorities are permitted to pursue such a niggardly policy that only a small part of the really superb collection is visible? Sunday should be the gala day of the week, and everything possible should be done to make it easy and interesting for people to see the whole collection at all times. As it is, during the Winter months, between dark and 5 o'clock, the hour of closing, there are from one to two hours when most of the collections are entirely useless.

$675 FOR CORDAY LETTER.

$2,851 Total for Day at Latta Sale —The Crane Auction.

An autograph letter of Charlotte Corday, who assassinated Jean Paul Marat, one of the Triumvirate of the Reign of Terror, was knocked down for $675 to William Patten at the afternoon sale yesterday by the Anderson Auction Company of William J. Latta's Napoleon collection. It is said that Mr. Latta refused an offer of $2,500 for this interesting relic of the French Revolution. The letter, a one-page quarto, is signed "Corday" and is addressed to Charlotte's father. It was written on the day she left home for Paris to see Marat. In it she seeks to deceive her father by saying that she is going to England.

An unpublished manuscript tragedy by Restif de la Bretonne, in which Danton, Robespierre, and other revolutionists figure, went to P. F. Madigan for $21. A fine letter of Admiral Gaspard de Coligny, the noted Huguenot Chief, dated Turin, March 27, 1556, written immediately after the truce of Vaucelles, when Coligny was permitted to leave Italy, was bought by Dodd & Livingston for $51. Mr. Madigan paid $90 for a two-page quarto letter of Camille Desmoulins, leader of the mob at the beginning of the Revolution. It is dated Pas. Ier, 17, 1793, and is addressed to Joseph Le Bon, a notoriously cruel revolutionist. Another letter of Desmoulins, Paris, April 20, 1792, also signed by Freron, who voted for the death of Louis XVI., was bought by W. W. Manning for $60.25.

At the evening session J. E. Barr & Co. paid $115 for a full length stipple engraving in colors of Napoleon by Cazenave after Vanderwal. Joseph F. Sabin bought for $127.50 an extremely rare mezzotint of Napoleon as First Consul, full length, in Directory costume. C. F. Bonaventure gave $97 for another mezzotint in colors, entitled "Bonaparte Pacificateur de l'Europe," by Demachi and N. De Villeneuve. The total for the day's two sessions was $2,851, bringing the total for Part II. thus far to $9,363. The sale will be continued this afternoon and evening.

In the sale of Warren C. Crane's collection of Napoleon and French Revolution material at the American Art Galleries the highest price of yesterday's two sessions was $155, paid by W. H. Hoffman of Providence, R. I., for an oval portrait in oils on panel of Napoleon, by Horace Vernet, bust in uniform, wearing cocked hat. This portrait, it is said, was given by Napoleon at St. Helena to Barry O'Meara, his physician, who gave it in turn to Thomas Moore, the poet. A feature of the evening sale was a collection of twenty-eight signatures of Napoleon appended to documents and to letters, by other persons. The top price for any of these was $62.50, given by Mr. Hoffman for a report of Dejean, which Napoleon signed "N. P." on the left margin.

A portrait of Marie Louise, Empress of France, by Girardet, went to W. E. Benjamin for $104. Two letters of Gen. Jean Victor Moreau brought $22.50. A fine holograph letter of Joachim Murat, Marshal of France and King of Naples, to whom Napoleon gave in marriage his sister, Caroline, was bought by Mr. Madigan for $26.50. A letter of Comte Honoré G. de Mirabeau, in which he says that he does not know where the recipient of the letter got the idea that he (Mirabeau) was the man of the hour, brought $9. Three letters of Edward Mortier, Duc de Treviso and Marshal of France, sold for $28.50.

The total thus far is $7,212. There will be two more sessions to-day.

RECKLESS HOUSEWIVES.

Marion Harland Cites Case of Runaway Brooklyn Girl.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In common with hundreds of other readers I have watched with painful anxiety for the outcome of the mystery surrounding the disappearance from her home last week of a Brooklyn 16-year-old school girl. The relief that sympathizers with the agonized parents felt when the child reported herself safe and well to her father is mingled in their minds with strong indignation.

It seems unaccountable that a girl on the verge of womanhood should not have appreciated to the full the horror of distress that overwhelmed her parents as day after day went by without news of her whereabouts. I pass lightly over this phase of the subject to call the attention of mothers and housewives to the significant fact that a stranger—and under an assumed name!—secured a position in a respectable family as the nurse of three little children. The nominal mistress knew nothing of the applicant's character or antecedents excepting what the youthful "stray" chose to fabricate.

It has been my contention for half a century that the tap-root of the acknowledged evils of the domestic service is the utter lack of loyalty to one another on the part of housewives. The offense is rank, and it has made us a by-word and a hissing in the estimation of other civilized nations.

When the employe, dismissed for dishonesty or other flagrant fault, cannot obtain a new place unless she can show clean papers from her last employer; when it becomes impracticable for a nomadic adventurer to install herself in the very heart of the home, upon the strength of what she may tell of her antecedents—in a word, when housekeepers and homemakers are banded into an order each member of which is bound by conscience and honor to respect and to conserve the rights of her neighbor as if they were her own—the stigma will be lifted from what has passed into common speech as "the vexed question."

The case before us should be a useful object lesson. Will it be taken to heart? MARION HARLAND.

ART NOTES.

Smedley and Knight Paintings at Knoedler's—At MacDowell Club.

Mr. Smedley and Ashton Knight are now sharing the honors of the Knoedler Galleries with Mr. Beckwith, and we get the types of American girl and American man in one room and in another the pleasant gardens of Normandy and the bridges of Venice. Mr. Smedley catches the peculiar independence of character in the girls of to-day with no small psychological tact. He avoids mixing it up with the very different independence that comes from ample experience. His girls are brave and not brazen, and his men give the impression of being excellent business men with all the qualities of mental and moral integrity implied in that too-often despised term. Even when he paints a Judge or an artist that quality of integrity gets the upper hand of other qualities.

Mr. Knight is an adventurous painter. He has been known to stand knee-deep in a French fishing stream in order to paint it not only as one sees it from shore, but as one sees and feels it midstream. And that, says one of his friends, is being a practical artist. The water that flows and ripples or lies stagnant under the gray skies of Holland or the blue skies of France or the green skies of Venice, is not however, all that counts in his pictures. He has precisely caught the color of a red thorn tree in blossom, the muffled crimson that commonly is made too raw or else too gray, and to those who know the red thorn well the picture will bring pleasure.

The course of evolution, they say, is from the homogeneous to the heterogeneous, and by that token the exhibition at the MacDowell Club this week must be very far along. Yet there seems to have been a distinct effort toward an exhibition that should hold together in alm. Andrew Dasburg improvises in chromatic chiaroscuro. His four exercises in color should be taken for just what they are, mere chromatic exercises, very brilliant as technical experiment but quite meaningless as art. When he applies his technical method to the representation of concrete objects, a bottle, a plate, and a teapot, for example, it becomes interesting, but not nearly as interesting as though he had succeeded in giving the sense of depth which the "chiaroscuro" in his title suggests as his real theme. On the opposite wall are still other exercises skillfully practiced by Mr. Cramer, only why practice in public? We all know that much drill goes before any competent performance.

Still, practicing is much less afflicting to the public than doing the Red Sea as Mr. Zorach does it, and again, it is better to do the Red Sea than to do our perfectly good New York in that unpleasant fashion. Turning thankfully away from these evil appearances to Mr. Rohland's vivid, even violent, Autumn leaves and delightful Spring blossoms, to Mr. McKee's sober and distinguished bit of still life, and to Oliver Chaffee's vigorous flower paintings, one has a sense of ordered movement, a sort of march of color to the sound of loud brass bands. It is tiring, but not stupid. The sculpture by Miss Grace M. Johnson is restful, especially her "Shouts," delightful unprogressive beasts nozzling against each other after the fashion of little pigs. Mr. Lee's sculpture is not so simple, but there is a quality of charm in his angular "Virgin."

William Auerbach Levy, who in 1911 gained the Mooney Traveling Scholarship, has on view in one of the rooms of the Fine Arts Building a number of etchings and paintings. He is more at home with the etcher's than with the painter's medium, and has availed himself of a variety of methods in obtaining his result. In "Doorway of Notre Dame Vernon" the really beautiful detail of the arch is carefully worked out, yet kept in place, and the whole is an unusually attractive bit of architectural study. "My Sister Lily" has the relaxed grace of quiescent childhood, the small hands in the lap curiously corresponding to the childish unformed mouth in their conveyance of the idea of an undeveloped personality. In "The Italian," on the other hand, the relaxed line speaks quite clearly of the burden of years. Mr. Levy gives a sense of bony structure in the drawing of the head, which is lacking in his construction of the figure. In his etchings he has learned the value of open spaces.

Drops 'Republican' from Club Name

The West Side Republican Club meeting in the club rooms at 270 West Eighty-fourth Street last night decided to change the name of the organization to the West Side Club. It was explained that the club had gradually changed from a Republican organization to a purely social club, and that the "Republican" in its name had kept from membership many neighbors who otherwise would have joined and who will now affiliate themselves with it because of its new name. The club membership numbers 320.

Opera Company Decides to Sell Its Tickets Hereafter Direct to Subscribers.

A John Doe investigation of all the transactions which caused the tangle over the $54,000 worth of Metropolitan Opera tickets held by the Metropolitan Trust Company of 49 Wall Street, as collateral for a loan made to the theatre ticket agency of Tyson & Co., 1,122 Broadway, will be started at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Announcement to that effect was made yesterday by District Attorney Whitman at the end of a conference he held with ex-State Senator Frank D. Pavey, who as Chairman of a committee representing more than 200 of the dissatisfied patrons of the ticket agency went to Mr. Whitman's office on Monday afternoon to demand that such an inquiry be made.

Ex-Senator Pavey arrived at the District Attorney's office promptly at 10:30 o'clock. He did not leave until 12:30 o'clock.

At the close of the conference with ex-Senator Pavey Mr. Whitman said:

"The District Attorney's office will institute John Doe proceedings with the view of determining whether any offenses against the penal law have been committed in connection with the hypothecation of the season tickets issued by the Metropolitan Opera Company to Tyson & Co. and deposited by it with the Metropol

MOVING TABLEAUX OF GIRLS OF ORIENT

Society Buds in Harem Dress of Modern Design March in Waldorf Ballroom.

A PERSIAN GARDEN EFFECT

Mme. Ali Kuli Khan of Persia, in Court Attire, in Box at Benefit for Catholic University.

Society girls in Oriental garb transformed the large ballroom at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, both afternoon and evening, into a Persian garden of beauty. The occasion was the moving tableaux vivants given for the benefit of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., under the auspices of prominent society women of New York.

This was the first large entertainment of the Winter season, which had been ushered in by the opera and the Horse Show, and there was a large and fashionable gathering. The tableaux lasted about an hour, after which the ballroom floor was cleared for dancing.

The society girls sold programmes, flowers, and candles, and at the close of the tableaux they formed a march from the stage around the ballroom. Mme. Ali Kuli Khan, wife of the Persian Chargé d'Affaires at Washington, D. C., occupied one of the prosenium boxes in her Court dress and jewels.

The Maharajahs and Maharanee Kapatala of India, who are on their way round the world, and who accepted an invitation to attend the entertainment, will not arrive in New York for a day or so. In the box set aside for them were three Princes of the reigning house of Punjab, India, who are students at Columbia University, including Sardar Dalip Swigh, Suchet Singh, and P. P. Bhundkankai.

The stage was set to represent a Persian garden, with a purple sky, and while Liza Lehmann's "In a Persian Garden" was rendered by a quartet, accompanied by the pipe organ, the characters of the tableaux appeared in poses in Oriental costumes of modern design.

The Persian costumes worn by the society girls, including some of this season's buds and many of last year's débutantes, were picturesque, and the most elaborate that have been seen for many a moon. Minaret tunics, the wired lampshade effects, with harem skirts, gorgeous headdresses, and gauzy veils of cerise and pastel shades, were seen on every side. As the attaché of the Persian Embassy declared that if Aladdin's lamp had been rubbed no greater vision of loveliness could have been projected against a Persian background.

A considerable sum was realized by the entertainment, which Mrs. Darrall Hoffman, through whom application for tickets was made, was much gratified over the result of the entertainment, which was arranged by a patroness committee.

Among the girls who assisted, the majority of whom appeared in costume, were the Misses Hope Hamilton, Josephine Nicoll, Dorothy Chisolm, Priscilla Bull, Marjorie Cleveland, Frances Montagu Ward, Harriet Lummus, Estelle Mulqueen, Marie Buckley, Marjorie Browning, Mildred Hamilton, Mary Hamilton Gifford, Cordelia Hall, Anna Gilbert, Eleanor Hartshorne, Carol Hackstaff, Ned Johnston, Janet Martin, Mary Milford, Eugenie Philbin, Gladys Robbins, Marie Rodewald, Genevieve Sanford, Blanche Sheehan, Tesson Thayer, Lavinia Trevor, Ruth Thurston, Mary and Helen Watson, Angelica Brown, Dorothy Mott, and Margaret Smith.

Mrs. Sherwood Aldrich, Mrs. George Elder Adams, Mrs. David G. Heller, Mrs. Stanley Mortimer, Mrs. Philip G. McFadden, Mrs. John Hitchcock, Mrs. John Strahan, Mrs. Lawrence Sanford, Miss Gertrude White, were others who appeared in costume.

Those who had boxes for the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hamilton, Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mrs. Cornelius C. Cuyler, Mrs. H. Van Rensselaer Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert A. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, Miss Nicholas Murray Butler, Mrs. Warren Dennis, Mrs. James Mott Hartshorne, Gen. Horace Porter, John D. Crimmins, Mrs. William B. Force, Mrs. Andrew Dougherty, Mrs. A. Masters McDonnell, Mrs. Michael J. Malqueen, Mrs. William Proctor, Mrs. James B. Cheek, Mrs. Frederick Pearson, ex-Justice and Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. Florian Krug, and Mrs. I. Townsend Burden, Jr.

RUSSIAN OPERA. PERHAPS.

But Hammerstein Refuses to Sponsor Report of Ballet Coming, Too.

Rumors of serious impediments to Oscar Hammerstein's new attraction to augment his season of opera in English at his new Lexington Avenue opera house next Spring. The attraction in question, which so far the impresario has refused to announce, is the Russian opera and ballet company which has appeared outside of St. Petersburg in London and Paris with success.

Chaliapine the great Russian bass, who was heard here as in Metropolitan several seasons ago, heads the opera organization, and those at the head of the ballet are Nijinsky, the male dancer, and Karsavina, who stands among the women dancers in equal prominence with Pavlowa.

The story is generally taken with a grain of salt, as it is pointed out that Oscar Hammerstein would hardly abandon his season in Italian and French opera, with artists already engaged, to embark on the undertaking of bringing over for a short engagement an enormously expensive organization, especially since, with but few exceptions, Russian ballet propaganda in this country has hitherto spelled financial disaster.

Mrs. Ball Weds Ledyard Cogswell.

The marriage of Mrs. Anna E. Ball of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Schafer of Green Castle, Ind., to Ledyard Cogswell of Albany, N. Y., took place yesterday at noon in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Central Park West and Sixty-fifth Street. The Rev. Dr. Charles Smith performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate family. Mistress of Passhorn was matron of honor and Ledyard Cogswell, Jr., was best man for his father. A breakfast was held afterward at Sherry's.

TO POPULARIZE OPERA.

Century Music to be Sold in Stores in Competition with 'Popular' Sheet.

A new and widespread agency for the popularizing of grand opera in not only New York but in other cities of the country has been undertaken by the Century Opera Company, and as a result hundreds of store windows and counters will by Christmas time exhibit grand opera music side by side with the latest turkey trots and tangos, in more attractive appearance, at the same price and in direct competition with the ten-cent "popular" music.

The agencies for the distribution will be the department stores and the five and ten cent stores. Several of the New York department stores already carry this music, and the opera company is now making arrangements with the largest owners of the five and ten cent stores whereby the concern will make a first order of 2,500,000 copies for distribution and sale among its 700 stores over the country.

The music has been arranged by Conductors Nicosia and Pasternack of the Century Company and Charles Eggett, with the main idea in view, the combatting of "popular" sheet music. One index of the popularity of the operatic selections published has been the sale of phonograph records. The opera company officials consulted the manufacturers of records and learned what the numbers were which found the readiest sale.

The music has been arranged for voice and piano with the idea always in mind that it must make no more demands on technic than the average popular sheet music. The old arrangements have been thrown overboard, therefore, and others substituted which give the piano part melodiousness and carrying power.

"We recognized what an enormous aid this would be in our work of popularizing grand opera," said Edward Kellogg Baird, President of the Century Opera Company, yesterday. "Our whole idea has been to make this music attractive in appearance, and so arranged that it could hope to tempt those with a smattering of music away from 'popular' music to something that they would be surprised to discover in the end was vastly more interesting and entertaining.

"Just as the Century Opera performances have made a new public of opera-goers, we hope this new venture will make a new public for good music in its own way. The educational value cannot be overestimated. I think the stores in which grand opera music now makes its first adequate entrance sell more actual copies of music than any one else in the world, and we are after their patrons to convert them."

SENATE'S WEDDING GIFT.

Tea Set, Candlesticks, and Other Silver for White House Bride.

For a wedding present for Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, daughter of President Wilson, who will be married on Nov. 25 to Francis B. Sayre, the United States Senate has selected a colonial engraved tea set and waiter, four candlesticks, a large ice-cream platter and two large compotiers. The set was chosen by Senator James E. Martine of New Jersey, who was delegated by the Senate as a committee of one.

The service was admired greatly by Mrs. Wilson and Miss Wilson on their recent visit to New York. It matches the handsome set of table silver presented to Miss Wilson by Mrs. Sayre, the bridegroom's mother. When Miss Clark, daughter of Speaker Champ Clark, came to New York to select the present to be given by the House of Representatives to Miss Wilson, she at first suggested the selection of the same set. It was afterward decided, however, by Representatives to give jewels to Miss Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The wedding gifts of Miss Jessie Wilson were augmented to-day by the receipt of two Persian rugs, sent with the good wishes of the members of the New Jersey Congressional delegation. These Senators and Representatives from the President's home State, with their respective families, are among the few persons from Congressional circles invited to the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Garfield, the former President of Williams College, on their coming visit to Washington for the Wilson-Sayre wedding will be the guests of Col. and Mrs. Archibald Hopkins.

Pownall—Davison.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Carolyn Theresa, daughter of the late Henry J. Davison of 875 Park Avenue, New York, was married to-day at Holy Trinity Church Brompton, to Reginald Edward Pownall, son of the late Rev. Alfred Pownall, formerly of Norwich, England.

Fisher-Remsen Wedding.

Mrs. Mary Putnam Remsen, a daughter of George Palmer Putnam, and William Forbes Fisher of London were married quietly yesterday afternoon in the Rutgers Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Robert Mackenzie. None but the immediate families were present. Mrs. Remsen wore a blue traveling gown and had no attendants. Her father gave her in marriage. Mr. Fisher had William Bonbright as his best man. There were no ushers and no reception was held. Mr. Fisher is an American, but is engaged in business in London, and he and his bride will soon sail to make their home in that city. Mrs. Fisher is a sister of G. P. Putnam, Jr., and of Edward H. and James O. Putnam.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. John M. Carrere and her daughters, the Misses Carrere, have closed their country house and have returned to their apartment, 471 Park Avenue, for the Winter.

Lieut. Col. Vollrath von Bülow of Berlin, Germany, who has been traveling extensively in this country, is at the Hotel Buckingham with his sister, Mrs. Henry Wolcott Gilbert.

Charles B. Curtis, Secretary of the American Legation at Santo Domingo, and Mrs. Curtis will arrive in New York to-morrow for an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis de P. Irving of Irvington-on-the-Hudson, Hotel Gotham for a visit; also Mr. and Mrs. Channing Wiley of Iselin, N. J.

Miss Dorothy Harvey is the guest of Miss Genevieve Champ Clark in Washington, D. C. Miss Clark was the guest of Mrs. Samuel Untermyer at the opera on Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Andrews and Miss Margaret Andrews of the Vanderbilt have gone to Boston for a visit, and will attend the Harvard-Yale football game on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson are at the Vanderbilt; also Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wanamaker and Miss Isabella Wanamaker of Philadelphia, who have come over for the Horse Show.

Mrs. John Parkin Gifford will give a dancing tea in one of the private suites at Sherry's this afternoon to formally introduce her elder daughter, Miss Lentilhon Gifford. The tea will be followed by a theatre party and supper, which Louis Keller is to give for Miss Gifford.

Miss Helen Hyde is giving to-day a luncheon at Sherry's for Miss Louise Butler.

Mrs. John Myers Shedd is giving a reception at 148 East Thirty-eighth Street this afternoon to introduce her daughter, Miss Barbara Shedd and her niece, Miss Katharine Clinton Husted, who is spending the Winter with Mrs. Shedd. Miss Esther Cleveland will be one of the receiving party.

Miss Clementine Reese will entertain with a large luncheon to-day at Sherry's for her débutante niece, Miss Virginia Scully.

The wedding of Miss Susan E. G. Drake and Richard Sears of Boston will take place this afternoon in St. James's Church, East Seventy-first Street and Madison Avenue. A small reception will be held at the home of Mrs. Lyman Tiffany Dyer, 8 East Eighty-sixth Street. Mrs. Dyer is the bride's sister.

Mrs. Samuel C. Van Dusen, who has been out of town most of the Autumn, has returned to her town house, 132 East Thirty-fifth Street.

Mrs. Noah Rogers will give a luncheon to-day for her daughter, Miss Anne Rogers, at 19 East Fifty-sixth Street.

Mrs. W. Eugene Parsons is entertaining to-day for her daughter, Miss Le Brun Parsons, with a luncheon of thirty at Sherry's.

HEDLEY TILTS AT THE SERVICE BOARD

Responsible for Unfair Competition, Interborough Official Tells Efficiency Diners.

HONEST JOBBING URGED

Salesmanship Reforms Needed to Meet Tariff Cuts, Says R. K. MacLea—Business Methods for City.

The question of how efficiency will meet the new competition caused by the reduction of the tariff, the regulation of public service corporations, and the introduction of business methods in the letting of municipal contracts was discussed at the dinner of the Efficiency Society held at the Aldine Club last night. The subject was taken up from the point of view of the public service corporation, the textile industries, and the City of New York respectively by Frank Hedley, Vice President and general manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company; R. K. MacLea, a tariff expert, and Elihu C. Church, Secretary of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity. Cornelius F. Loder, an efficiency engineer, presided at the meeting.

Mr. Hedley had grievances to air against the newspapers for "too much adverse criticism" of himself and against the Public Service Commission which, he said, has caused much unnecessary and unfair "new competition" ever since it was first "wished upon us."

"New York City has the best rapid transit system of any city in the world," said Mr. Hedley. "Yet, of the 1,000,000 or more persons we are carrying in the Subway daily, and the 1,000,000 in the elevated lines, and the 1,000,000 more in the surface lines, I believe the majority would like to know more about how the roads should be operated than those who have spent a lifetime trying to find out.

"After the Public Service Commission was wished upon us in 1907 I spent about 80 per cent. of my time in the Public Service Commission's office, answering questions at public hearings. That, to my mind, was all a waste of time—time that should have been used in my office improving the efficiency of the plan I was working for. We welcome healthy criticism, but once in a while we like to get a square deal. A business conducted on principles of the greatest efficiency cannot endure unless protected against unnecessary and ruinous competition.

"The power to introduce ruinous competition in the rapid transit system of this city is vested in two bodies, the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate. The street cars of the New York Railways are daily subjected to obstruction that prevents their operation on as efficient a basis as they should be by improper regulation of vehicular traffic and by the public's crossing at all points except the crossings. There is now before the Board of Estimate a proposal to introduce new buses on our streets. This would only increase the vehicular congestion and the fatalities on our streets—532 deaths in the last year—and add ruinous competition to our car lines. Already these buses seem to be plowing up Riverside Drive, the parks, and our streets, for no other purpose than to cultivate the ground—the crop being a goodly one of ruts and holes."

Mr. MacLea said the tariff reduction had demonstrated that it was the American textile manufacturers that were at fault in comparison with European manufacturers. The real fault, he said, lay in American methods of distribution. The foreign textile merchant, through years of striving to reach American consumers despite the tariff, has brought his methods of distribution up to a high state of development and efficiency, whereas the too high tariff was productive in the country of the type of business shark who became accustomed to succeeding by "putting one over" whenever he could, with excessive profits through methods of misrepresentation of his merchandise. The real step to lower prices, said Mr. MacLea, was not in the tariff, but in employing better men to buy and sell and in compelling adherence to sound business principles and crushing out misrepresentation. He spoke highly of introducing increased efficiency, he asserted, was not in the mills but among jobbers, retailers, and other middlemen.

There were about 100 persons at the dinner, and among them were William B. Willcox, former Chairman of the Service Board; Travis H. Whitney, Harry Rice, Commissioner of Accounts; Percy Straus, and M. D. R. Weyent.

ACTRESSES IN BLACK FACE.

The Casino Theatre was filled yesterday afternoon by the friends of The Professional Woman's League for the benefit given by that organization. The programme made up of short sketches and specialties by most of the leading actors and actresses now in the city, ran for almost four hours. The entertainment was a minstrel performance in which all of the performers were women. Fifty actresses and their friends took part in the minstrel show and all of them appeared in "black face."

Members of the Twelfth Night club assisted the women of the League in receiving the audience. More than $1,000 was raised by the performance.

New Play for Adolf Philipp Theatre.

A local German-American play called "Two Lots in the Bronx," in three acts with music, by Adolf Philipp will be produced by that writer at the Adolf Philipp Theatre on Thanksgiving night. On Nov. 26, the night before Thanksgiving, the present play at that house, "The Midnight Girl," will be presented for the 100th time and will then be withdrawn as a German attraction. Shortly afterwards "The Midnight Girl" will make its bow in English at a Broadway Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Little Give Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little of Atlanta, Ga., who have been in town for the opera and the Horse Show, gave a dinner last night at the Vanderbilt. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Coy, Frank A. Munsey, David E. Simpson, and Mr. Hammill.

Ampersands to Give a Comedy.

The Ampersands, a dramatic organization of the Bronx, will give the three-act comedy "The Three Hats," by Arthur Shirley, Friday night at the McKinley Square Casino, 160th Street, east of Boston Road. The cast is composed of members of the organization, under the supervision of Carl H. Booker, the dramatic reader and critic.

HELP THE NEEDY TO BE THANKFUL

Of the sick and needy who have turned to us for aid, there are 500 families for whom Thanksgiving will be a day of melancholy instead of gratification unless we speak in their behalf.

In each of these homes, dependent because of some unavoidable misfortune, we want to foster hope again revived, and to stimulate courage for the Winter's struggle.

For $2.50 you can provide a Thanksgiving Dinner and make one family grateful.

The best way to acknowledge mercies received is to pass kindness along—to make some one else thankful.

How many families do you think you should help to express fully your gratitude for blessings conferred?

MR. KREISLER'S RECITAL.

The Great Violinist Makes His First Appearance This Season.

Mr. Fritz Kreisler, who came to America last season for only a few orchestral concerts and offered no solo recitals, has returned this season to give much of himself in both these ways. He made a beginning yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall with a recital. Every time he returns, Mr. Kreisler's noble, virile, versatile, and widely sympathetic art seems finer than it did before; for he is an artist still young and still in the process of growth toward the highest things. And yet the judgment that he is among the greatest of contemporary artists is already one that can be bestowed upon him without fear.

He did not show all his greatest qualities in his recital yesterday, though there was indeed matter that brought out some of his finest musicianship—the E major suite of Bach, of which the prelude and gavotte are often played, the two minuets and gigue much less often. It is a solo suite as Bach wrote it, but Schumann added skilfully and judiciously a pianoforte accompaniment; and it was this version that Mr. Kreisler played yesterday, though nothing was said about it on the programme, as there should have been. Mr. Kreisler's tone did not have all through his composition quite its full sensuous beauty and smoothness which was manifested later in the programme; but it had a masculine and searching power. The splendid vigor, nerve, and rhythmic elesticity of his performance, especially of the prelude; his warmth and breadth of style, and the pregnant significance of his phrasing made it memorable.

Mr. Kreisler has long given his attention to music of the pre-classical period, of which he always has an accumulation on his programme in short pieces, often arrangements or transcriptions. Some of these are of a tenuous nature and are not quite worth the time and skill that he devotes to them, at least in such numbers. There were several in his group yesterday that well repaid attention, as a noble slow movement by Johann Sebastian Bach's son, Wilhelm Friedmann, and the prelude and allegro by Paganini and the variations by Tartini, which are familiar. There were others of less significance, and the least of them, "La Chasse" by Cartier, who exploits in it all the conventionalities of a "hunting piece," and very few musical ideas, was the most popular. Mr. Kreisler was induced to repeat it—and, to be sure, he played it with an adroit delicacy, even if not always in perfect intonation.

Pieces, all short, by Gluck, Schumann, and Mozart, Mr. Kreisler's own popular "Caprice Viennois," and three of Paganini's caprices were the other numbers on the programme. There were some of the audience who would have liked to see a great artist devoting more attention to greater music, more worthy of his powers and his art. Fortunately, there will be opportunity for them to be gratified before the season is much older.

"TROVATORE" AT CENTURY.

New Tenor, Henri Barron, as Manrico, and Lois Ewell, Leonora.

Leonora	Lois Ewell
Azucena	Kathleen Howard
Inez	Florence Cowshlan
Manrico	Henri Barron
Count di Luna	Morton Adkins
Ferrando	Alfred Kaufman
Ruiz	Vernon Dalhart
An Old Gypsy	John Interrante

At the Century Opera House last night the first performance of a week's engagement of "Il Trovatore" was given. Various phrases have been used at various times to describe the hold this Verdi opera has on the affections of the public, and it evidently remained strong enough at least to have drawn a large audience last night to the Century. The performance was an interesting one. Lois Ewell returned to the company after an absence, and her singing of the rôle of Leonora, which she invested with a human charm that is not always looked for in the portrayal of heroines of the school was the most enjoyable single feature of the evening.

The performance brought forward as Manrico a tenor who had not before appeared with the company, in the person of Henri Barron, who had been heard with the Savage production of "The Girl of the Golden West" on tour. His singing last night was not impressive. Morton Adkins was heard to advantage as the Count di Luna, and Kathleen Howard had effective moments as the old gypsy, Azucena. The production was very good scenically. Carlo Nicosia conducted with skill and discretion.

MR. AND MRS. MANNES PLAY.

A New "Virginian" Sonata by a Young American Composer.

Mr. and Mrs. David Mannes have gone to a still smaller theatre, the Princess, for their sonata recitals, which have in such a place the intimacy between players and listeners desirable for such a performance. They played a new sonata for piano and violin yesterday afternoon at the first of their series, by a young American composer, John Powell. He is not unknown to New York, for last season his violin concerto was performed here by Mr. Efrem Zimbalist and he himself appeared afterward as a pianist. In his concerto he showed his intention of employing negro themes and rhythms as musical material, and he has done it avowedly in this sonata, which he entitles "Sonata Virginianesque."

The three enchained movements are called "In the Quarters," "In the Woods," "In the Big House," respectively; but there is not much more than a general suggestion of the "programme" implied by these descriptions. The themes on which they are based are characteristic; the movements themselves are clever, and, as the artists would say, in a good sense, "amusing." There is something of the inexperience and inexpertness shown in them that was remarked in the concerto; inexpertness, that is, in developing and building up a musical fabric with cogency and solidity. There is a real feeling for the expression of mood, as well as for harmonic color, and frequent, sometimes restless modulation. The andante suggests MacDowell's procedures, something of his way of looking at nature through music, and in the last movement there is the mirthfulness of the Virginia reel—not in itself very difficult to seize, to be sure.

The "Sonata Virginianesque," though it is not a very substantial contribution to native art, commended itself to the audience, who also heard the concert givers play a sonata by Veracini in E minor, marked as for the "first time," excellent and even impressive music of the old spirit, and Schumann's D minor sonata.

THE MARGULIES TRIO.

A Composition by Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari Played for First Time Here.

Probably Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari's trio, Op. 5, No. 1, would hardly have had a place on the programme of the Adele Margulies Trio, as it had last evening at their first concert this season, if he had not had three operas successfully performed in New York. But if not highly important, it is agreeable music, the early work of a young musician who did not try to be severe or profound, nor yet to write in the latest idiom of Italy, France, or Germany, and who had some melodic invention at his command and was not afraid to use it. Though its matter is not important, it is written with skill and a genuine feeling for construction and cohesive form. Wolf-Ferrari wrote a number of chamber compositions in his earlier years, of which a sonata for piano and violin and a piano quintet had previously been played here. This trio was worth playing and gave pleasure to a discriminating audience in the excellent performance offered by Miss Margulies, Mr. Lichtenberg, and Mr. Schulz.

They played also Brahms's beautiful trio in B major, Op. 8, in the revision by which he so much improved it thirty-seven years after its first publication, and Miss Margulies and Mr. Lichtenberg played Grieg's sonata for piano and violin, another Op. 8.

FAMOUS TUTOR OF OPERA STARS DEAD

Mme. Mathilde de C. Marchesi Succumbs in London at 87—Won Tributes from Kings.

BEGAN AS CONCERT SINGER

Gave Her Lessons in Five Languages—Melba, Calve, Eames, and Di Murska Among Her Pupils.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Mme. Mathilde Marchesi died in London to-day. She was famous for over half a century as the teacher of some of the best-known singers in the world.

Her pupils included Melba, Calvé, Eames, Blanche Marchesi (her daughter), Sybil Sanderson, Emma Nevada, and Felice Lyne.

Mme. Mathilde de Castrone Marchesi was one of the most famous vocal teachers in the world. She was born at Frankfort-on-the-Main, and her maiden name was Mathilde Graumann. She was originally a concert singer, but joined the Vienna Conservatory as a teacher as far back as 1854. She afterward taught in Paris, then in Cologne, and later returned to Vienna, which she left finally in 1881 to make her home in Paris, where she had since lived.

Her husband, Salvatore Cavalleri de Castrone, Marchese della Rajata, was also a singer, and made his début in New York in 1848. Her daughter, Blanche Marchesi, is a concert and opera singer who has sung much in Canada and the United States, but has recently assisted her mother in teaching.

Mme. Marchesi spoke many languages and gave her lessons in French, German, English, Italian, or Russian. Among her pupils was Ilma di Murska. She was the friend of the composers Massenet, Meyerbeer, Gounod, Rossini, and Rubinstein.

Mme. Marchesi celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of her début in Paris in 1889. She was a firm believer in the doctrine of hard work. She told her pupils that though God might make the most wonderful throat in the world, only steady care and study could develop it to perfection.

"There are beautiful voices in all countries," she said in a recent interview. "American women are admirable and I am devoted to them. I have but one reproach to make, concerning them, and that is not of their character, but of their education, which little fits them for an artistic career.

"The majority come to me knowing no language but English, with a keen understanding of business and the practical side of life, but a complete ignorance of art. They are somewhat fickle and not extremely serious in their work; they like variety in professors as well as in everything else; they have not the application of girls who have received classic and artistic training, and one more influence which determines their professional calibre is their Puritan heritage."

Perhaps no other singing teacher was ever paid so many tributes as was Mme. Marchesi by Kings, Queens, and the nobility. She received many medals from the crowned heads of Europe as a reward for her services to the musical world.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

When the Anderson Gaiety Company moves into the Strand Theatre with "The Candy Shop," upon the completion of that house, it will not have a lease on the theatre, as stated. Max Spiegel, Secretary of the Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, owner of the building, said yesterday that his concern would operate the theatre, and that the Anderson attractions, playing at dollar prices, would come in on a sharing basis.

The benefit performance at the Republic Theatre last night for the Lenox Hill Hospital netted a large sum of money for that institution. Friends of the hospital bought out all of the theatre's seats and resold them at an advanced figure.

De Wolf Hopper has been engaged by Brady, Comstock & Gest for the rôle of King Musenstein in "Hop o' My Thumb," which comes to the Manhattan Opera House next Wednesday night. This was made possible by the closing down of "Miss Caprice" last Saturday night.

Harry Davenport has been engaged by Henry W. Savage to originate the chief comedy role in the forthcoming production of the Hungarian operetta "Sari."

Lumsden Hare, who played for a long time last season in "The Whip," has been engaged by Charles Frohman to appear with Miss Billie Burke in the new Somerset Maugham play, "The Land of Promise."

Next week at Hammersteins' will be known as "Lambs Week," as the male portion of the bill has been drafted from the membership of the Lambs. A large block of seats has been reserved for Monday night by the actors' club in honor of the occasion.

The one hundredth performance of "Adele" will be celebrated at the Longacre Theatre to-morrow night. After the performance the company together with a number of invited guests will go to Reisenweber's, where a beefsteak dinner will be served.

Several of New York's prominent artists attended in a body the performance of "The Great Adventure" last night at the Booth Theatre, and among them were John W. Alexander, Edwin H. Blashfield, Herbert Adams, H. W. Ranger, Robert Henri, Arthur B. Davies, Elliott Dangerfield, Kenyon Cox, Daniel C. French, William H. Chase, Francis C. Jones, F. Ballard Williams, and Carroll Beckwith.

MRS. HOWE AGAIN ON STAGE.

Wife of President Wilson's Nephew Takes the Name of Margaret Vale.

Mrs. George Howe of Columbia, S. C., whose husband is a nephew of President Wilson, is to play a part in "Omar, the Tentmaker," Richard Walton Tully's new play, which is to be produced by the company of which former Mayor Phelan of San Francisco is the head. Last year Mrs. Howe, under the name of Margaret Howe, took a small part in Mme. Nazimova's company, but soon retired. Now she has taken the stage name of Margaret Vale and intends to remain on the stage.

TEACHER OF BLIND DEAD.

Miss Gertrude E. Bingham Taught Classes in Public Schools Since 1909

Miss Gertrude E. Bingham, instructor of classes for blind children in the public schools, died of pneumonia at her home, 517 West 111th street, on Monday, after a short illness. She was born at Brandon, Vt., in 1868.

Miss Bingham taught in schools for the blind at Overbrooke, Penn.; Salem, Ore., and Hartford, Conn. In January, 1909, she was appointed to the position she held at the time of her death. Under her supervision the classes for blind children in this city, organized in October, 1906, increased to twelve in the elementary schools with an enrollment of 134 pupils. During that period 189 blind children were instructed, of whom only twenty-three had ever attended an institution for the blind. Eight of her pupils were graduated from elementary schools, and are now attending high schools.

Miss Bingham was a believer in home visiting by teachers under her charge.

Capt. Lehman B. Lake.

Capt. Lehman Blew Lake, one of the best known yacht Captains along the Atlantic Coast, died on Monday from Bright's disease at his home, 236 Seventy-third Street, Brooklyn. Capt. Lake was born in Camden, N. J., forty-three years ago, and the twenty-five years of his early life was in the West Indian and South American trade. His first command was the yacht Nokomis, and he later commanded the Yamoose, Lady Evelyn, Aloha, Gunilda, Comanche, Venetia, Margaret, Peregemere, and Cristina, his last command being owned by the Spreckels family. All his commands were famous yachts. During the Spanish-American war Capt. Lake was executive officer of the United States transport Kilpatrick. He left a widow, Lulu Wardell, daughter of Judge William H. Wardell; a son, Harry Lehman Lake, and three daughters.

Henry T. Champney.

Henry T. Champney, founder and for many years President of the Bovinine Company, manufacturer of a food product, died yesterday from a complication of diseases at his home, 300 West Seventy-eighth Street. He was born in New Hampshire eighty-eight years ago, and came to this city thirty years ago. Despite his years, Mr. Champney took an active interest in his business. He possessed a library which contained many rare books.

J. Stearns Cushing.

NORWOOD, Mass., Nov. 18.—J. Stearns Cushing, former President of the United Typothetae of America, a former member of the Governor's Council and President of the Norwood Press, a book printing house, died at his home here to-day. Mr. Cushing had been ill several weeks following an operation for an internal trouble. He was 59 years old.

CONGRESS TO STICK; YIELDS TO WILSON

Quitting to Get Mileage Would Be a Great Political Error, He and Leaders Think.

CURRENCY PASSAGE REMOTE

Senate Debate, About Dec. 8, to Last Two Months—New Notes Not to be Legal Tender.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—While the opinion of Democratic Senators is far from united on the subject of adjourning Congress, all hope of bringing the session to an end before the regular session begins vanished to-day. Yesterday Senators who voiced the wishes of the Administration thought an adjournment very likely, and seemed themselves mildly to favor it. The inference was drawn that the President was not opposed to it.

To-day, however, the President let it be known in no uncertain tones that he would never consent to an adjournment. This determination was construed partly as a logical sequel to his declaration early in the Summer that Congress would remain in session and that the Currency bill would be on the statute books before December.

All hope of the speedy enactment of currency reform has been abandoned. In insisting on a continuous sitting of Congress, he wishes to avoid the appearance of permitting an adjournment simply in order that members of Congress might collect $226,000 of mileage. He agrees with many Democratic leaders, who have expressed the view that adjournment for the sake of mileage would be a great political error.

So far as expediting currency legislation is concerned, nothing seems to have been gained by holding Congress in Washington.

The debate can hardly begin in earnest before Dec. 8 and conservative estimates are that two months will be required for it. If the committee reports by Saturday there will still remain only one week of the present session. Monday would probably be passed over without serious discussion. On Tuesday the Senate will not be in session out of compliment to the wedding of Miss Jessie Wilson. Thursday is Thanksgiving Day. From Dec. 1 to Dec. 6 time in the Senate is pre-empted by unanimous consent to consider the Seamen's bill.

Both halves of the Senate Committee continued their work to-day of revising the House bill in various particulars. Frightened at the comment their action aroused, the Democratic faction reversed their action making the new notes legal tender. At the same time they placated the Bryanites by restoring lawful money to eligibility along with gold for the reserves of the regional reserve banks, while the notes must be redeemed in gold alone at the Treasury. The regional banks reserves must be 33 1-3 per cent., while a sufficient fund must be maintained on deposit with the Treasury to redeem the notes of the regional bank presented in Washington.

To ease the stringency expected to arise from the shifting of reserves upon the installation of the new system the Democratic wing of the committee decided that the regional banks might accept on this account, instead of cash, prime commercial paper for half of the reserve to be deposited by member banks, though this paper shall be counted at only half its face value. During the same transitional period the Federal Reserve Board is authorized to accept all sorts of money, including national bank notes.

The Republican half of the committee, by a vote of 4 to 2, refused to incorporate into the bill a measure prohibiting interlocking directorates. Mr. Bristow of Kansas and Mr. Crawford of South Dakota voted for the amendment. They decided to ease the strain on the money market incident to the shifting of reserves by extending over a period of twenty-four months the time within which the shift might be accomplished. The required reserve of banks in reserve cities was fixed at 15 per cent. and in other places at 12 per cent.

Both halves of the committee eliminated the savings bank section. The Republican wing increased the requirement of capitalization for a bank establishing a branch abroad from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, and incorporated a provision permitting the regional banks to establish foreign branches. Member national banks would be permitted by an amendment adopted to lend money on farm mortgages for not more than five years to an amount equal to one-third of the bank's time deposits. A time deposit is defined as a deposit for more than thirty days.

The Republican wing inserted another amendment abolishing the system whereby national bank examiners receive fees. Instead flat salaries of from $2,000 to $7,000 were substituted, the salary in any particular case to be fixed by the Federal Reserve Board.

MRS. VATABLE GETS PEARL.

Jury Decides $13,000 Gem Is Not the One Stolen from Nissen & Co.

The $13,000 pink pearl which for the past six days had been handed from jurymen to witnesses in the Supreme Court before Justice Donnelly was restored yesterday by the jury's verdict to Mrs. Jules J. Vatable as its rightful owner.

Ludwig Nissen & Co. lost, on April 29, 1907, through theft, a pearl similar to that owned by Mrs. Vatable, and used to recover her pearl on the ground that it was stolen property when she bought it. Expert witnesses testified that the pearl stolen from Ludwig Nissen & Co. weighed 26 grains and was drilled, while the pearl in Mrs. Vatable's possession weighed 25⅞ grains and was undrilled at the time she became its owner.

When the taking of testimony in the suit was finished on Monday Mrs. Vatable asked that she be allowed to wear her jewel at a reception that night, but permission was refused on the ground that the jury might at any time want it as an exhibit. The pearl stolen from Ludwig Nissen & Co. was reputed to have a tragic history, and was even said to have possessed malign influence on the fortunes of its owners, among whom were a deposed Rajah and a bankrupt society man.

ACCUSES THE COAL ROADS.

Plymouth Coal Company Alleges Discrimination by Three Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Robert D. Jenks and William A. Glasgow, Jr., as counsel for the Plymouth Coal Company of Wilkes-Barre, to-day filed complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and the Central Railroad of New Jersey, alleging that the present rates of the railroad lines are unjustly discriminatory, and in favor of shippers from Taylor, Penn., and collieries east thereof.

The company asserts that its mines, located in the Wyoming district, have to pay a higher rate than collieries thirteen miles further away from the concentrating point, although in the same zone.

Attorneys for the Interstate Commerce Commission, who are conducting the inquiry here into the practices of the coal carrying railroads, delved deep to-day into the subject of transportation facilities.

Operating officials of the Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, and New York, Ontario & Western were put on the stand and described the methods of concentrating coal at the mines, the movement of coal trains to tidewater, the tonnage handled, the grades encountered, and the terminal facilities.

DELAY WIRE-TAPPERS' CASE.

Whitman Seeking Witnesses Who Cannot Be Called Accomplices.

Proceedings in the District Attorney's investigation of the alleged alliance between the police and the wire-tappers' syndicate were postponed yesterday in spite of the appearance under subpoena of several witnesses who were to testify before the Grand Jury. These witnesses included former Police Capt. Dominick Riley, Frank Tarbeaux, "Curley" Carter, George McRae, and Tom Brown, the last four of whom are to tell about the syndicate from the inside.

It was said on good authority that the real reason for the delay was the wish of the District Attorney and Assistant Frederick J. Groehl to get the testimony of witnesses who were not accused of being accomplices in the transactions. While the prosecution regards its case as strong, such testimony is necessary to obtain the nine indictments which will be asked for when the Grand Jury meets again.

The subpoenas under which Capt. Riley and the other witnesses appeared yesterday were extended by the District Attorney to Monday, when, according to Mr. Whitman, the investigation will be carried forward.

BANKS ASK CHANGE IN BOND INCOME TAX

Confer with Treasury Officials Over Securities Owned by Foreigners Abroad.

RULE AS TO FISCAL YEAR

How Corporations Must Make Their Returns So That Tax on Incomes Can Be Compared.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Representatives of six New York banking houses which engage in large international bond transactions were in conference here with officials of the Treasury Department this afternoon with a view of facilitating the administration of the income tax law in the case of non-resident foreigners owning interest-bearing bonds.

In the party were Vice President John E. Gardin of the National City Bank, Mr. Stevens of J. P. Morgan & Co., Charles D. Dickey of Brown Brothers & Co., Henry R. Ickelheimer of Hidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co., H. H. Habdin of the Bank of Montreal, and Col. F. Q. Brown of Redmond & Co. Secretary McAdoo arranged for them to meet the following officials directly in charge of the preparation of regulations for the administration of the income tax law: John Skelton Williams, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Col. W. H. Osborne, Commissioner of Internal Revenue; Deputy Commissioner Spear, and Solicitor Johnson of that bureau.

The regulations issued on Oct. 25 provided that the income tax to be collected at the source would be deducted from the income derived from interest on bonds, mortgages, equipment trusts, receivers' certificates, or other similar obligations, of which the bona fide owners were citizens of foreign countries residing in foreign countries. This regulation, however, provided that such interest coupons, or in the case of wholly registered bonds, the orders for the payment of such interest must be accompanied by duly certified proofs to cover the cases of foreign and non-resident owners. Under the regulations already issued the normal tax of 1 per cent. would be deducted at the source unless such proof of foreign ownership were duly furnished. The form of the certificate was contained in the regulations.

As a result of to-day's conference it is probable that there will be a revision of the regulation for the purpose of serving the Government without working hardship or injustice to the foreign bondholders living in foreign countries or to the American houses through which the interest on these bonds is paid.

Secretary McAdoo late this afternoon issued another ruling governing the establishment of a "fiscal year" by corporations as a basis for the computation of their net income and the payment of their income tax. The ruling took the form of an order to all Collectors of Internal Revenue, reading in part as follows:

Any corporation, joint stock company, or association, or any insurance company, subject to the tax imposed by this act, may, at its option, have the tax payable by it computed upon the basis of the net income received (accrued) from all sources during its fiscal year, provided that it shall designate the last day of the month selected as the month in which its fiscal year shall close as the day of the closing of its fiscal year, and shall, not less than thirty days prior to the date upon which its annual return is to be filed, give notice in writing, to the Collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which its principal place of business is located, of the day it has thus designated as the closing of such fiscal year.

In pursuance of this provision, a corporation or like organization subject to this tax may, for example, designate the 30th day of September as the day for the closing of its fiscal year whereupon its return of annual net income shall be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue of the district in which its principal place of business is located, not later than sixty days after the close of its said proposed fiscal year; that is to say, on or before the 29th day of November next succeeding.

The date of the closing of the fiscal year having been designated, notice thereof must be given to the Collector not less than thirty days prior to the last day of such sixty-day period. In the case just instanced the notice must be given not later than Oct. 31.

If such designation (Sept. 30, 1913,) has been made and notice given, as hereinbefore indicated, as to the closing of the fiscal year 1913, the corporation would be authorized to make its return and have the tax payable by it computed upon the basis of the net income received (accrued) by it during the period from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, 1913, both dates inclusive.

In the absence of such designation and notice of the closing of the fiscal year, corporations and like organizations subject to this tax will be required to make their returns and have the tax computed upon the basis of the net income for the calendar year.

"Returns made under this new order of things must be on the new forms prescribed by the Treasury Department. The forms heretofore in use, under the special excise tax law, cannot be used for making returns for either the fiscal or calendar year 1913."

MACDOWELL CLUB FESTIVAL

Pageant "America," New Play by Alfred Noyes, and Ball on Dec. 16.

The annual Christmas festival of the MacDowell Club will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Astor on Tuesday evening, Dec. 16, for the benefit of the Edward MacDowell Student Fund, when a varied programme will be offered, which will be followed by dancing by those present.

One of the features of the evening is to be an introductory pageant and costume ball, "America in the Making," under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Hawkesworth. All members of the club and their guests have been invited to take part in this number.

"Rada," a new play by Alfred Noyes, which is a Christmas tragedy of the Balkans, being a plea for world's peace, will be presented by the club's Committee on the Drama. The Committee on Music will present the Mendelssohn Glee Club, Louis Koemmenich, conductor; the Committee on Painting will present two tableaux by John W. Alexander, N. A.; the Committee on Literature will present Percy MacKaye, who will read a lyrical poem written for the festival, and the Committee on Pageant and Costume Ball will present "America."

New "Club List" Out.

"The Club List" of New York for 1914 and 1915 has just been issued. The volume contains the officers and standing committees of thirty clubs and a roster of 25,000 members of the leading clubs of New York City. It also contains the dates of the organization and incorporation of the clubs, initiation fees, annual dues and other information.

PUBLIC DINNER DANCES.

The Plaza Will Give a Series During the Winter.

Following the trend of the popular demand for dancing after dinners, the management of the Plaza announced yesterday that it was going to hold a series of public dinner dances during the Winter, beginning next Tuesday night, when after dinner at a fixed price in the restaurant, the grand ballroom upstairs will be thrown open and an orchestra provided which will serve all the latest tango and ragtime tunes.

Fred Sterry, the managing director, said yesterday that since election night, when there was dancing in the grand ballroom after dinner, he had been urged by many persons well known in society to make a feature of dinner dances, and that it was in response to such a demand that he was instituting series.

NO WRIT FOR IDA CLAUSSEN.

She Goes Back to Tombs Denouncing District Attorney Whitman.

Justice Seabury in the Supreme Court dismissed the writ of habeas corpus in the case of Mrs. Ida Claussen yesterday and ordered her taken back to the Tombs, where she will remain until she is tried on the indictment charging her with having sent a threatening letter to Attorney Charles Strauss. Sanity experts reported that Mrs. Claussen was mentally defective.

By permission of the Justice, Mrs. Claussen made a little speech in court. She asked the Justice if it had ever occurred to him that her detention might be the result of a conspiracy. Then she said that the attacks made upon her had prevented her from wedding a millionaire while she was abroad.

After leaving the courtroom, Mrs. Claussen attracted a crowd in the corridor of the Court House by vehemently denouncing everybody concerned in her arrest. She was especially bitter against District Attorney Whitman.

Equitable Building rents are in inverse ratio to its advantages

MOST buildings demand high rents in return for special advantages—the Equitable Building asks reasonable rents notwithstanding its advantages.

First in size, first in importance, and first in its conveniences, the Equitable Building is also first in the economy of its rentals, and you who are looking for new quarters cannot afford to overlook the overwhelming totality of Equitable advantages.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of this date.

Answer Shaw!

Berniard Shaw sums up his social satires of thirty years in one bold confession of faith in the December METROPOLITAN, out TO-MORROW. The exposition of his remedy for our economic and social evils touches life where it pulses and treats of love, marriage, money, business, religion, happiness. It will be the most talked-of magazine feature of the month. Yet we believe his logic is vulnerable; we believe some one, maybe you, can answer him.

$500 will be paid for the best answer

In addition to this cash prize, we will pay 15 cents a word for every word in the best letter submitted, which is the word rate we paid Mr. Shaw for his article. These men will pick the winning letter:

Andrew Carnegie, Jack London and James Keeley

WILL DRAFT LAW TO GUARD DESIGNS

Manufacturers and Importers to Meet Here Friday and Study Piracy Problem.

WANT CHEAP REGISTRATION

Low Fee Would Help Greatly, Merchants Say — New Kahn Law Also to be Considered.

Plans have practically been completed for the anti-design piracy convention which will be held at the Hotel Astor on Friday. Addresses will be made by a number of prominent business men, including W. A. Marbis, President of the Merchants' Association; Charles Cheney, head of the Silk Association of America; Col. George Pope, President of the National Association of Manufacturers; E. W. Bradford, head of the Patent Law Association, and C. A. Lent, Vice President of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers of the United States. Martin W. Littleton will also speak.

The convention will be held under the direction of the National Registration League, of which S. M. Weatherly of Philadelphia is Secretary, and a committee representing the Federation of Trade Press Associations of the United States, of which C. R. Clifford of this city is Chairman. It is expected that about 300 prominent manufacturers and importers, representing seventeen trades in which an original design is a marketable asset, will attend the convention. From one to twelve delegates have been appointed to the convention by each of the various trade organizations that will be represented.

While the intention of the convention will be primarily to draft tentative legislation that will put an end to design piracy by opening the way for Federal registration of original designs at a low fee, the recently enacted Kahn law will also come up for consideration. This law provides for the protection of the designs and patterns of foreign merchandise that will be exhibited at the coming Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, and in its present form is considered extremely dangerous to the future interests of American manufacturers of merchandise similar to that protected by its provisions. The League and the Federation's committee do not aim to criticise the author of the law or the national authorities for passing it, but, instead, to point out the dangers that evidently were unforeseen at the time of the passage. The merchants supporting the movement are believed to be in full sympathy with the idea of protecting the designs the law covers, but fear bad results if several of its present provisions are left unchanged.

The convention will be called to order at 2 o'clock Friday by Mr. Weatherly, after which a temporary Chairman will be elected. An introductory address will then be made by Mr. Clifford. Other business will include the election of a permanent Chairman, Vice Chairman, and Secretary, the appointment of committees, the reading of reports of delegations from organized associations, the reports of committees, and a general discussion of the points developed at the meeting.

Luncheon to O. J. Gude.

The Directors of the O. J. Gude Company, W. F. Wentz, L. E. La Tour, F. M. Jones, A. E. Gans, J. F. Gilroy, H. J. Mahn, and G. Macdougall, gave a luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Knickerbocker to Mr. Gude on the occasion of his departure for England to represent the Associated Advertising Clubs of America in inviting foreign delegates to the Convention of the clubs to be held in Toronto next Summer. Among the guests were William C. Freeman, Richard Waldo, W. H. Ingersoll, J. I. Romer, L. E. Trapp, H. D. Robbins, Frank E. Morrison, Herbert S. Houston and Charles O. Maas, who presided.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Pre-Cooling Problems Studied.

Both the Government and private parties are endeavoring to reduce the high cost of living, so far as perishable products are concerned, by giving closer study to the problem of cooling those products before shipping them to the consuming markets. Acording to an announcement of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, arrangements have been completed with the Government for the establishment of a Federal experimental station at Palmetto, Fla. It is expected that this station will be opened about Dec. 1. The idea that the Government will try out there is that perishable products can be much preserved by placing cars, immediately after loading, at a pre-cooling station for submission to a special process for this purpose. The Intermittent Vacuum Pre-Cooling Corporation has constructed a demonstration car, designed to give a practical demonstration of pre-cooling throughout the country. The plant in this car is of sufficient capacity to pre-cool the contents of a standard refrigerator car to the required temperature in from three to four hours. It was tried out on Monday at the plant of the Shipley Conduction & Supply Co., Brooklyn, and succeeded in producing a temperature of 30 to 34 degrees, Fahrenheit, within the alloted time. It is expected that the demostration car will be sent South at the end of this week.

Coffee Prices Off—Firms Fail.

A reactionary tendency has developed in the coffee market recently, according to Henry Nordlinger & Co., and it has been accelerated by corresponding weakness on the part of Brazilian holders, and the liquidation of speculative accounts. They say that the paramount market issue is not now the size of the current crop, which may turn out to be 10,000,000 bags, but what the growing crop will amount to. In this respect they say it is best to ignore sensational estimates, as for instance, estimates of one half the size of the current crop or of a crop failure. They lay stress on the fact that recently the trees have not been in condition to produce a good crop, but say that reports of weather conditions in the producing centres in the last two weeks can hardly be taken to bear out rumors of crop failure. Current stocks of coffee in this country are placed at 1,300,000 bags, which, under normal conditions, is barely equal to two months' withdrawals from the warehouses. According to reports received in this market yesterday from Santos, several Brazilian firms dealing in coffee had failed there. Details could not be learned beyond the fact that the largest failure, that of a prominent export house, involved capital amounting to about $500,000.

License Product to Maintain Prices.

Following the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court to the effect that it is illegal for manufacturers of any article to set a retail selling price for it, one of the prominent talking machine companies has adopted a new selling scheme. The idea of the new scheme is apparently to maintain retail selling prices by a license arrangement with dealers and consumers. Under this plan both the dealer and the ultimate user are licensed only to use the company's products, their title remaining permanently with the company. The agreement gives the company "the right to repossess and retake at any time the patented goods upon the payment to the user of the royalty paid him for the use of these goods, less 10 per cent. per annum of the like royalty as to machines, 10 per cent. per annum of the list royalty as to records, for each year or fraction of a year, the user shall have had the use thereof." The use of other supplies with the products patented by the company in question constituted an infringement of the patents and violation of the agreement. Dealers are required to keep complete lists of patented goods in the hands of users.

Umbrella Strike Still On.

The strike of the Umbrella and Stickmakers' Union, which was called about eight weeks ago, is still on. One of the manufacturers told a TIMES reporter yesterday that so long as a good part of the holiday business had been lost through the strike, the manufacturers were in a position to keep their shops closed until March or April, if necessary. New light was shed on the situation yesterday when it was learned that the union, at the time when the strike was called, was misled by rumore of heavy holiday orders in hand, and that the walk-out was ordered on that supposition. It was said that many of the employes were asking to be taken back, and reports were current that the union had advanced practically no funds for carrying on the strike.

London Rubber Auction Slow.

Buyers were inactive at the regular fortnightly auction of crude rubber in London yesterday. Late reports received here said that only 140 of the 900 tons offered had been taken. Prices ruled higher than at the last previous sale. Smoked sheets brought 2s 7¾d, and pale crêpe sold at 2s 5½d, against 2s 5d and 2s 2¼d, respectively, at the sale on Nov. 4. There was very little business done in the local market yesterday. None of the manufacturers seemed willing to stock up beyond immediate needs, despite the advance. Upriver fine was quoted here at 79@80c, while pale crêpe stood at 60½c.

Exporters Will Lunch To-day.

It is expected that the first monthly luncheon of the present season to be given by the American Manufacturers' Export Association, which will be given to-day at the Railroad Club, 30 Church Street, will be attended by a large number of representatives of the leading commercial interests of the country. Many guests are expected from other cities. The principal speaker will be Charles H. Sherrill, former United States Minister to Argentina. Mr. Sherrill's subject will be "The Present Necessity of Foreign Markets for American Industries."

Radiator Shelves on Market.

Shelves that can be fitted to the tops of steam radiators to hold books, small boxes, and other articles, and so utilize space in offices or stores that has heretofore been lost, have recently been put on the market. These shelves are made of a composition stone, and in three standard sizes. They can be had in almost any desired color, and are reasonably priced. It is said that the shelves will not warp, as they rest on a block foundation which may be attached to any radiator by clamps.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

MICHAUD CATERING COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Michaud Catering Company, which has a restaurant in the Tower Building at Forty-second Street and Broadway, by these creditors: James T. BUSINESS NOTES.

The seventeenth annual convention of the National Founders' Association will be held here to-morrow and Thursday at the Hotel Astor. Several prominent business men will make addresses.

Lippmann, Spier & Hahn, manufacturers and importers of jewelry and novelties, will move to 1,255-1,261 Broadway about Jan. 15.

Imports of furs at this port in the week ended Nov. 8 dropped to an unusually low figure, being valued at only $167,602. All of the weekly totals of local fur imports in the last few months show decided decreases from the values of the same weeks in 1912.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Court Upholds 40 Per Cent. Duty Levied on Ribbon Wire.

The United States Court of Customs Appeals has taken adverse action on a protest by Steinhardt Brothers, regarding the classification, under the Tariff act of 1909, of so-called ribbon wire. Collector Mitchel returned the goods at 40 per cent. ad valorem, under the proviso to Paragraph 135, as a manufacture of round steel wire covered with cotton. The importers contended that the merchandise should be admitted as round steel wire at the appropriate rate for gauge, approximating 35 per cent. ad valorem. The Board of General Appraisers found against the contention of the importers. While Government counsel, at the trial of the case before the court, raised the contention that the goods should have been returned by the Collector at 45 per cent., the court affirmed the assessment at 40 per cent.

The court affirmed the action of the Board of Appraisers in overruling a protest by Henry Glass & Co. against the assessment of duty imposed by the Collector at New York on union table cloths and union damask table covers. The goods were composed of cotton warps and linen wefts, and were returned for duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 352, act of 1909, as manufactures of which cotton was the component material of chief value. The goods were claimed properly dutiable at 40 per cent. under Paragraph 331. The court held that as a substantial portion of the articles was composed of flax, the merchandise was excluded from the paragraph claimed by the importers.

Several reappraisements of Russian wool were made by Judge McClelland. Entered values were sustained in the cases of Lee, Higginson & Co., Moscow, Mongolian wool; D. Biedermann, Moscow, white Mongolian fleece wool; Prosper Leyrines, Bordeaux, Communes, and Albert Jacoby & Sorhagen, Tiflis, white Mongolian fleece wool. The General Appraiser, however, advanced the market value of white Khorassan Autumn wool exported by Albert, Jacoby & Sorhagen, Tiflis, from 8.25 rubles to 10 rubles per pood, while Afghan fleece wool exported by the same firm entered at 8.20 and 7.20 rubles per pood, was advanced to 9 rubles per pood.

Rules Sterilization Law Is Invalid.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 18.—Justice Garrison in a Supreme Court decision to-day held unconstitutional the New Jersey law providing for sterilization of feeble-minded, criminals, epileptics, and other defectives. The decision was in the case of Alice Smith, an inmate of the State asylum for epileptics at Skillman. The court holds that the act creating the Sterilization Board is invalid by reason of taking from victims of the law unconstitutional rights to which they are entitled.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The American Consul at Kingston, Canada, reports that a firm there recently purchased a motor truck in the United States at a figure considerably under the cost of a similar Canadian vehicle, notwithstanding the 35 per cent. duty levied on the latter.

There is a marked increase in the use of blankets and similar goods among the Chinese, as is shown by recent imports of this merchandise into that country. In 1911 the value of blanket imports was $213,447; in 1912 it was $387,576.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

The grain markets lost some ground yesterday. Wheat receded from ⅛ to ¾c. net, corn from ⅝ to ¾c., and oats, ¼ to ½c. a bushel. Cotton moved sluggishly, closing net unchanged to 5 points higher. Provisions were steady and cotton oil softened.

WHEAT.

The crop situation in Argentina assumed a more optimistic phase owing to clearing conditions in the north, where it had been feared that the crop would be injured by heavy rains. This information appeared to relieve the apprehensions of damage in that country, and prices were easier, closing at ½ to ⅞c net decline. Around the opening there was a slight upturn, but buying was mostly for those who had sold at the close on Monday, but when the demand was filled prices developed an easier tone.

Receipts at Northwestern points were lighter, but offerings from the Southwest were more liberal. Private cables from Europe indicated a good demand for foreign wheat, but stocks were quite liberal, and the European visible supply showed an increase of 3,072,000 bushels for the week, while Bradstreet's visible showed an increase of 9,627,000 in stocks in America and in and afloat for Europe, compared with an increase of 8,635,000 last year.

In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at 97½c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, export basis, and 99c, free on board; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 90½c, free on board.

CORN.

Less apprehension regarding developments in the December position was shown in the corn market, and, while there was a moderate upturn early in the day, owing to unsettled weather, which, it was feared, would further delay the movement, offerings increased later, and at the close values were ⅝o to ¾o net lower. Receipts were slightly larger at Western points, and one of the depressing features of the day was a decline of ½c to 8c in the price of new cash corn at Chicago, while old corn was ¼c to ½c lower. Bradstreet's visible showed a decrease of 1,287,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 468,000 bushels last year.

In the local cash market old No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 82½@83c, elevator, domestic.

OATS.

The oats market again showed a disposition to follow wheat and corn, and prices at the close were ¼@½o net lower. Bradstreet's visible increased 777,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 852,000 last year.

The local cash market was steady, standard white being quoted at 46c to 47c; No. 2, 47c to 47½c; No. 3, 45½c to 46c; No. 4, 44½c to 45c; ordinary clipped white, 44½c to 46½c; fancy clipped white, 47c to 48c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Price changes in the provision market were narrow and the undertone was fairly steady in view of the fact that hog receipts at interior points were large and the hog market generally lower. The decline in corn had a sympathetic influence, and late in the day there was a moderate setback. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 27,000 head; estimated for Wednesday, 84,000. Kansas City received 23,000 head and Omaha 10,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Trading in the cottonseed oil market was quiet, but the undertone was easier, owing to indications of selling pressure, and prices at the close were 2 to 5 points net lower. Crude oil was said to be offered more freely.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COTTON.

The cotton market was unsettled yesterday and trading was comparatively quiet, but prices recovered on early loss, and the close was steady net unchanged to 5 points higher. Spinners were said to be selling cotton on the decline during the forenoon, and the rally later reflected a moderate trade demand, combined with some covering of shorts. There were reports of an easier spot situation, and Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to 3-16c lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 7 points in response to higher Liverpool cables than expected, but prices quickly weakened, with active months showing net losses of 10 to 12 points before the middle of the morning. Reports that a prominent Memphis authority estimated the ginning to Nov. 14 at 10,400,000 bales suggested a ginning for the first half of the month of over 1,500,000 bales, or the second largest on record, and this may have inspired some of the early offerings. The market was so narrow that it required comparatively small orders to swing prices one way or the other. Private cables from Liverpool that Lancashire trade prospects were poor and that some of the larger manufacturers were talking short time attracted some attention, and there were also pessimistic trade advices from Germany, while no improvement was reported in the New England situation.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Close.

COFFEE.

The news from Brazil regarding financial conditions there was of the most pessimistic character so far received, and, furthermore, cost and freight offers were at the lowest point of the movement. The market, however, showed pronounced resistance to further bearish influences and at the close values were 4 to 7 points net higher. Operations during the day included many exchanges from the near to the distant months and there was an absence of aggressive selling, while, at the same time, bulls seemed more disposed to support values. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were 10 to 20 points lower, with Santos 4s at 11.40 and Rio 7s at 8.90, but, even at the decline, the demand was not active, and in the absence of sales there was little or no hedge selling.

The local spot market was inactive and prices were nominally unchanged on the basis of 12¾c for No. 7s.

MISCELLANEOUS MARKETS.

BUTTER.—Receipts for week, 35,388 packages; last week, 40,941 packages. Exports, 400 packages to tropical countries. A fair amount of business has been accomplished during the week. Prices for the higher grades of both fresh and held goods have ruled a trifle higher. The buying is still conservative and against current consumptive use, but receipts of fresh goods are light and there has been a fairly satisfactory reduction of the stocks in store.

Creamery, extras, 34@35c; firsts, 28@32c; seconds, 25¼@27½c; thirds, 24@24½c; held, extras, 31@32c; firsts, 28@30c; seconds, 25@27½c; State dairy, finest, 31@32c; good to prime, 27@30c; common to fair, 26@28c; process, extras, 25¾@26½c; firsts, 24@25c; seconds, 22@23c; imitation creamery, firsts, 24@25c; factory, held, firsts, 23c; current make, firsts, 22½@23c; seconds, 21@22c; thirds, 19@20½c; packing stock, held, No. 1, 22c; current make, No. 2, 20½@21c; No. 3, 18@20c.

CHEESE.—Receipts for week, 10,666 boxes. Exports, 25 boxes to tropical countries. The market is firmer on high grades of whole milk cheese, but trading continues moderate and business is almost wholly in small lots. State, whole milk, held, colored, specials, 16½c; white, 16½c; colored, average fancy, 16@16½c; white, 16@16½c; State, whole milk, fresh, colored, specials, 16c; white, 16c; colored, average fancy, 15½c; white, 15¾c; State, whole milk, undergrades, 12½@15½c; daisies, held, best, 16¾c; Wisconsin, whole milk, flats, daisies, fresh, best, 16¾@16c; twins, best, 16½c; daisies, held, best, 16¼c; State skims, held, specials, 13@13½c; choice, 11½@12½c; fresh, specials, 12@12½c; skims, fresh, choice, 11@11½c; skims, poor to fair, 5@10c; State, full skims or badly defective, 1½@4c.

EGGS.—Receipts for week, 35,687 cases. Fresh eggs weakened slightly toward the close of last week under dull trade, prices of leading grades falling back about 2c. So far this week strictly fine qualities have received slightly, with a little better demand, but medium and undergrades are quiet, and some lots of these remain unsold. Storage eggs are fully sustained, with a moderate demand.

Fresh gathered, extras, dozen, 44@46c; extra firsts, 42@43c; firsts, 39@41c; seconds, 35@38c; thirds and poorer, 30@34c; dirties, No. 1, 25c; No. 2 and poorer, 22@27c; checks, good to choice dry, 25c; undergrade, case, $6@$7.20; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, season's charges paid, 29½@30c; firsts, season's charges paid, 28½@29c; seconds, 27c @28c; seconds to firsts, on dock, 26@28½c; lower grades, 22@26c; dirties, 22@27c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 60@65c; gathered whites, fine to finest, 58@62c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby whites, fair to good, 50@56c; small or otherwise seriously defective, 42@48c; Western, gathered white, 42@55c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery brown, 46@50c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 40@46c.

METAL PRODUCTS AIDED.

Creditors Agree to Extension of Six Months in Loans.

Creditors of the United States Metal Products Company have agreed to an extension of six months in their loans, according to a statement issued in behalf of the company yesterday, and it is expected that satisfactory financing can be done before the notes and other obligations mature. A shortage of ready money a few days ago resulted in an attachment being placed by the Chase National Bank on one of the company's plants on Long Island to secure a claim of $78,000.

A. B. Turner of the banking firm of Turner, Tucker & Co. was appointed at a meeting of creditors on Monday night to adjust the affairs of the company. Mr. Tucker said yesterday that accountants had found the company to be solvent, and that a syndicate had been formed to buy a portion of its slow assets not used in connection with the business. The amount of notes outstanding was placed at $900,000. Cash on hand and bills receivable were figured by the accountant at $700,000. With the assistance of the syndicate, it was estimated that the company would have no difficulty in meeting current liabilities with a temporary delay.

Dullness in Stocks Still More Pronounced—Prices Firm—New Haven Financing.

Trading was not so dull yesterday that the Stock Exchange was ready to assert that it was too dull to become any duller, but that stage was very nearly reached. The transactions were, in fact, smaller than on Monday, when they fell to the lowest total in five months. While conspicuously lacking in activity, the market was noteworthily firm. Relatively few issues passed the day without some net gain, which was more due to an almost entire absence of selling pressure than to any apparent disposition in any quarter to accumulate stocks. There were some developments which might be cited as lending support to the market, but these either came too late in the day or were too little considered to be regarded as responsible in any large measure for the firmness which quotations showed. That seemed rather to be due to the fact that the discounting process has robbed current adverse possibilities of most of their potency as stock market influences. That, at least, is the impression which the markets of recent days have left on many observers. For the time being liquidation is at a minimum, and recent operations have established a sufficiently large short interest to give the market substantial support quite apart from any fresh purchases for the long account. The Mexican situation was quiescent; money in this market showed increased ease, and in no quarter did an active advance factor present itself. It might be said that the market did little more than wait yesterday, but it seemed to be waiting with a tendency to take a little more hopeful view of the future than it had until recently been taking.

Just as the market closed definite reports circulated that the money which the New York, New Haven & Hartford needs to take up its notes which mature the first of next month would be provided through an issue of short-term notes. It had previously been reported that the issuance of the proposed debentures would be allowed to await the decision of the court, to which the allegation of some of the road's stockholders against the legality of the issue has been referred. Apparently on the theory that if issued at all the debentures would be put out only after their legality had been passed upon by the Massachusetts courts, the bonds were bid up to a full point below their minimum price of the previous day. A resort to a fresh issue of short-term notes might offer the easiest solution of the several-sided problem in financing which the New Haven management has had to consider, but it would also illustrate very forcibly the disadvantage of carrying on extensive financing by means of short-term obligations. The use of such securities may be most desirable to meet special emergencies, but they have in the past been used too freely for ordinary financing. The cost of money raised by means of notes cannot be measured alone by the rate of interest paid on such borrowings. The inconvenience which attaches to the refinancing of such loans must be counted as an essential part of their cost. New Haven stock again showed improvement, rising a full point to a figure 3½ points above the low price recorded for the stock at the close of last week.

The transfer of $300,000 to San Francisco through the Sub-Treasury appeared as a small offset to the cash movement which has been running in favor of this market, but any loss to that quarter is likely to be negligible, in view of the extent to which the reserve position here has been strengthened. The drift of the money market was indicated in the decline in call rates to 2½ per cent. Exchange was firmer, and there was no thought, of course, of New York bidding for the gold which arrived in London yesterday. This amounted to about $3,750,000, of which $2,500,000 was expected to go to the Bank of England. Neither Paris nor Berlin bid for any share of it.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2¼@3 per cent., with the last loan at 2¼ per cent. The renewal rate was 3 per cent.

Time money rates were 5@6¼ per cent. for sixty days, 4¾@5 per cent. for ninety days, four and five months, and 4¼@5 per cent. for six months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 5⅝@6 per cent. for the best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $327,944,297; balances, $14,465,444; Sub-Treasury credit balances, $61,070.

The local banks have lost $1,028,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations since Friday.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were London, 5⅛ per cent. for short and per cent. for three months' bills; Berlin, 4⅜ per cent.; Paris, 3¾ per cent. Money was 4@4½ per cent. in London, and 2½ per cent. in Berlin.

The Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 50½ pfennigs. The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 32 centimes.

Foreign exchange was quoted as follows:

FINANCIAL NOTES.

William R. Willcox, former Chairman of the Public Service Commission, has been elected a Director of the New York Title Insurance Company and of the New York Mortgage and Security Company.

The Protective Committee for the first refunding 4 per cent. bonds of the Buffalo & Susquehanna announces that deposits of securities under the reorganization plan of Nov. 14 will be received by the Equitable Trust Company up to Dec. 1. The sale of the property has been set for Dec. 4.

A. B. Leach & Co. have been awarded $21,100 Mount Vernon 4½ per cent. bonds.

Oscar Ising has resigned as General Manager of the United States branch of the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Corporation of London, and has been made Chairman of the Trustees. William J. Gardner will become manager on Jan. 1, and Robert H. Weody and Henry Collins assistant managers.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Expensive Litigation.

The decision of the State Court of Appeals in support of the right of the New York Stock Exchange to expel Clarence M. Cohen from its membership apparently ends a fight which has lasted for nearly four years. Mr. Cohen was expelled in January, 1910, on the charge of having made material misstatements to the Committee on Admissions at the time of his election to the Exchange. In accordance with the usual custom the Exchange offered his seat for sale, and an agreement was made with a purchaser who was to have paid $70,000 for the membership. The proceeds of the sale would have gone to Mr. Cohen. In the two weeks required for notice before a transfer could be completed the expelled member got an injunction forbidding the Exchange authorities to dispose of his seat, and the injunction has since been maintained by the pending litigation. Now that the Exchange is free to proceed with the sale for the expelled member's benefit the value of memberships has fallen to about $40,000.

Union Pacific Representation.

The two resignations from the Baltimore & Ohio Board of Directors, announced at the annual meeting on Monday, resulted from the exchange by the Pennsylvania of $42,500,000 of Baltimore & Ohio stock for Southern Pacific shares held by Union Pacific. Having disposed of its large interest, there was no reason for the Pennsylvania longer to maintain its representatives on the board. The Union Pacific was already the holder of $32,334,000 of common and $7,206,000 preferred stock of the Baltimore & Ohio, and accordingly got the two additional places.

Mr. Robbins's Error.

E. D. Robbins, general counsel and one of the Directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, apparently made a serious error when he told Judge Sheldon, in the Massachusetts Supreme Court, Monday, that the late J. P. Morgan saved the New Haven from disaster by obtaining a large loan from France during the panic of 1907. Men who were in Wall Street during the exciting days recalled by Mr. Robbins did not remember any Morgan financing arranged for the New Haven abroad in that year, and it did not seem probable that any large loan could have been made by the New Haven's fiscal agent and kept concealed. The financing which Mr. Robbins had in mind was a loan in France, amounting to about $28,000,000, which was placed in Paris and London in 1907 by Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

The Helping Hand in Wall Street.

The helping hand does not always help in Wall Street. Vagaries of the stock market sometimes prevent intentions meant most kindly from bringing the results desired. There have been instances of managers in "pools" in stocks bringing their friends in for the purpose of letting them take some easy profits. If the operation worked successfully, all well and good, but if the market failed to act right, there was another side to the story. Along this line a member of a pool in a certain industrial issue, whose powerful rise a year ago was a feature of a month's trading, spoke of the part taken in it by a member of a brokerage house which fell into difficulties not long ago. The head of the firm was credited with 10,000 shares. Other participants expressed surprise in looking over the list that the broker had taken so large a block, and were informed that he had been let in on a substantial scale because he needed some assistance in his income account. The help apparently was not great enough to be of lasting value.

Profits and Exchange Rates.

The serious effect high exchange rates on remittances from Mexico to other countries is having on the income of railway companies operating below the border has been displayed in the case of the Mexican Railways Company. The company sends funds to London for the payment of interest charges. The report for the first half year, as presented to shareholders in London, showed that the company earned in Mexican money a net income of about $1,300,000. When this sum came to be considered on a basis of English money, however, it was found that no less than $140,000 had to be written off because of the sharp advance of exchange rates. It was figured that the second half year would bring net earnings of approximately $1,250,000, on the basis of income in the first three months. As exchange quotations have risen still further in recent weeks, stockholders were informed a few days ago that nearly $325,000 more would have to be written off when final accounts were made up. If the company could leave its earnings in the country of their origin, this shrinkage would not have to be considered. The transfer to London in the prescribed course of business brings the loss.

Railroads Getting Mechanics Back.

It is reported from the West that the railroads have been getting back many skilled mechanics who left them to go with automobile companies when motor car building began to assume large proportions. Dullness in the automobile trade, it is said, has caused the laying off of part of the workmen, and this has been to the advantage of the roads.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Trading Centres Chiefly in Oil Stocks, in Which Sharp Advances Occur.

Such interest as appeared in the outside security market yesterday was confined to the oil shares, in which there were sharp advances. Standard Oil of New Jersey sold up to 385, or eight points above Monday night's closing figure, but reacted later to 379½, which was its final price, the latter representing a net gain of 2½ points for the day. The tobacco group was neglected, with no sales of tobacco products and only a few hundred shares of United Cigar Stores changing hands. The last named stock closed a small fraction higher.

High Yields

Generally speaking, the promise of a yield of 7% on an investment is a caution signal. There are times, however, when general conditions put standard securities within the reach of investors on exceptional terms.

W. C. BROWN TO QUIT THE CENTRAL LINES

Retiring as President Jan. 1 to Have Freedom from Care and Hard Work.

44 YEARS A RAILROAD MAN

Began as Section Hand and Worked Up Through All the Grades—Has Farming and Banking Interests.

William C. Brown, President of the New York Central Lines, presented his resignation yesterday, to take effect on Jan. 1, when he will be succeeded, if there is no change in the programme, by Vice President Alfred H. Smith.

Mr. Brown had contemplated resigning for some time, and last March Mr. Smith was made senior Vice President, and his jurisdiction was extended over all departments. This step usually forecasts the final promotion on the Central Lines. Mr. Brown, who had been in charge of operation and maintenance, was similarly made senior Vice President in charge of all departments on June 1, 1906, and became President in February, 1909.

Mr. Brown's resignation applies to the Presidency of the New York Central, Lake Shore, Michigan Central, and Big Four, and his letter was addressed to the Directors of each of these companies. He intends, it was announced, to give his attention hereafter to his agricultural and other interests in Iowa and to the improvement of agricultural conditions generally, in which he has taken much interest. In his letter he said:

"I have for two years contemplated asking to be relieved of the very exacting duties and responsibilities of the position of chief executive of the New York Central Lines.

"I have been in railroad service continuously for more than forty-four years —twelve years of this service with the New York Central Lines, five years in charge of the operation and maintenance of the property, two years as senior Vice President, and five years as President—and feel that I have earned that freedom from care, hard work, and responsibility which can only be secured by retiring from active service.

"In addition to my desire to be relieved of the burden and responsibility of my position I am admonished by my failing hearing that I cannot, without serious embarrassment, continue to perform the duties of the position, either in the board room or in frequent important conferences in which I must necessarily participate."

Mr. Brown, who was born in Herkimer County, N. Y., in 1853, but whose parents removed to Iowa when he was 4 years old, began his railroad career at Thompson, Ill., with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad as a section hand when he was 16. He learned to telegraph, and in 1870 was appointed operator at Charles City, Iowa, on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, later becoming night operator in the train dispatcher's office at Minneapolis. He served as train dispatcher on the Illinois Central and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, and on July 1, 1876, began an uninterrupted service of twenty-five years with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, filling successively the positions of dispatcher, chief dispatcher, trainmaster, Assistant Superintendent of the St. Louis Division, Superintendent of the Iowa Lines, General Manager of the Missouri Lines, and then General Manager of the road, which position he relinquished in 1900, to enter the services of the New York Central Lines as Vice President and General Manager of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway Company. In February, 1902, he was made Vice President in charge of operation and maintenance of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company; in February, 1905, Vice President in charge of operation and maintenance of all the railroads comprising the New York Central Lines, and on June 1, 1906, Senior Vice President in charge of all departments of the same companies.

During his connection with railroad operations Mr. Brown has taken an active part in the development and improvement of the transportation facilities of the country, which have increased enormously during that period.

The twelve years of Mr. Brown's connection with the New York Central Lines have witnessed a greater growth in those properties, and in the traffic handled by them, than any similar period in their history, gross revenue having increased from $169,500,000 to $310,200,000; tons of freight moved from 122,007,500 to 222,979,600; passengers carried from 65,411,700 to 89,420,000, and the average freight trainload shows an increase of 35 per cent.

During the same period the work of electrifying the New York Central in and about New York City was begun and carried to completion, and the Grand Central Terminal was reconstructed in its entirety.

Mr. Brown has also found time to devote considerable attention to some of the larger public questions of the day and served as a member of the Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Commission and of the New York Food Investigating Commission. He has shown great interest in improved methods of agriculture and taken an active part in calling public attention to its importance.

Mr. Brown's own financial interests are located entirely in the West, consisting in large part of investments in real estate, banks, and manufacturing enterprises in Iowa and neighboring States.

Vice President Smith has been occupied largely in the last few months as one of the railroad representatives on the Board of Arbitration which decided the differences between the Eastern roads and their conductors and trainmen.

ELEVATED TO ISSUE BONDS.

Second Mortgage to be Given to Secure $5,409,000 Issue.

The Manhattan Railway Company proposes to place a second mortgage on its elevated property in Manhattan and the Bronx, and to issue thereunder immediately bonds to the amount of $5,409,000. They will bear 4 per cent. interest, and will be dated June 1 last. They are to be payable not more than 100 years from their date of issue, and are to be redeemable at not more than 105 and accrued interest.

This issue of bonds will be in conformity with a clause in the Manhattan lease to the Interborough, in which it is provided that the Manhattan should issue this amount of bonds at any time after July 1, 1908, at the request of the Interborough. The proceeds of the issue will be used to discharge the Manhattan's indebtedness to the Interborough. The latter asserts that it already has spent in improving and reinforcing the elevated structure of the Manhattan, between April 1, 1903, and June 30, 1913, the sum of $3,708,069, and since then a further sum of $83,000 in completing the reinforcement.

The authorized capital stock of the Manhattan Railway Company, which has all been issued, is $60,000,000. At present the only mortgage on the property of the company is the consolidated mortgage, which is dated Feb. 26, 1890. Under it the company has outstanding $39,762,000 of bonds, $15,000,000 in convertible 4 per cent. bond certificates, maturing on April 1, 1990, and is responsible for 1,000 debenture bonds of the old New York Elevated Railroad Company, which bear 5 per cent. interest.

Commissioner Williams will hold a hearing for the Public Service Commission on the application of the Manhattan Railway Company for the authorization of this second mortgage on Dec. 2 at 11 o'clock.

Not Caught Up with Demand for Cars—Two New Directors.

Stockholders of the General Motors Company yesterday elected Robert F. Herrick of Boston and C. S. Mott, Mayor of Flint, Mich., to the Board of Directors, succeeding the late Anthony N. Brady and Andrew H. Green, Jr., resigned. Emory W. Clark of Detroit was made a voting trustee to fill the vacancy left by the death of Mr. Brady.

President C. W. Nash said that the business of the company was in a satisfactory condition and that the various manufacturing companies had not yet caught up with the demand for cars. Cash receipts from the sale of cars during the present fiscal year, begun Aug. 1, have exceeded those for last year by $4,500,000 and the company's cash position was $2,000,000 stronger than it was a year ago, he said. "We are closely watching conditions, and are prepared to cut down production if the demand should let up," he explained.

$45,000,000 LOAN FOR THE NEW HAVEN

J. P. Morgan & Co. Making It in Emergency to Meet Notes Due Dec. 1 and Feb. 1.

PENDING NEW BOND ISSUE

If Massachusetts Decision Is Not Averse Loan Will Be Taken Up When Debentures Are Put Out.

The Executive Committee of the New Haven Railroad decided yesterday to defer the proposed issue of $67,552,000 convertible debenture bonds until the final decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Court in the litigation started by Morgan G. Bulkeley is rendered and arrangements were made for borrowing $45,000,000 at once from a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The Directors had hoped that the Bulkeley suit would be disposed of in time for the bond issue to be made and the money received before Dec. 1, when $40,000,000 of notes fall due, but as the prospect now is that the court's decision will not be reached for at least a week, they considered it unwise to wait longer before making temporary provision for this payment and for a similar one of $5,000,000, due on Feb. 1.

The notes, bearing interest at 6 per cent., will be taken at 99¼ by J. P. Morgan & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co. They will be payable in six months or may be called at any time before that, and in any event will be called upon the receipt of the proceeds of the debenture bonds.

J. P. Morgan & Co. took steps recently to terminate their contract as fiscal agents of the road, but the ninety days' notice required by the agreement will not expire until Dec. 5. So far as the bonds are concerned, they were underwritten by Morgan & Co. by special agreement, and it was explained at the time they gave the notice that this agreement would not be affected, although the expectation then was that the bonds would be issued long before the ninety days was up.

The present temporary financing, while intimately connected with the bond issue, would not have come under the special agreement, and Morgan & Co., it was said in the announcement made by the Executive Committee, "were called upon to render their services in this emergency" under the contract expiring on Dec. 5. The agreement for underwriting the debenture bonds was also extended yesterday to Jan. 25.

The Executive Committee decided to recommend to the Board of Directors, which will meet in Boston on Friday, that the time within which subscribers must pay for the bonds be further extended. The new dates will be announced after the directors' meeting and all subscriptions received pending the final issue will be held in a fund apart from the other deposits of the company.

The announcement made yesterday said the directors had been advised by their counsel that under the terms of the decision of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission, the proposed bond issue was legal and they could properly proceed with it, but that in view of pending litigation, it was deemed wise to defer it.

"The result, therefore, of this litigation" said the statement, "has been to make it necessary to provide this very large amount of money under exceptional conditions, which certainly could not have been foreseen or contemplated."

ELLIOTT APPEALS TO PUBLIC.

Clamor for All-Steel Cars Unreasonable—Asks for Fair Play.

The demand for steel cars is being overdone by the public, according to Howard Elliott, Chairman of the New Haven Railroad. In an interview yesterday he said:

"The demand that cars on fast expresses be of steel construction may be a just and reasonable demand, and one that this road is complying with as fast as the steel cars can be turned out of the shops. But the clamor that every passenger car in the United States be made of steel is altogether unreasonable. To replace all the wooden cars of the country with steel cars would cost $700,000,000. To replace every one of its wooden cars with one of steel would cost the New Haven $50,000,000. And that would be only the beginning. If all the trains, express and local, were all steel that would mean more powerful engines, and they would call for heavier bridges, heavier tracks, and large capital expenditures, therefore increased interest charges.

"I admit the necessity of steel cars for certain purposes. To have them for local service on little branch lines, where there are but few trains a day, and, where practically all the operation is in broad daylight, would be uneconomical and a useless burden on road and public. That is merely an example of the discrimination that the public may make if it wants to cooperate for mutual benefit with a railroad."

Mr. Elliott spoke of the recent friction with the engineers, and said it had been followed by a better understanding on both sides.

"It may be more difficult," he said, "to regain the confidence of the public. The people of New England at the present time are inclined to mistrust us. The best they are withholding judgment and waiting to see what we will do. If they demand reduced rates and, at the same time, more trains, new terminals, and better stations all along the line they will be asking the impossible. We must stop spending and conserve. The income has fallen off $2,400,000 in the net in the last three months, largely because of increased expenses.

"The New Haven Road is a splendid property as it stands, but it should be better. It has good tracks, good terminals, good stations for the most part, good freight facilities, except in a few towns, where the business has outgrown them. But we have insufficient trackage. In some places we should have three tracks where we have only two. The time will come when the New Haven ought to be a six-track road all the way from New York to New Haven and a four-track road from New Haven to Boston.

"We need heavier bridges, better yard facilities, better round houses, not merely to render better service to the public, but for more economical operation.

"The people can help us, and therefore themselves, by being patient about the spending of money by admitting that a railroad must run its business to make a reasonable profit; just as every farmer, merchant, and manufacturer who uses that railroad must run his business."

HAMMERSTEIN MUST PAY.

Court Sustains Agreement with Late Wife to Support Daughters.

ALBANY, Nov. 18.—Oscar Hammerstein, the New York impresario, to-day lost a case to his daughters in the Court of Appeals.

Several years ago Mrs. Hammerstein sued him for divorce, and they entered into an agreement that he should pay her $200 a week for life and that two daughters $100 each a week for life after her death. He assigned shares of his amusement company stock as security. When his wife died he refused to pay his daughters and brought a replevin suit, in which a New York trust company which held the stock was made defendant. Hammerstein lost in the lower court and then appealed it.

Movements of Naval Vessels.

Arrived—Cassin at Washington, Birmingham at Rio de Janeiro, and Wilmington at Hongkong.

Sailed—Proteus from Norfolk for Vera Cruz, Whipple, Spaulding, Paul Jones, Perry, and the Truxtun from San Pedro for San Diego, Celtic from Genoa for Villefranche, Wyoming from Naples for Villefranche, and the Justin from San Diego for Guaymas.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—There has been a general fall in pressure except in Northern New England and the Pacific Northwest, and low pressure now prevails throughout the country, except in the South Atlantic and Gulf States.

Owing to the prevailing low pressure throughout the West, the weather will be generally unsettled during the next two days, except in the South, the Southwest, and the Pacific Northwest. There will be snows and rains in the Northwest and the extreme West and occasional rains in the Central Valleys, the lake region, and the East.

Temperatures will be moderate in the Northwest and will continue high during Wednesday and Thursday in the East. Over the Central Valleys and the lake region temperatures will probably fall somewhat by Thursday, while in the South they will not change decidedly.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern Pennsylvania and Eastern New York — Unsettled Wednesday and probably Thursday, with occasional rains; somewhat colder Thursday; light to moderate south and southwest winds.

Western Pennsylvania and Western New York—Unsettled Wednesday and Thursday; probably occasional rains; moderate south winds.

New Jersey—Cloudy Wednesday; probably local rains at night or Thursday; somewhat colder Thursday; light to moderate south and southwest winds.

Southern New England—Unsettled Wednesday and Thursday; probably occasional rains; somewhat colder Thursday; moderate southwest winds.

Northern New England—Unsettled Wednesday and Thursday; probably occasional rains; light to moderate variable winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

WATCH BANKRUPTS, MARSHALL URGES

Abuses Due to the Indifference of Creditors, U. S. Attorney Tells Jewelers.

AUTHORITIES WILL HELP

Commercial Crime Much Worse Here Than Abroad, He Says—Smuggling Cases Puzzling.

H. Snowden Marshall, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, was the speaker at the monthly luncheon of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade yesterday, at the Whitehall Club on the Thirtieth floor of the Whitehall Building. Mr. Marshall made pessimistic observations on American commercial criminality, and said he believed that if the records of commercial crimes could be tabulated on both sides of the Atlantic the comparison would be even more unfavorable to the United States than the tables of homicides whose recent publication attracted attention to the increase of crimes of violence in this country.

The particular class of commercial crimes to which District Attorney Marshall directed the attention of his hearers, who included 130 leading jewelers, was fraudulent bankruptcy. He also discussed smuggling. Devices for swindling creditors he said were uncommonly practiced in Europe, while in America the abuses of the bankruptcy law have "cried to Heaven." For this situation, he said, American creditors had only themselves to blame. He said that the prosecuting authorities in the United State were as anxious, able and eager, to bring about punishment of commercial offenders as those of Europe.

The customary procedure of an American creditor when he was swindled by a fraudulent bankruptcy was to go in expecting to get nothing, be satisfied when he got 15 or 20 cents on the dollar, then go to sleep and later wake up and "cuss" the authorities if the swindler wasn't locked up, Mr. Marshall said. He added that the victim of a fraudulent bankruptcy did only a part of his duty when he went in to procure for himself as large a dividend as possible. He said that such a creditor had a public duty to perform and could only discharge it by spending time and money to bring the offender to justice. Lack of willingness to go to any trouble whatever in pursuing a corrupt and crooked bankrupt on the part of the swindled creditors, Mr. Marshall said, had brought about "an uncivilized condition," in the administration of mercantile law.

"Once let it be generally known," he said, "that creditors will not drop their investigation of a bankruptcy, when they get a small dividend, but will follow the matter into the criminal courts, at whatever expense of time, trouble and money, so that punishment become certain, and you will cut your crooked and corrupt bankruptcies by one hundred right away."

Mr. Marshall described how several well worn dodges of fraudulent bankrupts which had worked well in the past had been puncturered recently by the work of his office. In one of the cases, the old story of robbery, worked out in dime novel fashion, to explain the disappearance of goods bought on credit, failed to help two men who had auctioned off their stock.

In another case, the device of a corporation frequently used by shrewder bankrupts to prevent their conviction for secreting goods was made useless by proceeding to convict the bankrupt as an accessory to the crime of the corporation, for which he got a sentence of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

The most difficult case was that of a bankrupt who had seemingly hedged himself about with a host of good defenses. Anxious lest so clever and dangerous a rogue should escape, Mr. Marshall had his record combed and found a misstatement in one of his declaration under oath, which relentlessly prosecuted led to his conviction for perjury.

Mr. Marshall thanked the jewelers for their help in breaking up smuggling. He said that the subject of smuggling by women had puzzled his predecessor, the Attorney General, and himself. He said he had suggested making it a capital offense, but that Mr. McReynolds had said:

"It might stop the ladies who were executed, but not the rest of them."

William I. Rosenfeld presided at the luncheon.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has disapproved a proposed amendment of the classification, striking from the exempt class, under the heading "Health Department," "two sanitary engineers," and including in the competitive class, Part IV., the title "Sanitary Engineer."

The commission has approved the report of Mr. Rafferty relative to the investigation of statements as to experience made by candidates in the examination for registrar of records. Mr. Rafferty recommends that the list be promulgated and that the certification clerk be directed to notify him in writing when the fifth name is certified.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination at the New York Custom House for laboratory apprentice, for men only, on Dec. 10 and 11, to fill four vacancies at $540 a year and three at $480 a year, in the Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce, and vacancies as they may occur in positions requiring similar qualifications. As difficulty has been experienced in obtaining eligibles for this position, qualified persons are urged to enter this examination. Competitors will be examined in report writing, elementary algebra and geometry, elementary physics, elementary mechanical drawing, and special training. Special consideration in rating the element of special training will be given to graduates of mechanical training, technical or scientific schools, or to those who have had equivalent training in scientific or technical laboratories. The Bureau of Standards furnishes excellent opportunity for young men having preliminary training in technical schools who wish to fit themselves for advanced scientific work. The work of the bureau includes scientific and technical work in physics, chemistry, and engineering. The apprentices are expected to assist those engaged in laboratory work and testing. Applicants must have reached their seventeenth but not their twenty-first birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

POINT TO DANGERS IN FIFTH AVENUE

The Traffic Investigators Want Rules Against Blocked Curbs for Bus Passengers.

At a conference held yesterday in the offices of the Fifth Avenue Association a report on traffic conditions in Fifth Avenue was discussed by Robert Grier Cooke, President of the association; Lieut. Snyder, representing Police Inspector O'Brien; R. W. Meade, President of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company; William Phelps Eno and J. Bernstein, who made the report and the investigation upon which it was based. This report brought out the facts that, through the general increase of traffic on the avenue and especially through increased number of buses—doubled as compared with last year—buses in nearly 40 per cent. of the cases were forced to stop within the second line of moving vehicles; that many corner curbs were blocked for long periods, making it impossible for the buses to pull in, and that bus passengers and those riding in other vehicles were endangered by the conditions.

In an investigation lasting a week Mr. Bernstein found that some of the corners were blocked for long periods. Thus, on Nov. 14, the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirtieth Street was blocked for a period of 490 minutes between 8 o'clock in the morning and 6 o'clock in the evening, while on the same day the southwest corner at Thirty-second Street was blocked for a period of 183 minutes, between 11 o'clock and 3 o'clock. It was further found that buses made on an average 200 stops in each direction at a single corner daily and that at one corner a maximum of 625 stops was made in a single day. The report stated that under present conditions it was impossible to have enough traffic policemen on the avenue and that 10 per cent. of the traffic posts from Fourteenth Street to Fifty-ninth Street were vacant on an average.

Among its recommendations the report said:

"To make Fifth Avenue safe for pedestrians it is absolutely necessary to regulate the movement of the buses in such a way as to make it possible for them, and to compel them, to land or take on passengers at the curb, in its report on traffic conditions the Fifth Avenue Association recommended that twenty-five feet on the avenue at the northeast and southwest corners should be kept clear at the curb. This would give greater freedom to and would allelerate the flow of traffic. It is suggested that the Police Department promulgate and enforce a rule to this effect. The individual driver or chauffeur should be held to account for disregarding any traffic regulation, and, while it is obviously true that the traffic policeman on the crossing has not time or opportunity to watch the corners, perhaps the number of motor cycle men could be increased and they might include it in their duty to deal with these offenders."

The findings and suggestions of the report were approved by Mr. Eno, who is a traffic expert, and the others present at yesterday's conference. It has also been approved by the Bureau of Municipal Research, which has been cooperating with the Fifth Avenue Association.

Exclusive Apartments

At Low Rentals

145 East 35th St., situated in the attractive Murray Hill section, in a most accessible neighborhood to the theatres and new business districts, with large rooms especially well planned. Single floor and duplex apartments of 7 large rooms with 1 and 2 baths; rents from $1,500 up.

130 West 57th St., near Carnegie Music Hall, and the 58th Street Elevated Station. Remarkably sunny apartments of 2 and 3 rooms and bath with vacuum cleaning and hotel service in one of the finest co-operative buildings in the City. Also restaurant with home cooking in the building. Especially desirable for single men or women. Also large studio with north light.

116 East 58th St., just east of Park Avenue, a new building which is one of the best finished and best planned houses in the City. Housekeeping apartments of 7, 8 and 9 rooms and 3 baths; living room 16x22, with open fires. Southerly apartments have wonderful amount of sunlight; bathrooms and kitchens are tiled to the ceiling. Rents from $2,000 up. Also 3-room apartment at $1,000. These are the cheapest apartments of their size in the City.

27 East 62nd St., just off Madison Avenue, new fireproof apartments of from 4 to 6 rooms and bath, especially designed for tenants who wish excellent accommodations in New York while keeping their country places open. Rents are exceedingly moderate for a building so well designed and so advantageously located.

11 East 68th St., northwest corner of Madison Avenue. In the Fifth Avenue block and within a few doors of the famous Whitney house, the finest location in the City. Overlooks Central Park. This apartment house, just completed, has very large rooms, ample closet space and exceptional servants' quarters. Apartments from 6 to 13 rooms and from 2 to 4 baths. Rents from $2,000 up. Especially designed for discriminating tenants.

780 Madison Avenue, between 66th and 67th Streets. The best residential neighborhood. Housekeeping and non-housekeeping apartments. Either furnished or unfurnished. The outlook from the westerly windows is across the finest part of upper Fifth Avenue, to Central Park, one block away. 8 and 9 rooms and 3 baths. Every apartment is planned for housekeeping, but all meals will be furnished in apartments, if desired, by house caterer, who is an experienced hotel man formerly with the Waldorf-Astoria, or arrangements may be made with him for special occasions. Privacy of an individual family residence. Each apartment has an entire floor to itself, and every room is an outside room. Rents $1,800 up.

829 Park Ave., southeast corner of 76th Street, thoroughly modern fireproof apartment of the best type, containing duplex and simplex apartments of 7 and 8 rooms and 2 and 3 baths. Rents from $1,700 up. Every room is an outside room and there are no such apartments on Park Avenue at the price.

In view of the lateness of the season special prices will be made on the remaining vacant apartments until next October. This is a wonderful opportunity which many people who had expected to remain out of town this winter should look into at once.

NOTE TO OWNERS.—If you are not satisfied with the present management or rental of your real estate holdings we will be delighted to look into the matter and advise you what had best be done. We are experts in this business.
